Mrs. D. Burkitt Marks 77th Birthday

RAWDON — On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. John Heagle, sixth generation Rawdon, entertained a large number of guests to a family party in honor of her mother, Mrs. David Burkitt, who was celebrating her 77th birthday anniversary.

Besides Mrs. Burkitt's daughters there were 19 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren in attendance at the party.

The honored lady was the recipient of a large array of cards and many personal gifts.

The party was a triple affair as the group also surprised Mrs. Fred Richardson, (nee Gladys Burkitt), their convention Rawdon, and Mrs. Bill Coughlin, Belleville (nee Mary Heagle).

At the luncheon served late in the afternoon three decorated and lighted birthday cakes were provided by Mrs. Ray Hedger, Belleville, for her grandmother, Mrs. Burkitt; by Mrs. Ed Richardson, Rawdon, for her husband's mother, and by Mrs. Charles Barker, of Trenton, for her sister, Mrs. Coughlin. The group spent a delightful afternoon with Mrs. Burkitt enjoyed having her family with her on this special occasion.

Pulp and Paper Production Will Be Record

MONTREAL (CP) — Pulp and paper production in Canada will be up from 1953 to a new peak of 9,900,000 tons, R. M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, states in a year-end review.

This is about five per cent more than last year, and almost two per cent above the previous record year of 1951, and gross value of production should equal 1951's level of $1,200,000,000.

Newsprint, which accounts for 60 per cent of the total pulp tonnage, also set a record of 5,900,000 tons, compared with last year's previous record of 5,700,000 tons.

Newsprint exports will run more than 5,500,000 tons, also a record and some four per cent above 1953. Corresponding figures for the United States, which takes 80 per cent of Canadian production, probably will be up from 1953, while overseas shipments will be some 675,000 tons compared with 473,000 tons in 1953.

First Big Storm Takes Six Lives In Eastern Canada

Up to Eight Inches of Snow Reported in Some Areas

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The season's first big snowstorm hit much of eastern Canada Wednesday. At least six persons died in traffic accidents and some power lines were knocked down.

The storm carried up to eight inches of snow to some areas but in the Maritimes an unseasonable warm spell produced heavy rain and temperatures rose to the 50s. Most of Ontario got off with a light snowfall, averaging three inches.

All six deaths were recorded in Ontario. The highest toll was in a three-car accident 30 miles west of Cornwall, in which three persons were killed when their car skidded off a highway and rammed into an oncoming truck loaded with 700 cases of wine.

Killed were Lyle O'Shaughnessy, 38, and his daughter, Helen, 22, and Mrs. Marion MacHaffie, 32. They were from Williamsburg, 22 miles west of Cornwall.

SKIDDING TRUCK

At Erindale, Leonard Whatmough, 42, was killed by a skidding truck. Thomas Hughes, 40, died near Hamilton when a car he was driving went into a gully. Mrs. Alice Peate, a waitress and mother of two children, perished when her small car was hit by a Canadian Pacific Railway Dayliner at level crossing in Chatham.

Eastern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes bore the brunt of the disturbance. There was little prospect, the weatherman said, that the conditions would immediately improve.

Large doses of salt and sand were prescribed for most roads in the snow-covered areas as city and highway departments were sought to forestall ice conditions brought by cold temperatures.

TURNS TO SLUSH

The snow in Ontario turned to slush quickly. The storm reached as far as Niagara Falls, Ont., before it dissipated. Ottawa had three inches of snow while parts of Hull, Que., were without power for about two hours.

Cornwall, which reported six inches of snow, suffered a 30-minute power break about noon when the main line from Cedars, Que., snapped. Small industries closed and more than 5,000 workers were idle.

Strong winds whipped rain inland from the Atlantic and in the Maritimes turned secondary roads into quagmires. Most traffic at a Quebec border point was tied up as such cities as Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto.

Should Give Reasons

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal said Wednesday trial judges should give reasons for judgment "so that on appeal such judgments can be properly reviewed."

The statement was made when the appeal court ordered a new trial in the traffic accident case of William Thomas Wright and his wife, Linda, against Hans Ruckstuhl.

ONE MAN DEAD, THREE MISSING IN SUB ACCIDENT

Ship Hurled from Dock When Floodgate Bursts

CHATHAM, England (AP)—Hope was abandoned today for three civilian dockyard workers missing after a roaring wall of water buried the submarine Talent from the Royal Navy drydock here and left her wallowing on a mud bank in the Medway river.

Navy divers recovered one body under a nearby floodgate but there was no trace of the other two men in or around the waterlogged wreck. In addition, a fourth man died today in hospital from injuries suffered in the freak accident.

A naval spokesman said it is believed they were swept away when the drydock's floodgate burst Wednesday afternoon, letting in an angry Niagara of water that wrenched the sub from her moorings and backwashed the undersea craft into the river.

Thirty-one workmen were rescued from atop the hulk. Three were badly hurt. Fifty had scrambled to safety on the dock by scaling the water reared in.

MAJOR REFIT

The Talent was undergoing a major refit at the big naval base when the accident occurred. Only a few officers and civilian workers. The crew of 70 was ashore on leave at the time, taking a tea break. A few minutes earlier more than 100 men had left the vessel for lunch.

At midnight 100 dock workers and officers moved into the submarine to close valves and waterlight doors. Fire brigades from all over Kent county started pumping her out in an effort to refloat her. Other workers started patching a hole in her hull.

The Talent, a 1,000-ton patrol submarine, is a sister ship of the Truculent, which sank in the Thames estuary, January, 1950, with the loss of 64 lives.

More Canadians Out of Jobs Than at Same Time Year Ago

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Indications are this Christmas season is finding more Canadians out of jobs than at the same period a year ago. Although national figures are not available, most major centres report increased unemployment. Only a few cities report decreased unemployment compared with the closing months of 1953, a Canadian Press survey shows.

The end of the construction season aggravates the situation in all provinces, although less severely in the Maritimes where the situation is reported brighter than last year's.

In many homes Christmas dinners will be provided by the Salvation Army and other organizations as welfare agencies across the country rally to aid those without resources.

Hardest hit area appears to be around Vancouver. There welfare agencies say they are staggering under a burden "almost beyond our power" in coping with unemployment. Half of British Columbia's 42,000 jobless are in the Vancouver district.

Across the country, 496,000 people had jobs as of late October in the Atlantic region, about 8,000 more than last year at the same time.

About 4,100 fewer workers than a year ago are seeking jobs. Six areas in the Atlantic region are said to have a major surplus of workers, six a minor surplus and the other 27 are considered "in the balance."

Ontario officials say the number of jobless is about unemployed in the province this year as last. Between 90,000 and 100,000 are looking for jobs. Toronto had almost one-third of the total.

The National Employment Service in that city lists 20,413 men and 7,293 women seeking work. Last year's total was 18,996.

In Windsor, 19,919 were registered as unemployed, about 4,000 more than last year. About 3,504 workers are hunting jobs in the London area.

In Saskatchewan nearly 10,000 are without jobs, 3,000 more than in 1953. Most of them are in Regina where a housing shortage and high rents provide a major problem of finding housing for the unemployed.

In the Winnipeg area nearly 15,000 persons were without work, about 1,000 more than in 1953. A rise in the labor force was said to be the cause of the increase. Edmonton reports 6,093 jobless and Calgary, 4,800, only slight increases over last year.

In Montreal, Canada's largest city, 28,500 are out of work, in Quebec 5,487 and in Hull, 2,500.

At St. John's, Nfld., 6,500 have registered for jobs, about 500 fewer than in December of last year. Figures do not include fishermen.

Quebec Approves Bill for Pensions For Disabled

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec Legislative Assembly Wednesday approved by a vote of 49 to 19 the Quebec government's bill authorizing provincial participation in a federal government to establish $40 monthly allowances to permanently disabled persons 18 to 60 years old.

The vote cleaned up legislature business before the Christmas and New Year' holiday adjournment expected today or tomorrow.

Before the proceedings in the assembly, Premier Duplessis presided over two cabinet meetings Wednesday but had no comment on a published report that the federal government is studying three different solutions to the problem posed by the Quebec income tax.

One high government source who declined to be quoted described the report "as an Ottawa feeler."

U.S. May Sell Food Surpluses To Russia and Her Satellites

NEW YORK (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson says the United States is considering direct trade in agricultural surpluses with Russia and its satellites.

Benson said Wednesday that study will be given in Washington both to direct sales of such commodities to Iron Curtain countries and to trade with "third party" powers which might sell to the Soviet Union.

"My feeling is that we should be willing to trade with Iron Curtain countries so long as the trade is in our favor, whether it be butter or anything else," Benson said.

MAY AID CANADA

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States decision to consider selling farm products to Iron Curtain countries may be helpful to Canada, a federal trade official said Wednesday.

The U.S. has a lot of surplus food and Congress has authorized the administration to dispose of $1,000,000,000 worth of the surpluses during the next three years by the acceptance of local currencies, Canada demands dollars for her exports.

This program has caused some fear that the U.S. may dump her surpluses in Canada's traditional markets, such as in Europe.

The possibility that the U.S. may ship some of the surpluses into Iron Curtain countries, with which traditionally Canada does not do much trade, is encouraging, the official said.

It may strengthen the export outlook in traditional markets, he said.

Two-Headed Dog Dies But Red Scientist Tries for Hardier Type

By STANLEY JOHNSON

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet scientist who claimed he produced a two-headed dog says it only lived six days after the operation, but that he hopes to bring forth a better specimen.

Dr. Vladimir Petrovich Demikhov of the Moscow Institute of Surgery told an interviewer that the dog died of a blood clot in the lung—and seven onto a mature German shepherd dog on its right side, about six inches below the ear. The new head was connected to the old circulatory and respiratory systems. For two days there were no signs of life, then suddenly both heads yawned simultaneously.

Ogonyok says "one of the principal aims of these experiments is to solve the problem of rejuvenation."

ONE MAN WITH ROPE CHASES ANOTHER TORONTO WOMAN

Police Officials Call Emergency Meeting

TORONTO (CP) — A 20-year-old expectant mother was threatened with death by a rope - wielding prowler Wednesday night as Toronto police planned further strategy in an effort to halt a series of attacks on women by an unknown stranger.

Police said they answered six calls from persons who claimed to have seen the stranger Wednesday night. They said several groups have organized escort services to accompany women to and from work at night.

Mrs. Ann Bassilek, a waitress, told police she was threatened by a man who had followed her to work and stared at her through a restaurant window on downtown Musgrave street.

She said he came after her with the rope as she was walking home and yelled: "I'll get you, and when I do I'll kill you."

Her description of the man somewhat resembles that of the man with a rope who chased Mrs. Hilda Bisteiki on Bloor street in the west-central Toronto at 1:30 a.m. Wednesday. His clothing was much the same with the exception of the shirt.

He wore a blue shirt open at the neck, Mrs. Eilis said. The man chased Mrs. Bisteiki before a white shirt open at the neck.

POLICE ALARMED

Police officials, alarmed at the rash of incidents, met on Tuesday Wednesday night of all divisional inspectors and a police squad of forty to go over the cases.

Chief John Chisholm said everything possible was being done.

Senior police officials said more men will be put on the beat to forestall attacks. At the same time they said they did not believe the attack on Mrs. Bastelek was the work of the stranger.

Detective Sgt. Sailing in the neighborhood of the reported attacks said every housewife living in the area should be going out alone. The detectives said they believe have seen the man on the street.

Activities in parties and communist front halls derive much of their membership from New Canadians in the second-rank, and have been seriously hampered because women are afraid to leave their homes after nightfall.

Women of Ukrainian origin have taken to attacks reported to police said. The two women murdered by the stranger were both of three attacked since were of Ukrainian origin.

Detective Sgt. Ben Ukrainian People's Home have been acting as escorts for women in the society during the past weeks.

VIGILANTES SUGGESTED

Controller Dan Hennessy suggested Wednesday that various ethnic groups set up vigilante committees to help police in the search.

Mrs. Eilis said she couldn't give a good description of the rope - wielding man who chased her because "after what I had heard about the attacks I thought I didn't take time to see what he looked like."

"I just screamed and ran home as fast as I could," she added.

Mrs. Bastelek, 25, mother of four, said Wednesday she was walking home when she was chased by a man who held a piece of rope in his hand. She escaped by running into the house as he dodged between parked cars in an attempt to trap her.

Military Men Say Use Of A-Weapons Up To Politicians

Dulles, Eden, Mendes-France Confer on A-Bomb Control

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARIS (CP) — A "new look" strategy for the Atlantic alliance seems certain to emerge from this week's meetings of the NATO council.

Probing cautiously into the years ahead, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's military experts have prepared defence plans designed to anticipate a major kind of war. The politicians will probably approve their proposals at meetings tomorrow and Saturday.

Fundamentally, the new strategy is to adapt defence concepts to the techniques of the atomic age.

"What we are really trying to do is to avoid the old error," said a Canadian official. "In the past, military men have tended to fight the last war all over again. This time we are trying to look ahead instead of back."

WARS OF ATTRITION

The two great world conflicts of this century were wars of attrition. Planning for possible new hostilities probably leans toward anticipation of swift knock-out blows.

What this means to Western defence strategy will be disclosed as additional expenditure for tactical atomic weapons, guided missiles and rockets may be disclosed at this week's meetings.

The new concept of defence has been developed over many months by SHAPE headquarters here in Paris. Last spring, this correspondent visited SHAPE and talked to officials directly concerned. The "new look" studies were then in progress, though the new, four-year approach to Western European military strategy.

Some press reports in advance of this week's meetings have hinted that more emphasis on possible conflicts over control of atomic weapons. Smaller NATO countries are reported opposing to give the politicians priority over the soldiers in determining when NATO reprisals might be justified.

Canadian sources admit there has been considerable "creep" of the powers of the supreme allied commander, Gen. Gruenther, but they feel the argument has been overstressed and possibly is academic.

"It boils down to the one informant said. "If the choice lies between losing the war or using atomic weapons, there won't be much doubt about the decision."

Increase In Water Rates Recommended

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Board of control Wednesday recommended a 15-per-cent general increase in water rates for the city's 134,000 consumers.

If approved by city council Monday, the new rates will become effective Jan. 1.

Mayor Leslie Saunders told the board the increase was necessary because of the increase in the wholesale price of water supplied by the Toronto metropolitan government.

The increase will mean that the average small homeowner will have to pay an extra $1.75 a year.

Metro Employees Flunk Grade Eight Questions

TORONTO (CP) — A metropolitan government official said Wednesday night there are many failures among metro employees having written examinations although some qualified as fundamental questions are of public school standard.

George Noble, metro personnel director, mentioned the high incidence of failure in a metro executive committee meeting.

Mayor Saunders said if metro's seasoned employees were being promoted without written examinations to the level they did next in the city because of failure in examinations.

The committee decided to go ahead with plans to introduce merit exams next year for promotion.

Mayor Saunders sai dat present he can't pass a Grade 8 examination as an employee of the metropolitan government. It was estimated that 70 per cent of the metro workers are former city employees.

Beaten by One Vote, Is Asking No Recount

OAKVILLE (CP) — William Anderson, defeated by one vote in his election bid for the council recently, won't ask for a recount even though he might win it.

Mr. Anderson, retiring as reeve of this town midway between Hamilton and Toronto, said Wednesday that if he won in a recount the validity of the election could be disputed.

This could result in another election that would be costly and unfair to the public.

Mayor Lachie McArthur was returned by a vote of 1,111 to 1,110.

'Safe Driving Day' Accident Toll Less Than Half of Daily Average

CHICAGO (AP)—The first observance of "Safe Driving Day" in the United States, a united effort to cut the mounting toll of deaths and accidents on the highways, appears to have succeeded.

In the 24-hour period ending at midnight Wednesday night, a survey showed, 45 Americans lost their lives in traffic accidents. The number—about two an hour—compared with the average for the same period in 1953 and 1952 was 90 a day.

The major cities contributed largely to the reduction in traffic fatalities. Among the 12 biggest, only three fatalities were reported—each in New York, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. None was reported in Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Detroit, Baltimore, St. Louis, Washington, Boston or San Francisco.

No highway deaths were reported in any major city in the six New England states.

Many other big cities reported no traffic deaths, and 25 of the 48 states which observed the first safe driving day had no fatal driving had no deaths on the highways.

Colonel H. B. Miller (Ret.), director of President Eisenhower's safety committee on traffic safety which sponsored SD-Day, commented on the toll:

"We thank the millions of Americans who sincerely tried to avoid an accident—and succeeded. We can do it on SD-Day, we can do it every day."

The purpose of the day, the committee had said, was to "demonstrate that traffic accidents can be reduced materially."

Rats Are Menace

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Stewart Murray, senior medical health officer here, warned Wednesday that the city's growing rat population is an economic as well as a health menace.

Bank Plays Santa But Then Proves Indian Giver

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A few faces were red in a bank today.

It seems that someone at the Peoples First National Bank and Trust Co. made a slight miscalculation in preparing bundles of money for a steel workers' payday. Enough an error of packaging bills in $50, $100 and $200 amounts the packages contained more than they should.

When the bank tallied up, officials said the total amount overpaid was about $3,000.

However, practically all of the extra money was returned by the steel workers, who thought for a while that Santa Claus had arrived early.

City and District News

BATAWA VILLAGE BLAZE OF GLORY

Christmas is coming to Frankford and Batawa in a blaze of glory.

Visitors to the Trent valley villages in the past few days report that as many colored lights have been strung on homes, churches, schools and stores that the whole looks like an illustration for a fairy tale.

The shoe store at Batawa has covered one whole wall with a picture of the first Christmas and it is with floodlights.

ATTRACTIVE SEASONAL DISPLAY BY VETERANS

One of the prettiest seasonal displays on Front street is the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' window.

The window depicts the stable at Bethlehem and small cutouts representing the Christ Child in the manger, His mother and father, the shepherds and their flocks and the three Wise Men and their camels.

Hovering over the scene is a huge three dimensional star.

It is a most attractive display.

Two Charged With Beer Theft

Two district youths, one of them a juvenile, have been charged by police with breaking and entering the Brewers' Warehousing Company warehouse, Wednesday night and of stealing a quantity of beer.

Arrested and charged with the offence are the juvenile and Owen MacDonald, of Point Anne. Jack Henderson, 20, of R.R. 8, Belleville, was also apprehended and charged with being in possession of liquor.

Shortly after midnight P.C. Kent spotted a broken window in the brewers' warehouse and investigation revealed the premises had been entered and a quantity of beer had been stolen.

Police said that the beer was discovered in Henderson's car, MacDonald and the juvenile were apprehended by the police this morning.

OPP Association Names Belleville Man as Officer

Ontario Provincial Police Constable Ivan Tinkess of Belleville has been named vice president of the Ontario Provincial Police Association at their first annual convention held in Toronto Wednesday. William Gibson of Aliasburg was named President succeeding Steven Fognion of Ajax.

Other officers elected include Jim Woods of Ancaster as treasurer, and Gerry Kitchen and John Ellis of Almonte, executive officers.

Membership of the Association which was formed last March is now 700. The meeting agreed to press for an earlier retirement age — at present fixed at 65 — and that it be reduced to a minimum of 25 years' service. They also wanted an increase in group life insurance and a more widespread provision of government sponsored housing for police officers.

Bancroft Votes For Liquor And Beer Store

BANCROFT (Special) — Bancroft village hall has a combined liquor and beer store following Wednesday's vote which saw 704 voting for the store and 323 against. The vote was 60.11 per cent in favor of the store, 50 per cent being required to carry.

Dry since 1938, yesterday's vote was the second in the past four years. In 1950 the question was voted on but was turned down when 17 additional votes were required to achieve the necessary 60 per cent approval.

There was high interest in yesterday's vote with 831 voters out of a possible 930, or 83 per cent turning out at the polls. Five votes were spoiled.

The liquor and beer warehouse will be established by the Ontario Liquor Board.

Engineers Meet To Discuss TV Snow, Static

OTTAWA (CP) — Ever wonder what causes the snow on your television set or the static on your radio?

It could be that a nearby radio or TV station has too much power or that the station you're looking at or listening to hasn't enough.

The men who help keep Canadian TV and radio programs separated and see that they come in on the right channels at the right time and with proper clarity, met here today to discuss snow and static and a variety of other communication problems.

They are engineering scientists and engineers who make up the Canadian radio technical planning board, a non-profit organization devoted to improvement of radio and television communication.

DISCUSS STANDARDS.

Among the problems they discussed are standards for future always and means of correcting interference on fringe areas. One of the ways is by increasing the color television broadcasts and power of others.

The board today took time out from solving problems to elect a new president for 1955. He's C. W. Boadway, a communications engineer with the Ontario Hydro.

School Board Buys Hyman Property for Use as Office

Purchase of the Mrs. E. K. Hyman property at 208 East Bridge street at a cost of $14,000 has been made by the Belleville Public School Board, the property to be used as administration offices for the school board.

The school board will take possession of the property on December 20th and expects to move in about two months time. No alterations of the property are contemplated at the present time, according to schools administrator L. A. Ketis.

The present board room accommodation at the Queen Alexandra School is now required as class room space and since last spring the board of trustees has been on the lookout for a suitable property, which could be used as a permanent office. In response to newspaper advertisements about half a dozen replies were considered and received and the special committee recommended purchase of the Hyman property. The purchase of the property was approved by the board at its last meeting of the year held this week.

Mr. Ketis noted the Hyman property was particularly suitable for use as administration offices in that it adjoins the Public School grounds, which is now owned by the school board and will be used for playground size. The entire building will be used by the board as office space, board room, staff consultation rooms and other uses.

The present administration is housed in the Queen Alexandra School in the third location for the school board's offices in the past few years.

For many years office space and board room was in the collegiate then was moved to King George School and from there to Queen Alexandra School. In all instances the moves were made because the space occupied by the board rooms was required for classrooms space.

A letter from the public school teachers' association was read at the board advising that the teachers accepted the board's salary proposals, but also noting a request would be made in the fall of 1955 for the balance of their request.

At the November meeting the school board incorporated a cost-of-living bonus of $300 into the salary schedules but took no action on a request for a $100 across the board increase in salary. A minimum salary of $4,400 was asked by the teachers. With the $300 cost of living bonus included the minimum is now $3,900.

Three members-elect, who will sit on the board next year, Bruce Bishop, James Brisbin and Lyle Langabeer, attended the board's final meeting on the invitation of board members.

Mrs. Wade Sine and schools administrator L. A. Ketis were authorized to attend a teaching clinic to be held at Temple University in Philadelphia in January.

Mrs. R. B. Morden was named the 1955 board chairman, to succeed Mrs. Sine. The organizational meeting of the 1955 board will be held on the evening of January 13th, at eight o'clock.

Shriners Ready To Entertain Crippled Children

Members of the Shrine club are making preparations for two events, one that will delight the crippled children in the community and the other to entertain their members at a stag party.

On Saturday afternoon under the direction of Tom Lewis, general chairman of the committee, the children's party will be held at the Shrine Club. This is to be event that is eagerly looked forward to by the children but more especially by the Shriners. Mr. Lewis has been a busy man for several weeks and he needs help from his fellow Shriners to make this the best party in the history of the club.

Monday evening the members will gather for the annual turkey roll and social evening and it is then with all the president, Charles Cawker, that every member turn out for it will likely be the last time the members will be together before the Christmas holiday. A fine program has been arranged and a good time is promised for all.

Carollers Will Sing Programs On Front Street

Christmas carollers costumed in the styles of the days of Charles Dickens will sing a program of carols on Front street next Monday, being one of Wednesday evenings.

Male singers have been recruited from the ranks of the local branch of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, while female carolers of the city's church choirs have volunteered their voices.

Costumes, being provided by the Chamber of Commerce, have been imported from a Toronto costuming house and will include capes, hats, and waist coats for the men and jackets, long skirts and bonnets for the girls. Antique lanterns will be carried by the male carollers.

Two groups of 12 singers each will take part in the carolling portion.

Men singers will have long mustachios and mouthpieces, to complete the 19th century effect.

Air Raid Drill Staged at Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Some 300 persons in the six storey centre block of the Parliament buildings took less than five minutes to hustle to the basement in a civil defence drill today.

About 130 civil defence workers donned gas helmets and arm bands to guide employees and visitors down the stairs — elevators were reserved for injured — to designated "safe" areas in the heavily-arched corridors under the Commons and Senate chambers.

Four persons with feigned injuries, including three women, were taken to a men's washroom on the Commons side of the building where first-aid workers helped Miss Jeanne Sabourin, recently appointed as Parliament's first full-time nurse, to care for the injured.

The all-clear sounded from the two-bell siren about 15 minutes after the drill started.

Papers, utilities, steels, refining oils and manufacturers led industrials ahead and the group's index climbed almost a point in the first hour. Ford A and Toronto General Trust were ahead $1. Howard Smith and Transmountain touched 1954 highs.

Low-priced mines were on the quiet side.

Algom touched another 1954 high, this time $13.87½, but eased for a small loss on the day later.

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 37-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today.

Explorer Plans Expedition To North Pole

NEW YORK (CP)—An explorer with several years' experience in the Canadian North says he plans to lead an expedition to the North Pole early next year to make extensive scientific studies and test a secret ice-measuring device designed to make polar flying less hazardous.

The explorer, John F. Stanwell-Fletcher, told a press conference here Wednesday that the expedition's findings will be made available to both Canadian and American defence officials. The project, expected to cost about $400,000, is being privately organized and "sponsored by help from business institutions."

Stanwell-Fletcher said 22 people will take part in the expedition, including 14 scientist-explorers; photographers and technicians; Stanwell-Fletcher's wife Peggy, as official recorder; and four Eskimos.

The explorer said the RCMP has been invited to assign one of its members to represent Canada on the expedition. "But we do not anticipate other than a favorable reply."

Stanwell-Fletcher declined details of the secret, ice-measuring device, which he described as a "secret drop gadget." He said it would be very difficult to discuss or know whether a particular area of ice is thick enough to support a plane. He added that $50,000 has been spent developing it.

Five Children Burned to Death

HOOSICK FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Five children ranging from one to five years were burned to death today when fire destroyed a two-storey frame house at nearby Walloomsac.

The fire was believed to have started about 6 a. m. in an oil storage shed near the house.

It was reported that one of the children was asleep with his mother, Mrs. Waldo Grogan, in a first-floor room and that the others were in bed in a second-storey room.

Their 30-year-old father was at work at the time of the fire.

Neighbors said Mrs. Grogan escaped uninjured.

Walloomsac is near the New York-Vermont state line.

Winter's Worst Fog Hits London

LONDON (Reuters)—The worst fog of the winter rolled in over London during the night and shrouded most of northwestern Europe.

Many Londoners went to work today with their faces muffled in scarves, handkerchiefs and "smog masks" to avoid bronchial disturbances. In some parts of the capital visibility was only 10 yards.

In the north of England motorists caught in the mirk had to be guided by passengers walking ahead of the cars with flashlights.

Regular airline flights from London were cancelled, and all airfields in northern Europe, except Hamburg, Germany, and Zurich, Switzerland, were fogbound. Foreign Secretary Eden, flying by RCAF plane from London to Paris for the NATO meeting, was able to land, however.

TRAFFIC TIED UP

Road traffic in Netherlands cities moved at a snail's pace. Shipping came to a standstill in a new waterway from Rotterdam to the Hook of Holland.

In central Ireland meanwhile, the swollen river Shannon fell by six inches in places during the night. But soldiers posted at points upriver from Athlone, where the water remained at peak level, were sending hourly reports into the flood-stricken town.

The river earlier this week flooded 70 square miles of farm land.

R. Thomson Presents Canadian Design for Atlantic Parliament

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARIS (CP) — A Canadian design for an Atlantic parliament, meeting concrete as well as ethereal, and tariffs instead of military, targets, was placed today before top NATO officials.

Toronto - born Roy Thomson, whose newspaper interests span the Atlantic, presented the visionary document, styled "a declaration of Atlantic unity," in a ceremony at NATO headquarters. Greek Foreign Minister Stephanopoulos, Stephanopoulos, chairman of the council of ministers, and Lord Ismay, NATO secretary-general, accepted the five-point declaration on NATO's behalf.

Some 200 leading persons in eight Atlantic pact countries signed the declaration, another move in the predominantly Canadian campaign for closer Atlantic integration, as envisaged under the NATO pact's article two, the non-military clause of which Prime Minister St. Laurent and External Affairs Minister Pearson are considered co-architects.

FIVE POINTS

The declaration suggests what would be in effect a parliament of the Atlantic. Here are its five points:

1. Development of NATO as a central agency co-ordinating political, trade and defence policies.

2. Tighter economic integration through lower tariffs and elimination of trade restrictions.

3. Establishment of parliamentary committees designed to "further understanding" of NATO objectives.

4. Creation of an advisory Atlantic assembly, representing member legislatures.

5. Formation of a labor-management council to consider the effects of NATO policies on living standards, "especially upon the working population."

CANADIAN SPONSORS

Canadian sponsors include prominent figures in industry, politics, labor and education, such as Alistair Stewart, foreign affairs spokesman for the CCF, Ontario Senator William Euler, A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, James Duncan, president of Massey-Harris-Ferguson Company, Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, and Patrick Nicholson, Ottawa newspaper man.

Among American signers are former president Truman and former presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson. British signers included philosopher Earl Russell, wealthy industrialist Isaac Wolfson and dramatist Christopher Fry.

Other associated countries are France, Holland, Belgium, Norway and Denmark. A delegate from each of the eight countries was present at today's ceremony. Thomson was chosen to lead the delegation as a Canadian with newspapers in Canada, Britain and the United States.

PRIVATE INITIATIVE

The idea for some private initiative to promote non - military aspects of the Atlantic partnership started about two years ago. Senator Euler, Stewart and Nicholson were among the leading spirits from the beginning.

With today's step forward, sponsors believe they can move gradually from a rather grandiose dream into the realm of practical politics.

They say it would mean lower taxes and cheaper, better defence.

Predicts 'Copters Will Land On Hospital Roofs

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's hospitals of the future will probably have flat-roofed wings which will double as helicopter ambulance landing surfaces, Health Minister Phillips said here today.

Dr. Phillips, in an address to the Progress Club of Toronto, said new hospitals would be cheaper to build and operate if they had a central, four-storey core and flat one-storey wings radiating out from it.

His remarks were contained in a prepared address issued to the press before delivery.

Dr. Phillips said the province has approved of $36,000,000 in capital grants in aid of hospital building in Ontario since 1947. These grants have enabled the provision of 10,000 new hospital beds with another 8,000 under construction.

In addition, he said grants since 1947 have been made for 2,846 nursery bassinettes, 320 beds in tuberculosis hospitals and 3,384 nurses' beds.

Ticket Collector Takes No Chances

TORONTO (CP) — A wary ticket collector asked for co-operation today as increased fares went into effect on Toronto's local ferry service.

Written on a blackboard behind his collection box was:

"Please do not take your beef out on me, the ticket collector. I only collect the fares, not set them. Thanks"

Two businessmen who stood by reported only one of some 500 passengers who used the service objected to the increase from 10 to 30 cents a trip.

"He sulked a few minutes and then paid," police said.

ONE SMALL FLAW

ROME (Reuters)—Viennese conductor Herbert von Karajan was impeccably dressed in white tie and tails—with one small exception—as he directed the Rome Radio Orchestra Wednesday night. His left arm was draped in a neat white sling because of an attack of neuritis.

45 Poll Angus Cattle Lost As Barn Burns

TEESWATER, Ont. (CP) — Forty-five choice poll Angus cattle were lost early today when fire of unknown origin destroyed a large barn at the farm of T. P. Omalley and Sons.

A registered sire recently imported from England was also burned to death.

Teeswater firemen poured water on the adjacent driving shed, pig pens and other buildings and kept them from igniting.

Lost in the blaze besides the cattle was a large quantity of hay and grain, machinery and farm equipment.

Peahead Walker Signs Contract For Two Years

MONTREAL (CP) — Douglas (Peahead) Walker today signed a new two-year contract to coach Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four football league.

The signing was announced by Vic Obeck, vice-president of the Alouettes, who said that Walker was given a salary increase. The amount of the salary and increase were not disclosed.

Fat Firemen Must Reduce

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton's fire and police authorities wrestled with the problem of fat firemen Wednesday night.

Fire Chief Peter Henderson said he doesn't know what to do about firemen with 50 or 60 pounds of excess fat around their waists and elsewhere.

Said controller Jack MacDonald: "If he refuses to diet . . . report him to the fire chief for disciplinary action."

Charcoal Heater Claims Man's Life

BROCKVILLE (CP)—The odor of burning flesh and clothing led to the discovery of the partially charred body of Robert M. Millar, 72, of Brockville, Wednesday night.

He had been working in the basement of an apartment house he owned when apparently he was overcome by fumes from a charcoal heater he was using.

Police believe he fell into the heater. His chest and arms were badly charred. No inquest will be held.

Father of Rita Hayworth Runs School for Dancing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The dark, soft-spoken little man on the movie stage was Eduardo Cansino, the father of Rita Hayworth.

Cansino was directing a Spanish dance sequence with Jack Palance in "Flame of Araby." I found him to be a happy, rather philosophical man whose great interest in life is the dance.

"I have my studio," he explained. "We have 200 students, you know—all ages. We teach them everything—mambo, ballet, interpretive. Of course my favorite is the Spanish dances."

The conversation naturally got around to Rita. He said he hadn't seen his daughter for some time. "But I may get up to spend the holidays with her at Lake Tahoe," he added. "My school will be closed then and I'll be able to get away."

MIXED LATEST MATES

Cansino said his family is close, and he hears from Rita by telephones and letters. But it can't be too close because he confessed he never has met Rita's latest two husbands, Nos. 3 and 4, yes. But not nos. 2 and 4.

"Oh, once she was in town with Khan," he said. "She invited over one Sunday. But Sunday is my only day of rest from the school, so I said I'd make it another time. The next day she left for Mexico!

"Rita wanted me to come up to Las Vegas when she married Dick Haymes. But I wasn't feeling well, so I didn't go. Rita was here alone since then, but he was pretty busy."

That's putting it mildly; he was here for his deportation proceedings.

Cansino's latest film assignment was staging the dance for "The Loves of Carmen," starring his daughter. But he suffered a heart attack after that film and has limited his activities since then. He's feeling better now and is lining up dance ensembles for a Las Vegas nitery.

SEES CHILDREN OFTEN

Although he has met only 50 per cent of Rita's husbands (Ed Judson, Orson Welles), Cansino said he has seen much of her daughter.

"Both Rebecca and Yasmin were enrolled at my school," he remarked. "And they lived with us when Rita went east once. They were brokenhearted when they had to drop out of school this last time."

I asked him if he thought Rita is happy now.

"Rita, happy?" he said. "Yes, I think so. For a while, at least."

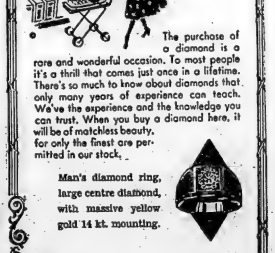
Pearson Will Talk With Eden, Dulles in Paris

PARIS (CP) — Canada's External Affairs Minister Pearson, here for the NATO council meeting, scheduled talks today with State Secretary Dulles and Foreign Secretary Eden.

Later he was to see Halvard Lange, Norwegian foreign minister.

Items down for discussion presumably included Russia's current "coexistence" drive, a move Canadian officials tend to regard with some reserve.

Pearson will lunch tomorrow with Premier Mendes-France.



Pearson and Defence Minister Campney were guests Wednesday night at reception given by Dana Wilgress, Canada's permanent representative to NATO.

CHINESE STUDENTS IN U.S.

Small comfort can be extracted from speculation in diplomatic circles that Communist China may be willing to exchange eleven American airmen for 35 Chinese students detained in the United States.

Trafficking in human beings is an affront to the principle of the dignity of the individual.

There will be some who will find their indignation as deeply stirred by Chinese hints of a "trade" as they were by the action of the Chinese in trumping up espionage charges against the eleven American airmen in the first place.

Neither action, however, should occasion surprise.

What will surprise many is the fact that 35 Chinese students are being detained in the United States, ostensibly against their will.

Facts given in news reports are scanty. There were, we learn, approximately 4,500 Chinese students in the United States when the Chinese Reds seized the Korean mainland. How had they been there? If they entered the U.S. before the Communists wrested control of China from Chiang Kai-Shek, then it would be reasonable to suppose that a large proportion of them were supporters of the Nationalist cause. Perhaps they were being trained as allies. But we are not told that. Perhaps they came to the U.S. from China after the Communists seized control. If so, an impressive case could be made out for the detention of these students during the course of the Korean war.

China was never officially at war with the United States, but in fact a situation approaching a state of war did exist and the detention of these students by the U.S. would merely have been the normal treatment normally accorded enemy aliens during the existence of hostilities. It would be possible to argue that the Korean armistice, even if it brought an end to the fighting, did not bring peace to Korea and that a peace treaty is signed, the continued detention of Chinese civilians is justified.

The United States, however, does not base its detention of these 35 Chinese students on such grounds. Detention of these students is not to return to their homeland, those students who wished to return to their homeland, the great majority have done so. We have seen no suggestion that the students released were Communists and that those who are being detained are Communists.

It is difficult to bring oneself to believe that this is the real reason for their detention. There are two possible loopholes. Perhaps the students do not really want to return to China, but are being coerced to seek repatriation through Communist pressure on relatives in the homeland. If this is the true explanation of the situation, then the United States is really trying to protect the students. But no such suggestion is made in news stories.

Perhaps the students were given special training in order that they might assist the Nationalist cause and have now indicated that they desire to return to the mainland rather than Formosa. If this is the true explanation, there would be justification for the reluctance of the U.S. to permit their departure. But no such suggestion is made in news stories.

Until one or other of these two possible explanations is officially advanced, there will linger the thought that the real explanation is the explanation publicly given, that the U.S. is preventing these Chinese students from returning home solely because, in the years of studies at civilian educational centres, they have acquired skills which might be helpful to the Communists.

ECHO FROM "THE TIGER"

Alan Harvey, Canadian Press staff writer, says that when the representatives of fourteen NATO countries meet at Paris this week they will consider a new problem, yet one which is basically the same as that which Clemenceau met and solved after the First Great War.

The new problem is whether military men should have a free hand with atomic weapons or whether the politicians of the fourteen NATO countries should have the last word.

Clemenceau, Harvey recals, said that war was too serious a business to entrust to generals.

He was right.

And yet, recalling the problems which were spawned by the Treaty of Versailles, some general may legitimately wonder whether maintaining the peace of the world is not too ticklish a problem to be left to politicians.

A SENSE OF HUMOR

Last August a group of Brooklyn youths accosted a man in a park. They tortured him, then threw him into the East River, where he drowned. Tuesday of this week two of the youths paced the electric chair.

The best possible reason why they should not have done so was advanced by their defence counsel. Their victim's death, said this legal light, was not murder but the result of "misdirected pranks."

People who think that torturing a man and throwing him into the river is a prank are not safe to be at large.

If life terms were actually life terms, and if prison walls were never scaled, imprisonment for life might be an adequate safeguard.

Under existing conditions, however, the only effective method of rendering certain that such humorists will not repeat their joke is to eliminate the "humorists."

THE HOME TOWN

It is good to be known,
To be met with a smile;
To be never alone,
City block or a mile.
Wherever you go
As you journey along
To hear: "Hi there! Hello!"
From one of the throng.

Greater cities may be
In the land than your own,
But the buildings you see
Are not those you have known.

The people you meet
Pass as strangers to you.
And the turn of the street
Will be strange to you, too.

You learn going forth
To the east or far west
Or the south or the north,
That the home town is best.
There are friends at the doors,
And by night and by day
A warm welcome is yours
Go wherever you may.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NEVER CHEAT A CHILD

To me, nothing is quite so wonderful and inspiring as the simple trust of a child. Those honest eyes will look into ours, and there is nothing but trust and honesty displayed. To lie to a child, or to knowingly cheat one, seems to me to be classed among the major sins.

I have lived through a long life to this day. Yet I shall never forget a day I was cheated in a store in a small town where I once lived. For days I had admired a small wooden horse in a toy and candy shop. I would go back time and again and take a new look at it. I was told its price and I was allowed to take it in my hands. I told my mother and father about it. They and my cousins were given to me to purchase the prize.

I hurried to the store, gave my money to the clerk, took the wooden horse from the case, but another one which was wrapped in some paper was given to me—plus a stick of candy. When I unwrapped the package at home, a broken horse with only three legs had been given me. Then I understood the candy bribe, but I never went back to that store again, and it would be made in my heart that is there to this day.

Never cheat a child. Never cheat anyone—but to do so to a child is a doubly cruel. Our earliest impressions, gained when the brain cells are plastic, last the longest. Children are not difficult to deceive, for they trust. They know what deception is. All to many latter learn about it when they face it in their general race of life. On the other hand, a child remembers kindness, and trust people instinctively, and this trust remains pictured in its mind. To the child's way of thinking, the King can do no wrong! How important that he never learns anything different!

Should Ease Visa Rules

(The Printed Word)

It is just a spoilt of a newspaper story, Britain will be reciprocally dropped visa requirements with all Western European nations except Spain and Portugal. This suggests that, despite the hesitancy of liberty, is gradually getting freedom back.

The Canadian department of external affairs might, in the interest of convenience of Canadians, endeavor to have the United States end the nonsense of visa requirements for the Canadian who wishes to journey from his own country to, say, Bermuda, by way of New York.

What Caused This Tragedy?

(Montreal Star)

"She was asking for it. She just wouldn't listen; she thought she knew it all. I just don't know what her mother or I could have done to prevent it."

The words from a news story are attributed to Mr. John Wesliewski, father of a family of seven young children.

The blood-soaked and almost naked corpse of his eldest child, a daughter named Carolyn, aged 15, had been found beside a railroad track in a wooded and lonely district on the northern fringes of Montreal.

Up to this writing no one has been charged with the murder though a large number of men and boys have been picked up by the police for questioning and others are being sought.

Meanwhile, however, a great many facts concerning Carolyn herself have been coming to light, and they are well calculated to disturb the complacency of parents for the influences which prepared young Carolyn's tragedy are the influences which play upon prosecent boys and girls in this age of be-bop.

The elder Wasilewskis seem to have been respectable, hardworking and religious folk, neither prosperous nor very poor.

Carolyn attended one of the public high schools and either there or elsewhere got herself absorbed into the cult of those adolescent social groups, whose mannerisms and mores are perhaps the queerest phenomenon of the times.

The males of the group were the sort known always as "sharpies" — tough, smart young hobbledehoys addicted to flashy clothes and elaborately pleated pants, who let their hair grow long into a ducktail at the back of the neck and into j-shaped whiskers at the cheeks.

Some of these youngsters were on the way to trouble with the police, and finally went to reformatory.

The Wasilewskis, it seems, had long been perturbed about the kind of company that Carolyn was keeping and had tried in vain both to keep her away from the other chicks and the drapes, Carolyn simply ran away from home.

After repeated incidents of the kind, finally one day she spoke of having her committed for a time to a disciplinary home. But heedless even this did not suffice to change her social habits.

Nor will the pitiable example of this child avail to frighten the millions and millions of other headstrong American adolescents of all social classes against the Carolyn, "will not listen" and who, in fact are persuaded that they know already all that needs to be known.

That the question of what the Wasilewskis left undone that they might have done to have protected her from such tateful fallacies urgently demands an answer.

It must be recognized that many and various cultural and technical factors—among them the automobile, the telephone, the movies, the changing status of women, the standardization of labor and the obsolescence of mutual trades, the commercialization of sex, and the mass production of comic books and quasi-pornographic fiction, the successive extensions of the compulsory school age—have all contributed to the progressive decline of parental authority.

It must also be understood that neither school nor church, neither the supervised playground nor the city recreation centre has filled the vacuum thus created in the spiritual and emotional life of the child.

Mr. Wasilewski's words recall another aspect of the collapse of authority that has been coming in on one of those adolescent social gangs, especially by foreign observers.

What is the declining place of fatherhood as an element in family life? It has always a key role in civilization, Dr. Hans Hoff, a Viennese psychiatrist who is particularly interested in the study of juvenile delinquency in the United States, has written, "is the guarantee of the matriarchal organization of the modern American home.

"The emotional importance of paternal families, he says, has been much underrated by the psychiatric and social innovation that he can no longer be replaced by the word-ful worshipful "father image" that is necessary in the psychological development of every child, and especially of every boy.

The image is therefore replaced by the likeness of some other and less natural idol, such as the gang-leader, the movie star, the comic-strip hero, the hard-boiled private eye or even the "father" of the crime magazines and the front-page headlines.

Psychiatrist And Salesman

(Wall Street Journal)

Once upon a time the business of selling was a comparatively simple one. A man would have something to sell, man bicycled and some money would change hands.

Then merchandisers got into the advertising people created new markets by creating desire and public demanded for their products. The general idea was not only to tell people about the merchandise for sale, but to get them clamoring for one, even if there were no such thing.

Now the discovery has been made by the advertising agencies that there are two facets to this coin. The psychologists and social scientists have been employed to find out why people do not respond to some selling techniques. Have come up with some answers having to do with the psyche and the psychiatrist's couch.

Guilt feelings and emotional blocks, they decided, can play a large a part in business as in behaviorism Thus "what they call the "fear of the posthumous guilt" was found to keep some men from using air travel. The men were afraid of death; they were afraid their wives would remarry and do anything happened to them. So the psychology was to sell the wives on flying, and the insurance researchers say it is working quite well.

Sometimes such prejudices are rooted deep in a buyer's subconscious.

Everyone concerned was mystified why their merchandising efforts were reluctant to buy glass pipe, even though they admitted that it was better. Finally motivation researchers decided that people weren't buying the glass pipe because of an emotional block about the fragility of glass pipes. The public generally learned as small boys that they were bad pipes whenever they broke in water glass.

The problem now is to unblock this particular emotion, as a bank in Rochester, NY, decided when they found researchers reported that people are frightened about banks because they consider a bank building a symbol of parental authority.

The bank set in motion a campaign to convince its customers—and to get some new ones, too—that it was a sympathetic institution and not a house of correction.

Well, we have no idea where all this is going to lead except perhaps to more research. Pride and prejudice have always had their part in purchasing, and there is no reason why they cannot be counted to selling.

All in the same, somehow we think it will be quite a long time before

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE ONLY CURE

A man was said to have received a letter some time ago which ran as follows: "Dear Sir: I stole your wallet which contained $50.00. I have had conscience over it so I am sending $25.00 back to you. If my conscience hurts me worse, I will send the rest."

There are consciences just like this. You are a sinner and it whispers the conscience. And the only cure is, "I am that, all right, but I am going to be a little better."

All of which of course is folly. You can't half wash a dish or half wash a garment. It's all or nothing. You can't half repent and ease your conscience. If there is something that is keeping you from God, if you have done something wrong, go to the injured person and straighten it out. And straighten it out you can, almost always. If you refuse to make reconciliation, then the burden is no longer yours but theirs. The only thing we can do with a bad conscience is to disavow it, repent, make restitution, and thereafter walk straight and narrow.

Jesus Christ said, "Take calls "a day of grace." We have only so many years in which to make our decisions, and the time on which we are making good is God's offer of eternal fellowship with Him. The day will come when the season of grace will be at an end.

Today is a redeeming day. But that day arrives, disavowal of sins, repentance, restitution, and right living can still cure any

IODIN AND LAME JOINTS

After having taken six tablets a day for about two weeks (iodin ration, that is) I began to feel increased ease of movement . . . I want you to know also that before I started on the iodin ration I had quite a pride in my knees and in my feet as well. They were strangely but true, there's no trace of stiffness now, either in knees or fingers, and I am very thankful . . . (W.C.L.)

A good many other correspondents have made similar references to the benefits of iodin deficiency.

W.C.L. calls his joint lameness "arthritis," but she tells nothing about it which would indicate whether the trouble is osteo-arthritis, rheumatoid, or as likely as not, rheumatic.

In the pamphlet Calcium and Rheumatic I explain clearly the difference between osteo-arthritis and rheumatic, as I see it. I must admit, however, that my own opinion does not always coincide with that of other physicians regard arthritis as a nowfangled or scientific-sounding name for rheumatic and some folks harbor a small notion that arthritis affects the upper class while rheumatic is "poor common," among the poor, particularly washerwomen, day laborers, etc. Those whose occupations exposes them to cold and damp" (quoted from Osler's Practice).

In Osler's day, it is worthy of note, iodin in one form or another was almost invariably prescribed for joint disability. As a medicine, that is, say potassium iodide. It is often used today.

One of my peculiar notions is that everyone with the rheumatic should take a wee bit of iodin in one form or another every day, say the equivalent of one-half grain of pure iodin a day — that's 30 times as much as nutrition authorities estimate each child or adult requires daily to maintain good nutrition.

Please understand I do not suggest that iodin or iodides used as medicine externally or internally will relieve or cure arthritis. I recommend it for the physiologic.

The other remedies I recommend for rheumatic are those that meet vitamin D and the vitamin B-complex.

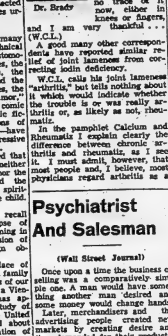
Your Dollar Will Feed Korean Waif 2 Months

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

Christmas, with its mystery, excitement and joy is drawing near and children everywhere are spending sleepless nights thinking of the wonderful day ahead. But not in Korea.



There children stay awake for another reason . . . they are hungry, cold and desperately lonely.

Many of our Canadians are ravening through crowded, gift-crammed stores, buying presents and toys for their own children, I feel confident that they will not want a little Korean boy or girl to go hungry on the holy day. That is why I am writing this urgent appeal to you, to ask if you can bring our plea for help to the attention of your readers. Under the Unitarian Services Committee of Canada, Foster Parent Plan will provide a daily meal to a starving waif for two months. After visiting nine hospitals and orphanages all across South Korea during my recent two-week survey tour last summer, I discovered that the most pressing need of children is the diet of Korean youngsters is protein food. Therefore, a special gift of $50.000 worth of a Canadian surplus food. . .protein-rich cod-fish.

Codfish to Korean children is a great delicacy, and when they receive the gift of life to a friendless urchin for two whole months.

The USC is still $45,000 short of its $110.000 Christmas objective and this money must be raised before December 25th. If every Canadian gives just one dollar, they will enjoy their own Christmas so much more, knowing that they have included a Korean orphan in their giving this year. Donations, deductible for income tax purposes, will be gratefully received at 46 Sparks Street in Ottawa, Ontario.

Greeks Burn American Flag And Union Jack

SALONIKA, Greece (Reuters)—Riots against the United States and Britain over the Cyprus issue flared in here today with at least 40 people injured, most of them police and firemen.

The demonstrations, staged by some 2,500 students, lasted four hours. The American flag was publicly burned along with the Union Jack.

Anger at the United Nations political committee's decision on the Cyprus issue in New York Wednesday night sparked off the demonstrations. The committee voted to give an further consideration to Greece's demand that the British colony be granted self-determination.

The students fought past a ring of police to the U.S. consulate and information services building. They smashed its windows and broke a statue of Liberty inside.

COMPLAIN TO CONSUL

Then the demonstrators surged round the British consulate and a deputation went in to see the consul-general, to whom they complained that consular employees at the windows were "provoking" them.

Anti-American slogans were shouted as the demonstrators fought a pitched battle with police.

The students also turned on the Turkish consulate, where they protested against the "unfriendly and provocative Turkish attitude" on the Cyprus dispute.

Fire brigades finally succeeded with the club-wielding police in dispersing the demonstrators and restoring order.

Oakville Worker Charges Strike Vote Was Rigged

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Plans for a special union membership meeting of Oakville Ford of Canada employees were announced today following charges by a union member of efforts by Communities and union executive dictatorship.

Vern Janeway, a striking steamfitter and member of local 707, United Auto Workers (United CIO-CCL), said in an interview Wednesday that union leaders refused to call a membership meeting to explain "why we are being forced to accept a blanket [illegible] that we don't want."

Janeway, who claims to represent 30 other workers at the Oakville plant, also said the strike vote held last September in Oakville was rigged.

TOO MANY VOTES

"We know that one man voted from one to six times. Men from Massey-Harris-Ferguson and Wismer voted, too," he said.

Ted Oana, international union representative, said membership meetings have been called for Tuesday and Wednesday of next week to explain the whole strike situation to members.

He said the September strike vote was "well supervised by the election committee of local 707, and that there were no irregularities.

"Some union members are disgruntled," he added.

Some 2,700 employees at the Ford Oakville plant have been on strike since September over a wage and fringe benefit dispute with the company.

Quake Shakes Northern Nevada And California

By LEONARD LEFKOW

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A rolling earthquake of high intensity shook northern Nevada and California early today, but only minor damage was reported.

The quake, described as the heaviest of three that have jarred this area since last July, was felt as far as Elko, Nev., 200 miles east of here, and throughout most of California to the west.

It was timed at 3:07 a. m. PST (6:07 a. m. EST) in Reno and 3:10 a. m. in San Francisco. A second, but milder, tremor was felt here at 3:08 a. m.

Fallon, Nev., a small agricultural community approximately 60 miles east of Reno and the centre of two recent quakes, was believed to be the centre of today's.

MINOR DAMAGE

However, Sheriff George Wilkins said preliminary checks there showed only "minor damage with some ceilings cracked and some bricks knocked loose."

Parts of Lovelock, Nev., also east of Reno, were blacked out when a section of the city's electric power system was knocked out briefly. However, no other damage was reported there.

CAMPBELLFORD

Approximately 3,000 Attend Santa Parade

CAMPBELLFORD. — Santa Claus came to Campbellford on Saturday when the Chamber of Commerce, service clubs and local merchants put on the Santa parade.

Led by the Campbellford Citizens' Band, the parade consisted of about 35 decorated floats and four bands. The Keenville Boys' band, the RCAF Training Command band and the Havelock Kilties band supplied music along the route of march. Floats depicting fairy tale characters, and legendary story book heroes, held the interest of children and oldsters alike. Numerous clowns and trick cars added to the hilarity of the occasion.

About 3,000 people watched the parade, and extra police were called in to help with the pedestrian and vehicular traffic. Members of the OPP and police from Havelock assisted the local force.

The parade, which has become the annual event in the town, always draws a great deal of favorable comment. The prize of $25 donated by Mayor R. J. Locke, went to the Kinmen club float, depicting the "Snow Queen". Sandra McDonald, was the snow queen and Joy Ann Barbara and Judy Smith acted as her assistants. Second prize, a radio donated by F. G. DeCarral went to a float entered by the Campbellford public school. This float was built around the theme of "The Old Woman in the Shoe".

The Hon. Mr. A. Goodfellow, M.P.P., and Dr. F. G. Robertson, M.P., were on hand for the parade and acted as judges.

Montreal Police Probe Ordered

MONTREAL (CP) — A top-level investigation of the city police department has been ordered following allegations that there were irregularities in the first polling held Oct. 25 municipal elections.

The powerful city executive committee, following a day-long session Wednesday with department officials, directed acting police director Thomas Leggett to "take all action you deem necessary" to investigate the situation and said it "considers the matter very serious."

Seventy-nine persons were arrested on election day for infractions of the Voting Act, but all were released after the polls closed. Only a handful were prosecuted.

Hear Mindszenty Has Been Freed By Hungary

LONDON (AP) — Radio Austria today said the Catholic press agency in Vienna claims to have received information that Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty has been released from prison in Communist Hungary.

Mindszenty, 62-year-old Roman Catholic primate of Hungary, was sentenced to life imprisonment on a Red court on Feb. 8, 1949. The court convicted him of treason, seeking to overthrow the Communist government in favor of the Hapsburg monarchy, and illegal trading in dollars from the United States and the Vatican.

The trial and sentence brought a crescendo of indignation from the Western world.

The Austrian broadcast, monitored here, said there was neither confirmation nor denial from other sources of the report of his release.

Endre Marton, Associated Press correspondent in Budapest, said by telephone he had heard nothing to indicate that Cardinal Mindszenty has been released.

The Catholic press agency was quoted as saying it received its information from Budapest. According to this information, the cardinal was released a week ago and has gone to his diocese.

Russia Will End French Treaty If Germans Armed

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia said today it will annul the French-Soviet treaty of 1944 if the Paris agreements for rearming Germany are ratified.

Russia said "the whole responsibility for this will fall on France and the French government."

The warning was contained in a note handed to French Ambassador Louis Joxe by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov.

UN Assembly Will Consider Tunisian Question

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) The United Nations General Assembly tackled its first political item today as the 1954 session rapidly neared a close.

The assembly's 60-country political committee turned to the question of Tunisian self-determination amid indications that debate would be brief. Arab diplomats gave assurance that they would avoid their usually lengthy arguments on the issue so as not to hinder negotiations France is carrying on with her troubled North African protectorate.

Officials said the assembly might wind up its business tonight —or tomorrow at the latest.

The political committee Wednesday night cleared the way for the Tunisian debate by winding up consideration of Greece's fight to record the UN in favor of self-determination for the people of Cyprus, British island colony in the eastern Mediterranean.

The committeevoted 49 to 9 not to consider the subject further.

Christmas Concerts

ALLIANCE TABERNACLE

"O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie;
Above they deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by.
Yet in thy dark street shineth
The Everlasting Light;
The hope and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight."

Lovely indeed was the scene which met the gaze of parents, friends and scholars last evening in the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle at the annual Christmas concert in honor of the "Prince of Peace". In the distance between two tall evergreens, gleaming with red, gold, blue and crimson lights, lay the little town of Bethlehem in its pale, pastel colors, and against the dark blue sky hung the glowing star, emblematic of "Peace on earth, good will towards men."

EXTENDS WELCOME

Following the prayer of invocation by the superintendent, Mr. Wilbur Wright, Mrs. Fred Fraser, who presided as chairman for the evening, spoke briefly, extending a welcome to all, voicing her appreciation at the fine, well-filled auditorium.

The program, which was well arranged, opened with the singing of "O Come All Ye Faithful," by the congregation, after which the various classes, and individual children favored with their selections, which included solos, duets, recitations, songs and skits.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of prizes for perfect attendance of which there were five, who had been present 52 Sundays out of the year; 18 records, absent one Sunday through illness, or in attendance at another Sunday School, and three third prize winners, absent two Sundays, two of whom had been present each Sunday.

APPRECIATION VOICED

The Reverend Eric Strain, pastor of the church, voiced his appreciation to all those who had worked so faithfully in the preparation of the Christmas exercises; the program committee; the teachers, and the children for their fine presentations.

Following the dismissal prayer, treats of Christmas candies in attractive boxes and rosy apples were distributed by the teachers to their classes.

The program was as follows: Congregational carol, "O Come All Ye Faithful"; opening prayer (W. Wright), S. S. superintendent; announcements remarks, Mrs. Fred Fraser; recitation, "Welcome," Georgina Whittaker; carol by the Sunday School, "Prayer for Peace"; beginners' class song, "Loving Age"; recitation, "He's the One," Lorne Hawley; recitation, "Proving Her Point," Linda Badgley; solo, "Like a Christmas Candle," Ruth Dixon; recitation, "My Gift to Him", Peter Strain.

Recitation, "What Day Is It?", Patricia Courneyea; beginners' song, "Keep Them Ringing"; Bible recitation, Luke 2, carol, Joan Perkins; recitation, "I Saw a Star", Bernice Allan; solo, "On That First Glad Christmas Day", Eleanor Millard; recitation, "Like Jesus", Joey Jackson and Michael Strain; skit, "The Christmas Story", Primary boys (Mrs. Beattie's class); primary department song, "Gonna Little Children"; recitation, Patsy Kelly.

Skit, intermediate girls (Mrs. Vanderwater's class); Sunday School carol, "Ring, Bells, Ring"; duet, Melbourne Fraser and Robert Brown; skit, "The Christmas Altar," senior girls (Mrs. Mand's class); closing carol, "I Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

Avondale H-S Assoc. Holds Meeting, Euchre

December meeting of Avondale Home and School Association was held in Avondale school on the day evening.

A short business meeting took place with the vice-president, Mrs. Ralph Knowlton, in the chair.

It was voted unanimously that the annual donation be given by the Home and School to all grades for treats for the children at Christmas-time.

Mr. K. Bird thanked the members who had helped in the recent child survey.

The monthly attendance banner was won by Mrs. Carswell's room.

Mrs. Knowlton spoke of the advantages of having the children join Cordova Public Library.

Christmas carols were sung with the members playing their favorite carols. This was led by Mrs. A. Daniels with Mrs. Gwen Hay at the piano.

A duet followed with Mrs. A. Daniels and Mrs. G. Adams singing "O Little Town of Bethlehem," accompanied by Mrs. Gwen Hay.

As the remainder of the evening's program was in charge of two of the grades, Mrs. Carswell and Gorrill, all adjourned to another room for card tables were in readiness for euchre. Seven tables were in play and the prizes were won by George F. Reed, Mrs. F. Denyes, Clifford Champagne, H. Oliver and Irene Reed.

Christ Church P.G. Enjoys Luncheon

The annual Christmas meeting of Christ Church P.G. was held Tuesday afternoon in the Parish Guild Hall, when a pot-luck luncheon was greatly enjoyed.

Following the repast, the meeting was opened by Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, after which Mrs. J. B. Creegan, president, greeted the members and special guests.

Mrs. Bert Bailey, the speaker for the afternoon, did not need an introduction as she had been past president two three years and has been associated with Christ Church and St. George's for many years. She gave a most interesting review of the church from its early days until the present time. There have been many changes and expenses from minor failures until more prosperous times, which the church is enjoying at the present, hoping it will continue in the future.

Mrs. Bailey also spoke of the different memorial windows which were placed there in memory of some of the outstanding parishioners. She mentioned the work of Mrs. Bongard with the young people of the congregation; Mrs. Cook for her outstanding work with "the little helpers", and other great workers.

Mrs. Arrowsmith thanked Mrs. Hickey for her pleasing and helpful talk, which was well applauded.

Mrs. Boyd, the guest soloist, favored with a solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. Hibbard.

Short addresses were given by Rev. J. Cantrell, Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, and Rev. E. Smith, who wished a very happy and blessed Christmas to all, which was also expressed by the president, Mrs. Cleo Colling, who also remembered the present absentees, Mrs. G. Wright, Mrs. Theobold, and Mrs. D. Ellis.

A vote of thanks was tendered to all who helped.

Women's Hospital Aux. Presents Most Encouraging Reports

To the encouraging accompaniment of the sound of the riveters, the December Hospital Auxiliary meeting was held.

Mrs. J. E. Forrester, the president, welcomed four new members, who attended the meeting and who have already helped at the Opportunity Shop, Coffee Snack or on the Building Fund secretarial committee: Mrs. R. F. Bowden, Mrs. A. F. Gouin, Mrs. L. Marsden and Mrs. E. Boyd Robertson.

After Mrs. F. E. Burrows read the minutes of the regular and executive meetings and reported on correspondence, Mrs. J. N. Yanover submitted a most satisfactory financial statement at this, the last meeting of 1954.

Mrs. L. B. Ponger announced the appointment of Mrs. A. A. Beeby as secretary of the Opportunity Shop and spoke of the interest at the shop for ladies' hats, and purses and shoes for all the family. Suitable articles for the Christmas gift table would also be welcome.

CHEQUE PRESENTED

She then presented Mrs. Forrester with a cheque for $700 being the profit at the shop from September 1 to December 11th.

Mrs. J. Lennox Smith announced with regret the resignation of Mrs. J. G. Tatham from the staff of the Coffee Snack and reported the appointment of Mrs. R. Burkholder to this position. The capital expenditures have been paid, she stated and she was pleased to pass over to the president the sum of $1,000 being the receipts for ten months operation of the Coffee Snack bar.

Christmas dinner of turkey and all the trimmings will be served at the coffee shop previous to the holiday.

Mrs. Smith expressed thanks for the generous offers of food for this occasion. Everything except the turkey has been donated.

It was announced that the annual meeting will take the form of a luncheon at the Masonic Temple on Wednesday, January 19, at 1.30 p.m. Mrs. George Stobie, a former president of the association, will be the speaker.

Mrs. P. C. McGuire is convening the luncheon, with Mrs. C. Tyrrell and Mrs. I. Lemmer in charge of tickets.

Mrs. Lemmer announced that tickets are available at the Coffee Snack any day from 8 a.m., to 2 p.m., or at the Opportunity Shop on Tuesday or Friday from 2-4 p.m. She volunteered to deliver tickets to anyone calling her at 2065.

CHRISTMAS PLANS

Christmas plans are being made by Mrs. H. Case and Mrs. L. Wilson, for the hospital patients. Mrs. L. Thomas has kindly made a special donation for this purpose, the treasurer reported. The members present enjoyed hearing Christmas cards at the meeting.

A letter was read from Miss Peart, superintendent of nurses, telling of the need for a piano in the nurses' residence. The nurses' choir will be on the air prior to Christmas. The nurses have contributed to the purchase of a piano, but assistance was needed. It was decided unanimously to send Miss Peart

St. Andrew's Explorers Enjoy Christmas Party

The St. Andrew's Explorers held their Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Dave McDonald, Trent Road.

There were games and a sing-song of favorite Christmas carols after which an initiation service was held when the Explorers received their purpose cards, pins and stars.

The centre of attraction was a gaily decorated Christmas tree, from which Mrs. L. Langabeer distributed gifts to the Explorers.

Refreshments were served, including a cake topped by the word, 'Explorer,' bringing a happy Christmas party to a close.

Royalty Set Stiff Pace For Britain's Womenfolk In Achievements in Year

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Britain's womenfolk, from royalty to commoners, shared in the most prosperous year since the Second World War and worked to keep it that way.

Politics, entertainment, athletics and industry had their feminine stars. Royalty set a stiff pace, moving ceaselessly among the cities of the Commonwealth, at home and abroad.

The Queen returned from a round-the-world tour in May to a tumultuous welcome, equalled in November when her mother completed a smash-hit visit to Canada and the United States. Princess Margaret carried out many royal duties and shared in the gaiety of Canadian governor-general.

In politics, a westbound woman shared the unprecedented honor paid a British prime minister when Lady Churchill accompanied her husband on his 80th birthday rounds Nov. 30. Mrs. Clement Attlee, Labor's number, joined her husband on the second half of an arduous world trip via Australia, China, Australia and Canada.

Female representation in the cabinet ended when Florence Horsbrugh stepped down as education minister, but feminine voices in the House of Commons sounded out just as fearlessly as formerly.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHYNESS CAN BE OVERCOME

Two of the shyest girls I've ever heard of have written to tell me that "We might as well be hermits, the way we are living."

Both of them are in their early 20's, and should be having the best of times with the other girls and boys in their own age groups.

But are they? I should say not! Instead, they withdraw into themselves, hoping that, in this way, no one will even notice them.

"We won't go to dances because someone might ask us to dance," they say. "We won't say 'Hi' to anyone unless we have known that person for ages. We never say anything in class, except to say 'I don't know' or 'Please help us.'"

Well, girls, you certainly are in a bad way, aren't you?

But don't feel too dreary about your shyness. We have lots of company in it. Moreover, it's something you can really learn to get control of, perhaps even eventually get over entirely.

Practically every case of shyness is due to a feeling that one is not nearly as smart, as good-looking, as entertaining or as expert at all kinds of activities as other people are. The name for that feeling is an "inferiority complex."

Do let me first ask you these questions:

Is the reason you're afraid to be asked to dance because you're not very good dancers? Do you avoid saying "Hi" when you meet somebody you know because you're afraid you'll have to stop and talk, and you don't know how to carry on a conversation? Are you afraid to speak up in class because you know everyone will look at you and you'll be temporarily the center of attention, which will embarrass you?

I suspect all these things are true, so now let's think of some of the answers.

If you're uncertain of your dancing, practice it privately in your home, to the music of the radio. Ask some of the friends you know well—you must have some good friends, haven't you?—and who are good dancers, if they will practise with you. Never be afraid to ask for help from someone who knows how to do something better than you do. Usually, people are flattered to be asked, and you could all have a lot of fun with an informal afternoon or evening dancing class, say once a week for awhile.

If you're afraid to greet people because you feel you won't know what to say to them if they start to talk to you, check your interests and your activities to see if you have as many as other girls and boys. As things are now, of course, you haven't. So resolve right now to pick out at least one activity you're sure you'll enjoy, and make yourself really good at it. You'll not only begin to have more confidence immediately, but you'll have things to talk about with the others who already have the same interests and do the same things.

As for your shyness about speaking up in class, the better acquainted you become with the boys and girls around you, through activities you've suggested, the less shy you'll feel with them in class. Right now, you feel afraid of them. But if, little by little, you form the habit of sharing interests and activities with them, you'll soon feel at home in their company.

Would you like to have my sheet of suggestions on how to be popular? You might find further ideas in this that would help you. Send me a stamped self-addressed envelope, and I'll be glad to forward it to you.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

THE COMPLEXION AS A HEALTH BAROMETER

The temple of beauty is built on a foundation of vitality. Be a follower of the Goddess Hygeia, mind the simple rules of health and you will lessen your beauty problems, if any.

It isn't to be expected that a beautiful complexion will survive through the years, not the subject to change. It is beset with many hazards—atmospheric dirt, stress, sunlight and cold winds. It can be affected by digestive disturbances. A diet containing too much fat will result in an oily condition. A diet that is fat-free may cause dryness, especially to become dry and rough.

Loss of sleep will rob the skin of pleasing color and, in course of time, will so deform the underlying tissues that wrinkles will form. Women who keep late hours, never have any periods during the day, need not fancy that a course of facial treatments at the beauty salon will erase the shadows of fatigue. It isn't that simple.

Malnutrition takes a toll. Every cell of the body is dependent upon good food. The balanced diet has cosmetic value since it supplies the various elements that are necessary for energy and well being.

Local treatment is necessary if the skin is to be smooth and of fine texture. Daily cleansing and friction will be found effective measures to maintain a normal condition. Cleanliness, of course, is vitally important but, as soap removes skin, a substitute must be supplied. Use a light cream for the removal of make-up, a heavy one for massage. And be fussy about the powder you use. It should be of light consistency and never ground into the flesh.

Make-up doesn't glamorize a skin that is dull, oily or sallow; it may just accent defective conditions. Cosmetic aids are a blessing but must never be relied too much on them. With perfect health, any woman's complexion will be naturally radiant.

WORKER OVERCOME

KITCHENER (CP) — Henry Parker, 29-year-old construction worker from Galt, was dragged unconscious from a sewer trench in nearby Waterloo Tuesday after being overcome by sewer gas. Firemen applied artificial respiration and he was taken to Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital where his condition was reported satisfactory.

Shower—1954 Style

By Mary Moore

A party last night carried me back more than a quarter of a century. Our beloved Mary J. had a shower, 1954-style, for Marianne.

Some of you young sprigglings will be familiar with this modern and efficient technique.

What Mary J. wanted was to jump this gun on Marianne's contemporaries and have the first shower, and invite her friends and my friends.

It all started because Marianne got loose on a shopping spree and made a down payment on a filmy negligee and nightie, pending my approval. Next day I met her to have my look at it. It was sweet and dainty, but not quite my idea of "The Negligee" for a trousseau, so we asked for the down payment back and were gracious-ly given it.

Mary J. got wind of this and, we think, thought I was a bit too strict with Marianne, so we made a list of our contemporaries, and she telephoned and invited them to her home—anything she wanted to give Marianne a shower. Everything was left to Mary J.'s idea of sharing in the cost of the gift. . . . so Mary J. and I had a shopping spree. It would have done your heart good to see us pull our 'teen knowledge together over flimsy, filmy, shocking, frou-frou bridal negligees. We ended up with some chiffon-fabricated-length little numbers in pink dotted Swiss nylon lined with nylon china silk. It was trimmed at the yoke with nylon lace—at least there was enough funds to buy a pair of black velvet "jewelled" oomphie house slippers.

On the night of the party our neighbor, Mrs. Smith, who has known Marianne ever since she was little, presented the gifts and Marianne couldn't wait a minute to model them. They all said she looked adorable. Mary J. and I gave one another a good solid look of mutual satisfaction.

THE PARTY FOODS

When Mary J. entertains nothing is spared,—thought, food, effort, energy. She is an all-out hostess. Huge trays of fancy sandwiches and canapes, chicken bouchees, five or six different items on the relish tray, hot coffee; an assortment of homemade cookies below) that would make a caterer drool; divinity fudge, in tall crystal goblets (see below). All of this served on delicate china, most of it hand-painted, and much of that by Mary J.

My sister said "She possesses that rare art of making everything seem casual." But it is a very thing but casualness that makes a party run as smoothly and happily as that one did—beforehand preparation and imagination and the full-scale co-operation of a certain husband name of CHIC.

SWEDISH COOKIES 1954-STYLE

Double or triple these amounts if you want to make a large batch for Christmas entertaining. One-half cup butter, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 egg yolk slightly beaten, 1-3 cup unsifted flour, 1-3 cup unsifted whole wheat flour (There's the change and the results are delicious), 3-4 cup nut meats chopped finely (Mary J. used chopped walnuts—but other unusual suggestions are filberts and black walnuts). Cream butter well, add sugar cream well, add yolk and beat well, then work in flours. Form into 3-4-inch balls between palms, drop in unbeaten egg white, roll in nuts. Place on greased cookie sheet, flatten with bottom of glass. Bake 3 minutes at 300 deg. Fahr. Remove and make depression in centre. Bake 15 minutes longer. Fill depression with tart red jelly or jam to fill centre, then with red and green maraschino cherries, cut side up, for red and green touch for Christmas.

NEW DIVINITY FUDGE

Boil together to hard ball stage (254 deg. F.), 2 cups sugar and 1-2 cup each water and corn syrup. Beat 2 egg whites until very stiff; then slowly beat in 1 jelly powder (lemon for white divinity, raspberry for pale pink, lime for pale green). When this is added start pouring in, in a thin stream while you beat, the boiled syrup beating until stiff. Of course, also blended cherries and chopped pecans may be added just before spreading in buttered pan to cool. Candied pineapple is extra luscious as an added fruit. This is foolproof.

Women's Activities

BETHEL-ZION WI.

The Christmas meeting of the Bethel-Zion Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Orcel and Mrs. Lauriston Stevenson on Thursday evening with an attendance of sixteen members and one child.

The president, Mrs. Morden Brough, opened the meeting.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and business arising from these minutes was dealt with.

Christmas carols were sung with Mrs. Floyd Ray at the piano. The Christmas story was given by Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson. Mrs. Percy Ray gave the motto "What Should Christmas Mean to Me?" A reading, "Lighted Candles" was given, by Mrs. Gerald Tunnicliffe.

At this point, Mrs. Floyd Ray favored with two solos "Wings of Wonderland" and "White Christmas."

Mrs. Lauriston Ketcheson gave a Christmas reading.

After the meeting closed, refreshments and a social half hour

GOOD MANNERS

ENGAGED COUPLE MAY SEND CHRISTMAS CARDS TOGETHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We're engaged! My mother and father gave a small engagement-announcement dinner last week-end, when my Michael came home after his two year service abroad. We won't be able to be married before next September, Christmas but we would like so much to use our names together on our Christmas cards. Would this be at all proper? We hope you can say yes. — Mabel and Elinor

Yes! There it is, the answer you wanted, Michael and Elinor, singing to you with a joyous lilt. Do add another measure to your happiness by sending your Christmas cards together. However, two notes, please, about these cards.

(1) Such intimate cards should, of course, be sent only to your and his relatives and intimate friends. To not-so-close friends and to mere acquaintances you should send separate cards.

(2) An attractive way to sign these cards: sign your name (Elinor) below the message (which may be either hand-written or printed). Then Michael signs his name on the line below yours. To relatives and to your closest mutual friends, you may sign "Michael and Elinor" or "Elinor and Michael" . . . remember that the one whose name is unanimously signs her or his name last.

DON'T PUT SEALS ON FRONT OF ENVELOPES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it considered correct to put a Christmas seal on the front of a Christmas card envelope? I have a large supply of seals of a charity organization in which I am especially interested, and I would like to put these in the most conspicuous place to call attention to them. I would like to put them not only on the envelopes of our Christmas cards, but as a "second reminder" on the envelopes of the New Year cards we are also planning to send. — R.M.

Do not put a Christmas seal or other kind of seal on the front of an envelope. They might divert attention from the name and address. Place the seals on the back of envelopes . . . this is where they belong.

WRITE "MISS" BEFORE LITTLE GIRL'S NAME ON ENVELOPE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have lived in South Africa for a long time, and weren't in touch with all our relatives and friends here. Since we've been away several little girls have been acquired in our families—three nieces in my husband's family, and four in mine. Now that we're living here in the States, I'd like to send these little girls, and several others, daughters of friends, separate Christmas cards. How should I address the envelope to such a little girl, say four or five or six years old? What about "Miss"? — Reader

No matter how young the young lady is, write "Miss" before her name on the envelope:

Miss Helen Robbins
123 Park Street
Pleasantville
Saskatchewan

These little ladies will be enchanted to receive their very own Christmas cards . . . and they will be proud to see, or to be shown, that the correct politely address-sed to them with the "handle" before the name. A nice little lesson in a social detail.

SHOULD THEY SEND CARDS THIS YEAR?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My father-in-law passed on early in November, and we are undecided about sending Christmas cards. His daughter says we should do as we always have done about sending Christmas cards. I feel that as his death is so recent we should not send Christmas cards this year. What is the proper thing to do? —H.B.

Whether or not you and your husband send Christmas cards this year depends entirely on your feelings. It is proper for you to send them if you feel so inclined, and if the cards you choose to send are selected with very special thought for the circumstances. Also if you do send cards this year you should send them only to relatives and close friends . . . not to casual friends or acquaintances.

HOSPITAL SUPERVISOR

Velma Johnston, 26-year-old supervisor, talks to two of her young patients at the new children's hospital at Kingston, Ont. Miss Johnston says a child's first half hour in hospital is important in ensuring a healthy emotional adjustment to the new surroundings. Some 60 children are being cared for in the four-storey hospital which has eight bassinets and 81 beds. (CP Photo).

Children's Hospital at Kingston Supervised by 26-Year-Old Nurse

Written for The Canadian Press
By JEAN LOVE GALLOWAY

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Her house has four storeys, eight bathrooms and 81 beds. She has 60 or more children who have to be cared for 24 hours a day. With trained helpers, she manages her household well.

She is attractive, brunette Velma Johnston, 26-year-old supervisor of the big new children's hospital here.

Hospital authorities say it is not unusual for such a young nurse to be appointed a supervisor if she has the ability. The pediatrics side of nursing is far advanced from what it was even 10 years ago, and older nurses sometimes lack the advanced educational qualifications, up-to-the-minute training and personality that are required these days.

Miss Johnston's appointment came because she had the necessary educational qualifications plus two years' teacher-training at the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto along with a talent for directing others and getting along with them.

The children are more than just patients for Miss Johnston.

"A child's first half hour in the hospital is very important," she says. "It is then that the young ster, with the guidance of the nurse admitting him, should begin a healthy emotional adjustment to new surroundings. This helps to speed his physical recovery."

PARENTS CAN HELP

Asked for suggestions about how parents can help prepare their children for hospital and keep them happier in hospital, Miss Johnston said:

"Be sure to tell Johnny simply and in a matter-of-fact way, why he is going to hospital. Then he won't feel afterward that it was a mean trick played on him, or a punishment for something he did wrong.

"The detail you go into, depends on the age. An eight-year-old might need to be re-assured about surgical masks, lest they suggest faceless monsters in comic books. Get the youngster playing the role of a patient. Let him be the doctor and mother the nurse. This helps the child understand something of hospital life.

"Honesty is necessary. Be absolutely frank about coming pain, how often you can visit, how long he'll be there. It is just as harmful to deceive him innocently, as it is to mislead him wilfully, in both cases, you have betrayed his trust in you.

AFFECTIONATE SUPPORT

"He needs your presence. Take your child to the hospital yourself. Visiting, wisely handled, brings your child the affectionate support he needs. Screams and sobs at your departure may be forgotten when it is suggested he wave until you are out of sight.

"Find out what play facilities the hospital has. You may bring what toys are necessary. Surprises in the mail are fun for the eight-year-old. But the pre-school child likes the familiar doll or Teddy bear no matter how ragged.

Treatment of two child patients with the same illness may be quite different, Miss Johnston explains. "One child may want all the attention he can get, while the other may prefer to be left with his toys. But the fact that emotional needs are important in the cure of any physical illness is even more apparent when working with children than with adults."

NATIVE OF KEMPTVILLE

Miss Johnston comes from Kemptville, about 100 miles north of Kingston. She graduated from Kingston General Hospital and Queen's University after a five-year course in nursing science.

Built and equipped at a cost of $53,000, the new four-storey Kingston "Angels" Children's Hospital cared for 2,035 small patients during the last 12 months. Funds to clear the debt are being raised under the direction of a citizens committee which sponsors an annual Christmas appeal. About $300,000 is still needed to pay for the hospital.

TO REMOVE HOMES

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council Tuesday approved an $800,000 program to remove 184 houses from low-lying lands in suburban Long Branch swept by floods following hurricane Hazel Oct. 15. It is proposed to convert the area into a 35-acre park. The province will pay $400,000 and metropolitan Toronto and Long Branch $200,000 each.

Montreal Pipe Smoking Club Prepares for World Contest

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Twenty-five mouths dropped open in shocked surprise when the reporter produced a cigaret.

"Light!" offered Herky Levine, jolly.

Then everybody puffed in silence. It was the semi-monthly meeting of the Maple Leaf Pipe Smoking Club. A cigaret was as out of place as a skunk in a perfume shop.

"Watch your coffin nail," Herky said suddenly, in the manner of a man warning a friend of a worm on his hat. "It's liable to burn your jacket—ashes are dropping."

TALK ABOUT PIPES

There was a stir about the circle and several members removed pipes to mutter about recent medical speculation regarding a connection between cigarets—but not pipes—and lung cancer.

"As I was saying," said Herky, "our club started nearly five years ago. We now have 25 members—Canadians of French, English, Jewish, Hungarian, Czech and Dutch descent. Non-political, non-sectarian. We just talk about pipes and tobacco.

"Right now, you might say we're getting Gerson Hechi in condition. He's our champ."

Hechi, 35-year-old manufacturer of clothing accessories, will represent Canada in an international competition among pipe-smokers in some 10 countries next March 17. He eliminated 25 contenders here by keeping his pipe lit more than 3½ minutes.

Gerson will have to do some top-notch puffing to beat the current champ, Paul Landbeck of Burbank, Calif., who kept his briar lit for nearly two hours in last year's contest—one hour and 55 minutes.

UNIQUE INVENTION

Levine, 36, proprietor of a machinery shop, became president of the Maple Leaf Club, which sponsors the competition, after his invention of an "electrical pipe, the only one in the world." It can accommodate 20 smokers at once.

Plugged into an ordinary socket, an electric motor circulates cool water through coils around the pipe's stem and bowl, which holds one-quarter of a pound of tobacco.

The whole apparatus weighs about four pounds and Levine carries it to meetings.

"Each member has his own mouthpiece for sanitary purposes," he explained. "Personally, I think it's superior to the Turkish hookah, because the smoke doesn't come in contact with the water."

The club has no affiliation with the International Pipe Smoking Association. One member, Roger Hochelieu, has more than 200 pipes. Honorary members include such pipe-puffers as Albert Einstein, Gen. Douglas Macarthur and Frankie Sinatra.

WORLD COMPETITORS

Levine said competitors from Australia, Japan, the United States France, England, Israel and Italy plan to take part in the St. Patrick's Day competition, each smoking under supervision wherever he happens to live. The man to keep 3.3 grams of "burly" tobacco going longest in a briar pipe will be the winner. He gets a trophy topped by a maple leaf and a calabash pipe.

A startling development came recently when a number of women sought entrance in the competition.

"It was soundly defeated in a vote," said Levine. "We like to take off our coats and put up our feet at meetings—it would never work."

ALL LICENCES USED

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Oxford county has reached its limit in the number of licences issued to non-resident rabbit hunters, V. E. Stokes, licence issuer, said Tuesday hunters from Buffalo, Toronto, Sarnia and numerous district centres have used up the available stock of 300 licences since the season began Nov. 1. It ends Feb. 28.

Jap Poachers Invade Reefs Off Australia

By LOUIS L. LECK
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Australian pearl and trochis fishermen are arming themselves and their native crews with guns before they set out to search reefs for shell.

The fishermen say Japanese poachers have invaded Australia's continental shelf.

They say the Japanese have been stripping the reefs of shell and that it will be at least three years before big sections of the reefs in the New Guinea area are workable again.

One Australian has already opened fire on Japanese who illegally landed on the Australian territory of Ashmore Island, 60 miles northeast of New Ireland.

Another Australian, plantation manager Roy Stacey, ambushed 34 members of the crew of the Sakai Maru who, he claimed, had looted gardens on Ashmore Island. With the aid of a rifle he marched them off to a copra shed and locked them up.

Altogether, 61 Japanese fishermen have been detained in Australian waters in recent weeks. They have been charged before the courts with being illegal immigrants and fined $225 each, or 30 days in jail. The men are still in jail.

In September last year Australia claimed sovereign rights over her continental shelf, mainly to prevent the Japanese fishing fleets from destroying the rich beds of shell.

International lawyers claim that a continental shelf extends from a coast until it reaches a depth of 100 fathoms. Under this rule Australia's continental shelf extends up to 200 miles from her northern shores.

"Japan has appealed to the International court at The Hague against Australia's assumption of the shelf, but the appeal is not likely to be heard until next year.

Members Urge Govt. to Step Up Emigration

LONDON (Reuters) — Rank and file Conservative and Labor members of Parliament urged the government to try to step up British emigration to Canada and the Commonwealth countries.

The members put forward a motion calling on the House of Commons to "note with regret" that only about 25 per cent of the immigrants to Canada and 50 per cent of those to Australia since 1945 have been from Britain.

The motion urged the government "to use their influence to increase the flow of migration from the United Kingdom to reception countries of the Commonwealth."

It called for the government to "increase considerably the United Kingdom contribution towards schemes designed to increase such migration."

Canada in Midst of One Of Most Prolonged Periods Of Stability Since the War

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A new term crept into the Canadian economic scene in 1954: flation.

It reflected the economic view that Canada was suspended somewhere between inflation and deflation; the view that Canada was in the midst of one of the most prolonged periods of stability since the Second World War.

"We're on a sort of plateau," offered one federal official. "We don't seem to be going up much in prices or going down. Some of us have decided to call it flation."

OUTLOOK FOR 1955

For Canadians with jobs, the 1954 period saw some improvement in purchasing power and officials forecast that the trend may continue for at least the first half of 1955.

Unemployment increased in 1954, but so did wages. Average industrial earnings went up by a little more than one per cent; living costs increased by six-tenths of one per cent.

MORE PURCHASING POWER

Thus, real income or purchasing power of working Canadians increased, officials said.

Average weekly industrial earnings increased to about $57 in 1954 from about $56 in 1953. On the average, too, the consumer price index, yardstick for measuring living costs, edged ahead to 118.1 from 115.5. This compared with a jump of 10.8 points in 1953 and the smaller rise of 2.3 points in 1952.

Toward the end of 1954, the consumer price index remained at 118.8 for three months in a row, the longest period the index had remained unchanged in nine years.

UPS AND DOWNS

While the general price structure appeared stable, there were shifts in a variety of consumer goods, but none large enough to upset the general trend.

Under the weight of heavier production, pork prices dropped. So did eggs, butters and sugar. But coffee was higher; so were prices for tea, bread, oranges and potatoes.

Rents continued to rise, with the index climbing month by month to a new high. The cost of owning a home also increased, caused partly by rising municipal taxes on property.

Shoppers found one major drop: fur coats were at an unusual low. Nylon hosiery was down slightly.

The cost of heating the house was down slightly as the price for fuel oil declined, reflecting larger available supplies.

Medical, dental and hospital costs were generally higher. The price of admission to the local movie house was a little higher, but the price of a pack of cigarets was down. Barbers also increased their fees and the cost of personal care generally increased.

ASK VOTE EXTENSION

OSHAWA (CP) — The Oshawa and district labor council Tuesday night decided to ask city council to allow poll-tax payers to vote in municipal elections. Poll-tax payers are those residents who don't own property but are assessed a straight tax. W. G. Wilkins of Local 1817, United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) claimed taxation without representation was out-dated 100 years ago.

Defence Hurls Key Question At Prosecution

By REUMAN MORIN

CLEVELAND (AP) — Defence counsel fighting to save Dr. Samuel Sheppard from the electric chair have repeatedly hurled a challenge and a key question at the prosecution:

"Show the motive! What reason could have driven him to kill his wife?"

Both sides will finish delivering final arguments to the jury today, and the case will be given to the jury Friday morning.

As they rose for their summations, each of Sheppard's three lawyers returned to the question of motive—one of the main pillars of their case.

They said the state had failed to produce any believable reason why the 30-year old osteopath would have been impelled to murder Marilyn Sheppard.

The whole prosecution case, they added, was based on "flimsy evidence."

CHARGED IN JULY

Sheppard was charged with first-degree murder in the death last July 4 of his wife. He says he is innocent, that a "bushy-haired" marauder killed her and injured him in the fight that followed.

The prosecution claims Sheppard no longer loved his wife, and was thinking of divorce. In support of that, assistant prosecutor Thomas Parrino dwelt heavily Wednesday on Sheppard's love affair with Susan Hayes, 24-year-old hospital technitian.

Sheppard and Miss Hayes have admitted illicit relations. They shared a bedroom in the home of his friends in Los Angeles last March, they said.

Parrino called the Los Angeles episode "of the greatest significance" because, he argued, Sheppard made no attempt to conceal it from people who knew his wife.

Police Seeking Cheque Artist

HAMILTON (CP) — Police are seeking a young, well-dressed man who attempted Wednesday to cash two worthless cheques amounting to $3,000 in a branch of the Dominion Bank.

Squads of police converged on the northeast section of the city after a man presented the cheques at the bank, one for $1,875 and the other for $1,130. He fled when bank officials became suspicious.

The same man is believed to have cashed a cheque for $1,232 at the bank Tuesday.

Detectives said he could be the man who defrauded banks in south-western Ontario of about $15,000 in recent weeks.

CALLED FOR STRIKE

JERUSALEM (AP) — Communists in Nazareth achieved only partial success Wednesday in their call for a general strike to protest police action against nearby villagers. Police Monday fired into the air to quell a riot among residents of the village of Mandia, 10 miles north of Nazareth, who tried to prevent a government survey of the area for possible construction of a reservoir.

Catholic Schools Lively Issue In New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — Religious controversy has been aroused in New Zealand by the outspoken stand of the Roman Catholic metropolitan, Archbishop Peter McKeefry, over state aid to Catholic schools.

He declared that if the government continued to refuse aid to Catholic schools, and in the event of New Zealanders having to fight overseas in another war, he would be inclined to call on Catholic men to stay at home while those who denied that justice did the fighting.

Archbishop McKeefry said Catholics had a proud record of overseas service and that nearly 25 per cent of the New Zealand expeditionary force in the last war were Catholics. But he said: "We are tired of being fobbed off." Catholics demanded elementary justice.

He said later that his stand was a personal one and would not apply to home service in the event of an attack. Moreover a war against communism would alter the case considerably.

Roman Catholics total about 14 per cent of the population in New Zealand. They have their own schools which do not receive state aid. Catholic parents are taxed for general education and have to meet the cost of educating their children in church schools as well.

Critics have asked what connection schools have with overseas service and have urged that the views of Catholic members of the forces and key government officials be investigated.

The Loyal Orange Institution in a reply to the archbishop said that threats of dire action 30 years ago unless aid was forthcoming for Catholic schools had resulted in the formation of the Protestant Political Association "which silenced Roman Catholic demands for 25 years."

CHALLENGE CATHOLIC CLAIM

The national executive of school committees' associations urged the government "not to be intimidated by threats or specious pleading by the Roman Catholic hierarchy."

The state offered free education to all children, it said. The Roman Catholic Church denied the right of choice to parents by insisting that Catholic children be sent only to Catholic schools.

For his part, Archbishop McKeefry has stuck to his position. He declared: "What I said, I said deliberately, even though it meant my taking a risk of being charged with unpatriotic motives. . . . I challenge those who would impute base and unworthy motives to prove themselves greater patriots."

CANADA CITED

Claiming that educational freedom granted under the declaration of human rights was better protected elsewhere, he cited other British countries, including Canadian provinces.

"If the government wishes to see how this right is protected in the Empire where Catholics are in a minority," he said, "let it examine the educational laws of England, Wales, Scotland, Northern Ireland and the state (province) of Ontario.

"If it wishes to see how this right is protected and given recognition in Empire countries where Catholics are in a majority, then let it look at the educational laws of Eire and the state (province) of Quebec."

The matter seems bound to be raised in the next session of Parliament.

Canadians Drinking More Beer With Residents in Yukon Being the Greatest Tipplers

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians are drinking more beer and the greatest tipplers in the country are in the Yukon.

These facts are brought out in a publication issued today by the Dominion Brewers Association, which reports a swing from hard liquor to beer and an increased preference for drinking in the home.

Per capita consumption of beer in 1953 climbed to 13.8 gallons compared with 13.8 in 1952. In the Yukon, the average capacity last year was 19.38 gallons, marking the fifth consecutive year in which these northern residents have led in individual drinking.

Collectively, Canadians consumed 204,487,875 gallons in 1953, or 13.82 per capita. Of this close to three-quarters—145,830,675 gallons—was consumed in Ontario and Quebec alone.

The two central provinces had per capita consumptions of 17.04 and 14.61 gallons, respectively, good for second and third spots behind the Yukon. Residents of Prince Edward Island, where until 1948 beer could be purchased only on a doctor's prescription and now is sold only in vendors' stores for home consumption, drank the least—3.17 gallons per capita.

Consumption of other provinces in 1953: Alberta 14.33 gallons, Manitoba 12.30, British Columbia 11.62, Saskatchewan 11.54, Nova Scotia 7.04, Newfoundland 5.68, Northwest Territories 4.37, New Brunswick 4.36.

Canada's per capita consumption of 13.8 gallons was almost equal to the 13.9 figure posted by the United States, but still well below the United Kingdom's estimated 16.1.

"It is worth noting," the Brewers Association said, "that 70 per cent of Canadians drink alcoholic beverages against 59 per cent in the United States; yet the rate of alcoholism in Canada is less than half as great as in the U.S."

It said this indicated "a widespread social drinking custom in Canada, but a moderation in use of alcoholic beverages."

Another clearly-defined trend in the Canadian drinking pattern was the steady decline in the sale of draught beer, indicating a growing popularity for drinking in the home rather than in licensed premises.

WARNS OF BREAK

LONDON (Reuters) — The International Wheat Council today warned that there might be a "disastrous break" in wheat prices unless exporting countries can work off wheat surpluses in an orderly way. The surplus wheat, held chiefly by the United States and Canada, was estimated at 1,335,000,000 bushels.

Think Strijdom May Win Goal Of Republic

By ASTLEY HAWKINS

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuter)—The aim of South Africa's Nationalist party government to turn the country from a dominion within the British Commonwealth into a republic inside or outside the Commonwealth may be realized under the new prime minister, Johannes Strijdom.

Republicanism always has been a plank in the Nationalist party platform, but opinions have varied over the pace and process for achieving this goal. The new prime minister represents the "quicker-the-better" school.

It can be safely predicted that under Strijdom, South Africa will take every opportunity of pressing the republican issue.

There is nothing to stop the present Nationalist government introducing a bill in the next session of Parliament to turn the country into a republic at once. Only a simple majority is required to pass such legislation.

But the Nationalists know that to become a republic requires more than a piece of paper passed through Parliament. Such a step must have the support of the people.

HOPES CHECKED

Nationalist aspirations for a Republic were checked to the last general election in 1953, which showed that the United party opposition had a majority of the popular vote, although they won fewer seats.

If the government tried to turn the country into a republic tomorrow, it is said here, it would face a civil war politically. Natal the "royalist" province of the union, would revolt.

Some a republic. Along with the

PRAY FOR POPE

VIENNA (AP) — Roman Catholics behind the Iron Curtain are praying for the Pope's health, thus manifesting their loyalty to the church, Vienna's Catholic press agency says. Although the Communist rulers of east Europe try to withhold all news of the pontiff's illness, people hear of it from Western radio stations, the report adds.

Pope Suffering From Hernia, X-Rays Reveal

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Detailed x-rays taken today of Pope Pius showed he is suffering from a small hernia, his private physician announced.

Dr. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi said the x-rays also showed the 78-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church is suffering from a state of gastritis.

Galeazzi-Lisi described the hernia as of "small importance" and added that the pictures did not reveal the presence of a stomach ulcer.

Alliston Residents Approve Liquor Store

ALLISTON (CP) — Residents voted Wednesday to permit opening of liquor and beer retail outlets in this community, dry since 1908.

Poll officials said the issue brought out 90 per cent of eligible voters. They said 68 per cent favored the question. A 60 per cent approval is needed.

The move was sponsored by the Alliston Businessmen's Association who said the merchants were losing customers to nearby Barrie and Bradford. Alliston is 40 miles north of Toronto.

BOY SHOT MOTHER

WAR, W. Va. (AP)—A youth who was guarding a mine against prowlers fired his shotgun Wednesday night when someone suddenly opened the door of his shanty. Authorities said 17-year-old Raymond Ritchie found out moments later that he had killed his mother, Mrs. Oscar Bolen. She had come to the mine to bring her son coffee.

Last Canadian Lake Freighter Through Locks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The shipping season is nearing its close. The year's last Canadian lake freighter locked downbound at Sault Ste. Marie Wednesday and Montreal closed to overseas traffic.

A fleet of 28 vessels is expected to moor in Port Colborne before Saturday. The Welland Canal closed officially at midnight Wednesday night.

The fleet, which constitutes the largest group to tie up for the winter at Port Colborne in many years, holds about 4,865,000 bushels of bonus grain.

Montreal, the world's largest inland port, closed its log to oceangoing traffic Wednesday after recording the largest number of deep-sea arrivals in years.

MORE SHIPS

A total of 1,128 ocean ships docked in the harbor during the 8½-month navigation season, compared with 1,745 last year.

The earliest overseas arrival in the city's history was racked up when the Manchester Spinner tied up on March 30 to open the port. It closed Wednesday when the Swedish freighter Kragsholm crunched down the river, breaking through a thin film of ice.

Exports of wheat and general cargo from Montreal declined this year but there was a small increase in inbound general cargo.

Immigrants Fly Home to Britain On Goodwill Trip

TORONTO (CP) — A group of Britons who emigrated to Canada will leave by air Sunday on a goodwill flight to England to tell "the real story" about life in Canada.

The flight, sponsored by the Sports Club of a nearby Ajax firm, will give employees of the company a chance to spend Christmas and New Year with relatives and friends in Britain.

Ernie Howard, co-organizer of the flight, said many persons have gone back to the Old Country and described Canada in an unfavorable light.

"We have enjoyed life here and want our friends in Britain to know about it," he said.

REDUCED PENALTY

LONDON (AP)—British soldiers convicted of cowardice before the enemy would no longer be given the death penalty under a bill introduced in Parliament Wednesday night. Life imprisonment would be substituted as the maximum penalty.

URGE EQUALITY

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Equality of women before the law of all countries was urged Wednesday night by the United Nations general assembly's social committee. A 10-power resolution, passed without dissent, asks all governments to take "appropriate measures" to abolish customs, ancient laws and practices relating to marriage and the family which offend the dignity of women.

Canada Has Admitted Million Immigrants Since End of War

By W. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has opened her doors to more than 1,000,000 immigrants since the war in an effort to boost her population, broad ideas as already-thriving economy and fill up some of her vast virgin areas.

The immigration doors aren't wide open. Admittance is based on a selective policy which encourages those who can best fit themselves to the Canadian way of life.

But the doors have opened significantly to admit an average of more than 100,000 a year for the last seven years. Volume has fluctuated from year to year depending on such economic conditions as unemployment, when the brakes are applied. It reached a high of more than 211,000 in the 1951-52 fiscal year.

WINTER REDUCTION

The 1954 immigration stream is expected to total about 155,000, down some 15,000 from last year. The flow was cut slightly this fall because of the threat of large-scale unemployment in Canada this winter. In the first 10 months of this year the total was 139,000 compared with 165,000 in the same period of 1953.

There is no age regulation but immigrants must be able to maintain themselves in Canada. Largest number are in the 20 to 40 age group and there is a large proportion of children up to 14.

To the end of October more than 40,000 of the immigrants entering this year were from the United Kingdom. There were 30,000 from Germany, 18,000 from Holland and 17,000 from Italy. The 100,000th post-war Dutch immigrant, a 17-year-old girl, entered during the year.

VARYING VIEWS

Canada's immigration policies have come under fire from the big central labor bodies who want more careful handling of immigration in relation to employment conditions. Some opposing political critics have said Canada has no immigration policy.

To these criticisms government spokesmen have replied that Canada's policy is based broadly on the principle that immigration should be used to help develop the natural and human resources and the absorptive capacity of the country. They say that only slightly more than half of all immigrants go into the employment market.

The immigration department came under a new minister during the year. Hon. John W. Pickersgill, 48, took over when Hon. Walter Harris became finance minister.

BROAD POLICY

In a speech at Dauphin, Man., in November, Mr. Pickersgill outlined Canada's immigration policy which he said remains on the same broad lines as laid down by the late prime minister Mackenzie King in 1947. It was a policy calling for careful selection of such numbers of immigrants as Canada can advantageously absorb.

The government deliberately discouraged fall or winter movement of immigrants who were going to seek jobs in Canada. The number given visas permitting them to come in the spring was closely related to the opportunities for establishing themselves here.

FEW UNPLACED

Immigration officials say there has been no serious immigrant establishment problem this year. In October the number of unplaced immigrants in hostels maintained by the department was 286 and most of them had been in Canada only a short time. All others of the 138,000 who came in the first 10 months were settled.

Immigrants are given a security screening as well as tests of their other qualifications, such as health, character and occupation.

Canada has had little trouble with immigrants, considering the size of the annual stream. Of more than 165,000 immigrants last year only 300 were deported, 335 of them for "civil causes" which probably would include those found subversive.

Roger Bannister, Chataway, Gave Britons Sport Headlines

By JEFF RYAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Roger Bannister's first four-minute mile and Chris Chataway's 5,000-metre victory over Russia's Vladimir Kuc helped give Britain a big share of the sports headlines in 1954.

The 25-year-old Bannister stepped on a track in Oxford last May and became the first man to run the dream mile. His time, despite a 30-mile-an-hour cross wind, was 3:59.4.

Later John Landy of Australia clipped 1.4 seconds off Bannister's mark in Turku, Finland, setting the stage for a meeting between the two great Commonwealth runners in the Empire Games at Vancouver in August. In a tingling finish, Bannister came from behind to beat Landy, clocking another miracle mile of 3:58.8.

CHATAWAY IN FRONT

Britain's track record was further enhanced in October when Bannister's friend Chataway, who had appeared destined to go through the season a gallant runner-up to champions, set a world record in the 5,000 metres at London. Chataway, timed in 13:51.6, just got the better of Kuc in a sensational stretch battle.

Kuc, who had beaten Chataway at the European Games in Switzerland in August, later bettered Chataway's time in a race at Prague.

Two other great British runners, marathoner Jim Peters and Gordon (Puff Puff) Pirie, suffered disappointment. Peters collapsed in the last 300 yards of the marathon at the Empire Games when victory seemed in his grasp. Pirie, out of action most of the year with a foot injury, showed a late-season return to form with victory in a cross-country race in Belgium.

SOCCER REVERSES

In some other sports, Britain's 1954 record was less distinguished.

At the World Cup soccer tournament in Switzerland, neither England nor Scotland gained a place. At Budapest, England's national team lost 7-1 to Hungary, its second straight defeat. Arsenal lost 5-0 to Moscow Dynamo and 3-1 to Moscow Spartak, but Wolverhampton Wanderers regained some prestige for the motherland of soccer by trimming Spartak 4-0.

At Wimbledon, invaders dominated as usual. Jaroslav Drobny, an exiled Czech and now a citizen of Egypt, won the men's singles title from Australia's teen-aged Ken Rosewall. Maureen Connolly of the United States won the women's singles crown to complete a Wimbledon hat trick at 18.

English cricket didn't get much chance to shine in a wet summer that caused financial hardship to some clubs. England's tour of the West Indies produced a draw and a riot, with hostile crowds at Georgetown flinging bottles at England's players.

CANADIAN CRICKETERS

For the first time, an official Canadian cricket team toured Britain. Its six-week visit included victories over Middlesex, a Marylebone Cricket Club team and a North Wales side. It lost to Yorkshire, a second North Wales side and Pakistan, which drew a test series against England.

A horseracing season which was the first time a reigning sovereign has headed the list. Sir Gordon Richards, champion British jockey, retired from the saddle at 50 after being injured at Sandown Park.

British boxing had one bright spot — heavyweight Don Cockell who defeated Harry Matthews and Roland Lastarza, American top-fighters.

Shirley Thomas of Ottawa came to Britain for the White City International Horse Show but cracked three ribs in a fall and later retired. Canada's Ilsley team met severe weather conditions and went home without a team trophy, though Lt.-Col. Steve Johnson of Calgary won one first place.

A filly named Carrozza was the first to win the Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire handicaps in the same year since 1911. Carrozza, owned by Mrs. Geoffrey Kohler, was ridden by Lester Piggott, 18-year-old jockey who rode 164 winners in 1954 and was the youngest rider to win the Derby since 1913.

Aureole, owned by Queen Elizabeth, was the first horse to win the Derby and the St. Leger since Hyperion in 1934. Aureole was retired to stud after the St. Leger.

Another great horse, Nearco, died in October. Nearco, sire of Nasrullah, Nearco's son who was the leading sire in Britain in 1954, was 23.

Canadian Tire Manufacturers Will Appeal

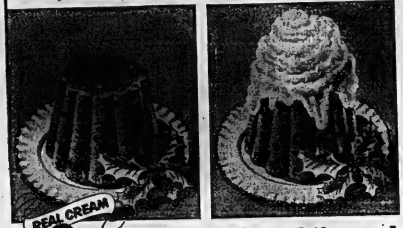
TORONTO (CP) — Three Canadian tire manufacturers said Wednesday they will appeal a tariff board ruling that big retail corporations selling special brand tires are not manufacturers.

The board Dec. 8 ruled the retail outlets exempt from excise and sales taxes on the selling prices of their tires.

The three companies—Goodrich, Firestone and Goodyear—dispute the ruling, maintaining that such retail outlets as the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., Simpsons-Sears, Imperial Oil Limited and Canadian Tire Corporation should be classed as manufacturers since they sell tires bearing special brand names and special tread designs.

DIRECTOR DIES

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Eugene du Pont, 81, a director of E.I. du Pont de Nemours and Company and a great - grandson of the founder of the chemical firm, died Wednesday.



LIFTS ORDER

TORONTO (CP)—Taxi companies were told Wednesday they need not instal bucket-type seats in their cabs by Jan. 1 as ordered by the police commission some weeks ago. The commission lifted the order after hearing appeals by cab owners and receiving a petition from 80 per cent of the drivers.

REIGNEUSE DIES

SARK, Channel Islands (AP)—The Seigneur of Spark, Robert Woodward Hathaway, died Wednesday. He was 67. He had been prince consort to the Grand Dame of this tiny island off the coast of France for 25 years and lived here in the style of an old feudal lord.

MINTO

Mrs. H. Holden Heads Salem WA For 1955

MINTO — The December meeting of Salem W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Mel Wickinson on Thursday afternoon with a splendid attendance. Mrs. Mayo, president, opened the meeting. Roll call was answered by each member donating 50 cents towards supplies for the new church hall.

In the absence of Mrs. Twiddy, treasurer, Mrs. Harold Holden gave her report. It was announced that Mr. C. Mumby gave $20 for Coronation quilt, and that $150 had been donated by Mr. J. B. Hagerman and Mr. H. Mayo for roofing the new hall. Mrs. E. Broadworth read the correspondence.

Mrs. Mayo stated her term of office was ended and thanked everyone who had so freely helped support her during the past two years.

Mrs. Everett Sine presided over the election of officers which resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. H. Holden; vice-president, Mrs. M. Johnson; secretary, Mrs. E. Broadworth; treasurer, Mrs. Tom Clements.

Mrs. Frank McGee took charge of the program and opened with a Christmas carol. Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. O. Erickson. A vividly portrayed Christmas story was read by Mrs. McGee, assisted by Mrs. H. Holden and Mrs. M. Johnson. Mrs. L. Hagerman offered prayer.

Mrs. McGee introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. John Mulheron, of Bethel, who spoke on "Christmas Carols." She told of their origin, their writers and the history of each. As she would speak of the carol a verse of it was sung.

It was also interesting to hear of many of the English customs, particularly at this time of year. Her talk was most appropriate for the season and was much enjoyed by everyone.

Mrs. Arnold Roy gave a reading. Mrs. Stan Thompson moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, Mrs. Mulheron and to the hostess.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Orval Jackson's home in January, with a dinner and quilting.

Refreshments were served.

MINTO — St. Thomas' W.A. held a Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. L. B. Wallace, of Springbrook, on Wednesday afternoon.

Glad to report Miss Barbara Twiddy is improving nicely after her recent operation. She returned home from the hospital on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sine and Carol spent the week-end with Mrs. Sine's sister and husband, in Mathison.

Mrs. Janie Sine and Mrs. Gladys Sine and family spent a recent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Tom Nurse, of Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Wright and family, of Lindsay, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Will Joyce.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Tanner, Mrs. W. Brown, Mrs. Ed. Colden and Miss Edna Tanner called on Mrs. Robert Cranston on Tuesday afternoon.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE — All the youngsters and most of the oldsters from Rylstone, turned out on Saturday to meet old St. Nick at the Santa Claus parades in Campbellford and Stirling. The parade in Campbellford was wonderful, even surpassing last year, according to some reports. Rylstone Cheese Factory and the Rylstone Ball Club had a float in the parade, which was most amusing. Rylstone's Women's Institute had a table of Farmer's Market goods, at the Masonic Temple, in Aid of Campbellford Memorial Hospital. A ten-pound cheese, made by Murray Heath, of Rylstone Cheese factory, was on display, and tickets sold on it for a draw. The cheese was won by a former resident of Rylstone, who himself was a cheesemaker's helper, at that stone, some years ago, Jim Bartlett, now of Belleville.

The Union School pupils and their teacher, Mrs. Cora Reid, will hold their annual concert and Christmas tree, at the school, on Friday night, December 17th. Everybody welcome.

The pupils of the 9th Line School, and their teacher, Mrs. Murray Micklejohn, will hold their annual concert and Christmas tree, in their school, on Monday night, December 20th. Everybody welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Spencer attended the funeral of her little cousin, Georgia Forde, at Hastings, on Monday. The little girl was instantly killed in a motor accident on Saturday night.

Mrs. Mary Jane Murray has been spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Will Morton.

Mrs. Stella Gibson entertained her aunt, Mrs. Jane Micklejohn, with her sister, Mrs. Fred Elliott and Mr. Elliott of West Huntingdon, also her brother R. Micklejohn and son, Jack, on Tuesday evening last week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Morton and family, and Mrs. Mary Jane Murray were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Heath and family of Wilton, on Sunday, Mrs. Murray remained for a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Heath.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Heath, Billie and Judy, of Ridge Road, were Tuesday supper guests of his brother, Mr. Ralph Heath, Mrs. Heath and family.

Demorestville

DEMORESTVILLE — Mrs. C. Peck spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Kilroy Goralise.

Douglas Goralise, Dennis and Jack Sallans and Richard Williams spent Saturday in Toronto and attended the NHL hockey match.

Mrs. Arnold Potter visited a few days with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carter, at Amelisburg.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. Wes Juby in the death of his father, William Caleb Juby, who passed away in Demorestville on Saturday, December 4th in his 78th year. Interment was in Unified Cemetery, Picton.

Congratulations to Mr. Arnold Wannamaker, Jr., and Doris O'Hara, of Belleville, who were married Saturday, December 4.

A shower for the newlyweds was held in the hall on Friday evening. The evening was spent in cards and dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gerow and Mrs. Roy Longwell spent Friday in Belleville.

Henry Sallans is spending a few days at his home.

Mrs. Fred Daly and Mrs. Ross Johnson called Sunday afternoon on Mrs. Mine Thompson.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

THE CHIEF, HE'S LAID UP!

The readers of this column and G.H.C.'s many friends will be sorry to hear that the old master will be out of circulation for a short time due to an unfortunate accident. Mr. Cawker suffered a splintered collar-bone when he fell on slippery steps at his home and is now under medical treatment, progressing as well as can be expected.

Wishes for a quick recovery go out from his co-workers and friends.

COMING FROM BEHIND!

It takes a good team to come back and win after being on the short end of the score and that's just what the Memos did last night as they climbed into a second place tie with Cornwall by edging their nearest rivals, Whitby, by a 4-3 score.

Our side was back 1-0 at the end of one and 3-2 after two periods, but roared back fast with two goals early in the third, and then settled down to play airtight defensive hockey with Don "Turk" Barclay playing a standout game in the nets, especially in the final session when he kicked out drive after drive that appeared to be labelled.

Arnie Dagan shared the starring roll with Barclay, firing the Memos' second and winning goals with Red Doran setting him up on both plays. Bus Gagnon was tops for the losers, playing about 45 minutes and scoring two of their goals. Whitby had only 11 players dressed, and when Harry Sinden drew a match misconduct in the third it left them in a bad way but the locals played such excellent hockey in the third period it really clinched whether Whitby's plight had much to do with the win.

The Wrens went all out in the final ten minutes but fine forechecking by Belleville forwards and an airtight defence held them off with Barclay making spectacular saves in the clutch.

HERE AND THERE!

Item out of Oshawa claims that plans for a $500,000 arena are being made to replace the old one which burned to the ground two years ago. It will seat 5,000 persons, have a parking lot holding 1,000 cars and the ice surface will be five feet wider than the one at Maple Leaf Gardens. If it goes through, Belleville will be the only city among the old Seniors "B" rivals without a modern ice palace .... Bus Gagnon leads the way in penalties in the senior "B" group with 98 minutes, including two match jobs and four majors. He's also standout second in scoring with 36 points, so you can imagine how many points he'd have if he was on the ice all the time .... Manager Wren Blair of Whitby got the air in the Peterborough game Monday night when he told referee Maurice Walsh what he thought of him in no uncertain terms. Too bad, but they never learn .... Plenty of goaltenders in the NHL this season with no less than twelve in action so far. Montreal has used Plante, Binette, Evans and Hodge; Toronto, Lumley and Mayer; Boston, Henry and Henderson; New York, Worsley and Bower, while Detroit has stuck by Sawchuck, and Rollins has been in the nets for all of Chicago's games .... Hec Lalande's four goals and three assists in last Sunday's Junior "A's" 14-3 win over Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks was his highest scoring total for one game since he had a four-goal outing for the Detroit Rockets. It was a common occasion then .... Keith MacDonald and Dave Jones have already passed their last year's total points and the schedule is not yet half over. Keith counted 11 points in 33-54 and now has 13, while Dave picked up 15 last year but is third among the Memo scorers with 16 at the present time .... Could be that the Detroit Red Wings intend to "swing" the defensive line first place in the hot National League race — they've taken up the Mambo craze to such an extent that the club just issued a record called the "Red Wing Mambo" with their theme song, "Pretty Red Wing" on the reverse side.

Danny Lewicki Scores Goal That Gives Rangers 3-3 Tie With Detroit Red Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Only a few days ago Chicago Black Hawks lacked scoring punch and they lost games in the National Hockey League. Now they've got the punch but they're still losing.

The Hawks, who admitted that it would be their own fault if they couldn't whip up a winning club when they bought leftwinger Harry Watson and rookie rightwinger Ed Litzenberger last week, were walloped 8-3 by the Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night. It was the second defeat in three games since making the player deal.

Although the Hawks were slightly inept, they couldn't be entirely blamed for the debacle. The Leafs couldn't do a thing wrong, with left-winger Sid Smith leading the way with four goals.

LEWICKI SHINES

In the only other engagement of the night, Danny Lewicki, the Toronto castoff who blossomed into a sensational scorer, tallied late in the third period to give the Rangers a 3-3 tie against Detroit Red Wings in New York.

Leafs gave Hawks their worst licking of the 1954-55 campaign before they decimated a paid throng of 6,719 fans at St. Louis, where the game was switched from the Chicago Stadium hockey interest in that city.

It was their 15th win of the season and gave them 37 points, two behind the leading Montreal Canadiens. Hawks, formerly with Canadiens, assisted on Stanley's first goal.

A crowd of 4,261 at Madison Square Garden cheered the Rangers when Lewicki, 25-year-old star from Fort William, fired his 16th goal of the year past goaltender Terry Sawchuk with two goals in the last period to gain the deadlock. It left the Wings in third place, one point behind Leafs.

Dean Prentice and Wally Hergesheimer scored the other goals for the Blueshirts. Marty Pavelich led the Detroiters with two goals, both in the first period. Alex Delvecchio added the other one.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sid Smith went on a three-goal scoring spree Wednesday night as Toronto smothered Chicago 8-3, and vaulted into the list of top seven scorers in the National Hockey League.

Smith has 15 goals and seven assists for 22 points and a tie for seventh place with Gordie Howe of Detroit, who assisted on one goal as the Red Wings tied New York 3-3.

Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal, idle Wednesday, continues to lead the scoring race with 26 points.

POSTPONES TRIALS

LONDON (AP)—Donald Malcolm Campbell, Britain's 53-year-old water ace, said Wednesday he has postponed trials for his new speed boat "Bluebird" until after Christmas "because of flood damage at the Lake district launching site."

Moe Norman Top Amateur Golfer of 1954

TORONTO (CP)—Moe Norman of Kitchener, noted for his disdain of the polite niceties of golf, Wednesday was announced as Ontario's top amateur golfer of 1954.

The stocky 24-year-old favorite of Ontario golf galleries headed the list of 10 top-ranking players issued by the selection ranking committee of the Ontario Golf Association.

Behind Norman, in a second-place tie, the OGA ranked veteran Nick Weslock of Windsor Essex and Jerry Magee of Toronto Lambton, a newcomer to the list.

Norman, a manner-loner golfing nomad who plays out of Kitchener's Rockway Club, succeeds another Kitchener product, Jerry Kesselring, in the top place. Kesselring was ranked first for three years until he left amateur ranks last winter to hit the professional tournament trail in the United States.

CROWD PLEASER

An incessant talker, Norman is a crowd pleaser. He seldom if ever takes time to address the ball—he just swings and belts it. He puts virtually in stride as he walks up to the ball, and just as effectively in many players who spend minutes studying the lay of the grass and the course gets caring set for the stroke.

The committee cited the season's record as the reason for his selection: He was low amateur in the Ontario Open with a 212 for 36 holes, he was low amateur in the $26,500 Open at Toronto Scarboro with a 288, he was fourth and had a 223 for low position among the amateurs at the Rockcliffe Niagara Parks commission Open; he had low individual medal score with 144 in the Willingdon Cup inter-provincial team matches; he went to the quarter-finals of the Canadian Amateur; he won two points for Canada in the American Cup international matches against the best of eight invitation matches during the year.

OTHER RANKINGS

Behind the top three in order of rank stood: Grant Shirk, Kitchener Westmount, Ont. Ont. amateur champion; Eric Hanson, Toronto Scarboro, Phil Farley, Scarboro and Ernie Bentley, Toronto Weston; Don Arey, Brantford; Bill Morland, Northgate, and Doug McEllar, Scarboro.

The committee commended seven other players, including Tony Mallock, Sudbury Idylwylde; Garth Sinclair, Stratford.

Norman, although about the same age as Bentley, Hanson, was still a caddy when Jerry's light was shining brightly. He devotes his summers almost exclusively to golf. He was ranked fifth in 1950, sixth in 1951, got honorable mention in 1952 and was sixth last year.

TOP TROTTER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A panel of 97 turf writers has voted Stenographic Hanover three-year-old trotting filly owned by Max Hempt of Mechanicsburg, Pa., the harness horse of the year, the United States Trotting Association reported Wednesday.

In what the USTA reported as the closest balloting in years, daughter of Bill Gallon polled 464 votes to edge out the two-year-old trotting star, Scott Frost, who had 423. Scott Frost is owned by Sol Camp of Shafter, Calif.

Stenographic trained and driven by Del Miller, won 23 of her 32 starts this year including 11 stakes victories.

Sonshine Accused of Wrecking Football Relations With U.S.

TORONTO (CP)—The storm that Toronto Argonauts blew up by firing all four American players has raged unabated Wednesday night as team director Harry Sonshine was accused of wrecking Canada-U.S. football relations with the U.S. "in one fell swoop."

Leo Dandurand, one of the new co-owners of Montreal Alouettes, charged that Sonshine's action was "heartless and harmful" and that the goodwill and integrity built over the years in the U.S. "have been demolished in one fell swoop."

The accusations were made in a prepared statement after Dandurand talked by telephone to Sonshine.

The Argo team director, commenting on the statement, said that he had a "very pleasant talk" with Dandurand. He said the Argonauts' action was not as high-handed as it appeared.

The team had finished out of the Big Four playoffs the last two seasons and there was no alternative but to make major changes, Sonshine said that of the 10 outright imports on last year's team four are due to be made major stars. United States Army, one was brought out of retirement through an especially attractive contract and one was on loan from Regina. The 13 remaining players include three classed as Canadian-Americans.

Sonshine said previously that one of the reasons all the players had been let go was that Argos believed the rule on Canadian-Americans would be wiped out next season and that the league would be allowed to play 13 outright imports.

Accordingly, he said, only two or three could have been considered even if this sweeping reforming all-Canadian players had raged unabated Wednesday night as team director Harry Sonshine was accused of wrecking Canada-U.S. football relations with the U.S. "in one fell swoop."

Accordingly, he said, only two or three could have been considered even if this sweeping reforming all-Canadian players had been decided upon.

The players weren't told beforehand and it came only a couple of weeks before Christmas. Fans voicing an opinion have criticized the club for this and for not giving any of the Americans who played well last season a chance to compete against the new imports.

Dandurand in his statement also criticized the timing of Argos' move.

The players are also bitter over Argos' intentions not to release them outright and make them free agents until after Argos see whether they can trade them.

Olson Retains Middleweight Title by Scoring TKO In Eleventh Over Pierre Langlois

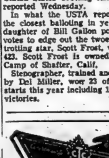
By BOB MYERS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Screams of anguish echoed from one sector of the French boxing front today but the fact remains that Carl (Bobo) Olson of the United States still holds a firm grip on the world middleweight championship.

San Francisco's 26-year-old Bobo always a cruel but seldom a killing puncher, turned the trick in favor of gallant Pierre Langlois of France Wednesday night, stopping the invader from Normandy on a technical knockout after 58 seconds of the 11th round.

Langlois, nursing a cut two inches long and a quarter inch wide, said nothing.

Kanter said Olson butted Pierre in the 10th round.



Informed of this, Olson retorted: "If anybody butted in the 10th round, it was Langlois when he weaved and shook his head in the corner."

Olson, shuffling, chopping in one round, standing off and slashing away from long range in another, was far in front at the finish.

Flores and judge Jack Downey had Bobo in front, under California's 11-point per round scoring system, 54½-50½. Judge Ben Bentzel scored it 53-51. The Associated Press card read 59½-50½.

Memos Share Second Place In Loop With 4-3 Win Over Whitby Wrens

Barclay Standout in Goal As Team Comes from Behind To Win; Dugan Gets Clincher

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Sparked by the phenomenal goaltending of Don Barclay and all around period of excellent hockey, the Belleville Memos roared back in the third period last night to hand the Whitby Wrens a 4-3 defeat on the latter's home ice in an O.H.A. Senior "B" affair.

The victory gave the Memos a half-share of second place with the Cornwall Colts, three points behind the first place Kingston Goodyears and the same number ahead of Whitby.

Playing with only eleven men, the Wrens took command in the first minute of play and lead 1-0 at the end of one period and 3-2 starting the final session but the visitors could not be denied. They knotted the count on Dan Duncan's marker at 2.37 and just three minutes later Arnie Dugan sank the winner. From then on they were unbeatable.

Buz Gagnon opened the scoring in the first period after 48 seconds of play, when he took O'Connor's goalmouth pass, cut across in front of Barclay and banged the disc home for the lone marker of the period. Attorney also had nothing at mid-ice on the play. The remainder of the session was rather scrambly hockey with Attorney hitting the post on two close-in chances. Muckley drew a slashing penalty at 13.37 but less than a minute later O'Connor caught the official's eye for slashing and had a misconduct thrown in for arguing the decision. A very small crowd attended the game.

ACTION IN SECOND

Action picked up in the middle twenty minutes and after Macdonald drew a beautiful opportunity to tie the score, when Bellville lost a goal cause, Dugan snapped one past the goalie.

Jack Wade put the Memos on the comeback trail at 11.01 when he grabbed the puck at the Whitby blueline, used the Duncan twins for decoys on either side of him, and hammered in a bullet drive between the two defencemen, that beat Courtney all the way.

Bob Attersley got that one back three minutes later, labbing across a loose puck in his own zone and catching the local defence flatfooted to make his goal alone on the Belleville custodian. Vern Gagnon started the next goal at 13.34, passing to Red Doran, who in turn relayed the disc to Arnie Dugan, who completed the play, outguessing the goalie on his doorstep for the 3-2 score. Then had the only penalty of the period at 17.09 for tripping but nothing came of it.

LONG DRIVE SCORES

With Barclay kicking out a terrific slap shot off the stick of Attersley to open the period, the Memos came up with the best hockey of the game in the final period. Ed. Duncan's tying marker came on a long drive from inside the Whitby blueline that Courtney looked weak on. He nearly caught the puck but let it get away from him, falling into the twine.

Red Doran drove one at the Wrens' citadel with the clock reading 6:40 and Dugan banged the rebound in before Courtney had a chance giving the Quinte crew their fourth victory of the season.

Sloden drew a misconduct for using profane language at 10.31 and seconds later had a match misconduct added by referee Heffering for calling to him from the sin-bin. Dorin also served a minor penalty at 12.30 for holding Gagnon's stick but Barclay was not to be beaten as he held the fort all the way, even when coach Gagnon poured six forwards on in the last minute of play.

The teams:

Belleville: goal, Barclay; defence, Wade, Macey, Goyer, Wilson; forwards, Ed. Duncan, Er. Duncan, Day, Doran, Dugan, Dorin, MacDonald, Bedlid, Jones, Muckler.

Whitby: goal, Courtney; defence, Sloden, McBeth, Treen; forwards, Attersley, Gagnon, O'Connor, Samson, Dorin, Edwards, Trimm.

HOLIDAY CRACK-DOWN

TORONTO (CP) — As police swung into a holiday season crackdown on persons who drive after drinking, five motorists were given penalties Wednesday as a result. John Conley was sentenced to 30 days in jail and four others paid fines totalling $850.

Willie Mays Most Valuable Player in Loop

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Howard Mays, spectacular centerfielder of the world champion New York Giants, was voted today the most valuable player in the National League for 1954 by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

The young outfielder, whose exploits at bat and in the field were prime factors in the Giants' pennant and world series success, was the overwhelming choice of the 24-man committee, receiving 383 points as compared to 317 for runner-up Ted Kluszewski of Cincinnati.

ON EVERY VOTE

The 23-year-old wonder boy was named on every ballot. He received 16 first-place votes. Kluszewski, the "Redlegs" slugging first baseman, received seven first-place votes.

Pitcher Johnny Antonelli of the Giants finished third in the voting with 154 points.

Playing his first full season in the majors, Mays captured the National League batting championship with a rousing .345, led the circuit with 13 triples and also won the slugging title with an impressive .667 percentage. He also was up among the leaders with 110 runs batted in.

The lithe, 5-10½ native of Fairfield, Ala., was just as spectacular in the field. His amazing catches and throws had veteran observers comparing him to such former centrefield stars as Tris Speaker, Joe DiMaggio, Terry Moore and Max Carey.

Four Dead Heats In Race Meet

TORONTO (CP)—The dead heat is a rarity in racing, turned up four times in a six-event harness racing meet here Wednesday.

In the first heat of the third race at Dufferin Park Supervisor and Goose Vic finished in a dead heat for second place and Afton Prince and Derby Day ended in a dead heat for third.

Part Dillon and Peter, Direct L. couldn't be separated by a camera for place money in the second heat of the fourth race. It happened again in the sixth. Hi Handy and Judge Hi-Le ran nose-and-nose to win the first heat.

TeePees Score Four in Third

BARRIE (CP)—St. Catharines TeePees came from behind with four goals in the final period to defeat Barrie Flyers 6-3 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game before 800 fans here Wednesday night.

The Flyers played inspired hockey for two periods with new netminder Tom Green, acquired from Kitchener Waterloo Canucks, coming up with brilliant saves. TeePee goals Marv Edwards was equally as brilliant and had no chance on the two goals that beat him.

Cec Hockins and Barry Cullen with two goals each paced the TeePees, Hank Ciesla and Ab McDonald had one each.

Cec. Hockins and Barry Cullen scored for the Flyers. Polizzi picked up two assists. The game to take over the lead in the OHA Junior A scoring race.

'Dry Run' Sets Of Playing Schedules Made

CHICAGO (CP) — Toronto and Montreal are among six localities involved in "dry run" sets of playing schedules being drafted by an American League committee exploring expansion problems.

The others are Los Angeles, San Francisco, Houston — Dallas and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Disclosure of the "synthetic" schedules was made Wednesday by Frank Lane, general manager of the Chicago White Sox and chairman of the league's realignment committee.

Lane stressed that the league was not shopping for new members. "We want to have our yardstick ready," he said. "We want to be able to proceed in orderly fashion, if applications for membership are made to the league."

Rookie Ready

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens announced Wednesday that rookie centre Don Marshall, who suffered a broken leg during the training season, will rejoin the National Hockey League club this night for the game here against New York Rangers. Marshall has been rounding into shape playing with Montreal Royals of the Quebec Hockey League.

Mercurys Use Penalty to Win Over Dutchmen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One minor penalty broke the backs of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen Wednesday night.

The Dutchmen, league-leaders in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League, were playing the second place Owen Sound Mercurys at Kitchener and with seven minutes left in regulation time the Dutchies were leading 4-3.

Kitchener playing coach Clare Martin was tagged with a hooking penalty at 11:28 and within 38 seconds Mercurys had tied the score to send the game into overtime.

Leftwinger Ken Green scored at 5:17 of the extra period to give Owen Sound a 5-4 decision.

CHATHAM LOSES

In the other league game Windsor Bulldogs defeated Chatham Maroons 7-4 in Chatham.

The Owen Sound victory, watched by 2,153 fans, spoiled Kitchener's bid to increase its first place margin to six points. Buck Forshaw scored two goals, including the tying marker, to pave the way for the Mercs. Singles by Glen Skov and Roy Leckie also preceded Green's winning tally.

Buddy Horne counted twice for Kitchener and Don Oberhotzer and Jim Logan notched the others.

The Bulldogs, third in the standings, countered in the third period Chatham drive with two goals in the last three minutes. The Maroons are in fifth place.

Windsor's Gord Haidy was the only repeat man of the night. Other Bulldog scorers were Jack Bott, Walt Pawlyshyn and George McLagan. Chatham's goals went to Ed Buch, George Edwards, Dan Blair and Frank Bonello.

The ale Lionel Conacher, voted Canada's greatest athlete of the half-century, was traded 30 years ago today to New York Americans by Pittsburgh Pirates with whom he had played his first professional hockey. Conacher, all-round athlete who gained his greatest fame on the football field, died suddenly during a softball game at Ottawa last May.

Six Junior 'A' Clubs Complete Trades Involving 11 Players

TORONTO (CP) — Trades involving 11 players and six teams were completed Wednesday night, the last one before the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League's midnight deadline for bartering.

Guelph Biltmores, St. Catharines TeePees, Galt Black Hawks, Barrie Flyers, Kitchener - Waterloo Canucks, and Toronto Marlboros all took part in the trades. Toronto St. Michael's College Majors, leading the league with 18 victories and only three losses, and Hamilton Oshawa chose to stand pat with their present rosters.

The biggest deal was negotiated between Biltmores and Marlboros. Marlboros, unhappy about their fifth-place position in the league race, traded defenceman Bob Dillman and forward Sonny Larose to Kitchener in exchange for forwards Glen Cressman, Gary Collins and Jake Smoke. Marlboros also gave exclusive amateur rights to forward Ted McCaskill.

Marlboros also traded goalie Jack McCall to Canucks at the start of the day. It was stipulated at that time that he would return to Toronto next season.

Guelph Biltmores parted with a couple of players and an undisclosed amount of cash to get Ron Halstead, a forward...from Galt Black Hawks. Ron Boomer, Biltmores' goal-tending ace defenceman Eddy Oatbank went to Galt in the deal.

Biltmores also purchased rightwinger Wimpy Roberts from St. Catharines TeePees. This was a reason to make any player changes.

"We're quite satisfied with the way we're hanging," said coach Charlie Conacher.

Ken Laing, owner of the sixth-place Cubs, ignored the trading deadline because he saw no opportunity where he could strengthen his team.

"Nobody offered us anything," he said. "So we're definitely not trading anything or anybody. I'm pleased as punch in view of this hockey business so naturally I'm not going to part with any of my more promising players.

Point Anne Downs Flyers, Juniors Win from Trenton

The Trent Valley Hockey League opened locally last evening at Memorial Arena with Point Anne downing Trenton Flyers 6-1 in the first game of a twin bill and the Belleville Juniors edging Trenton town 4-3 in the nightcap.

Opening ceremonies were conducted by A. Duncan, president of the TVHL. J. H. Legate, supervisor-head of the Canada Cement Co. plant at Point Anne and Group Capt. G. O. Diamond, RCAF Trenton. The bugle band from RCAF Trenton enlivened pre-game festivities.

Point Anne scored the only goals of the first and third periods and hammered in four in the middle stanza to overwhelm the Flyers.

Strehan for Point Anne opened the scoring at the 15-minute mark on a wide-open first period when he took a pass from Jack Wardhaugh in front of goal.

The Flyers tied the score at the three minute mark of the second period with Blanchard rifling in a pass from Darwin and Yardley Lee put the Point Annes in front to stay on a pass from brother Gerry and Jack Williams. Gerry Goyer came right back minutes later to score from Demark and then connected for his second goal of the night from Leo Goyer and Sonnie Howe chalked man on the penalty plank for cross checking.

Williams scored from Hurst to put Point Anne in front 5-1 in the second period when Bill Strehan, on a pass from Hurst, notched the only goal of the third period.

Gerry Goyer and Bill Strehan led Point Anne with two goals each. Bill Hurst and Jed Demark each had two assists with Hurst turning in a good game on defence.

Best for Flyers were Rochon, Bowman and Stewart.

Referees Mac Carson and G. McFall handed out eight minor penalties, four to each team.

Line-up:

RCAF Flyers: goal, Ogden; defence, Cowick, Playford; forwards, Francis, Bowman, Rochon; alternates, Dawson, Tardiff, Blanchard, Racicot, Dickson, Adams, St. Jean, Stewart, Childerhouse.

Point Anne: goal, Lehman; defence, Hurst, Stewart; forwards, Gilmour, Warshaugh, Strahan; alternates, Demark, Hunter, L. Goyer, G. Goyer, Williams and Graham.

In the second game Belleville Juniors took a 1-0 lead in the first period, were ahead 4-3 in the second and then held on in the third for a 5-3 victory.

Stoliker scored the only goal of the first period as he tapped in a loose puck during a scramble in front of the Trenton nets.

Neale evened the score early in the second period on a pass from Jones but the Juniors stormed back with three straight goals to take what looked like a safe lead. McKenna scored on a pass from Stoliker. A few minutes later Harrison cashed a relay from Brooks and Brant and Brooks backhanded the Juniors' final goal a minute later.

Cousins, on assists by Hatfield and Isbell, made the score 4-3 just before the period ended.

Hatfield scored the only goal of the third period as the Juniors turned in a defensive display while short handed three times. Ashley, in the Junior cage, starred throughout.

Trenton played six forwards in the final 33 seconds to try to score the equalizer.

Juniors soaked up six or the game's nine minor penalties.

Lineups: Trenton — Goal, Hill; defence, York, Farmer; forwards, A. Scott, Neale, Jones; alternates: McDonald, Leavy, P. Scott, Cousins, Hatfield, Isbell, C. Scott, Schenk. Sub-goalie — Gould.

Belleville Juniors—Goal, Ashley; defence, Murray, Baker; forwards, Garrison, Brooks, Brant; alternates: St. Denis, Weatherbit, Brandon, McKenna, Atkins, Stoliker, Casey, Perris, Subgoalie: Charlton.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for Friday, December 17, 1954.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mental alertness and keen judgment will be needed this not entirely auspicious day. If your emotions are not under control, you can make honest advancement, attain fresh incentive.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — A somewhat mild period for personal affairs but the day can be generally productive and profitable for well-executed work; sound investments and unusual ideas which have merit.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Your Mercury and Jupiter augur for real attainment, business and financial gains, success in all honorable goals. However, Mars position stresses a need for emotional control.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — While this will not be an entirely auspicious day, there are no really unfavorable aspects in your sector. Fatal warnings from your sectors, however, advise against unruly moods or selfish motives. One day can be a good one!

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — A friendly outlook — especially for sound financial and business matters and wholesome, useful activities. Be wisely circumspect — not over-exuberant, but hopeful.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Grand Mercury and Jupiter rays plus friendly ones from Uranus promise encouragement for the unusual, even the daring (if meritorious). Writing, art, music, journalism highly favored.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Taurus notations also apply to you. Unusual, unique and vigorous matters can bring desirable today. Be your clever but sensibly practical self.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Your Mars aspect now stresses a need for patience and calm judgment. Do not procrastinate. Calm, steady application will bring benefits.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Jupiter and other "stress" fair aspects are sound; annoying influences that must be counteracted by you.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Saturn today suggests a watchful attitude in trickey matters, no forcefulness, but agreeable cooperation in all matters pertinent to personal and general advancement.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Today could well be your day with your planet Uranus, Mercury and Jupiter in auspicious array. So much can be attained during this stimulating period!

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — You can reach out easily but don't be over-anxious for gains. They are obtainable but only through sensible and diverse management, and in worthwhile endeavors. A fine day for sound financial matters.

YOU BORN TODAY are very artistic, industrious and fair minded but may be impractical, even rash at times. Your sincere, versatile disposition is a winning asset but if you are not watchful, you may be neglectful or obstinate at times. We cannot have all good traits; we are human and thus have faults. The important point is to study ourselves and recognize and admit our shortcomings. Move ahead with propriety and decorum and never fail to recognize the importance when and where needed. Seek God's guidance always. Birthdate: John Greenleaf Whittier, American poet; Ludwig von Beethoven, German composer.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma shook her head to herself and, saying to pop, Mr. Williams, I've got I go through the whole gastly Christmas bizness again, and how I dred it.

Oh well, it only comes once a year, and the years only come one at a time, pop said, and ma said, All the women I know feel the same way. Maud Hess told me she'd like to go to some desert island and berry her head in the sand till it was all over.

I understand that's how the ostriches spend Christmas, pop said, and ma said, When I think of sitting down and addressing dozzens of cards to comparative strangers just because I know they feel the same way about it, I just seem too overwhelmingly depressing. Blanche Hipple claims she has a recurring nitemare about being berried on a mountain side under an avalanche of Christmas cards, ma said.

Think what the mailmen have to go through, pop said, and ma said, Even the children take Christmass for granted and expect presents by divine rite. Sibbie Larsen says Christmas spirrit has gone with the atomic age, she said, and pop said, Why dont you women get together and say goodbye to all that? No cards and no useless giving. As far as we are concerned, we'll just give one inexpensive little remembrance to Benny, and if he takes it for granted, we'll match it rite back, he said.

Now that's unheard of and preposterius, ma said, and pop said, Why is it?

Because it would take all the spirit out of Christmas, ma said.

Proving there must be some there after all.

NUDIST ACQUITTED

GENOA, Italy (Reuters) — A court ruled here Wednesday that there was nothing unlawful about a nudist couple giving photos of themselves naked to their friends and fellow nudists. Delio Della Casa and his nudist wife were met with joy when he was acquitted. He said the photos could not be obscene because they did not create "a morbid impression."

Canadian Squad Will Be Minus Bobby Locke

MONTREAL (CP) — Seven top skilled States professional golfers will oppose a Canadian squad playing without Bobby Locke in the fourth annual Hopkins Trophy match here Dec. 17-18, it was disclosed Wednesday night.

American and Canadian trustees of the match announced that the U.S. team will be made up of Ed Furgol, U.S. national Open champion; Chick Harbert, Professional Golfers Association champion; and leading money winners Cary Middlecoff, Jack Burke, Jr., Marty Furgol, Dave Barber, and Dr. Cary Middlecoff.

Meanwhile, J. Emile Collette, honorary president of the Canadian PGA, revealed that members of the Canadian team will be Stan Leonard of Vancouver; Jules Huot Montreal; Pat Fletcher, Sarnia; Al Balding, Kitchener; Bill Kerr, Montreal; Gordon Brydson, Toronto and Dick Borzwick, Hamilton.

The only change from last year's team is the selection of Balding to replace South African Locke, who competed as a member of the Canadian team in the three matches to date, Collette said. Locke is an honorary member of the CPGA.

The matches will be played at the La Jolla Country Club, near San Diego, Calif., Jan. 18 and 19. The Canadian team is decided on a points basis, over a list of tournaments outlined by the CPGA. The points at stake vary with the tournament.

Move May Price Hamilton Out Of Big Four

HAMILTON (CP)—Frank Bliss, former president of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Wednesday blasted Toronto Argonauts' proposed purchase of $150,000 for American import Ted Collins as a move that may price Hamilton out of the Big Four Football Union.

"Such unlimited, unlimited and wide-open bidding for a hand-picked team is out of the question for us," Bliss said. "We might as well face facts. We're just not in that league."

Bliss, now Tiger publicist, said the club's financial statement for 1954 is not yet complete but he doubted Hamilton would have broken even this year without added revenue from television rights.

"There were complaints at Civic Stadium here at almost every game," he added. "We even sold 3,500 seats for two games but only 50 cents each to high school students. Money talks and they can't put us over the top."

Bliss said Ticats are also along with the policy of keeping the payroll down by shopping for "unknowns."

"Coach Carl Voyles has done a tremendous job of giving us a good team out of players who had been classified as 'unknowns,'" he said. "We've been able to beat the other clubs in the league right down to the wire with those players."

Bliss also deplored the wholesale flirting of all imports on the 1954 Argonaut club.

"It was definitely the wrong thing to do," he commented. "Letting the boys go that way will give the club a bad name in the United States and make it tougher for our coaches to obtain first class players for Canadian football. This is a matter which discredits the whole league and Canadian football."

WILL PAY FARMER

TOKYO (Reuters)—The United States Air Force will pay $1,000 "emergency relief" to a Japanese farmer Kumataro Wakuta, whose house was destroyed by a stray falling B-29 reconnaissance plane shot down by Russian MIG fighters last month, it was announced today.

Springfield Fans View Wildest Game in Years

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After the brawl was over, the Springfield Indians held first place today in the American Hockey League fund dropped the Pittsburgh Hornets into a second place tie with the Hershey Bears.

Springfield fans witnessed one of the wildest games in years Wednesday night as the Indians defeated the Cleveland Barons 9-8. Frank Udvart called 17 penalties adding up to 60 minutes in the first 20 minutes of play.

There also was a free-for-all involving four players in the second period at Hershey where the Bears clobbered the Cleveland Barons 9-4 and moved into a second place deadlock with the Hornets, both with identical Springfield. Hershey scored three goals in each period.

Springfield's Ross Lowe led the penalty box parade in the scoreless first period. He received two five-minute majors for fighting, two minors, and a 10-minute misconduct. Lowe was penalized for having a pair of majors in one period. Lowe was penalized again in the final stanza for a total of 25 minutes, but managed to score one goal and assist in two others before being thumbed off.

Trabert, Seixas Give States 2-0 Lead in Tennis

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas swept the United States into a 2-0 lead over Sweden today in the interzone final for the right to challenge Australia for the coveted Davis Cup—symbol of world tennis supremacy.

Tow-headed Tony, his booming game drawing admiring applause from the packed stands of the Milton courts, blasted Sven Davidson 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, while Seixas, the American champion, outhustled Lennart Bergelin 5-7, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Now Seixas and Trabert seek only win the doubles Friday or one of the remaining singles tests on Saturday to take the best-of-five set and meet Australia for the challenge round two weeks hence. Trabert and Seixas are expected as perhaps the best doubles combination in amateur tennis, so it will come as a distinct surprise if they don't whip the Davidson-Bergelin match.

Although Davidson bowed in straight sets, the match was close most of the action. But by no match for Tony. His lacked confidence, in his strokes and that hurt, even.

Trabert was all confidence from the time he stepped on the rain-soaked turf for the first match-point of the match. Davidson was the other hand, was nervous all the way and refused to gamble. What puzzled the schlock crowd of 7,000 was the way a reluctant to rush the net behind his service. But he got going with Trabert's booming drives when he stayed back at the baseline. But when he dashed in he was met by met with some success.

Trabert's service was a key one in the American plans for it was felt here that if he dropped his opening match, the Swedes would get a psychological lift and start the second singles test with the confidence that the experts were muttering about an upset.

But Tony was superb. The rain didn't bother him. The spikes on his service shoes kept him from locked as at home as a duck in the miserable drizzle.

Seixas likewise had a long, drawn-out struggle with Bergelin, who thought perhaps that Vic thought. But Bergelin did what his partner didn't do—he rushed the net and put the Swedish crowd blunted Seixas, himself an attacker of the old school.

In the final analysis, Seixas, who has looked his sharpest in recent weeks, simply was the better tennis player. Bergelin has been looking good, but his T3 practice—sets, he didn't lost one.

Seixas actually had the American cause in jeopardy at one time as wits when he dropped the first set to Bergelin, however, came back in superb fashion in the second set and from that point on, the match was all his.

Bobby Deakin Of London Majors Signs With Yanks

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Bobby Deakin, shortstop with the London Majors in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League, celebrated his 20th birthday Wednesday by signing with the New York Yankees of the American League.

Bobby has signed here by Frank (Blackie) O'Rourke, former major league player now a Yankee scout.

O'Rourke said Deakin will be farmed out to Binghamton, N.Y., of the double A Southern League for seasoning. He's scheduled to report to camp in Florida, training camp early in March.

The Yankee scout, a shortstop and a second baseman badly, and I think Bobby has all the potentialities required for a future major league career," O'Rourke said.

Deakin batted 219 in 61 games with the Majors last season.

CAMPBELLFORD

Firemen Fight Stubborn Blaze In Wall Section

CAMPBELLFORD. — Firemen here spent a considerable time fighting a stubborn fire at the home of William Soarr on Centre Street last night. The fire burned through a section of the wall of the house near the roof, adjacent to the chimney. Part of the wall had to be chopped away by firemen to enable them to get at the heart of the blaze.

Occupants of the house said the chimney had been on fire earlier in the day, but they had thought the fire had burned itself out. Apparently the fire smouldered until about 6 p.m. when children noticed sparks falling fro mthe area around the chimney.

Damage was confined to a few square feet at the top rear of the frame building. The inside of the house was not damaged.

CAMPBELLFORD

42 Years of HEPC Service Marked By Presentation

CAMPBELLFORD — A retirement party was held on Saturday night for Harold C. (Mac) MacElrath, who has completed 42 years of service with the HEPC.

Mac started his career in 1912 with the Seymour Power Company at the plant which is now No. 11 powerhouse in the Trent System. The plant and the company were taken over by Ontario Hydro in 1910. Previously, he served at Sidney terminal as a load dispatcher, and later, in Belleville in the same capacity. For the past 12 years he has served as assistant to the operations superintendent.

100 ATTEND

More than 100 fellow employees from all parts of the district were on hand for the party. Vic Wilson, of Hydro power supervision staff, who worked with Mac at the old Seymour plant from 1912 to 1916, was present. Other associates from Toronto, who at various times worked with Mr. MacElrath, as well as representatives from the operating staff at Shawinvilles, Fenelon Falls, Lakefield, Peterborough, Trenton, Frankford and Campbellford, along with representatives from various departments in Belleville were present.

Ed. Capelick, operations supervisor, acted as toastmaster.

A close associate of Mr. MacElrath, Osborne Waldorf, presented him with a purse of money. The group enjoyed a turkey dinner, and much of the credit for the success of the evening goes to Ernie Sutton, load supervisor of Belleville, who did most of the work in organizing the party.

CHINESE REDS MADE MACKENZIE SIGN LIE

Hammarskjold Accepts Chou's Offer To Confer

Does Not Prove Chinese Ready to Talk About Fliers

Certificate Man Is Drunk Wins Acquittal

HEREFORD, England (AP) Police charged Charles Finlayson Hunter, 74, with drunken driving. To support their case in magistrate's court Thursday, they submitted results of a handwriting test on Hunter, and a doctor's certificate that he was incapable of driving.

The magistrate decided Hunter's writing was better than the doctor's. Case dismissed.

MacKenzie Says Another Airman Captive of Reds

OTTAWA (CP) — Sqdn. Ldr. Andy MacKenzie today disclosed that Col. Edwin Heller of Philadelphia is a prisoner of the Chinese Communists. This brings to 15 the number of United States airmen known to be in Red captivity.

The recently-released RCAF officer told a press conference Col. Heller was "severely" injured when shot down during the Korean war and that he is in Communist hospital.

Col. Heller is expected to join the other American air force officers who were with Sqdn. Ldr. MacKenzie in a Communist prison camp at Mukden in northeast China.

The names of the four officers disclosed by MacKenzie are in addition to 11 U.S. airmen already known to be imprisoned by the Red Chinese.

Sqdn. Ldr. MacKenzie said three U. S. fliers with whom he had been imprisoned for a year are in good physical condition and apparently are in correspondence with their families.

He said the Chinese Communists told the American prisoners they will be released when the United States' attitude towards China becomes more favorable.

Robber Snatches $3,000 Payroll

TORONTO (CP) — A well-dressed, hatless man, who held a handkerchief over his face, today snatched a $3,000 payroll from the hands of a girl laundry clerk.

Maureen Keegan, 22, was returning from the bank with a man who lay in wait between two buildings, sprang at her from behind as she neared the laundry.

The man jerked the money bag from her hands and fled through a public school yard to a waiting car. Police cruisers in the area soon did not find the getaway car.

Before the holdup man fled, Miss Keegan said she managed to get a good look at him when he lowered his handkerchief.

WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Today morning downed clear and over most of Ontario. Increasing cloudiness across southern Ontario this afternoon with the approach of a low pressure area from the central states. Rowe, in North in southwestern Ontario about noon, will spread northward reaching Georgian Bay district by this evening. Rain will by mixed with snow in southwestern counties late this afternoon and evening, but colder air from the north central areas will change the precipitation back to snowflurries early Saturday morning. Saturday will be mostly cloudy in all regions with afternoon temperatures near or below freezing.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold today accepted an invitation for face-to-face talks with Red China's Chou En-lai in Peiping.

The secretary-general acted less than four hours after he had received a cable from the Chinese Communist premier saying Hammarskjold would be welcome if he wished to discuss questions related to world peace and international tension.

Although Chou did not agree to discuss the 11 American fliers jailed as spies, Hammarskjold was understood to feel such talks had not been ruled out. For this reason, he accepted, without delay.

The date of Hammarskjold's departure for Peiping and for the talks was not fixed, but the secretary-general intended to go as soon as arrangements can be worked out.

The invitation was in reply to a message sent to the Chinese Communist premier last Friday asking for a personal meeting to discuss the American fliers.

The UN General Assembly, meanwhile, prepared to close its 1954 session today with final action on two Cold War items and three colonial issues. Delegates planned to stay in session throughout the day and perhaps into the night in order to wind up.

Assembly debate was expected to be brief on Russia's charges of American aggression against Red China, which failed to get Communist approval. The Cyprus, Morocco and Tunisia items—each have generated little heat so far—also were expected to be disposed of quickly.

HINTS ENCOURAGE

UN officials were encouraged by hints from Peiping radio that the Communists might be willing to exchange the airmen for 35 Chinese students detained in the United States since Red China entered the Korean War. State department officials said the 35 have not been allowed to go home because they would be useful to the U.S. that might be useful to the Communists.

(In Boston, four Chinese research students issued a statement Thursday night saying they believed they were among the 35 and that their desire to go home, "far from being 'Communist subterfuge,' is, in fact, a very human one. It cannot be reunited with our families who are suffering by our absence.")

Detention by Police at Vancouver Of Newspaper Cameraman Protested

VANCOUVER (CP)—The case of a newspaper photographer, detained by police for taking a picture against orders, was in the hands of Mayor Fred Hume today.

The mayor, who declined direct comment, said he had asked police chief Walter Mulligan for a full report on the incident which occurred when Vancouver Province photographer Bob Olsen was taken to police headquarters Wednesday night.

Olsen was detained for shooting a picture of a holdup suspect after police had ordered him not to.

Meanwhile, three more police lined up on opposite sides in the incident.

Chief Mulligan said he would recommend a charge be laid against Olsen. Province publisher A. W. Moscarella said "so far as the Province knows, this is the first time in the history of Vancouver that a news photographer has been arrested in the course of his routine duties."

Olsen slipped his film to an accompanying reporter. The picture was published by both Vancouver afternoon newspapers, with the suspect's face blanked out.

Mr. Moscarella, who asked police for an apology for his employee and his paper, said "the charge that the taking of such a picture interferes with or obstructs police in any way is, in our opinion, absurd, the interference, entirely unjustified, on the part of the police officer."

Superintendent Peter Lamont said the police are obliged "to teach the press a lesson."

"When we ask the press not to take a picture, we expect them to do it," he said.

The chief said "regardless of the warning, the photographer took the picture. To my mind this was definitely an obstruction of the police in the execution of their duty and it is my opinion that a charge should be laid against this police photographer." He also said he had asked the city prosecutor to investigate the case.

R. J. Moore, president of the Newsmen's Club of B. C., termed the police action "unwarranted interference with a newspaper man doing his job of keeping the public informed."

Third Woman Is Attacked At Toronto

Was Seized by Arm But Made Her Escape

TORONTO (CP) — Police revealed today a young mother of two children was molested Wednesday in the same downtown area where another woman was chased by a rope-wielding man who threatened to kill her.

The latest attack reported this week in the downtown area.

Mrs. Norma Kane, 21, told police she escaped when a man who grabbed her slipped on the icy sidewalk.

Police said the attack occurred about an hour after expected mother Mrs. Jean Ellis, 21, escaped from a man who followed her home from work.

ARM SEIZED

"I saw the man following me on the opposite side of the street," Mrs. Hutton said. "When he crossed over I started to walk faster."

"Suddenly I was seized by the arm by both hands. He grabbed me. I got up and ran.

"I looked back and the man was trying to take after me but he kept slipping on the icy sidewalk and finally gave up."

Mrs. Hutton described her attacker as a middle-aged man with sharp features, a long nose and square jaw.

Meanwhile, a wave of nervousness over the recent attacks on women has put many men on the spot.

They could be accused of being "the stranger," one policeman said Thursday as officers continued to check the attackers.

MANY REPORTS

The wave of hysteria started all over a "stranger" reports, police said. All have been false; many just imagination.

Here are a few the cops ran down:

One woman saw the "stranger" following her along the street in a car. He turned out to be a motorist trying to find a parking space.

Another woman screamed when she saw the "stranger" following her along the street. He was her next-door neighbor.

CALL FOR HELP

A third called for help when the "stranger" ran at her from a dark doorway. He was running for a streetcar.

Police have sent extra patrols in their bid to stop the attacks, which started three months ago in the downtown area.

LONG SEPARATION

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A 45-year-old Atlanta woman is seeking a divorce after a separation she says Sunday night saying they believed they were among the 35 and that their desire to go home, "far from being 'Communist subterfuge,' is, in fact, a very human one. It cannot be reunited with our families who are suffering by our absence.")

TO REPLACE SEEING-EYE DOGS

Dr. Clifford M. Witcher, a blind research scientist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge, Mass., predicted that within four years a new radar-like instrument may replace guide dogs to aid the sightless. Dr. Witcher is shown with his instrument which he mentioned almost something like a large camera which transmits two beams forward to detect steps down and obstacles in the path of the blind person. The "travel aid" will have to be handled similarly to the possession of a Seeing-Eye dog. (Central Press Canadian).

Police Recover Two Bodies From Car in Cataraqui River

KINGSTON (CP) — Two bodies were recovered when a car which early today turned into the Cataraqui river was dragged from the water.

A diver who examined the wreckage earlier reported there were four bodies in the vehicle. He said later he saw so many arms and legs in the mark, he became confused.

Police said one of the bodies was dressed in an army uniform. They refused to release names until next of kin have been notified. The car was a late model sedan.

Clifford Heastip of Belleville said he was driving behind the car on No. 2 highway when it apparently went out of control making a turn and crashed through the causeway guard rail into the river.

He said it had passed him several times previously and was weaving along the road as it neared the causeway.

The car struck some twice when police attempted to haul it from some 15 feet of water with a tow truck hook and cable.

Police said they now plan to use a barge to lift the car free.

A Kingston photographer, George Lilley, said the car passed him shortly before it crashed.

"It must have been doing 80 miles an hour when it went over a double white line to pass me on a small incline," he said.

"Its tail lights disappeared on a slight curve to the Lasalle causeway over the harbor. As I came around the curve myself I saw the car still there, take out a hand bridge rail and sail at least 50 feet through the air. It landed in 15 feet of water.

"I managed to flag down a couple of cars. One of them got the police."

Reds May Harden Attitude Toward West Early in 1955

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia may harden its attitude toward the West again early next year, but such a switch would not necessarily reduce the chances which now appear to exist for improving basic contacts between Moscow and the Free World.

It would tend, however, to increase tensions a little and to show more clearly the essentially antagonistic nature of Communist policy toward non - Communist countries.

These views are held by responsible Washington officials, some of them highly placed. The views are speculative, but based on several considerations, including:

1. An assumption that Russia's clogging of "peaceful coexistence" during the last year has been aimed primarily at lulling west European countries into relaxation, and thereby blocking the rearmament of West Germany.

2. The assumption further that, despite Russia's efforts, both France and Germany will ratify the pending agreements under which West Germany would be armed and made a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, by mid-January.

3. A belief that some degree of flexibility toward the outside world is necessary to justify to people Premier Georgi Malenkov's heavy burdens and restraints imposed on them. This is assumed to apply to Foreign Minister Molotov and Red China.

Final European action on ratification of the various agreements on Germany is expected early next year. After that there may be a Big Four foreign ministers' meeting. French Premier Pierre Mendes-France has suggested one, for May.

The Russians have always shown considerable flexibility — even in the days of Stalin, when they were more rigid than they are now. They have used sweet talk and threats alternately to induce other countries to yield to Soviet purposes.

What the situation seems to come down to is that Russia does not want war, but if it clearly fails to gain its major Germah objective by soft talk, it may well revert to a tougher political and propaganda line in the hope that this will achieve at least an intimidating effect in the West.

Stars in Movie, Finds His Role Costs Him Money

BALTIMORE (AP) — F. Albert Glombowski, 64, was the unwitting star of a movie during the trial of his suit against the Baltimore Transit Co.

Glombowski, an auto repair man, sued the company for $100,000. He claimed that "permanent injuries" suffered when his car was hit by a BTC bus made it impossible for him to do "laborious work."

During the trial, defence lawyers filmed movies secretly of Glombowski at work carrying a heavy auto battery, crawling under an auto and bending over an engine.

The plaintiff apparently did not know the films were made.

The jurors scaled Glombowski's demands down to an award of $6,000.

NATO Council Adopts New Defence Plan

Agreement Is Reached On Way to Use A-Bombs

PARIS (AP)—Leaders of the Free World today adopted a new defence strategy based on use of atomic firepower, and agreed on the way new weapons can be used in the event of an attack by the Communist bloc.

The formula, defence and finance ministers of the 14 North Atlantic Treaty powers set the rule of thumb: weapons during a tightly closed session. They promised a communique on their decision later today, or Saturday.

After adoption of defence plans drafted by the chiefs of staff of NATO members, giving nuclear firepower a place in NATO's "new look" arsenal, the minister ex closed most of their advisers from the closed meeting. Then they took up the controversial question of when can decide on a resort to atomic arms—military men or their governments.

No immediate word on this discussion leaked out, and NATO press officials would say only that the ministers had reached agreement.

Britain, France, the United States and Canada were reported pushing a compromise solution which would put the final decision in the hands of the member governments but at the same time would not tie NATO's hands with any red tape needed for consultations in emergencies.

Explosion Rips Glass Factory, $175,000 Fire

TORONTO (CP)—An explosion ripped an east-end glass company building early today starting a fire that caused an estimated $175,000 damage. No one was injured.

More than 60 firemen, many wearing oxygen masks, fought the blaze for three hours.

The explosion blew out several windows in the shipping room and spread quickly. At one time, a school and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation warehouse were threatened.

The company, owned by J. Johns Glass Co.—manufactures scientific and lighting glass.

Flames shot more than 100 feet in the air after an explosion ripped the plant as firemen arrived.

Eleven fire trucks were used in the fight. Firemen said paints and lacquers fed the flames and caused repeated explosions. The bright red glare of the fire could be seen blocks away.

British Bomber Crashes in Sea

FALMOUTH, England (Reuters) A four-engined RAF bomber with seven aboard crashed at sea off of the southwest tip of England Thursday night.

Ships and planes patrolled the area today on the watch for survivors. A naval vessel recovered one body.

A Dutch ship reported seeing a spout of flame during the night some miles off the extreme southwest tip of England, Land's End.

French Assembly Votes Against Postponing Debate on Rearmament

PARIS (CP) — The French National Assembly tonight voted 400 to 102 against a proposal to postpone indefinitely the ratification debate on the German rearmament treaties.

The vote means the assembly will begin debating the French treaties Monday as suggested by Premier Mendes-France.

The move to delay start of the debate was led by opponents of the treaty to return West Germany to the Western defence alliance.

Was 'No Way Out' So He 'Confessed' Flight Over China

No Physical Violence Used, But He Expected to Die

OTTAWA (CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. Andy MacKenzie of Montreal was induced under pressure by the Chinese Communists to sign a statement saying he was shot down in the Korean war two years ago while invading Chinese territory.

This was disclosed in a joint statement issued today by the departments of national defence and external affairs, which also contained a report of the Reds' treatment of the 34-year-old RCAF fighter ace from the time he was shot down Dec. 5, 1952, to his release two years later.

FIRST REFUSED

The statement said MacKenzie first refused to make any admissions sought by his Chinese captors, and then:

"In March, 1954, after one year and four months under the pressures of solitary confinement, insistent questioning and direction, he finally was induced to sign a statement which he had been briefed to fly over China and had been shot down while invading Chinese air space, but had landed in North Korea."

The statement, issued during a press conference today, said the Canadian pilot, who was flying as an exchange officer with the United States Air Force, "was not briefed to fly over China and did not knowingly do so."

It added the Chinese interrogators originally sought to make MacKenzie admit he had landed in China after being shot down.

TOLD OF TALKS

But they did not follow this up after MacKenzie told them he had spoken to other prisoners in North Korean prisoner-of-war camps.

He was on his fourth mission when the Sabre fighter Interceptor Wing of the USAF was patrol over North Korea south of the Yalu River when his aircraft was riddled by enemy fire and he was forced to bail out from 40,000 feet.

The statement said he landed by parachute on the side of a steep hill about five miles south of the Sui Ho reservoir in North Korea, where he immediately surrounded and captured by Chinese Communists.

They were apprehended in the act by Provincial Constable Hooker, Chief Ranger Goodman and his deputy, Henry Taylor, all of Bancroft. Charges with theft under the Canadian Criminal Code, they were summoned to appear in Magistrate Jackson, were found guilty and sentenced accordingly. Recognize 25 Years' Service By Presentation of Buttons

A quarter of a century services with the Canadian National Railways and as members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees was recognized this week in Belleville when nine members of the organization were presented with twenty-five year emblem buttons.

Presentation of the buttons was made by Herb. W. Pulmer, financial secretary of the "Quinte" Division No. 126, at a brotherhood meeting held at the Engineers' Hall on Pine street. Claude Finnigan, branch president, presided over the meeting.

The buttons were presented as a token of appreciation to the brothers' loyalty, unstinted cooperation and support of the Brotherhood for over a quarter of a century.

It was noted that men receiving the pins had become members of the Brotherhood at a time, when membership in a union meant struggle, sacrifice and courage. Their acceptance and continuation of membership for the past 25 years has proven that they had all these prerequisites, coupled with the unswerving loyalty to the principles for which the Brotherhood stands." The letter from the Brotherhood headquarters stated.

Northern Electric Holds Christmas Party

The Northern Electric Club held their annual Children's Christmas party at the Belleville Armouries last Saturday afternoon with approximately 875 children in attendance.

Jolly old St. Nick himself was the guest of honor, making his appearance in the middle of the party with plenty of gifts for everyone.

The entertainment was supplied by Bill Slater, acting as master of ceremonies. His committee consisted of George Garrow, Tiny Johns, Walt Turner, Jim Lynch, Bob Pearce and Earl Vandervoort with Chuck Collins on drums and Ralph Beasley at the piano. Candy, ice cream and soft drinks were supplied by all.

Bill Cory was the entertainment chairman, assisted by Bob Tanner, Stewart Robb, Fred Fisher, Edna Lalonde, Florence Carter, Charlie Marsh, Mickey Garrow and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Baverstock.

Short speeches were made by "Bud" Punchard manager of the Belleville plant, and Bob Little, president of the Northern Electric club.

Christmas Seal Campaign Vital In War on TB

The sign of the double-barred cross is a familiar one at Christmastime. But it cannot be too familiar.

The cross is the crusading emblem of the fight against tuberculosis and appears on the Christmas Seals, used in the intensive annual campaign to raise funds for the prevention of the disease.

By purchasing the seals and affixing them to letters and gift packages you send the message of this double-barred cross into many homes. More important, you are directly helping to fight tuberculosis.

Now sold in practically every city in the western hemisphere, the seals were first introduced in Denmark in 1904, when a Copenhagen postal clerk originated the idea. They were first sold in Canada in 1908. In 1927 the Christmas Seal Sale was placed on a nationwide basis. Although the campaign is in action right across the nation the money raised is spent in the area where it is contributed.

In this area it is the Hastings TB Association that will benefit from your purchases of the Christmas Seals.

Tuberculosis is older than modern man. Among skeletons of Neolithic men unearthed in Germany was one of a young man whose spine showed that 6,000 years ago the disease already was preying on mankind. Men have long been aware of the existence of the disease, as references to it can be found in the writing of the ancients.

However, it was not until 1882, with the discovery of the tubercle bacillus that the modern fight against the disease began.

Some years later, in 1897, Canada built its first hospital for treatment of tuberculosis patients at Muskoka. Free treatment for tuberculosis was launched by the province of Saskatchewan in 1929.

Now, six of the nation's provinces have such free treatment by statute.

But the prevention of the disease as well as the treating of it is of vital importance. This is the role which the Hastings TB Association plays in this area, by of vital importance to that association is financial support. That is where your purchasing of Christmas Seals comes in.

Alec W. Lacey Dies Suddenly On Way to Work

While proceeding to his work early this Friday morning, Alec William Lacey, 135 Wellington street, assistant superintendent of the filtration plant, suffered a heart seizure and died before medical aid could be summoned.

In the death of Mr. Lacey the city has lost an outstanding citizen and one, who during his 34 years of residence has taken an active part in the military, social and sporting life of the community. Mr. Lacey spent most of his active life in the army and at one time after the Second World War was Regimental Sergeant Major of the Hasty Pegs and the old A.L.I., and Anti Tank regiment.

He enlisted in the First World War in 1915 with the 5th Field Company of the Royal Canadian Engineers and served overseas until the end of hostilities. On discharge from active service Mr. Lacey took an active interest in the militia and joined the A.L.I. afterwards transferring to the Anti Tank regiment. He rose rapidly through the ranks and was honored by his regiment by being made R.S.M., which is the highest N.C.O. rank in the regiment. He was always held in high esteem both by the men and his officers.

HONORED BY REGIMENT

In February of 1939, Mr. Lacey was honored by his regiment for 12 years of military service, the medal being pinned on by Lt.-Col. G. W. McGregor. Not only did he take an interest in the regimental life, he also was active in the work of the Sergeants' Mess and served as president for a couple of terms. For some time after discharge he went into partnership with Paul Ribbard as an electrician but in May of 1937, he joined the Filtration plant and his devotion to duty obtained for him the assistant superintendent's position.

The late Mr. Lacey was born in England 53 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Lacey, of Kingston. He came to the country as a young boy and has resided in Belleville for 34 years. He formerly resided in Kingston with his parents. Mr. Lacey was a member of the United Church and is survived by his wife, the former Marie Brook, residing at the family residence, 135 Wellington street, and one daughter, Mrs. Joanne Burnett, at Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Lacey was a member of the Belleville Curling Club and Kiwanis Club.

He bade no one his last farewell
He spoke not one word
The heavenly gates were opened
during voice and farewell
I often sit and think of you
The things you used to do
Sometimes we had to die
Without a chance to say good-bye.
So dear, dad, we loved you well
Still missed, still loved, still mine.
You'll live with me in memory
Until the end of time.

Beautiful memories are all we have left
Of him we loved dearly and shall never forget
His loving smile and happy face
A broken heart, we never replaced
Sad was the parting, no one can tell
So silent with the pain we suffer still.
Memories, we treasure, no one can steal.
Dearest dad, you left us nothing can beat

But all I can do, dear mother,
Is pray that you have a mother,
Cherish her with care
That you never know her value
For you see her vacant chair.
Eyes that shed tears for you so often
And sighs that no one will hear
Thoughts of you are always with us
Dear mother, always dear.

Fire Department Banquet Enjoyed by All Present

The banquet of the Belleville Fire Department, headed by Fire Chief Gerald Vance, for civic officials, members of council and special guests, held last night at the Moira Street West fireball, was one of the best ever staged by that organization. The Fire Chief was chairman and master of ceremonies and explained in his opening address that the department for 364 days was run by the council and civic officials but on this night, the department ran the show.

A most delicious turkey dinner with all the trimmings, plus homemade pies, prepared by the wives and friends of the department, was thoroughly enjoyed by the 73 who attended and during the course of the meal, good natured banter, swept up and down the tables. The firemen, who prepared the dinner, are to be congratulated on their efforts.

THREE PRESENTATIONS

Three presentations were made during the evening. Deputy Fire Chief Frank Orr, who is retiring at the end of the year after 44 years of service, none absent with the volunteer brigade, was presented with a wallet and sum of money by Captain Gerald O'Brien. Mr. Orr was thanked for his long and faithful service, and he replied, "that it had been a pleasure to be associated with a fine body of men for so many years." He also thanked the many members of council and officials who bore with him through the years.

John Browning, president-elect of the Firefighters Association, presented the retiring chairman of the fire committee of council, Alderman Angus Duffy, with an ash stand, stating the department was losing one of the best chairmen the brigade ever had.

Alderman Duffy, taken by surprise by the gift, thanked the brigade most sincerely for their gift and paid tribute to their loyalty, devotion and efficiency. He stated he was glad to have had a part in bringing the brigade to the high standard that it enjoys in this community and over the province. "It has been hard work, but it was worth the labor," said the alderman.

MONEY DONATED TO FUND

Another presentation, much appreciated by the department was the gift of $100 from the CNRAA for the Firemen's Crippled Children's Fund. The address was given by George Foster, president of the Association, and the money was presented by Larry Biron, chairman of finance for the organization. Mr. Foster thanked the firemen for their interest in children and the work they have done at the playgrounds and organizing the Santa Claus parade. As everyone knows Harry the Horse is buried on the grounds owned by Dr. J. R. Scott, just north of the city, and Jack Devine, on behalf of all the regulars at the banquet, presented the doctor with a large, hard head, suitably inscribed, "In the memory of Harry the Horse." Dr. Scott stated that the headstone would be placed in its proper location.

After the presentation of the $100 to the fund, Ald. Bruce Smith suggested that each person at the banquet, contribute a "buck" for the fund and Harold Myers, collecting the money, announced a total of $96. This was added to by several cheques and the firemen now have working capital to carry out several projects they have in mind.

SPEECHES KEPT TO MINIMUM

By order of the chairman, the speeches were kept to a minimum and Mayor John Both led off with special thanks to the department for their interest and carrying out the Santa Claus parade, which he stated was one of the best ever, given in this section of the province. He thanked the department for the co-operation shown to him during his year's term of office. Warden Fred Mitchell, Reeve Harry Morrow of Sidney township; Percy Moore of Tyendinaga township; Frank Follwell, M.P., Elmer Sandercock, MPP; Alderman Claude D. Ties, deputy chairman of the Fire Committee; Ald. H. J. Clarke, chairman of finance; H. D. Bateman, clerk-comptroller; Aldermen Don Thomas, Robert A. Temple, William Argue, Robert Pringle, city solicitor, and Harry Rollins, chairman of the P.U.C. George Fontaine gave a recitation that rocked the assembly with laughter.

At the conclusion of the dinner and addresses a social time was enjoyed.

THE SCHOOL TAX QUESTION

Hastings County Council last week quickly turned down a proposal that owners of summer cottages should not be required to pay school taxes on these properties.

We think the Hastings County Council was right—not because school taxes on summer cottages are fair but because to grant relief to cottage owners would be to set a segment of the many accord special treatment to only a segment of the many property owners who are shouldering the burden of an inequitable method of taxation.

A strong case can be made out for exempting summer cottages from school taxes. The problem is not confined to Hastings County, but is common to the many sections of Ontario where there are large summer colonies.

The Owen Sound Sun-Times, for instance, criticizes the Hastings County Council's decision. "Summer cottages and (resort) businesses are of such a nature that they will never present demands upon the school facilities in the district in which they exist," says the Sun-Times.

This is true. It is also true, however, that there are many other types of property which will never be used as the homes for children and which therefore "never present demands upon the school facilities." Factories do not produce children. Nor do stores. If it be pleaded that people who work in factories and stores have children, it is equally true that people who play at summer cottages have children, too.

If it be argued that the cottages have children, too, that summer cottages go to school elsewhere than in the district where the cottages are located, it is equally true that many cases the stores and factories where people work are not in the same municipality as that in which they reside.

William Davis, reeve of the townships of McClure, Wicklow and Bangor in North Hastings, made an interesting point. He said that he had been criticized for opening roads around lakes in his municipality, for the convenience of summer residents. He argued that this unfairly makes such a special relief to cottage owners should not make such a special relief to cottage owners should not make such a special relief to cottage owners should not make

$652,000 Expansion Program To Filtration Plant Urged

Belleville water users will be faced with sharply increased rates to pay for completion of the present filtration plant if the demands of a growing population are to be met.

This was indicated Thursday afternoon at the final meeting of the year of the local public utilities commissioners when a report recommending an expansion program costing an estimated $652,000 was read. The report was from consulting engineers Gore and Storrie of Toronto.

Expansion of the filtration plant to its ultimate capacity of eight million gallons per day would allow it to serve a population of 31,000 persons. Installation of domestic water meters which would serve to eliminate water waste, would increase the capacity to 36,000 persons. The plant now serves a population of about 24,000 people.

NEW STORAGE TANK PROPOSED

The expansion program would include the construction of additional re-pumping facilities, storage tanks installation of modern pressure pumps, construction of a new $30,000 ground storage tank and the installation of meters for all water users.

The installation of meters would have a two-fold purpose. It would place all users on an equitable basis whereby they would pay for the water used and by elimination of water waste would postpone the time when a new filtration plant would be required.

If the present population growth in the Belleville area continues, even with the proposed expansion program a new filtration plant would be necessary in about eight years, it was estimated. Installation of domestic meters and elimination of water waste would postpone the need for a new plant for an additional seven years.

$45,000 ANNUALLY

Debenture charges on the full expansion program bringing the present plant to its ultimate capacity would cost the utilities commission about $48,000 per year for 20 years, it was estimated.

That the matter of annexation was closely tied in with any expansion program for the filtration plant was evident from the concern of commissioners who felt that there should be some definite answer to the possibility of the city's boundaries being extended in the next few years.

Installation of master meters to measure water going to the rural areas was one of the problems. Cost of the four master meters required, plus installation, would be about $12,000. If annexation took place within one or two years most of this cost would be lost to the commission.

DELAYED INSTALLATION

Utilities manager O. H. Scott noted the commission had ordered installation of the master meters because of the uncertainty regarding annexation. At present water is sold to the rural areas on a unit price per 1,000 gallons calculated by the totals of meter readings in consumers' residences. Without the master meters the utilities did not get paid for wastage in the rural distribution system.

Mayor John Roth said he could not give a definite answer as to annexation. He voiced the opinion, however, that it would be financial suicide for the city to annex at this time without additional revenue to balance the load.

Commission members took prompt action on the engineer's recommendation calling for the installation of domestic water meters and passed a resolution calling for provision of a section in all new construction suitable to the commission for installation of water meters.

TAKE PROMPT ACTION

It was pointed out, however, that the large annexation programs had been undertaken by the cities of Brantford, Kingston and Peterborough. Commission chairman W. H. Rollins and Commissioner Sanford Lemmins said that these centres had not gone into annexation blindly.

Commission members took prompt action on their engineer's recommendation that all water users in the city be metered. They passed a resolution calling for the provision in all new construction, of a location suitable to the commission for the installation of meters.

It was noted that practically all city industrial plants and many commercial users were now metered but installation of domestic meters in the city was not expected to take place for another five years. Installation of the meters would cost an estimated $171,000.

SHOULD RETAIN ISLAND

The Zwick's Island area was suggested as the logical location for a new filtration plant when this move was found necessary and commission members were unanimous in their feeling that this property should never pass out of the city's hands. A recommendation to this effect was passed by the commission and will go forward to the city council.

Bert Wilkinson, employee of the city and of the utilities since 1910, will go on retirement at the end of the year. In consideration of his long service the commission voted him a pension of $125 per month, this to be reduced by the amount of the old age pension when he reaches 70 years of age. Mr. Wilkinson is now 65.

Council Votes Gift of $500 To Mayor Burtt

TRENTON (Special) — At a special meeting of council held to accept an investment firm's bid on the new $400,000 issue of town debentures, council voted Mayor Ross Burtt a gift of $500. The motion authorizing the payment to the mayor for service rendered in 1954 was moved by councillor Claude Graham and seconded by councillor D. J. MacDonald. The motion read: "That an honorarium of $500 for the year 1954 be paid to His Honor Mayor Ross Burtt as provided for in section 82 of the Municipal Act." Members of the press were not invited to the meeting.

Mayor Burtt now receives annual remuneration of $1,000 from various municipal offices. He is paid $200 a year as a member of the Public Utilities Commission and $250 yearly as a member of the Police Commission.

Trenton councillors receive no pay. However they are allowed to claim expenses. Town clerk O. W. Larry has received no claims for expenses from councillors so far this year.

BID ACCEPTED

Council decided to grant Mills, Spence Co. Ltd. of Toronto the debenture issue for school financing. Successful bid was $101.18 paid during early January for 30, 1955 to 1974 inclusive. These six interest in the tender for the bond issue shown by a number of investment firms indicates Trenton's financial structure is in a sound position.

Subject of numerous discussions, the agreement to purchase an oil burner and tanks from Imperial Oil was sanctioned with a stipulation that the wording regarding the purchase of Imperial Oil for the period one year be deleted from the agreement.

GOOD CARP CATCHES

Commercial fishermen find carp catches good at the west end of the Bay of Quinte. Yesterday a trio from Gosport lifted 400 pounds from special sized nets. They got enough to almost fill the back of a half ton pick-up truck. They got 12 cents a pound for carp on Toronto and Montreal markets.

SIDEWALK SHOW

NEW YORK (AP) — Christmas shoppers paused to gape Thursday as 20 tons of steel were hoisted 16 stories in a matter of 2 hours. A power crane with a 275-horsepower engine and eight men did the job of moving the metal to the 16th floor setback of the Picadilly Hotel in the Times Square area. A penthouse will be built atop the setback.

Woman Claims Someone Set Fire to Home

TRENTON, (Special.) — Mrs. Mae Snider picked through the charred ruins of her small brick bungalow today hoping to find some cause for the fire that destroyed her home last night. She talked to provincial police from Brighton and asked them to investigate. Sobbing she claimed that someone set fire to her home.

Mrs. Snider, a kitchen worker at a local hotel, lost all of her life possessions. A purse containing $15 Christmas savings went up in smoke.

Mrs. Snider who has been separated from her husband, Bill Snider, intended to take out insurance coverage on her house right after Christmas. She used every dollar to build the place and furnish it.

The fire spread rapidly as firemen from Trenton had difficulty in getting water to the flames. They laid a quarter of a mile of hose across the C.N.R. tracks. A freight train was delayed more than an hour.

Flames shooting high in the air scorched a garage nearby and threatened other houses in the vicinity. A hydro pole 40 feet away caught fire.

Mrs. Snider stepped out of her house with an armful of blankets for the occupants of a car trailer located on the property. Not much time elapsed before she noticed the fire. She called to men herself.

The house on Murray Street West, was just across the town line in Murray township.

TEA PARTY

The members of St. John's Guild held their Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. J. Exley, Bridge Street East, with the president in the chair and 16 members present.

Gifts were exchanged. After the meeting closed a tea party was held in honor of Mr. Exley's 82nd birthday.

The table was prettily trimmed with Yuletide decorations. Tea was served by Mrs. Babcock and Miss J. Reding.

Several visitors came in to tea.

G.T. Lanning Company Holds Christmas Party

The G. T. Lanning Company held its annual Christmas party at the Orange Hall on Saturday, with the employees, their wives, husbands and children in attendance.

A delightful turkey dinner was served to appreciative guests after which Santa arrived with gifts for all.

"Danny Boy" Smith provided the entertainment and amused both young and old with his acts of ventriloquism, magic tricks, and guitar playing. Danny also led the guests in a sing-song after the dinner.

Music for dancing was supplied by the Hart Brothers.

Acting as master of ceremonies was Mr. G. T. Lanning, who gave a vote of thanks to Mrs. Doris Luccioia and her committee for making the afternoon another Christmas party to remember.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Gladys Bryden, and Mr. Burnall Woods.

Women's Institute

IVANHOE W.I.

The Christmas meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wood, which was beautifully decorated with streamers and bells in the atmosphere of Christmas. There were 26 members and visitors in attendance.

The meeting was opened by the president. After the roll call each received an exchange of gifts.

The minutes were read also the correspondence and "thank-you" letters from the sick and shut-ins.

The president opened the program with a poem "The Beautiful Old Story," all then joined in the singing of Christmas carols.

Mrs. G. Wood gave an interesting reading on the subject, "It's not what you give, but what you share, for the gift without the giver is bare."

Mrs. J. McInroy, Mrs. Keith Birny, Mrs. Percy Downey, Mrs. Arthur Wood, Mrs. H. Benson and Mrs. W. Dennon gave an outline of the old established customs of the real joy of giving and sharing in different lands.

Mrs. J. McInroy presented all with a real interested "Tree" contest in poetry with Mrs. C. Mitts as winner.

The program was brought to a close with a contest "Christmas." Mrs. K. Birny received the prize for most words written from the letters in the word "Christmas".

The hostess and assistant hostesses served refreshments.

Tabernacle W.M.S. Presents Slate of Officers

The December meeting of the Tabernacle United Church Women's Missionary Society was held in the church parlors on Tuesday, with the president, Mrs. W. S. May in the chair.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. A. D. Archibald and consisted of Christmas hymns, the Bible story of the birth of Christ taken from Luke 2:1-20, read by Mrs. Fisher, and extracts from a sermon by Peter Marshall, "Let's Keep Christmas," which provided many worthwhile thoughts for Christians on their method of keeping Christmas in this day of hustle and bustle and the tendency to commercialize it. Mrs. Archibald led in prayer, then called on Mrs. Wilson who sang two solos, a German carol and an Austrian carol, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Duff.

Mrs. C. A. Moore gave a Christmas reading entitled "The Shepherd's Story."

Mrs. Archibald thanked Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Moore for their fine contributions to the service.

The treasurer announced that the givings for the year exceeded the allocation by a substantial sum, with still more to come, and it was decided to send in the surplus for the building advance fund.

Mrs. McKinnon, life member and active worker in W.M.S. work in Calgary, and who has recently moved to Bellville, was received as a new member and heartily welcomed.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

Mrs. Rowley was asked to take the chair to receive report of the nominating committee which was as follows: hon. president, Mrs. R. A. Rowley; past president Mrs. A. D. Archibald; president, Mrs. W. B. May; 1st vice-president, Mrs. A. D. Archibald; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. G. Strickland; recording secretary, Mrs. E. S. Frost; treasurer, Miss Myrtle Asher; Christian stewardship, Mrs. A. H. Fisher; temperance and citizenship, Mrs. T. Skegg; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Fraser Paul; associate helpers' secretary, Mrs. C. Hogle; community friendship, Mrs. G. F. Lent; supply secretary, Mrs. N. H. Hoble; literature secretary, Mrs. W. Baird; Missionary Monthly secretary, Mrs. F. Baird; press reporter, Mrs. E. S. Frost; pianists, Mrs. Duff, Mrs. Lent; social convener Mrs. S. Coon.

Mrs. Rowley led in prayer that the new officers would be guided and blessed in their work.

A vote of appreciation was extended to Mrs. May for her fine leadership and selfless devotion to her office during the years.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Clapp, Thurlow, Married 50 Years

A telegram from Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent was among the many messages of congratulation received this week by Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert D. Clapp, 3rd concession of Thurlow township, who on Tuesday celebrated their 50th anniversary of their marriage.

The happy couple was feted at the home of their son, Gordon, where a family anniversary dinner was held at noon. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Clapp were "at home" to a wide circle of community friends.

"I feel better today than I did 50 years ago," was the proud boast of the groom of 50 years as with Mrs. Clapp, he was about to sit down to a huge anniversary turkey dinner being served by his daughter-in-law, Ha and Mrs. Clapp have lived retired for the past 11 years.

NATIVE OF THURLOW

A native of Thurlow township, Mr. Clapp was born in the 4th concession only a mile or so from where he now makes his home and has lived all his life in the immediate area.

Mrs. Clapp is the former Bertha Simmons of Ardmoile.

Mr. Clapp chuckles as he recalls that he met his future wife, while attending a circus at nearby Bellevile. Miss Simmons had been visiting with friends living in Thurlow and the two families met on a trip to the circus.

"I took quite a notion to the strange girl visiting with the neighbors and six months later we were married," he said.

MARRIED AT CHAPMAN'S

The couple was married at Chapman's Corners at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Stephen Flake, and Mr. Clapp recalls hiring a team and sleigh "taxi" to take him to Chapman's for the ceremony. There was good sleighing on the way north but it turned mild during the day and hard ground slowed the trip back to Bellevile with result that the newly-married couple missed their train for Grand Rapids, Michigan, where they were to spend a three weeks' honeymoon.

Three years after their marriage they took up farming in the 3rd concession of Thurlow on the farm which their son, Gordon, now operates. Mr. and Mrs. Clapp quit active farming in 1938, continued living with their son for a few years and 11 years ago moved to their present home on the Station farm just a quarter of a mile away.

One of Mrs. Clapp's most prized possessions is a set of silverware received as a wedding present half a century ago. Today the silverware is "just as good as new," tribute to the quality of the manufacturer's goods 50 years ago, and also to Mrs. Clapp's care as a housewife.

PRAISES WIFE'S COOKING

And the groom of fifty years ago had a tribute for his wife's ability as a cook. "It was his wife's cooking plus her amiable companionship, which made him still feel young at 75," he said. Mr. and Mrs. Clapp are members of Bethany United Church, where they and their family have attended through the years.

Two members of Mr. Clapp's family, a brother, Clarence Clapp, of Bellevile, and a sister, Mrs. William White, of Valleyfield, Quebec were present at the family anniversary dinner. A second brother, Irvine Clapp, of Jersey City, New Jersey, was unable to be present.

The couple had a family of five sons, two of whom are living. One son, Gordon, now operates the farm, while the fourth son, Raymond, lives north of Bowmanville. There are ten grandchildren.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T MAKE IT OBVIOUS YOU WANT THIS CHAP BACK

Dear Miss fairfax:

I am 23, and heartbroken because the fellow to whom I was engaged has just broken off with me telling me there is someone else. He said he was still very fond of me, and I have a feeling he will come back eventually, particularly since he has not asked me to give back his ring.

His birthday is coming soon, and I would like to know if it would be all right if I sent him a card. Another thing I want to know is should I ask him to give me back the pictures I gave him of myself?

I have refused to go out on dates with any other fellows, because I feel I want to wait and see if my former fiancee will come back. Don't you think this is wise? — Helen Y.

Dear Helen:

There is no particular reason why you shouldn't send this young man a birthday card if you want to. But since he was the one who broke off the engagement, it seems to me a rather gentle and one that would look as though you were trying to get him back. Even though you may want to do this just that, at the same time, if you make it so obvious that you are angling for him, and waiting for him, it's more likely to send him further away than to bring him back. And it puts you in a rather undignified position, don't you think?

If the ring you speak of was an engagement ring, you should certainly return it, whether he has asked for it or not. But I'd forget all about the pictures, unless they are something you specially want to keep yourself. Don't ask for them just to dramatize your break.

As for going out with other young men, you are a very foolish girl if you refuse to do so for fear of what you think you're going to accomplish by staying home with your young man's former relationship? Your former boy friend is far more likely to be interested in you again if you don't go into retirement, but, instead, have just as many friends, and just as many active interests and good times, as you can.

HE GETS "MUSHY"—YOU CAN HANDLE IT

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I would like to know what to do if a boy gets too mushy This is a special boy that I like very much and I do not want to hurt his feelings.

I have a girl friend who also has a problem. She is in her early teens, and her parents won't let her go to dances, even when they are well chaperoned. All of the other girls are allowed to go to dances, and she feels very bad about it. — Marsha

Dear Marsha:

I think you can take care of the "mushy" business very easily If you don't make a big thing of it. Any time a boy starts to get that way, just say lightly: "Let's go and get something to eat" or something to do that would put both your minds on another subject and let it go at that. Don't let him draw you into an argument about it, or prolong the thing at all. If necessary, get up and start doing something else. If the boy really likes you, he'll fall in with your wishes.

As for your girl friend's problem, you might suggest to her that she talk to her mother of one of her best friends, asking her if she won't try to persuade her mother to let her go along with her other friends to a dance now and then. If your mother allows you to go, perhaps you and this girl might talk things over with your mother, and see what she could do to help. Sometimes, if one mother calls up another, asks her if she will let her daughter go along with her son to some social event, it works out well.

Christmas Concerts

HOLLOWAY STREET UNITED CHURCH

The Christmas concert of Holloway Street United Church Sunday School was held on two evenings; that of the beginners, kindergarten and primary classes on Friday of last week, and that of the junior, and intermediate classes on Tuesday evening of this week. The Reverend H. E. Lawson presided as chairman of the former, and Mr. Ronald Jones, superintendent of the Sunday School, of the latter. The church was most appropriately decorated with Christmas adornments and a tall, beautifully lighted Christmas tree, which formed a pleasing background for the program of both departments.

BEGINNERS PROGRAM

The program of the beginners, kindergarten and primary classes included a welcome by the class of Misses Carol Spafford, Sharon Trapnell and Nancy Bayley; a duet, "Jingle Bells", and "Away in a Manger," by Miss Betty Hambottom's class; songs by Miss Suzanne Severs' class; a recitation by Jimmy Plumpton; "Goodbye to Last Year's Toys", (Miss Sandra Outhgate's class); a solo by Janet Findlay; recitations by Bryson Sargeal and Gerry Dunton, and a song by David Templer, (Mrs. C. Templer's); carols "Jingle Bells" and "Rudolph, The Red Nosed Reindeer", by Miss Jean Draycotte's class; a pantomime by Jackie Vance and a Christmas story from St. Matthew 2, by Helen Smith, (Miss June Randerson's); and a song, "Christmas Bells", by Miss Lenore Wilkes' class.

This was followed by a pantomime by the class of Misses Marion and Sharon Areber, entitled, "The Manger Scene"; also a song, "Silent Night", by Linda Lucas, "Silent Night"; a recitation by Diane Dryden, from Miss H. Hewitry's class; and a "Welcome to Santa," by Mrs. Irma Jones' class, completed the first evening.

The Tuesday evening concert by the juniors, intermediates and senior classes began with, "O Come, All Ye Faithful," followed by a corset solo, "Rudolph, the Red Nosed Raindeer," by Wayne Spafford, (Mr. Alfred Hughes'); a chorus, "A Letter to Santa," by Miss Dorothy Harwood's class; a play, "Polly Puts the Pressed On," by the class of Miss Dorothy Craighead and Mrs. Marjorie Miller, also a chorus, "Star of the East"; a reading by Shirley Stoneman, and a corset solo, "Jingle Bells," by Wayne Spafford; a play, "Neighbor, Neighbors," by Mrs. Evelyn Alves's class; also a reading, "The Twenty-Sixth," by Helen Maynes; a chorus by Mr. Bill Campbell's and Mr. Doug Hole's class, "Silent Night"; a reading by Myrna Dickens, and a song, "Adore and Be Still," by Audrey Eigle; "A Manger Scene," "The Christmas Story according to St. Luke," by Mrs. Elfreda Vader's class; and a reading, "Vespers", by Jane Townsend, concluded two most interesting and enjoyable evenings.

Climaxing these events, was the arrival of Santa Claus who distributed treats to each child.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHAM

WHEN EMPLOYER GIVES CHRISTMAS PRESENT

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

(1) This is my first job, and I've worked in this office of a small manufacturing company since last March. The only other employee in the office is a girl who has worked here since last February. Our employer is a very kind and generous man, and the girl whose place I took, a friend of mine who got married told me he always gives the girls the girls in the office Christmas presents. If he does give us a Christmas present this year, would like to know if we should open it when he hands it to us. I think we shouldn't but the other girl thinks we should.

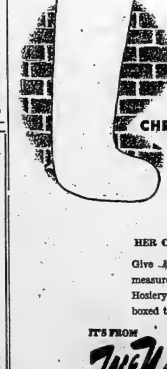
(2) Should we write him a thankyou note, even though we thank him at the time?

(3) Would it be proper for us to send him and his wife a Christmas card addressed to their home, or just a card addressed to him and sent to the office? — Maria and Joan.

(1) I agree with you that it's more graceful, easier, not to open the present when he hands it to you. Instead I suggest you say, for example, "Thank you, very much, Mr. Deeds. How good of you to give me a present. I'd like to keep it to put on my Christmas tree, to be opened on Christmas morning."

(2) Yes, you should each write a thankyou note to him. If only his name is written on the enclosed card, write your note to him and leave it on his desk. But if (as I think it may be) his wife's name is included on the card, write your note to both.

(3) Yes . . . send a card addressed to "Mr. and Mrs." at their home-address.



FAMILY TO TAKE CHRISTMAS PRESENT TO FAMILY

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Our daughter's engagement is to be announced on Saturday before Christmas Day. We have not met the parents of her fiance, although his two sisters and his only brother, but we will meet them at our home when they come for the small engagement-announcement dinner we are giving. When they wrote to accept this invitation they invited our family of five to come to spend Christmas Day with them. Since it will be Christmas Day, should we or should we not take something in the way of a present? If we should, what type of present do you suggest?

—M.W.L.

I think you should take some kind of present when you go on Christmas Day. And since it would be too much of a chore, I think, to choose individual presents for the members of his family you won't know very well, I suggest you take a family-present: a handsome, generous-sized box of candy, for example; a box of Christmas cookies, perhaps home-made; a box of crystallized fruits and or assorted nuts; a package or box of assorted hors d'oeuvres; or pates or pates or spreads; or a box of jars of various kinds of jams and jellies; spreads; or a box of jars of various kinds of jams and jellies.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

OUR MODERN MAMAS

There are many young girls who recognize the sterling qualities of their mothers, love them devotedly, but do not rush to show them off to their friends. When this happens it is usually because Mother is not smart with modern trends in dress, coiffures and make-up. A girl cannot take pride in a lady-parent who is more or less drab, whose nose shines, whose clothes are uninteresting and unbecoming, who has been wearing the same old hair-do for years.

A smart coiffure, a cleverly cut frock to slenderize the too plucky figure, a touch of lipstick and a careful choice of accessories will change such a matter into a woman of the moment instead of the past. This is a duty she owes herself as well as her family.

Many women spend time, labor and money giving their children everything possible to make them appear in the best possible light. They are forever hemming daughter's party dresses, pressing her clothes, laundering her finery but they are niggardly when buying or doing anything for themselves.

For the first time in the history of fashion, high school and college girls are an influence in promoting styles.

It must be remembered that it was the youngsters who chucked the steel-riveted corset back in 1918 or thereabouts.

It was the younger women who bobbed their hair. Some austere mothers thought short hair not quite respectable, but it wasn't long before they joined the short bandit. Let's give the kids credit for good judgment and good sense.

It often happens that daughter will have a keener dress sense than her mother. If that is the case Mama would do well to take daughter with her on shopping tours.

It is one of life's major ironies that the outside world grades us by external appearance, not by inner spiritual grace. That is particularly true of youth. Almost any child would rather have a mother who is pretty and up to date than a dowdy paragon of perfection.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

We have a wood range in our summer home where we spend every week-end. I've been baking Boston Baked Beans but something is lacking. Could you help?—Dorothy T.

ANSWER:

I have just acquired a new bean pot and am trying out various recipes preparatory to giving one in this column. Follows one that is a favorite:

BOSTON BAKED BEANS

Two cups white navy beans, 1-2 teaspoon baking soda, 1-4 lb. salt pork with rind on, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 cup molasses, 1 onion, boiling water, 2 tablespoons catsup are optional. Pick over beans and soak in cold water to cover overnight. Drain. Cover with fresh cold water to cover, add soda and simmer, covered, until tender. Turn into 2-quart bean pot. Wash and deeply gash the rind and bury it and the onion in the beans. Put salt, mustard, pepper and molasses into measuring cup and fill with boiling water, stir and mix, then pour over beans, adding boiling water to cover beans with liquid. Cover and bake 7 hours at 300 deg. Fahr. adding water to keep covered if needed. Uncover during last hour to brown pork and beans.

QUESTION:

. . . I have enjoyed many of your recipes . . . when lately the heading was about homemade whole wheat bread . . . I was pleased . . . my family does not like molasses . . . I never have milk substitute . . . I would like to use wheat germ . . . would you give a recipe for good healthful bread for a family of five? When I ask for whole wheat it is the germ all I can ever get is Graham flour. Is it the same thing? Could you tell me what brand of flour to get? I very like a recipe for a kind of bread that contains that can be used in place of sandwiches—just spread with butter . . . not date bread . . . my husband wants a sticky chocolate cake (not layer). —Mrs. H. F.

ANSWER:

I have mailed you the recipe which appeared December 1 with milk substituted for the reliquefied milk solid. It calls for honey—not molasses. I have told you what brands of whole wheat flour to ask for.

NOT BREAD

(Baking powder; part whole wheat.)

One cup unsifted whole wheat flour, 1 1-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup well-packed brown sugar, 1 1-3 cups sour or buttermilk, 2 tablespoons salad oil or melted butter, 3-4 cup chopped walnuts. Sift flour with baking powder, soda and salt and add whole wheat flour to them. Stir in until well blended all remaining ingredients. (If desired an egg may be added.) Pour into greased loaf pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 70 minutes. Slices best when 24 hours old.

MOIST DEVIL'S FOOD

Cream together 2-3 cup soft shortening with 1 1-3 cups sugar until very light, then beat in 2 large eggs, then 2 1-2 squares (2 1-2 oz.) melted chocolate. Sift together 2 1-4 cups sifted cake flour and 1 teaspoon each soda and salt and add to cream mixture alternately with 1 1-4 cups buttermilk. Turn into buttered, floured square or oblong pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 45 minutes.

WELLINGTON

St. Andrew's Guild Sponsors Euchre, Cribbage

WELLINGTON. — The ladies of St. Andrew's Guild were sponsors of a euchre and cribbage party in the town hall on Saturday evening. The hall looked gay with its Christmas decorations of lighted Christmas trees and candles and evergreens.

Scientific Study In Far North Sea Aids Radar Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—A study of conditions in the Beaufort sea which Canada probably would not have carried out if the United States had not started first may result, unexpectedly, in speedier completion of a new distant early warning radar system.

Informants said Thursday that oceanographic and hydrographic research in the sea that stretches north of Alaska, the Yukon and western Northwest Territories was undertaken five years ago when there was not even any serious thought of a system across the rim of North America to warn of approaching enemy planes.

With the swift developments of the atomic and jet age in mind even then, however, a few north-ern experts in the defence department anticipated that Canada and the U.S. would eventually consider the north more important.

SENT SCIENTISTS

Even at that, the informants said, it was unlikely that Canada would have carried out any research in the far-north sea if Americans had not already sent scientists into that field.

Canadian and U.S. scientists did, however, study the distribution and movement of water masses and ice and climate in the cold sea. With the work completed a few weeks ago, their research now may find itself at work in northern defence.

It is understood that exact location of the radar line between Alaska and Greenland has not been decided yet, but if it is placed near the Arctic coast, the Beaufort sea research will be of great value.

The scientists now can predict fairly accurately, for instance, ice movements in the sea. Planners of the DEW line hence can know accurately when ships may land materials on the coast without being locked in the ice.

Work on the DEW line, which Canada and the U.S. announced only a few weeks ago, is to begin with the spring break up.

SAILORS SENTENCED

ROME (Reuters) —A military appeals court Thursday sentenced to death in absentia two former sailors who mutinied on an Italian torpedo boat off Corsica in 1943 and then fled to Argentina. Attempts to extradite the two men, Federico Azzalin and Giuseppe Cattaneo both naval mechanics, have failed. The court found them guilty of murder, mutiny, collaboration, desertion to the enemy and deliberate loss of motor torpedo boat 505 on Aug. 10, 1943.

TTC May Have Deficit Over $3,000,000

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Transit Commission may have a $3,000,000 deficit in operations for 1954, it was reported Thursday.

TTC general manager W. P. Duncan told the metropolitan transportation committee that 90 per cent of suburban lines haven't met operational expenses. Many haven't collected enough fares to pay the line employees.

He said the only profit-making routes are those using streetcars or trolley coaches. The Yonge street subway line was paying its way.

One TTC official said the expected 1954 loss was almost entirely due to postponement of the zone system from Jan. 1 to July 1.

However, A. Kelso Roberts, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto St. Patrick, charged the TTC with what he called "dishonest bookkeeping." The charge was in connection with deficits in operation of the Toronto Island ferry service.

He told the metro committee the TTC's failure to take into account streetcar fares paid by persons getting to or from the ferry docks was responsible.

Mr. Roberts said increasing the Island fare is placing the kiss of death on Toronto Island and its occupants.

But the TTC promised nothing. Officials said the 10-cent fare to the Island would increase the deficit on island service to well above $250,000. Even the 30-cent fare would not eliminate it.

Saskatchewan's CCF Regime Buys Two Idle Sodium Mills, Stirring Up New Controversy

By WILF CHRISTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan's socialist government may have touched off new controversy by adding two sodium sulphate mills to its string of state enterprises.

The government, the only socialist administration in North America, has been between two fires since its victory in the 1944 provincial election—chiefly because of its entry into business.

On one side stand the "die-hard" socialists, those who plug for widespread state ownership and controls. In opposition are those CCF supporters who oppose government activity in industries usually operated by private enterprise. In the middle is the government.

After setting up their first state enterprises government leaders decided not to use their broad powers under the province's Crown Corporations Act to expropriate business, except under unusual circumstances.

FIRST IN SIX YEARS

Since then, both business and the Liberal party, the government's main opposition, have to some degree become used to the idea of state ownership—at least to the present extent of it.

The sodium sulphate plants are the first businesses brought under provincial control in six years.

The province now owns a $1,000,000 sodium mill and plans extensive increases in capacity at one of the two plants it has bought.

The plants, unused for three years, were purchased from National Sodium Products Ltd., for an undisclosed amount.

The government set up 18 enterprises after it came into power, including an air line, marketing agencies, a printing plant, insurance company, a bus company and a brick and tile plant still operating.

Six enterprises have been closed since. Four went broke, contributing the major share of the $1,630,000 cumulative deficit listed for crown corporations at the end of 1953.

GRANTED RIGHTS

If a new controversy develops, it probably will follow the pattern of two others earlier this year over government "farm - out" agreements. The first farm-out concerned the oil industry. The government granted development rights on two sections of the rich Smiley field in west-central Saskatchewan to a refinery co-operative in return for a percentage of production receipts and standard royalties.

The president of the co-operative's parent organization termed the agreement a move to give farmers some of the profits from the oil industry. The 50,000-member Saskatchewan Farmers' Union at its convention here two weeks ago approved the arrangement and asked that it become the pattern for government policy in oil agreements.

The second farm-out concerned the government bus company which has a monopoly on Saskatchewan bus travel.

Two small feeder lines which had been losing money were handed over to private operators, the province continuing supervision. Two other feeder lines since have been established by private enterprise.

Opponents said the CCF—which set up its enterprises "not for profit but for service"—was cornalling bus service on unprofitable lines to make sure the government company showed a profit. They said the government seemed to have "every confidence" in the ability of private enterprise to succeed where socialism failed.

Pacific Coast Cities Are Dark Nearly 3 Hours

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—The question of what blacked out a metropolitan area of 500,000 persons remained unanswered today.

A transformer blew Thursday night, apparently without reason, and turned into an area of silence and darkness the cities of Vancouver and New Westminster and adjoining Burnaby, North Vancouver and West Vancouver.

Power was off for nearly three hours.

The break came just after 5 p.m. and lasted until 7:40 p.m. It caught Christmas shopping crowds in large downtown department stores. It caught the rush-hour traffic in electrically - powered trolley buses.

PATIENT ESCAPES

In New Westminster a six-foot-one, 250-pound mental patient, described as a violent, seized his chance and wrenched free from police officers. He was still at large.

WOULDN'T SIGN

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The first Unitarian Church of Berkeley decided Thursday to pay annual taxes of more than $2,200 rather than sign a state loyalty oath which would have exempted the church from taxation. Henry Butler, president of the church's board of trustees, said that "on the grounds of religious conviction we cannot sign the oath declaration."

Sheppard Case Goes to Jury After Nine Weeks

By REIMAN MORIN

CLEVELAND (AP)—A jury of seven men and five women sits down today to decree life or death for Dr. Samuel Sheppard.

They can find him guilty of murdering his pregnant wife, Marilyn, of premeditating the crime, and committing it with malice aforethought. This is first-degree murder, and the sentence is mandatory—death in the electric chair.

Or they can find him innocent and send him home a free man.

Between these two extremes, verdicts on a less-serious charge could be delivered. Or the jury may not reach an agreement at all and a retrial might be ordered.

Here are the five possible verdicts:

Guilty of first-degree murder; the same, but with a recommendation of mercy, which would spare the life of the defendant; second-degree murder; manslaughter; or acquittal.

Judge Edward Blythin warned the jurors that the task of coming to a decision might take more than a day. "I am saying that to you now," he said, "so that you may come prepared, if necessary, to remain in a downtown hotel Friday night."

This brought a sharp interjection from William J. Corrigan, chief defence counsel. "I excerpt ing his wife to death last July 4. to your instructions," he snapped. He says he is innocent.

His did not explain why.

The jury is taking the case at the end of the ninth week of Sheppard's trial. The tall, dark-haired osteopath stands accused of beat-

Sunday School Lesson:

What Is the Christmas Spirit?

By ROY L. SMITH

A strange perversion has overtaken us in the matter of our Christmas observance which, if it were political or economic would call forth an outcry across the nation that would shake our national life.

That which should be, and was originally intended to be, a vast upsurge of praise to God for the coming of the revelation in the person of Jesus, has degenerated into something very cheap and tawdry, so much so that Christmas has become an occasion for drunkenness and rioting in absolute contradiction to the original Christmas joy.

If the nation should suddenly discover that the Fourth of July had been taken over by the communists, the nation would experience a wave of revulsion altogether ungreedeemed, but we have allowed Christmas—the holiest day in the year, for Christians at least—to be taken over by tragedy.

QUESTION OF SPIRITS

The Christmas spirit is not something one can imbibe. It is something which must well up within the soul of the celebrant as something holy, sublime, and gracious. The office party which sends fathers home to their children on Christmas eve half-drunk and perhaps shamed by ribald actions indulged because of intoxication is nothing less than blasphemy against God and a crime against the family.

The Uniform Sunday school lesson for December 19; "Glory to God in the Highest." Psalms 148; Matthew 1:18-25; Luke 2:1-20.

The Christmas spirit in its pure and historic form is an expression of great joy mingled with the chorusing of angels on account of the fact that God has appeared among men. To drag a thing so holy in the dust is as much a crime against the soul as to haul the flag down from its mast and trample it in the mud.

Spirits can never be substituted for spirit.

AND THE ANGELS SANG

It is very interesting to note the fact that the Gospel of Matthew omits all reference to the singing of the angels, while the Gospel of Luke, written by a young Gentile physician, makes much of that incident.

It is for that reason, perhaps, that those who chose this Christmas lesson linked Matthew's account with this rich and triumphant Hebrew psalm which speaks of angels, shining stars, kings of the earth, and "all cattle."

A SINGING RELIGION

One of the conspicuous facts about Christianity is that it has sent Christians around the world singing. An intelligent and discerning Chinese once said, "Christianity is a very singing religion." He had heard the missionaries and the converts singing, and it was something new in religion.

A young American school teacher, standing before a display of thousands of Buddhas, said, "The thing I miss in this display is the Good Shepherd." The Hebrews had their twenty-third psalm and the Christians have portrayed Jesus in art as the kindly Shepherd of the Sheep, but there is nothing here to make me think there is any joy in Buddha."

There is something lacking in that man's religion who is not impelled to praise God and sing for joy. To discover that the Creator of the universe is a loving God such as Jesus was ought to set men everywhere to singing.

No man has really celebrated Christmas who has not sung a song in joyful praise to God.

BUSY WEEK-END

Six games are on tap for the week-end in the O.H.A. Senior "B" group with the two-game series between the Goodyears of Reddiwille and our local Memos shaping up as the big series. Kingston are the visitors at the Memorial Arena tonight with the Memos paying a return visit on Saturday evening. The Whitby Wrens and Brockville Magedons also book up in a two-game affair with fourth place and possibly third at stake, while Peterborough are at Clinton on Saturday and in Cornwall on Sunday. The standing could really be shaken up by Monday morning.

After that fine display of hockey in the third period on Wednesday night that gave the local squad a share of second place, the general feeling is that the Memos rate with the best in the league. Naturally, Mr. Rodden will not agree with this, but coach Frank Boucher and his boys will be out to prove it with a win or two over Mike's pets. It won't be easy.

According to the Kingston scribe, sometimes referred to as the dean of Ontario Sports writers, the Goodyears will finish right where they are now, on top of the league, with Cornwall, Belleville and Whitby fighting out the necessary four play-off spots in that order.

So says Mike in his Tuesday column: "Kingston Goodyears, rolling merrily along with eight victories, one tie and one loss in their last ten starts, will get several days respite before they invade Belleville next Friday (tonight). The locals, who have lost only two games in fourteen consecutive engagements, are likely to grow stronger as the race progresses, and under such circumstances they could beat the Memos, and under such circumstances they could beat the Memos on Saturday night without unduly surprising their ardent supporters."

"Cornwall Colts, hanging on grimly in the points standing, bet not in the won and lost columns, still rate favoritism to cling to runner-up laurels by a mere shade over the persistent Belleville Memos and the revitalized Whitby 'Wrens.' This trio and Goodyears are of first division calibre and likely to remain in that bracket.

"George H. Carver will, no doubt, point out that the Memos have won three of their last four tilts; (four of five now, Mike, lad) are in full stride and will be tough to topple in this week-end's combats."

Whatever the outcome of these two games, tonight's fixture will undoubtedly be one of the better games seen here this year and barring the possibility that most of the Memos may have to watch the Leafs and Rangers on TV Saturday night, that battle, too, will be most interesting to watch.

• • •

SURPRISE TEAM?

Taking a look at the results of Wednesday's Trent Valley games, it could be that Memos, Bill Gaoli and Jim Ethier have come up with a winning combination for their junior team. The general feeling was that these kids would just be out for the experience in hopes of better teams in the future, but after that 4-3 victory over Trenton they might spell trouble for more than one of the more experienced clubs.

Most of the boys have never played organized hockey except for the B.M.H.A. games which allowed them very little ice time but the unit as a whole are a fast-skating group and have two good goaltenders in Don Ashley and Bill Charlton, John Carter, Garrison, who played his hockey for Wellington of the TVL last season, and Brant have seen previous junior action, while a couple of others have worked out with TVL teams last year. Let's give these fellows plenty of support as they are all "home brews" and have no team sponsor to keep them in sticks and other necessary equipment. Their next game is on Wednesday with Picton providing the opposition.

Point Anne's 6-1 win over RCAF gave the local league a sweep of Wednesday night's games. The Comettimes also see action on the 22nd in the second half of a double bill at the Arena with Trenton the visitors.

Canadiens Defeat Rangers While Red Wings Keep Pace By Downing Boston Bruins

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maurice Richard, hockey's most prolific scorer and probably its most controversial, made it No. 399 Tuesday night.

The spectacular rightwinger with Montreal Canadiens is only eight short of becoming the first National Hockey League player to register 400 goals.

Richard brought cheers from 14,296 Montreal Forum fans when he counted at 12:50 of the second period before Canadiens went on to defeat the fifth-place New York Rangers 5-1 in one of two league games. In the other, Detroit Red Wings moved into second place with a 4-2 win over Boston Bruins.

LOOSE PUCK

The hot-tempered Maurice, who has been mixed up in many run-ins both during his 13-season career, got the 399th against the Blueshirts when he flipped in a loose puck in a goalmouth scramble. It was his 15th of the season and the 82nd another goal against the Wings Dec. 2 in Detroit.

The victory gave the league-leading Canadiens a total of 41 points, three ahead of Detroit. Toronto Maple Leafs, idle Tuesday night, were dropped into third spot with 37 points.

Jean Beliveau led the Montrealers with two goals. Bert Olmstead and Dickie Moore each counted for the others. It was Bernie's Exit goal of the season. The lone New York tally was handled by Danny Lewicki, who beagled his 10th for the year.

Canadiens tried time and again to set up Richard for the 400th but he couldn't click. He had seven shots on goaltender Lorne Worsley and missed at least half a dozen other chances when he was off balance or fired just wide of the net.

DETROIT WIN

Third - period goals by centre Earl Reibel and Johnny Wilson gave Red Wings their victory at Boston.

Reibel, who scored twice during the night, actually won it when he took a pass from Marcel Bonin at 19:24 of the final session and lifted a backhander past rookie netminder John Henderson. Wilson added one at 19:36 for good measure.

Tony Leswick registered the other Detroit goal as the Wings extended their unbeaten streak to six games. Murray Costello and Cal Gardner scored for the Bruins as they went down to their 12th loss of the year.

Trade One Player

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the Quebec Junior Hockey League Thursday traded one player and released two others in a shake-up aimed at acelling the team out of the loop cellar.

The junior Habs sent Roger Decarie to Kitchener - Waterloo Canucks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league in exchange for forward Gerry O'Reilly, who was sent to the Canucks earlier this year.

Montreal also announced that centre Alex Vizkelits has been waived out of the league and picked up by Sherbrooke Terriers. Defenceman Walt McDonald was given his release by the club.

Gorman Rejects Terms Offered By Quebec Club

OTTAWA (CP)—Promoter T. P. (Tommy) Gorman has run down without success, another angle in his continuing search for a formula that will revive the slumping fortunes of his Ottawa Senators.

Gorman, whose Quebec Hockey League team has been suffering at the gate all season, Thursday telegraphed his rejection of terms demanded for use of the Trois-Rivieres, Que., Coliseum for the Senators.

"I couldn't accept those terms," he said Thursday night in an interview, snapping when asked why: "I'm not going to go into details."

ON TERMS

Previously, on Gorman's request, directors of the Trois-Rivieres Junior Hockey Club and the Coliseum had offered him the use of the Coliseum on the following terms:

1. His guarantee, backed by a $5,000 deposit with the Quebec Junior Hockey League, Ottawa would meet any deficit of Trois-Rivieres Flambeaux of the QJHL. The $5,000 was to be returned if the Flambeaux stayed out of the red this season.

2. Ottawa must play all its remaining home games in Trois-Rivieres.

"We couldn't comply with any of those requests," said Gorman, who a few weeks ago managed to get his players to accept a salary cut in his efforts to keep things solvent.

DECLARED IMPOSSIBLE

In Trois-Rivieres, president J. Alcide Sirois of the junior hockey club said earlier Thursday that in his rejection, Gorman had declared it would be impossible for the Senators to play in Trois-Rivieres under the conditions named.

Said Sirois, however: "We couldn't, in all justice, have the Senators play here (in Trois-Rivieres) without getting a reasonable guarantee."

Thursday's developments around the Senators came after rumors that they would soon drop out of the QHL. Gorman has said he has no comment on that report.

United States Moves Into Challenge Round

BY WILL GRIMSLEY

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—Vic Seixas and Tony Trabert sent the United States into the Davis Cup challenge round again today with a smoothly contrived 6-3, 8-6, 6-3 doubles victory over Sweden's Lennart Bergelin and Sven Davidson.

The triumph made the Yanks' margin in the best-of-five event 3-0 and makes Saturday's two final singles matches mere formalities.

In fact, non-playing captain Billy Talbert said he would rest Seixas and send national intercollegiate champion Hamilton Richardson of Tulane into the fray against Davidson. Trabert will play Bergelin.

Until someone comes along to prove otherwise, Seixas and Trabert must be regarded as the best tandem in amateur tennis. They certainly looked the part in whipping Bergelin and Davidson, a pair of Swedes who had been at the top of their games.

LOOKS RIGHT

Some experts Down Under predicted that Sweden, in fact, might give the challenge round fits. Talbert said his boys would win the interzone by 3-2. Now it looks right for 4-1.

There was some doubt as to Trabert before the event got under way. Tony admittedly was off form, but from the impression he gave in both his singles victory and today's doubles, he could have been playing possum. He was tremendous. So was Seixas, and between them they gave the befuddled Swedes little to hit.

There was only one service break in each of the first two sets and two in the final set. But the second break in the third set came about in the final game after the Swedes had given up.

HUNG BACK

Bergelin, especially, was effective, but Davidson for the second time in as many days, refused to take the initiative. Had he followed Bergelin's lead, the Swedes might have gained a few more points.

In the final analysis, it was the Americans' ability to come back when they were behind that won it for them. In the seventh game of the first set, for example, Seixas was behind 0-40 on his service.

At this juncture the decision still was in doubt and if the Swedes had broken through, they would have gained a psychological lift. As it happened, Vic and Tony fought back to deuce. Then after another deuce they won it and just about broke the Swedes' hearts.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

Not Interested In Sending Team to Russia

TORONTO (CP)—George Dudley said Thursday night the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is not interested "at the present time" in sending a Canadian team to Russia.

Dudley, CAHA secretary-manager, said that although the senior A Winnipeg Maroons offered to play an exhibition series in Moscow the CAHA turned them down.

Dudley said the first objective of the CAHA is to regain the world hockey championship for Canada.

"Penticton Vs. the CAHA hopes," will take care of that little matter in February."

"We didn't think it would be fair to Penticton," Dudley said. "They've gone to a great deal of expense with this thing and we thought they should get first crack."

The CAHA had been criticized lately for rejecting a Russian invitation to send a Canadian team to Moscow Jan. 11 and 13. The CAHA said league schedules would prohibit such a trip.

Then Winnipeg Maroons, who don't play in a league, said they were willing to accept the invitation but the CAHA refused. It thought the Russian visit might detract from the world championships.

"I invited the Russians to extend a similar invitation next year," Dudley said. "Speaking personally, I don't see anything wrong with it. And I think the other members of the executive might give it more consideration next time."

N. Y. Giants, Cleveland Indians Dominate AP All-Star Team

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Befitting their stations, New York's world champion Giants and Cleveland's American League champion Indians dominated the 1954 Associated Press major league all-star team, capturing six of the 10 positions.

Six of the 16 big league clubs, four in the National, were represented in the AP's ninth annual all-star squad, selected by 422 baseball writers and broadcasters throughout the U.S. The National League had six players to four for the American.

The Giants and Indians were the only clubs with more than one representative. Each had three. Brooklyn, St. Louis, Cincinnati and the New York Yankees had one each.

THE TEAM

The all-star team: (batting averages in parentheses)

First base — Ted Kluszewski, Reds (.326)

Second base—Bobby Avila, Indians (.341)

Third base—Al Rosen, Indians (.300)

Shortstop — Alvin Dark, Giants (.294)

Center field—Willie Mays, Giants (.345)

Right field—Duke Snider, Dodgers (.341)

Catcher — Yogi Berra, Yankees (.307)

Only three players are holdovers from the 1953 team. They are Rosen, Musial and Snider. Musial made the team for the eighth time, missing only once since the poll was inaugurated in 1942.

Mays, the brilliant Giant outfielder who led both majors in batting with a .345 average, topped all vote-getters. The Negro flash was named on 397 ballots. Musial had 340 votes to join Mays in the outfield.

The second biggest vote-getter was Berra, who won the catching position hands down with 389 votes. Runner-up Roy Campanella of the Dodgers drew only nine votes.

GOOD MARGINS

All infield positions were decided by comfortable margins. Only Avila, at second, had any sort of opposition, polling 259 votes to 117 for Red Schoendienst of the Cardinals.

Dark enjoyed an overwhelming margin of more than 200 votes over runner-up Harvey Kuenn of Detroit for the shortstop berth, 376 to 51.

Lemon, winner of 20 games for the sixth time, led all the right-handers with 287 votes but biggest vote - getter among hurlers was southpaw Johnny Antonelli, whose 21-7 won-lost record and 2.29 ERA was tops in the National League. The young Giant was named on 344 ballots.

The team hosts six .300 hitters, both batting champions, one home run and one RBI champ, five players with 100 or more runs batted in and three who hammered 40 or more homers.

Oshawa Entry In Intercounty Loop Accepted

GALT (CP)—Six teams filed entries in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League for the 1955 season at a "declaration" meeting of Oshawa interests here.

Galt, Brantford, London, St. Thomas and Kitchener representatives posted the $50 entry fee Wednesday night. The meeting waived a clause in the constitution whereby new teams seeking admittance must receive a unanimous vote of approval, to permit Oshawa to rejoin the loop.

Oshawa played in the league in 1953 on a temporary franchise but was rejected last season. The earlier club's return will round out a six-team loop, making up for the loss of the Guelph-Waterloo team.

Waterloo was not represented at the meeting, which was the final one for declaring entries, and Guelph will suspend operations for one season at least.

DEFEAT MOTION

A notice of motion by Don Gallinger of Kitchener which would have stripped Guelph of its players and other rights under the Franchise agreement for failure to enter a club for next season, was defeated. The Guelph club will be entitled to dispose of its players —at a price—to other teams for the 1955 season. The players will revert back to Guelph at the end of the season.

The majority of teams favored a lighter schedule for the new season, comprising 40 games. Brantford was the only club which asked for doubleheaders. Higher cost of operation and sagging attendances were the contributing factors in the desired cutback to a shorter schedule.

Hamilton Cubs In Sixth Place Of Junior Race

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Cubs vaulted from sixth place to a fourth-place tie in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series by defeating the last-place Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks 5-1 Thursday night for their fifth straight victory.

Cubs moved past the Mic Toronto Marlboros to tie with Galt Blackhawks in the league's first division.

Murray Oliver led the winners with two goals. Other Cub marksmen were Bill Pirie, Bill McNeill and Bob Robinson.

Whitey Youngberg tallied for the Canucks who traded Glen Cressman, Gary Collins and Jack Smolka to Toronto Marlboros for Sonny Lorenz and Bob Duncan. The latter made their debuts as Canucks Thursday night.

Hamilton outshot K-W 34-21.

Penalties figured in five of the game's six goals. Twice Cubs scored while Canucks were shorthanded, once while they were shorthanded themselves and a fourth time when both sides had a man in the penalty box. The lone Canuck goal was tallied while Cubs were a man short.

Canucks have lost 21 of their 34 games.

A Tip for Christmas

This year, entertain larger groups by serving your food buffet style. A well-stocked buffet table will lighten the load of the busy host and hostess, and lend that air of informality so important to successful entertaining. So plan to serve your festive fare in pleasing buffet style. Let your guests help themselves to a most enjoyable evening.

AT THE BELLE

"HER TWELVE MEN"

Teams Greer Garson and Robert Ryan in Comedy-Romance, in Color

"Her Twelve Men", at the Belle Theatre, presents a robust, humorfilled skylarking story of the experiences of the only woman teaching at a boys' boarding school.

Greer Garson, Robert Ryan and Barry Sullivan are the stars of the new 2 exec color release with Garson happily cast in a tailor-made role as Jan Stewart, who faces her charge of a group of high-spirited, mischievous and sometimes homesick boys with considerable trepidation. And well she might.

Apart from having to reconcile herself to the opportun of being referred to as a "female crew", she is forced to meet such challenges as those presented by unexpected bullfrogs in her bed, feigned illnesses, pillow-fight mutinies, the boy who goes to remarkable lengths to avoid baleful music lessons, the homesick boy who runs away. As though this were not enough, she also encounters the antagonism of Joe Hargreaves, her predecessor superior, who hasn't much more confidence in a woman teacher than have the pupils.

Greer Garson who made an unforgettable film debut as a school teacher's wife in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips", gives another wonderful captivating portrayal in "Her Twelve Men", this time as a teacher. Her initial bewilderment at the uncooperative attitude of the "Arcons" of the Duke school, turning into understanding and affection for the youngsters, is unfolded with persuasiveness and contagious humor.

Robert Ryan gives an incisive performance as Joe Hargreaves, who overcomes his hostility toward the new woman teacher. Barry Sullivan is sympathetically attractive as Richard Oliver, and other effective adult roles are played by Richard Haydn and Barbara Lawrence.

SEE CHANCES GOOD

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A member of the joint Tampa-St. Petersburg committees seeking to get triple-A baseball in the area said Thursday night chances of getting the Ottawa International League franchise are "awful good."

Howard Gardner made these remarks after Phil O'Hara, Tampa auctioneer who had headed a syndicate offering to buy the Ottawa club from Kansas City Athletics, joined forces with the committee. Gardner's remarks also followed a conference in Columbus between Parke Carroll, general manager of the Athletics, and groups in Columbus seeking to get the Ottawa club put there.

Crew-Cut Toupee Real Present For Actors Whose Hair Is Thin

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Stuck for a Christmas present for your bald uncle Pete? How about a crew-cut toupee?

Xavier Cugat has one. So does Van Heflin, Art Linkletter, Bogart.

It is the latest thing for those whose hair is thin. And many a wife is urging it on her husband. "The wives are a prime factor with men who get hair pieces," says Fred Frederick, head of the hair department at Max Factor's beauty emporium.

"Most women are 3 to 10 years younger than their husbands. The age difference becomes more apparent if the man begins to lose his hair as he grows older. Many of the women seek to make the gap less noticeable by having their husbands wear hair pieces."

CITES TOUPEES' MERITS

Frederick's, a tall, friendly man who grew his own thin hair, has been in the hair business for 30 years. Business aids, he is convinced of the merits of having men adopt toupees.

"In these days, it's essential that men look their best, especially those who deal with the public in their business," he said. "If a man is 36, he must look 36 and not 45, particularly by the way he combs his hair."

Frederick says he has tried to console the bereaved ones, they thought he was looking at them. He had to let the salesmen take over.

"We made him a piece and his whole life changed," Frederick said. "Now he could sell a casket to a person that didn't even need one."

THOUSAND MONTHLY

Frederick's showed me the thriving factor hair factory. There are 118 craftsmen sewing the toupees, hair by hair, cleaning and setting them, finishing and putting them in ovens to bake. The place turns out 1,000 a month, and only 100 are for movie costume pieces. Most of the others are mail orders; they cost from $100 to $150 apiece.

It takes about a week for the needleworkers (they're called ventilators for some unknown reason) to make a piece. The women use hair from Italy, needles from Germany, gauze from Switzerland and lace from Germany and England.

Frederick's advises clients not to advertise the fact that they wear hair pieces, since he believes only their wives can readily detect them. Cugat is a big exception. Like a San Francisco man who gathered 200 friends at a party and announced:

"I want you to all know that I will be wearing a toupee from now on. So you can all talk about it now and forever. I'll be used for any more gossiping."

AT THE McCARTHY

Duff Wants Try at "Richard III"

The fame and fan following that have grown out of Howard Duff's identity as detective "Sam Spade" are not enough to satisfy the actor, currently co-starred with Lex Barker, Mala Powers, William Demarest and John McIntire in Universal-International's Print-by-Technicolor "The Yellow Mountain," now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Ever since Duff joined the Seattle Repertory Playhouse to play a role in Shakespeare's "Richard III," the actor's one consuming ambition has been to play the title role of "Richard" on Broadway. There was no salary attached to this first Shakespearean venture and Duff had to work daytimes as assistant window trimmer in a Seattle department store.

When his refusal to do night work at the store resulted in his getting fired, Duff's voice won him a job as staff announcer at Station KOMO, permitting him to continue his Playhouse roles. Then when the Playhouse put him on salary ($30 a week) he quit the radio station and went on tour in the northwest with Playhouse productions. However, he returned to radio and his "Sam Spade, Detective" was the result. Ultimately this led him to Hollywood and roles in UI's "Brute Force" and "Naked City." In "The Yellow Mountain," Duff portrays Lex Barker's gambling and gold wine partner.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for Saturday, December 18, 1954.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You may have to get behind your self and give yourself a push. This day calls for more consistency and enthusiasm in routine work and duties. Sleep over writings before despatching them, if angry.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Take care that you don't ruffle the wrong person today. Be more conscientious in the seemingly "unimportant" things. Spend and save wisely; strive for smoothness, harmony.

May 21 to June 21 (Geminii) — A good outlook for all endeavors that are given close checking. Be efficient and intelligent handling. Don't hesitate to ask questions, assistance if needed. Thoroughness always pays.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — If alert and careful in carrying out your daily tasks and affairs, these results should be successful. Avoid having to retrace steps. Carelessness in personal habits.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Today's influences are favorable to all well-regulated matters. Steady endeavor and co-operation can lift you out of the uncertain and into the winning class.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Extra verve and a keen display of your splendid talents can help you put over an appreciably successful day. Try something new, where time allows, but do not strain health.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — An "off" period that could be good or troublesome — depending on your own will to forge ahead. Discriminate intelligently; be honest; determined.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — A time to consider new ideas, new methods; for study and research. Have consideration for those who oppose you as well as those who agree with you.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — So you won't be disappointed, prepare for some unexpected reverse during the day's activities. The attempt may be somewhat restrictive but these influences will not last long. Be patient.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Aspects excellent. Make a soundly defensive attempt to put ideas into action. You will fare better if you are tactful; will gain more through co-operation.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Seek facts, familiarize yourself with matters on which you are working; then speak forward with fervency. Seek and you will echieve.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Benefic aspects sanction some needed changes and new undertakings of value, but some vibrations warn against inconvenicability. Being confident will bring its own rewards.

YOU BORN TODAY can, with proper education (and this can be self-taught) and the cultivation of your many talents, reach heights in your field, and in outside activities, too. You are unusually artistic and musical; could achieve in art, business, public speaking. Your boss will call you artful. Avoid emotional upsets. Seek intelligent, happy companions. Good reading could further your progress immeasurably. Birthdate of: Edward MacDowell, American composer; Karl von Weber, German composer.

Zhukov Attacks Churchill For Order on Arms

LONDON (Reuters) — Marshal Georgi Zhukov, wartime Red army chief who led the Russian troops into Berlin, has accused Sir Winston Churchill of treachery at the end of the war by a "double-dealing" order for German arms to be stacked for possible use against the Russians.

Marshal Zhukov, now Soviet deputy defence minister, launched a bitter attack in an article in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, on the British prime minister's controversial order to Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery as the Nazi armies surrendered. Since Churchill first disclosed the order in a speech at Woodford, Essex, on Nov. 23, he has told Parliament he thought he might not have sent the telegram giving the instruction, although Montgomery has said he recalled receiving it.

CHARGES TREACHERY

Zhukov, quoted by Moscow radio, said the history of international relations and military history "record few examples of such betrayal of allies as this treachery of Mr. Churchill and Field Marshal Montgomery."

Zhukov declared that hundreds of thousands of German soldiers and officers, with their staffs, were retained as "organized units of the Hitlerite army" in the British zone of Germany seven months after the German capitulation.

He said Montgomery was forced to admit their presence but said they were "waiting for demobilization or working under (Montgomery's) orders."

Vancouver Bids For Bigger Slice Of Grain Export

VANCOUVER (CP)—This west coast city is bidding for a bigger slice of Canada's grain export business.

Vancouver will have the world's largest tidewater grain terminal when a 32,000,000 addition to the Alberta Wheat Pool's elevator is completed.

"Vancouver cannot be overlooked as a major grain outlet," said A. T. Baker of Calgary, the co-operative pool's general manager, in announcing the extension this week.

The new 2,000,000-bushel elevator will boost AWP's total storage capacity here to 7,350,000 bushels and will add 12 grain cleaners to the 18 now installed. At the same time, the pool will spend $1,500,000 adding to its 317 elevators across interior British Columbia and Alberta.

WILL TAKE YEAR

The port expansion will take a year to complete and work will start in February. Plans now are being prepared by C. D. Howe and Co. of Port Arthur, Ont.

Why the swing to the west?

"The freight rate picture has altered in Vancouver's favor using the last four years," says Mr. Baker.

B.C.'s three grain-shipping ports—Vancouver, New Westminster and Prince Rupert—are open the year-round.

And Vancouver is close to new markets in the Orient.

TAKING MORE

Before the Second World War, Japan took about 100,000 bushels of wheat a year. Now she is buying about 36,000,000 bushels, mainly hard wheat, and a Japanese trade mission predicted last September the figure will go higher.

Compared to the Pacific ports' 191,227,000 total exports last year, Great Lakes' ships had moved 267,100,000 export bushels when the navigation season ended Dec. 8, 1953.

An average of six ships a day now load at the coast ports.

ALL SURVIVE PLANE CRASH AT BRAMPTON

British Troops Fire On Rioters On Isle Of Cyprus

Thousands Stage Protest Against Inaction by UN

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—British soldiers opened fire on pro-Greek crowds demonstrating here today against British colonial rule. At least one person was killed.

The troops shot and killed one man at the port of Limassol, 54 miles from here, as thousands of Cypriots of Greek origin staged violent anti-British and anti-American riots throughout this Mediterranean island.

The riots, and a 24-hour general strike which also began today, were in protest against the United Nations General Assembly's decision Thursday to shelve Greece's demand that Cyprus should be given the right of self-determination.

British soldiers opened fire at Limassol after student students had snatched a British flag from a police station and replaced it with a Greek flag, wrecked a bar frequented by Britons, and demonstrated in front of the government hospital. The hospital was guarded by troops.

Police twice used tear gas in a bid to disperse the rioters.

Like Madhouse In Crashed Plane Schoolboy Says

Editors: Ron Campbell, 17, of Burnt River, Ont., was one of 21 persons to escape from the bursday Trans-Canada Air Lines aircraft which crashed Friday night. It was his first flight. A high school student at St. Petersburg, Fla., he was returning home for his Christmas holidays. He was only shaken up.

By RON CAMPBELL

BRAMPTON (CP)—We had been told to fasten our safety belt just before we hit. I looked at my watch, it was 9:20.

Then the next thing I knew I looked out the window and the ground was right beside me. I figured we were landing.

There was a scrape, then a big jolt. Everybody seemed to start screaming and yelling at once. It was like a madhouse.

I guess I was one of the last out. When I was still in the plane I could see a fire blazing in the front. I threw off my safety belt and somehow or other the safety exit just by me flew open.

I dived out and landed in snow.

RUN FROM WRECK

Someone was shouting to run as far as possible from the wreck. I saw one of the crew at that stage. His arm was badly cut and there was a gash on his neck.

People were scattering everywhere. I looked back but couldn't see anything near the plane or the plane.

It was hard going across that field and I lost one of my shoes. I was running hard to try to catch up with the others.

Then I got to a road and a truck picked me up.

I don't remember hearing any explosion in the air. But by the time I was out of the plane there seemed to be flames everywhere and little fires.

Pulled from Crash Less Than Minute Before Explosion

TORONTO (CP)—A Trans-Canada Air Lines captain pulled his first officer from the blazing wreck of a TCA Super Constellation passenger plane Friday night less than a minute before it exploded.

One of 23 survivors when the big plane belly-flopped to an emergency landing near Malton airport, today said somebody counted heads after the crash.

Captain Norman Ramsay related his first officer was missing and with the help of a stewardess and one of the passengers, walked into the burning fuselage and pulled Officer Robert Anderson to safety.

Anderson was unconscious when pulled from the wreck. He suffered possible skull fracture and broken left arm and leg.

TURKEY FROM ADDENEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has a plump, 31-pound Christmas turkey, sent from Ogden, Kan., where his parents were married. The turkey arrived at the White House Friday, as a gift from J. J. Hartman, an admirer of the president.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The area of low pressure, which brought snow to the Great Lakes and rain to southwestern Ontario Friday, is moving slowly eastward over Lake Huron today. Its present path will continue to be felt over most of Ontario the remainder of the week-end with cloudy skies and occasional snow.

ROAD ENGINEER, COMPANY FINED TOTAL OF $68,000

Both Plead Guilty To Defrauding Govt.

WHITBY (CP)—A construction company and a former Ontario highways department engineer were fined a total of $68,000 on charges of defrauding the Ontario government in connection with road contracts.

The Walter Bergmann Construction Company of Pickering was fined $65,000 after pleading guilty to defrauding the government of $133,000.

Donald S. Patterson, 49, former department divisional engineer at Huntsville, was fined $3,000 or six months in jail on a similar charge.

RESTITUTION MADE

The charges were laid in connection with a Bergmann company contract to build five and a quarter miles of highway in East William area. Full restitution has been made.

Similar charges against company president Walter Bergmann, Mrs. Walter Bergmann, engineer and William Leonard Bredin of Huntsville, a highways department engineer, were withdrawn on recommendation of crown counsel Charles L. Wright.

The basis of the charges heard by Judge John H. Pritchard was that the company submitted claims for payment on work which was never done. The claims were approved by Mr. Patterson.

COUNSEL STATEMENT

Gordon Ford of Toronto, defence counsel for Patterson, said the main intention Patterson had in permitting the fraud was to compensate the company for unexpected heavy expenses incurred in construction of the highway section. He suggested that Patterson took such steps rather than go through the time-consuming procedure of negotiating new contracts.

G. Arthur Martin, for the company, said the company would have lost $100,000 even if the extra payments had not been detected. He added the company now will lose more than $250,000 on the highway contract.

It was the second of three cases arising out of the alleged irregularities.

FIRST CASE

In the first case, tried in Port Arthur in May by Mr. Pritchard, Thomson Brothers Limited were fined $100,000 and Arthur J. Mills, former highways department divisional engineer at Fort William, was fined $3,500 and placed on suspended sentence on a charge of breach of trust.

In the remaining case, Standard Paving of Toronto and company vice-president Ford are expected to be scheduled to be tried on fraud charges in Toronto in January.

Before passing sentence, Judge Pritchard said:

"Public works country pride ourselves on the honesty of the administration of all branches of government service. It is most important that nothing should occur to make us lose faith in such services.

"Essentially, honesty in all branches of government service . . . depends on the integrity of the individuals."

Source Says Pope Passed None Too Tranquil Night

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A reliable source Friday said ailing Pope Pius passed "a none too tranquil night." His rest was again disturbed by hiccups.

However, the Vatican press office said the pontiff was able to take an ice cream Friday night for almost two hours, and the amount of food he is taking by mouth is being slowly and gradually increased.

And today doctors hoped he would be able to take an automobile ride in the Vatican gardens should the weather be fine enough. The ride would be part of a new course of treatment aimed at increasing his physical activities.

Accident Victims Were Soldiers

KINGSTON. — Two Kingston soldiers were carried to their death Friday, when their car careened 50 feet through the air before it struck and plunged into a Kingston harbor.

The bodies of Pte. John F. Jackson, 23, who owned the car, and Pte. Allan Thompson Robinson, 20, came to the surface after daylight.

A diver brought one of the bodies to the surface. The other was inside the car when it was towed from the water.

Holiday-Happy German Children Escape as 20 Die in Train Wreck

DORTMUND, Germany (Reuters)—Two trains, one a Christmas holiday special jammed with singing children, crashed into each other here today in a rail disaster which killed 20 persons.

Miraculously, only three children were injured and none was killed. The casualties were all passengers on the other train, a local suburban service.

Seventy - five persons were injured, 25 of them seriously.

The two trains ploughed into each other at a switch in the fogbound railway yards a few hundred yards outside the main Dortmund station.

The children's Christmas special was taking a full load of youngsters home from a holiday on Sylt island, off the German North sea coast.

Rescue work was difficult, since most of the injured were trapped in the debris, but two hours after the crash the dead and injured had been removed from the wreckage.

Rail officials said all the dead were German workmen on the way to Hamm in the Ruhr.

The crash was the worst in West Germany this year. The last serious rail crash in Europe occurred Dec. 2 near Louvain, Belgium, when 26 were killed, including 18 Germans returning from a soccer game between Germany and England in London.

Chou May Set High Price For Release of 11 U.S. Fliers

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Diplomats speculated today that Red China's Chou En-lai may set a stiff price for the release of 11 imprisoned American airmen after he receives United Nations Secretary-general Dag Hammarskjold in Peiping.

The Red Chinese premier indicated in his assent Friday to the meeting that he considers the case of the airmen closed. But delegates acquainted with Peiping's line of reasoning predict Chou will get down to brass tacks after first insisting that his government was in the right, and bringing up some complaints against the United States.

Hammarskjold asked for the talks Dec. 10 after the UN General Assembly voted 47 to 5 (Soviet bloc) to condemn Red China's imprisonment of the airmen as spies. The assembly called on the secretary-general, to intercede for their release.

Hammarskjold received Chou's reply the same day the assembly wound up its session, rejecting Communist attacks on U.S. policy in the Far East.

As the session ended, the main spotlight turned to Peiping, where Hammarskjold planned to go shortly after Christmas. Diplomats believe Chou will want to guide the talks along the following gen-eral lines:

1. He will try to impress on Hammarskjold that his regime is completely in control of China.

2. He will protest to the secretary-general that the Americans are maintaining what the Chinese have labelled a "nest of spies" on the Nationalist stronghold of Formosa, and will warn that the Red world will not consider releasing the airmen until such activities cease.

3. Having thus set the stage, he will probably consent to hear Hammarskjold's plea on behalf of the airmen and other imprisoned UN personnel.

As a neutral mediator, Hammarskjold would hardly be in a position to bargain, delegates point out, but he could relay back Chou's demands.

UN observers see three possible deals the Red Chinese might offer: 1. Agree to release the airmen in exchange for 35 Chinese students in the U.S. since the Chinese Communists moved into the Korean War.

2. Agree to free the men if the Americans "unfreeze" more than $100,000,000 in Red Chinese assets blocked in the U.S. when the Chinese Reds entered the Korean War.

3. Consent to talk business if the U.S. would agree not to oppose Peiping's demands for a UN seat.

Mendes-France Demands Vote Of Confidence on Indochina

PARIS (AP)—Premier Mendes-France demanded a vote of confidence today after the National Assembly rebuffed his government on its Indochina budget. The vote, set for next Monday, may delay scheduled debate on German rearmament.

Mendes-France staked his government on the budget until the end of an all-night assembly session during which the deputies defeated the premier's fiscal plans and gave him only slim majorities in two votes on the Indochina war on technical points concerning the Indochina budget.

Before adverse vote — Mendes-France's first setback in six months in office—left his position considerably weakened, but his opponents did not appear eager to throw him out of office on the Indochina issue. They apparently want him to be saddled with the responsibility for pushing through ratification of the Paris treaties setting up German rearmament and give her the right to rearm.

Assembly debate on the pacts had been slated to open Monday and was expected to wind up late Tuesday. Passage of the pacts was likely will be taken up by the conference vote. The final decision in the Paris pacts may not come until Christmas Eve, when the deputies are due to adjourn for home.

Parliamentary opposition was organized while he was tied up in meetings Friday with ministers of the South Atlantic Treaty Organization. It reflected mounting criticism of the government's handling of the Indochina situation. Several deputies who recently visited Saigon got the impression that South ivet Nam is deteriorating rapidly.

Some deputies charged the government with not bringing Premier Ngo Dinh Diem of Viet Nam fast enough. Others, however, attached little importance to the slow show of strength to back the South Vet Nam government against the Communist-led Vietminh regime of the north.

U.S. Might Have Free Hand With A-Bombs if Reds Attack

PARIS (CP) — Western leaders agreed today that civilian governments must control the trigger of atomic weapons if the powers of the foreign minister indicated that the United States might have a free hand to escape with a sudden devastating Communist assault.

Foreign Minister Spaak hinted at this in saying, "If an aggressor makes an atomic attack, there is not time to think anybody's veto will be of much importance."

The Belgian leader's comment came at a press conference following issuing of a communique by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's council of ministers which reported the NATO officials an authorizing their military commanders to go ahead with preparing an atomic defence of Western Europe.

But the communique said any decision to use atomic weapons in the event of a Soviet attack would be taken by governments, not generals.

In the light of Spaak's comment, the ministerial decision did not appear to indicate the U.S. is the principal atomic power in the Western world, to consult with allies in case of a new emergency, nor to change, any standing instructions which it may have already given to Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Supreme Allied commander in Europe.

It was learned meanwhile that Canada warned the NATO partners that the increasing importance of North American defence against atomic bombers, greater anxiety was being felt about the vulnerability of the industrial heart of North Am-velopment.

FORMER NAZI STRASSER GIVES POLICY VIEWS

Socialist Design Caused Break With Adolf Hitler

By GERALD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARADISE, N.S. (CP)—During 14 years of exile in an apartment above the Paradise co-operative grocery store one of the men who nurtured nazism has been polishing plans for making Germany a "co-operative paradise." Soon he will be going home.

Dr. Otto Strasser says his Socialist design for Germany led to his break with Hitler and brought death to his brother Gregor. They cost him his citizenship and made him a hunted man. After nine years of post - war courtroom battling he finally recently restored the citizenship Hitler cancelled.

But Dr. Strasser, now 59, has never wavered from his beliefs. As he waited for his passport to come through he was brimming with plans for putting his policy of "solidarism" into the German political forefront.

BLAMES RED TAPE

He wanted to get—home by Christmas, he told The Canadian Press, but it looked as though "red tape and bureaucratic bungling" would check his plans.

He called on the West in the interview to pull out of Germany, now that it would leave Russia with no alternative but to do the same. He assailed the Adenauer government as "a puppet of the United States" and vowed to fight for a reunited Germany.

His aim is to win the German people in the three years' time after Hitler spreading his solidarity doctrine.

"These," he explains, "are the important principles of solidarism: Representation by profession rather than party, decentralization of estate, and finally a sense of their own politics and economics which would enable people to cope with it."

HAS SUPPORT

Dr. Strasser, who has the support of an informal organization called the "Strasser movement," made no party plans in advance of the Black Front he organized to fight Hitler, said he definitely wouldn't form one, with any of the present parties. He wasn't sure, either, that he would launch his own.

"I don't like parties," he said, "they split the people."

He said he plans to set up a weekly newspaper and magazine and recruiting an officer corps from persons who embrace his doctrine, after getting him at public lectures.

He figures he can graduate 250 of these officers, or disciples, at a school he plans to hold next year. Then he will go from door to the country preaching his doctrines, and he expects gradually to make enough converts to give him a good showing at the polls.

23 On Board Flee Ere Flames Spread From Engine Fire

Everybody Suffers Injuries But Only Two Badly Hurt

By HENRY BAKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BRAMPTON (CP) — All 23 passengers and crew members tumbled out of reach of death Friday night when a 63-ton Super Constellation airliner slashed across a farmer's field in a crash landing ad was swallowed in flames.

In the few moments before the torn Trans-Canada Air Lines giant was ungulfed they had reached the safety of distance, too dazed to understand how they had managed the miracle. Only two were hurt seriously but none escaped entirely.

They moved away from the wreckage in small groups and as individuals, like the shunted stragglers of a defeated army. Some went to neighboring farm houses and others were picked up by motorists who had heard the crash.

FROM TAMPA

The Constellation was carrying 16 passengers and seven crew members on a non-stop flight from Tampa Fla., to Malton airport near Toronto when one of its four engines caught fire during the circuit for a landing.

It 7:20 p.m. EST—the plane was due 45 minutes earlier—passengers were told to fasten their safety belts to prepare for a landing. Seconds later a thudering jar rocked the plane as one wing and the undercarriage ripped into three ditches and across the frozen ground beneath.

The flight was No. 661 out of Tampa.

The plane just missed a deep gravel pit as pilot Norman Ramsay of Montreal brought it down on the field about four miles west of Brampton and seven miles west of the airport.

EMBRACED WIFE

One passenger told of putting his arms around his wife to face what he feared was certain death.

"I thought we had all had it," said Sam Young of Port Credit, Ont. "I thought the end had come death."

Among the passengers was Champion golfer Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., who escaped serious injury. She was returning home for the Christmas vacation from Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla.

The seriously injured were identified by authorities at Peel Memorial Hospital here as Thomas Gordon Phillips 34, of Montreal and First officer Gary Anderson, 22, of Montreal and Gananoque, Ont.

Anderson suffered a possible skull fracture and fractures of the left arm and left leg. Phillips suffered chest, skull and other injuries. Both were on the critical list.

Twelve of the injured were brought to Peel Memorial and two of them were released after treatment. The other 11 were taken to Humber Memorial Hospital in Rexdale, a Toronto suburb. Six were released after treatment.

Most of the injuries were bruises and abrasions, suffered as the airliner skidded the eight distance across the field. There were some broken ribs.

Herb Campbell, whose farm is about three miles from the crash scene, said he saw the Constellation was in trouble as it skimmed low over his house.

"I just turned to be chasing what looked like a ball of fire ahead of it," he said. "It seemed an engine was on fire then."

RIPPED GROUND

He said the $1,500,000 plane, which was flying at 275 miles an hour, had ripped about 1,000 feet along the ground before coming to a stop.

Eight hours after the crash the shell of the plane was still burning. Authorities were letting the flames die down.

Soon after the passengers scrambled to safety, a heavy explosion shook the plane. Chunks of wreckage were blown a mile or so away.

Seats had been ripped up and scattered out on the plowed field, GUARDS POSTED

Guards were posted around the wreckage to keep audiences at a distance from what until a few hours before was one of the prides of TCA.

Silver Constellations were added to TCA's operations fleet last September. They have been operating on transatlantic flights since May, 1954, on a daily flight from Tampa at 4:25 p.m. and was due in Malton at 8:35. It was to take off again for Montreal at 9:25. All the crew members were based in Montreal.

Pilot Ramsay was described by TCA as one of the most "several million miles." He has been with the airline since 1941.

In 13 years, the TCA has had only three fatal accidents. Twelve persons died in the first, a DC-3 crash at Moose Jaw, Sask., last April 8.

Marlene Stewart Proves Just as Cool In Plane Crash as On Golf Course

By GEORGE LINTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BRAMPTON (CP)—Little Marlene Stewart, always a cool customer on the golf course, was just that in a plane crash Friday.

The 20-year-old golf champion was one of 23 persons who survived the crackup of a Super Constellation airliner and this time last night. After scampering from the burning wreckage, she was as ready to help others as she was on the Canadian Open and Close golf links this year.

Marlene walked over snow-covered fields with five other women. Then she helped overcake and carry to the farmhouse to Clurk Archibald in a search of help. She had suffered an injury to her left arm and had scratched knees but was concerned about the others.

Marlene wasn't at the house long before help arrived. She had helped with the injured, received first aid herself and then headed for Toronto, 44 miles southeast of here.

But Mrs. Archdecan told this story:

"Marlene is some girl. She came to my door, her face drawn, and said, 'Is it all right if we come in?'

"She didn't pay an heed to her own injuries but she pitched in to help the others. One woman had burns and a cut foot. Marlene helped me with cold towels on the foot to ease me a great lift in helping people.

"During most of the hour and a half she was in the house, Marlene was busy with others helping me with the injured.

"She seems to have a sore left arm. I looked at it but it appeared to be all right. Even after she came in the house I noticed she had cuts on both knees. But she did not worry about them. She worried about them."

With Marlene was Rita Neundorf, a girl friend. They were returning together from Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla.

"Marlene kept asking Rita if she was okay," Mrs. Archdecan added. "She thought Rita was badly hurt."

Miss Neundorf suffered burns to her right hand. They were not serious.

Christmas Party By Jim Uttley Better Each Year

TRENTON. (Special.) — Jim Uttley's annual Christmas party for the kids in old St. Andrew's hall seems to get better every year. Last night despite adverse weather conditions a large crowd of people from Trenton and Belleville gathered at the Community Club for the usual good program of carol singing and general jollification. At midnight Santa Claus arrived in full regalia accompanied by Jack Inglis, Inspector of sleigh bells and numerous prizes for the lucky draw. Prizes this year were also distributed among the membership and their guests.

Conspicuous by his absence was member in good standing, Edward Hanton, of Belleville, who was unable to attend because of injuries received in a recent motor car accident. The popular out-of-town member always pitches in to help make the Uttley party one of the top attractions of the Christmas season.

WILL BE CHARGED

Ernest A. Bell, 67, of R.R. 1, Trenton, driver of the car, that hit police constable Jack Graham on Trenton Bridge early Wednesday will be charged with driving a car while his operator's permit was under suspension, Chief Constable F. J. Taylor reported today. Graham was directing traffic at the intersection in front of the Bank of Commerce. He was standing in the centre of Dundas street facing north. The car travelling east struck the constable with the left front fender knocking him heavily to the pavement. Injured was badly bruised left hip and lower leg. His face was skinned on the road when he fell. He was rushed to bed at his home here today. He is expected to be confined to the week-end. It was dark and the pavement was wet at the time of the accident.

Crashes Caused By Slippery Roads

Snow-packed and icy streets resulted in a number of motor vehicle accidents in the city during the night and early today.

Damage of approximately $500 resulted to a car driven by Wayne C. Read, R.R. 1, Belleville, early last evening when his vehicle crashed into the rear of a truck, which had stopped in front of him on North Front St.

Read was following a Moira-Sidney truck driven by William Dawson, of Carrying Place, when the truck was forced to slow to avoid striking a parked vehicle.

Shortly after midnight a car driven by Wesley L. Liddle, of Shannonville, and a car by Charles Rand, Bristol West, collided on West Dundas Street, causing an estimated $50 damage to both vehicles.

In a mix-up on Station Street cars driven by Conrad S. Patterson, Cedar Street, and Robert E. Brenner, North Park Street, skidded on the icy pavement with about $175 damage resulting when the vehicles slid together.

Driver Escapes As Transport Takes to Ditch

TRENTON (Special) — The driver of a Smith transport truck escaped without a scratch from the wreckage of his cab early today when his vehicle left the road on Highway 2 about three miles west of here.

The truck is believed to have gone into a skid on the greasy surface of the highway, plunging into a ditch. The impact of the crash toppled the trailer across the cab and crushed it.

Provincial police were immediately identified. Brighton OPP investigated.

Ernie Bateman Named President For Sixth Term

W. E. "Ernie" Bateman of Hunter Road was unanimously named president of the Hastings County Cheese Board for the sixth consecutive year at the annual meeting held this week at Stirling. It is Mr. Bateman's sixth consecutive term as president. He is also a member of board of directors of the provincial organization.

Vice president is Alan Ketcheson of Madoc and directors include H. M. Coulter for Hungerford; Arthur Bird for Belleville; Jack Morrison, Rawdon; Cecil Ketcheson, Thurlow; Sam Uhlolohn, Tyendinaga; Ed. Laizer, Tyendinaga; John Bell, Marmora, and Edward Robinson, Madoc.

Better sales of cheese during the past year had resulted in less cheese being in storage than in former years, according to W. J. Price, provincial president. The British market had been normal and local sales had increased, due chiefly to concentrated advertising and better marketing methods. Current price is 38c at the factory.

Only main cheese factory in the county, Maple Leaf Plant in Rawdon, was closed this year, in spite of number of factories closed in previous years, cheese production this year was up, it was stated.

Present at the meeting, all of whom spoke briefly were, Bleecker Arnold of Campbellford, vice president; cheese instructors — Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Lamb, Ernest Henderson of Picton; George Pollard, Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P. for Hastings West, and Roscoe Robson, M.P.P. for Hastings East.

Bank of Montreal in City Introduces Round-the-Clock Deposit Service

A "round-the-clock" deposit service has been introduced to Belleville with today's opening of a night depository at the Bank of Montreal office here. The new deposit service is now available to local business people after regular banking hours, seven days a week.

Under the new system, each night-depository customer is given a key to the depository and a small canvas bag fitted with a lock. Upon making his deposit, customers place the bag in the opening. The bag then slides down a chute and comes to rest in a safekeeping unit situated inside the bank. Later, night-depository customers collect the bags during regular banking hours and make their deposits in the usual manner. If customers prefer, the bank will undertake to open the bag and make the relative deposit entries to the customer's account.

"Service stations, restaurants, food markets, theatres, hotels, and similar late-hour businesses will find the system particularly beneficial," stated B. of M. branch manager S. E. Goodwin.

The installation of a night depository at the Belleville branch is part of the B. of M.'s plan to provide many of its offices from coast to coast with the new system.

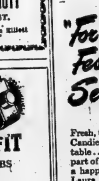
Heavy Layer Of Slush Coats Streets, Walks

Hail, rain and snow dropped a precipitation total of almost three inches on the Belleville district last night.

Registrations show 2.9 inches of snowfall and .10 inch of rain.

Following the downpour conditions underfoot in the city this morning were far from comfortable for both pedestrians and motorists. Heavy layers of slush coated the streets and sidewalks, clogging drains and forming pools at curbsides. Ice and sleet also continue to descend on the Moira River, clothing into a thick coat across the surface of the water in the downtown area.



For the week-end the weatherman forecasts rain "Cloudy today and Sunday. Occasional rain or snow ending tonight or Sunday. Southwesterlies this afternoon and Sunday; colder."

Price on Head Of Naughty Cat On East Hill

There is a dangerous yellow cat on the East Hill with a price on its head.

This terrible Tom, abandoned by his owner about a year and a half ago, has been attacking other cats in the Williams, Ann and Bridge area between Bridge and Queen Streets. Maulings have become so frequent and the attacker so elusive, that residents of the area have organized a trapping party, headed by Mrs. F. R. Budden, 223 William St., and Mrs. Nora Earle, 225 Ann St.

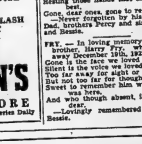
Dog catcher Charles Thorn, on the trail of the cat for more than a month, has been unable to catch it. It is easy enough to find but Mrs. Earle says every time

The cat, cornered by Thorn and Mrs. Budden earlier this week, escaped again.

Mrs. Budden and Mrs. Budden placed an advertisement in the Ontario Intelligencer offering a $5.00 reward for the cat.

"It is a large, dirty, yellow cat," said Mrs. Budden, "it has been a good cat at one time but is just a naughty boy now."

To claim the reward captors must take the prisoner alive to Mrs. Budden's home at 223 William St. "It is the right cat." If the cat is not actually the right one there will be no reward for the marksman.



Once captured the cat will be given to Charles Thorn for disposal and if it is not claimed in the three-day waiting period, it will be destroyed.

The cat is believed to be hold up under a house on William St.

HALEY. — In loving memory of a dear father, Thomas Haley, who passed away December 18th, 1952. Sadly missed and remembered.
Keep his memory green.
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory lives back every year.
—Remembered by Jack and family. D18

HALEY. — In loving memory of a dear father, Thomas Haley, who passed away one year ago today, December 18th, 1953.
A month we cannot forget,
A month we shall ever do,
We never fail to think of you.
Sweet thoughts of you we hear,
Keep our memory ever dear.

CRONKRIGHT. — In fond and loving memory of Ruth, beloved wife and true companion of Harry Cronkright, who passed away December 18th, 1951.
Remembered on her golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain;
To those we love we must be kind,
In the greatest sorrow of one's heart,
The thought to comfort never part.
Memories are golden chains
The more of those happy days
When we were together.
—Lovingly remembered by husband Ernest. D18

CRONKRIGHT. — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Ruth, who passed away December 18th, 1951.

But to us who lost and loved her
The memory never grows old.

THORN. — In loving memory of a dear dad, who passed away December 18th, 1950.
Without a farewell he fell asleep,
The tender heart that ceased to beat,
We have the truth to cheer us,
Our father is at rest.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears shed that only God can see,
For memory keeps you ever near us,
Though you died (sad) years ago.
—Always remembered by son Bill and daughter-in-law Ruth. D18

THORN. — In loving memory of Tom Thorn, who died December 18th, 1950.

THORN. — In loving memory of our father, Thomas Thorn, who passed away December 18th, 1950.
His charming ways and smile,
His cheerful heart and mind,

His many deeds and days of pain
His troubled nights are past.
Gone to that land that shines so fair,
Gone with the earth or sorrow and care.
Resting in those hands that did their best
Gone, dear ones, gone to rest.

FRY. — In loving memory of a dear brother, Harry Fry, who passed away December 19th, 1932.

Memories are golden chains
Of one who once was here,
And even though absent, is just so dear.

Edward Smith Injured as Car Leaves Highway

Edward Smith, No. 6 R.D., Trenton, suffered possible leg fractures and three concussions of the ear when he lost driving escaped with little more than a shaking up when his car left Highway 2 highway near Bayside, ripped out five guide rail posts and knocked over two six-inch maple trees.

Smith was taken to Trenton RCAF Hospital where he was to be x-rayed for possible fractures. Provincial police also from No. 6 R.D. suffered minor cuts in his head.

Provincial Constable Graves said the westbound car went off the highway on a curve about a mile east of Bayside. The car was badly damaged.

The Bayside accident, which occurred about four o'clock this morning was the most serious of a series of highway mishaps during the night.

Two cars, one driven by Nicholas Gallant, R.R. 1, Trenton, and the other by Ross LaMorre, of the same address, collided at the intersection of No. 33 road and No. 2 highway. No injuries were reported.

Shortly before midnight another car slued into the ditch on the farm on No. 2 highway while on the 4th concession of Sidney a car driven by Keith Fry, R.R. 2, Belleville, went into the ditch.

This morning a highway transport went into the ditch near the OSD west of the city and at midmorning wrecking crews were still working to get the heavy tractor trailer assembly back onto the pavement.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

FOR ALL THE SAINTS WHO FROM THEIR LABORS REST

For all the saints who from their labors rest,
Who Thee by faith before the world confessed,
Thy name, O Jesus, be forever blest.

Alleluia! Alleluia!

Thou wast their rock, their fortress and their might;
Thou, Lord, their captain in the well-fought fight;
Thou, in the darkness drear, their one true light.

Alleluia! Alleluia!

But lo! there breaks a yet more glorious day;
The saints, triumphant rise in bright array;
The King of Glory passes on his way.

Alleluia! Alleluia!

From earth's wide bounds, from ocean's farthest coast,
Thro' gates of pearl streams in the countless host,
Singing to Father, Son and Holy Ghost,

Alleluia! Alleluia!

What would the world's treasury of sacred song be without the hymn gems of Bishop William Walsham How?

He gave us that magnificent song, "O Word of God Incarnate", and that great soul-winning hymn, "O Jesus, Thou Art Standing", which seems today, after constant use by many generations of Christians, to be gaining rather than waning in popularity.

There is another of his songs which is still in wide use today and which many hymn lovers consider his masterpiece. It is the one whose verses are reproduced above and it was written nearly a century ago to be sung in Bishop How's own church as an All Saints' Day service. It was first published for t'e public in 1864 in a collection entitled "Hymn For All S a i n t s' Day, And Other Hymns".

Bishop How was one of the Church of England's most distinguished eighteenth century leaders. He was born at Shrewsbury, England, in 1823, and, after being ordained to the ministry in 1846, he served his denomination in many capacities. He was named bishop in 1888 and served in this high office first at Bedford, and later at Wakefield.

His hymn, "O Jesus, Thou Art Standing", was suggested by a picture painted by the artist, Holman Hunt, entitled "The Light Of The World." Mr. Hunts' canvas was inspired by a Bible text, a message of Jesus in the third chapter of the book of Revelation:

"Behold, I stand at the door and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me".

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

SYMBOLS

Egypt yields proof that some species of birds have been in existence for at least 5,350 years. Examining the discovery of a tomb at Gizeh, we see the portraits of ducks, sparrows, owls, and so on in the inscription that is cut in the stone. These are symbols or hieroglyphic characters used in the earliest picture writing of ancient Egypt.

The date of the tomb is about 2,000 B.C. It is known that hieroglyphics date back as far as 4,000 B.C., and it is highly probable that some of the writings found, in which birds were among other symbols, are that old.

To the ornithologist, the interesting part of this is that these symbols look surprisingly like our modern birds. One letter in the hieroglyphic alphabet is unmistakably a heron, another is a falcon, there is a duck at rest, and a duck with wings spread as though about to fly.

IBIS, SACRED BIRD

An Ibis not only stood for a letter of the alphabet, but the bird itself was sacred and prayers were offered to it. More than 2,000 Ibis mummies have been dug up in the district near one of the pyramids in Egypt. Although Ibises do not live in Canada, there are white Ibises in the United States, and scarlet Ibises in South America.

The glossy Ibis, a very dark bird, is widely distributed from southern Europe south through most of Africa, and east through southern Asia and the Indies to Australia. It occurs in the western hemisphere only in Florida, along the coast of the Gulf of Mexico, and on the coast of Brazil; but a few stray north from time to time as far as southern Canada.

This is the famous member of the Stork family, which spends certain months each year in Egypt. Last September, a wanderer was reported to have been found near Cambridge, England.

The ancient Egyptians also had sacred whose heads, at least, were in the form of certain birds. The god Thoth, said to be very wise, had the head of an Ibis, and two other gods, Horus and Harakate, had the heads of hawks.

An American ornithologist who visited King Tutankhamen's tomb says that "the feather-color portrayal is so accurate there that it is possible to classify species of ducks".

For Parents Only

Here Are Tips On Buying Toys

By NANCY CLEAVER

Do you find it easy to choose your child's playthings? Most mothers and dads find shopping for toys quite a task. This is one time in the family budget which cannot be looked after in a hurry.

Christmas is approaching and parents are beginning to wonder about which toys they will buy for their children. Toys from many places, far and near, are once more appearing on the store counters. The great number and the wide variety are often confusing. The high price of many toys, the hasty construction of others, also makes it difficult to select wisely and well. Before going shopping for playthings, parents do well to become familiar with the following questions which form an excellent "Test for Toys."

IS TOY SAFE?

"Is this toy safe?" A little child who is cutting teeth is bound to put articles into his mouth. Will the paint come off and will it be injurious? Are there sharp points which might hurt the child or rough edges which might cut him? Are there small parts which might be detached by exploring fingers, such as a wheel off a little truck, to be careful, if a small child can swallow it.

"Is this toy durable?" Toys particularly those for small boys must be sturdily made to stand rough handling. Part of the fun of playing, is the freedom to play hard without too much adult supervision. If the toy is so fragile that the child must be constantly warned to be careful, it is an annoyance rather than a pleasure to both parents and child.

POOR INVESTMENT

A toy which will not stand up under use, which breaks or falls apart, is a poor investment. Children become very fond of individual playthings and they feel badly about a favorite toy which must be discarded before long because it has failed to meet this test.

"Is it a practical toy for our home?" Parents who are living in crowded quarters must consider whether a toy is too large to be conveniently put away on the toy shelf or in the toy cupboard. A family which includes an elderly relative or where there is sickness makes a toy such as a whistle or trumpet impossible.

If there is no cement sidewalk or level path with a hard surface, a child with a bicycle or a scooter has not much chance to use them toys for outdoor play, in muddy weather. Sometimes it is possible to pedal a "trike" in a shed or barn if there is a safe area for play there.

TOYS FOR AGE

"Is it suitable for my child at his present age and state of development?" Up to the age of two the majority of children play most of the time by themselves. The first toys: a rattle, a rubber animal or doll or ball, are very simple. Shortly after a little tot starts to walk she is fascinated by small wooden wagons or cars or an animal on wheels which he can pull on a string.

After the second birthday, a child begins to need the companionship of other children. He now needs play materials not only for solitary play, but for social play with other youngsters. It is difficult to find a better plaything than bricks, for construction play. Little girls have great fun playing with their dolls, dressing and undressing them and taking dolly out in a carriage. A small boy loves a soft cuddly doll, and stuffed animals too.

These four simple tests for toys are helpful for parents as they enter the Christmas month. An outstanding leader in child education has pointed out: "Play is a child's work"—and so your choices of his toys, which are his "tools for work", are important. Best luck to you with your shopping!

A Lift For Living

What Christmas Reveals

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Christmas cheer. These words suggest different things to different persons. Some people think that Christmas cheer can only be found in a convivial companionship around a flowing bowl. Others think of family parties and friends gathered around gaily lighted trees. Others think of the glow of goodwill which radiates more widely at Christmas than at any other time of the year.

But let's dig a little more deeply. If you and I were given the privilege of having just one question answered by the Ruler of the Universe, what question would we ask?

Would we ask, "Will I live after death?" or "Will I succeed in life?" or "Will there be another World War?" Those are all questions which might leap to our minds, but think it over. Is any one of them inclusive enough?

One of our foremost thinkers once said that if he had just one question to ask the Sphinx, it would be this, "Is the universe friendly?" If we could be sure of an affirmative answer, our anxiety on other questions would be relieved.

SORE AFRAID

Like the shepherds, we are sore afraid. This has been called the Age of Anxiety. We are more beset by fears than our forefathers were. But the Christmas event breaks through clouds of confusion and consternation to say that the universe means something and means well.

Two years ago I was in the Holy land at Christmas time. In the brief time I had I could not make the necessary arrangements to visit Bethlehem. I went as near to it as the boundary of Israel would permit. There I stood and looked across the bed of dry land separating Israel from Jordan. A soldier with fixed bayonet was stationed near me. I thought how far at this seemed from the spirit of love and peace which Christ came to give.

And then I remembered how even darker the world at the time of the Nativity. Joseph and Mary were going up to be taxed. Taxes were more unpleasant then, now, because the people had no say in them.

HOSTILE HEROD

The inequalities of life were there. The inn was crowded with those who could afford it. The poor carpenter and Mary were forced to seek shelter in a stable.

The shadow of the hostile Herod was there. Danger lurked around the Bethlehem Babe.

Yet with all these dark features, the general impression of the Bethlem is that of goodness. The factors left stamped on our minds are not those of heartless folk. Our attention is held by the mother, the loving Joseph, the humble adoring shepherds, the reverent wise men. The scene turns our minds to the things that are simple, gracious, lovely, the things that heal and build.

Christmas is the revelation not only of God but also of man. It brings to view the divine spark of goodness in the human heart. It is the time when truth takes on its loveliest forms and speaks its simplest language, when love becomes articulate in accents which little children understand.

RESTORES FAITH

Christmas not only brings the world round to the day when Christ was born, but it brings to birth the Christ-spirit in man. It reminds us that the universe is friendly and therefore restores our faith in God. It reveals that man is better than he often seems and thereby revives our faith in man.

At Christmas we think of Christ as our Savior through a saving faith and a saving hope. Christmas not only restores our faith that God can come to us in Christ, but also it imparts the hope that we can come to God through Christ.

We all know the strength hope puts into a person, how it gladdens the patient on the bed of pain, how it illumines the prisoner's cell. Hope dries the tears of sorrow and puts light in lovers' eyes. As Saint Paul said: "We are saved by hope."

SAVING HOPE

And certainly, we need a saving hope at this time. The gray days of cynicism through which we are passing seem to depress men's hopes even more than the dark days of two world wars. This continuing cold war seems to be freezing men's hearts. Even if it does not end in a hot atomic war, Also Christ was born to save us not only through a saving faith and a saving hope, but through a saving love.

There is a deep significance in the fact that Christmas is the great home-coming day. The atmosphere of home and children is most congenial for celebrating the birth of Christ.

Despite the cold war, Christmas reminds us that "now abideth faith, love, these, three,—and, the greatest of these is love."

THE PEARL HARBOR MUDDLE

Rear Admiral Robert A. Theobald (USN, Ret.) in a book entitled "The Final Secret of Pearl Harbor" charged that the late President F. D. Roosevelt "wanted the Japanese surprise attack on Pearl Harbor," that he "planned" anese surprise attack on Pearl Harbor," that he "planned to decoy the Japanese into such an attack," and that he ordered or suggested that the heads of the U.S. war and navy departments withhold information from the commanders in Hawaii "practically all of the vital information concerning wall "practically all of the vital information concerning the developing Japanese situation," and specifically that the commanders were given no last minute warning of the Japanese rejection of-an American reply to Japanese demands.

Capt. T. B. Kittredge (USNR, Ret.) has now produced a documented refutation of Admiral Theobald's charges, which was published in a recent issue of "U.S. News and World Report."

Before a joint congressional committee of inquiry on December 17, 1946, Admiral H. R. Kimmel, commander-in-chief, Pacific, said, that he did not feel that any-thing in the messages and information he received in November indicated "the probability of an attack on Hawaii." This information included a message sent November 27 which commenced with the sentence "This dispatch is to be considered a War Warning." It included information sent on December 3 that Japanese diplomatic and consular posts in many cities, including Washington, had been ordered to destroy their codes and ciphers, which usually would be interpreted by the recipient as generally a prelude to war. It did not include the information, known to Kimmel, that the Honolulu consulate was beginning to Tokyo on ship movements at Pearl Harbor and the location of vessels in the harbor. Admiral Kimmel considered this information most important and transmitted. After the event, he read it and came to this clear indication that Japan planned an attack on Pearl Harbor. Was his attitude of confusion and that of Gen. Short, Army commander, such as would have made it likely that either would so have interpreted this information if they had received it in September? Capt. Kittredge's articles gives facts which should assist us in answering that question.

The air attack on Pearl Harbor came at dawn on December 7. It is necessary to fix the time a little more definitely. The issue of the Honolulu Star-Intelligencer for December 7 carried a report from Washington saying that the first waves of Japanese planes struck at 2.40 p.m., Washington time, which would be 8.10 a.m. in Hawaii with EDT, or 1.40 p.m. EST. This statement is wrong. Capt. Kittredge's statement that Secretary of the Navy Knox, just after 1.50 p.m., received the following message "Air Raid on Pearl Harbor. This is not drill." This message would place the first attack at 7.40 a.m. Hawaii time, which agrees with the description of a dawn attack, being approximately the time at which the sun would rise at that season of the year.

Capt. Kittredge points out that a midget submarine was sighted south and west of Oahu four hours before the attack. Destroyers searched, found other submarines and attacked them.

"For reasons not explicable reports of these encounters did not reach the naval command post at Pearl Harbor until the air attack was begun," he writes.

"Similar episodes," he continues, "marked the approach of Japanese planes from the carrier force some 300 miles north of Oahu. Observation 'Zero' planes were sent over Oahu at least an hour before the wave of bombers arrived. The approach of these observation flights was noted on the Army radar screen but no alert followed as it was suggested that these were perhaps planes from the U.S. Navy carriers returning to Pearl Harbor."

"When I personally visited Honolulu in 1947 one of my University of California colleagues, Royal A. Vitousek, (class of 1912) told me of his own experience that same Sunday morning. He had gone out early in his own private plane to give a lesson in flying to his son. Suddenly, at about 7.00 a.m. he observed in the path of two flights of planes with Japanese markings. He promptly dove under them and returned to his airfield. When he telephoned to Army and Navy officers they refused to believe him. No action was taken, nor any alert sent to the Army air force commands.

"At another time, Vitousek, trained as an Army radar post, who had remained after the official shut-down hour of the post (i.e., 7.00 a.m.), observed blips on the radar screens indicating that a large number of planes were approaching from north of the island. When this report was telephoned through to the air warning centre no regular officer was still on duty. A substitute who was present knew that a flight of Flying Fortresses was due to arrive from California that same morning. So, again, no notice was taken of this report and no alert was sounded.

"If the actual presence and sighting of Japanese submarines and planes in the vicinity of Pearl Harbor failed to warn the Hawaiian commands and staffs of immediate danger, in the early morning hours of 7 December, one is entitled to wonder whether a new verbal warning message from the War or Navy Departments between 4.00 and 7.00 a.m. would have had any greater effect. No Hawaiian commander could have been told only that Japan was rejecting the American reply to their demands of 20 November, and that the note announcing this diplomatic gesture was to be delivered to the Secretary of State at one p.m., or seven-thirty a.m. Hawaiian time."

One is indeed entitled to wonder. The sense of security enjoyed by the Hawaiian commanders, their officers and men seems to have been so strong that it could have been shattered by nothing less alarming than a bomb—which is exactly what happened.

BEST

What's best today will bettered be.
There's always more to learn to do,
With each achievement men can see
Old methods giving way to new.

And sometimes stays content to rest.
In all accomplishments there seems
Never to be a final best.

From good to better we go.
From best to best we tread,
Yet in the future this we know:
The best waits always just ahead.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

DECEMBER 18, 1934

The merchants report that business is excellent; the big rush, however, is expected next week.

The members of the staff of the Bell Shirt Company were at home to their friends last evening in the Moose Hall; and were their seventh Christmas party. Music for dancing was furnished by the Ambassadors orchestra. Miss Jean Baker, Miss Catherine Murphy and Mrs. Williams composed the committee in charge. Mr. Kelleher was in charge of the euchre playing and the prize winners were: ladies' first, Miss M. Carr; second, Dorothy Quinney; third, Ethel Risher. Men's first, Mr. Lorne Moreau; second, Mr. Arthur Quinney; third, Mr. Harry Eves. The door prize was won by Mr. Don Hurst and the spotlight dance prize was won by Mr. T. Maxwell and Miss Dorothy Mason.

Mr. James A. Roy will celebrate the 90th anniversary of his birth tomorrow and many friends will be pleased to extend to him congratulations and good wishes. He was born in this city and has resided here all his life.

The Rev. W. C. Swayne, of Bonarlaw, was in town today.

30-YEARS AGO

DECEMBER 18, 1924

Mr. R. U. Brown is spending a few days in Toronto.

The schools will close tomorrow for the Christmas vacation and will reopen on January 5th.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lloyd, who have resided in the 9th concession of Thurlow township for some years, have come to live in this city. Mrs. Lloyd has been cheesemaker at the Zion Cheese Factory for many years.

The departure of the family is much regretted by the community where they lived and prior to their departure a large number of friends gathered at their home and presented them with numerous gifts. The Rev. R. G. Thompson acted as chairman and read the address, which was signed by B. Sayers and W. C. Ketcheson, who read it, and Mrs. Ketcheson.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Lake, of Belleville, spent Sunday with Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Henry.

Mr. Peter Marshall is home from Toronto University to spend the Christmas vacation.

40-YEARS AGO

DECEMBER 18, 1914

The 15th Regiment Band will hold a Christmas tree entertainment and band concert in the armouries on Christmas afternoon. The program will consist of selections rendered especially for the children and every child will receive a present. The entertainment is endeavoring to get a complete list of the names of children who might not otherwise have a visit from Santa Claus. Citizens are urgently requested to send the names of children to whom they would like to be visited by Santa Claus to Charles Hannay, manager of the band.

Pinkish, star hockey player here last season, will address the men's meeting at the YMCA on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. C. H. Elliott, West Bridge Street, who has been a teacher in Bridge St. Methodist Church Sunday School for thirty years, is retiring and the girls of her class recently presented her with an address of appreciation of the many services she has rendered the Sunday School and especially to those who over the years have been members of her class.

Trucks and The Railroads

(By Grant Dexter, writing from Ottawa, in the Winnipeg Free Press)

How badly are the trucks hurting the railways?

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics shows the first registration of commercial vehicles in Canada in Quebec in 1914. There were 584. Ontario registrations date from 1916 when there were 3,246 vehicles. Manitoba dates from 1922, with 2,402 vehicles.

The motor truck, as distinct from other commercial vehicles, first appeared in the registration lists in 1924 with 54,235 trucks in all of Canada. The rate of increase since then is indicated in the following table:

	Motor Trucks
1923	54,235
1933	153,601
1934	296,116
1946	355,096
1949	545,877
1951	618,071
1952	692,758
1953	770,328
1953	894,159

It will be noted that in recent years trucks have been increasing in numbers almost as much as in the first decade of registration, 1923-30.

Of course, these registrations include all kinds of trucks and cover all their uses. They include trucks that operate purely within towns and cities, trucks that include company owned trucks used in private service. Of all these trucks, however, that in recent the major importance to the railways —the for-hire trucks which operate from city to city and over substantial mileages.

There are no accurate statistics on these long-haul, for-hire trucks. The information is collected by experts such as W. T. Jackman, author of the Railway Association of Canada, and the heads of the truckers' associations.

The reason for this lack is obvious. Any one, without warning, do a bit of long haul work. In some cases it is difficult even to prevent this, but over the country as a whole it is not. There are about 7,000 trucking companies and their operations are so fluid that they defy analysis. The smallest of these companies operates a single truck; the largest operates 1,700 trucks.

The informed guess is that about 70,000 trucks are in the long haul business and of these perhaps 33,000 are for-hire trucks. Perhaps 2,000 are for-hire trucks in direct and constant competition with the railways. The balance is privately owned. The number in both categories is increasing rapidly.

Early in the proceedings of the royal commission, in its report to a committee of the United States Senate, it appears to show that in June, 1954, 32,500 fully loaded trucks, carrying Canadian goods, between points of origin and destination in Canada, passed through the state of Michigan. This is independent of the commission, which operates ferries across the Detroit river, and is not exempting from the statistics. It is said there are now about 40 trucking companies operating in Canada which provide service to Manitoba and points west thereof. These companies own between them 180 large freight-carrying trucks, 57 refrigeration trucks and 83 automobile transport trucks.

On average each truck makes four round trips per month, Mr. Taylor's figures work out at only 2,500 passages through Windsor, which indicates the extent to which long distance trucking is carried on casually, as opportunity offers and by small operators.

Two additional facts complete this survey. Total railway revenues in Canada are $1,350 million. An estimate of total truck revenues in 1953, agreed to by the railways and the truckers, is $500 millions. Not all of this is lost to the railways. A substantial part is city delivery where the horse and wagon have been displaced. The railway statisticians estimated (and the truckers do not dissent) that of these total revenues something over $300 millions were earned by for-hire, long-haul trucks. But again not all of this can properly be regarded as revenue taken from the railways. Some part of this long haul traffic would move by trucks, regardless of cost, nor reasons of convenience and speed.

S. W. Fairweather, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, in charge of research and development, estimated that the trucks are taking $150 millions of revenue from the railways annually while the railways, given equal opportunity to compete, could recapture.

This, of course, is a very large and valuable amount of traffic. As it is all high-paying freight, possession of it would certainly brighten the financial outlook of the railways and correspondingly darken that of the trucks.

No one disputed Mr. Fairweather's figure. One reason, perhaps is that nobody yet agreed changes now in operation, the railways would have clipped nearly a full score of millions off the trucks. This is not an estimate, it is fact. But the railways have not yet been got properly started yet.

Kangaroo Soup Sold at Last

(New York Herald Tribune)

Approximately fifteen years ago the manager of the Hotel D'Angleterre in Copenhagen, Denmark, became enthusiastic about genuine kangaroo tail soup and laid in a supply of tails from his friends in Australia at considerable expense.

Over the course of years the soul and genuine kangaroo tail soup at the Hotel D'Angleterre has become quite embarrassed.

Two weeks ago Emperor Haile Selassie, of Ethiopia, visiting Copenhagen, sent word to the hotel manager that he would like to give a banquet for King Frederik and Queen Ingrid and eighty others. But he insisted on having genuine kangaroo tail soup served to him.

Why, of course, replied the manager, he could produce the happiest man in the world at the moment.

Montrealers Stimulating

(Montreal Gazette)

Dr. A. W. Trueman, head of the National Film Board, after a visit to Montreal and Ottawa, has confirmed a theory long held by Montrealers, that the two cities have refrained from putting forward this theory about the air. Dr. Trueman said, but Dr. Trueman has publicly exposed it so it now has the added (unlawful) fear of committing lesemajeste, impertinence or common sense.

Dr. Trueman told a motion picture producers meeting here this week that he found the film studios of its own will not be the most important industry in the world. Except when it moves to Montreal in 1958. "Our own artists," he said, "have the greatest opportunities for beneficial association, with a large number of interesting and stimulating people."

Before Dr. Trueman becomes quite lyrical on the subject, he will go on to tell members of the Government agencies of the two Canadas assembled in Montreal, this city of interesting and stimulating people, that they have a vital part in the interest, they burned down the parliament buildings nearly a century ago, Queen Victoria felt stimulated enough to order the capital moved to a safe distance from Montreal.

Montrealers have kept their distance ever since.

Now, with the removal of the N.F.B. from Ottawa to Montreal, the process seems to be going into reverse. It can be assumed that the new building building will be fireproof.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

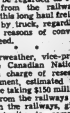
ARE WE FACING A GOLDEN AGE?

Many men's colleges and preparatory schools all over the country are going to be up against a heavy expense in the next few years —they are going to be hard put to keep beds. The beds they bought in some years ago are too short for this generation of tall boys. Probably by the year 2000, any man under six feet in height will be considered by his diminutive stature.

We can well believe this because those of us who have traveled through Europe recall seeing the suits of armor worn by the knights of old which in most cases would just about fit a modern 13-year-old boy.

We stand at the threshold of a new world of bigger men. Is it unreasonable to suppose that in addition to bigness of body there may be corresponding bigness of soul and mind. Is it not likely that we are around us so unbelievably in the last 100 years? Who would have the last 50—that we are often unaware that we are living in an area so astounding that nothing in the past can compare with it.

The Bible is full of promises of a Golden Age. May it be that we stand on the threshold of such an age? We are always worrying about the atomic bomb destroying civilization and precipitating another Dark Age. God with His little finger can change the whole course of history and make today the beginning of a Golden Age.



Who knows, maybe He is doing just that.

Personal Health Talks

LONG DISTANCE DIAGNOSES

In certain circumstances it is permissable and commendable for a doctor to conjecture or guess what the patient's trouble may be and to prescribe accordingly. For instance in response to a call in behalf of someone taken ill at sea.

Dr. Brady

In ordinary practice such long distance diagnosis and blind or absent treatment is unethical and reprehensible — or it was when medicine was a profession.

Subjecting a child or other member of the family to such guesswork in lieu of proper medical care is a reflection on the intelligence of the head of the family, at the very least, and in some interesting examples — and I shall if the facts are challenged by competent authorities.

When, as is often the case, the prescription is given by the absent healer calls for barbiturate or other dangerous dope sometimes in too large doses and too often doses.

When such tragedy happens the head of the family, who failed to provide proper medical care, is entitled to public rebuke for not knowing any better. The unethical practitioner who gave the prescription about as shameful as the layman who failed to provide proper medical care.

Nobody should be discouraged by all this. A few shrewd operator who got into business a month ago like to call his racket a "clinic" (25-state had just ceased licensing "clinics" that are not bona fide charitiy institutions), has nevertheless built up a highly profitable business by distributing $5000 snow who spend too much time on their lethal tuberculin. The poor souls gladly pay fancy prices for the charlatan's prescriptions—when they have to renew each week—because the medicine does the work even when they cheat the diet. Besides reducing rolls of fat the medicine intoxicates and keeps the feeling fine and dandy for a few weeks. But it also causes insomnia — and the insomnia calls for barbiturate or other "sedative" but before long, if some responsible person doesn't call a halt to, the foolishness the victim is likely to have a serious breakdown. Unfortunately, in the early stages of the development while the victim is high on the drug, she may persuade another friend to try the treatment—they have only to follow the latest state name, address and how many pounds overweight. The unethical practitioner doing druggist to fill the prescription and deliver it to the customer. The customer receives by mail some impressive but not hard to follow instructions about diet.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is much more to Christmas trees than meets the eye. They are becoming not only a big business but highly interesting and important. The Lands and Forests Department of Ontario, which sells the Scotch pine seed to the prospective farmers of the province for a nominal sum, tells me that a fellow-citizen worker in Ottawa who, looking forward very intelligently to the day she would be married and settled, invested her small savings seven or eight years ago in a dozen Christmas tree plots. She has now the happiest man in the world at the moment.

Apart from the bringing up into production of practically a thousand acres of average quality of the land is being steadily improved. But perhaps far more important than the money is the fact that from the owner's point of view is the enormous value of labor in investment. She has already counted cheer, particularly when, for a period of a great variety of birds on her property, and it is serving as a life refuge for the birds surrounding her. No doubt as the income from the trees enlarges, it will be not only to replanting of the cropped acres, but into rebuilding the whole property. She will have a country place for her retirement, besides a valuable investment, as they say.

The Christmas tree industry has in fact made a number of increases in waste land values; sandy hills that were not worth $10 an acre are commanding $20 an acre today. Many a farm that had been abandoned is now alive and has these acres planted to pine. and trusted the tree crop income. And it has been, in some instances, a marked improvement in the water resources. Wells that used to go dry in summer remain full. The Christmas tree industry is not, after all, a one-week stand.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

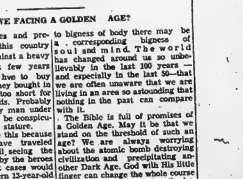
THE UNFORGETTABLE SIN

I have been reading a most interesting and revealing book, called "The Woman Within," being the autobiography of Ellen Glasgow, one of our finest American writers, who died a decade or so ago. It revealed a woman of the keenest "perceptions and sensibilities," one who could not bear, nor witness, cruelty in any form. Apparently she had cruelty commands herself.

Miss Glasgow ha this to say: "I never can remember when the thought first formed in my mind, but I do recall that, all through my childhood, and strongly as I feel now, in after years, that cruelty is the unforgivable sin against the Holy Ghost."

One of the main reasons why cruelty is diabolical is because of its cruelty. Nothing in this world is more cruel than the cruelty practiced in war—and they grow more so during each new war.

I'm glad that there are societies and organizations that work to lessen the cruelty to dogs, horses, beasts, and children. They deserve the support of us all.



How comforting and dumb animal and rural reacts to kindness and consideration. I once visited the interior of one of the cages in the naturalist, near Estes Park, Colorado. They squirrels were so tame that you would hold them in his hand and they would crawl up his arm and sit on the back of his neck! Their perfect confidence proved to animals. Mr. Mills cried applied to 'animals. Mr. Mills died several years ago but I remember him as one of the kindest of earth and its animals. It's an inspiration to me when I think of him.

I often think of the cruelty in the wholesale killing of song birds by farmed Passenger pigeon. The pigeons got so numerous that they did vast damage, but they were beautiful birds and enough should have been protected to have perhaps left a few of them not totally extinct.

Feed the birds in the Winter and they will repay their kindness by their gratitude in song during the Springtime and Summer.

In addition to the party children were given presents and special Christmas treats. Members of the Lions Club and Thompson's Ambulance Service transported children to and from the Y. MARMORA

H-S Assoc. Enjoys Yuletide Program

MARMORA — The December Home and School Association's meeting was held in the public school on Wednesday evening with a good attendance of parents. The president, Mrs. F. Boldyr presided.

After the meeting had opened the secretary, Miss Margaret Roushorn, read the minutes of the last meeting, which were confirmed. The treasurer's report given by Mrs. John Vanvolkenburg, showed a favorable balance on hand, and was adopted.

The attendance of parents and grandparents was taken by Principal E. C. Prentice with the honors going to Mr. Watson's room. This concluded the business part of the meeting.

A Christmas program followed. Jane Glover and Bonnie Johnson led off with "Jingle Bells," as a pianoforte duet; Ronald Gray recited "The Night Before Christmas"; a quartet, comprising Joyce Campion, Susan McKay, Sandra Metkiejohn and Lucy Olsen sang "Silver Bells"; Peggy Vanzickle and Brenda Wells played "Star of the East" as a pianoforte duet; Mr. Norman Derry gave a reading, "Any Shepherds for Tea?"

Allan Grant accompanied some gramaphone selections on the bones. A film "Ukrainian Winter Holiday" was viewed with interest and another film on "Christmas Carols" concluded the program.

The meeting ended with the serving of refreshments and a social half hour.

TO CATCH SPEEDERS

WASHINGTON (AP)—An automatic camera which its backers said can be used to photograph the licence plates—and a good part or all of most motor vehicles—was demonstrated here Friday as a new means of catching speeders. Leon Pearle, New York, president of Foto Control, Inc., said this would eliminate the "hazard" which now sees police officers blind and maimed while trying to catch speeders who get away.

FAMILIES HOMELESS

LYN, Ont., (CP)—Two families were left homless Friday when a fire, caused by falling Hydro wires, swept through their adjoining homes. Loss was estimated at $25,000. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Olson and their four children and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Brennan and their three children escaped unhurt from their burning homes in this community, five miles northwest of Brockville.

Young Deer Saved From Drowning

TWEED.— Officers Davison and Ferguson made a timely rescue, recently of a buck fawn, deer from the turbulent waters of the Madawaska River. No definite information is available but a local resident observed the animal as it plunged into the icy stream to evade the pursuit of a dog.

Insecure ice with sharp edges lined the banks and the victim was forced to swim over a mile before it found suitable footing. By this time it was so exhausted it was unable to get completely clear of the water and except for its head, lay partly submerged for three hours.

After a prolonged search the officers were able to discover a boat and although it was not quite seaworthy, they were able to cross the river. They were astonished to discover the deer alive and with a little assistance regained its feet and in a short time was so well recovered, bounded into the nearby woods.

Weddings

BERNDT—ALLEN

On Saturday, November 20, Evangel Temple, Napanee, effective with yellow and white chrysanthemums, was the setting for the marriage of Miss Mary Eileen Allen, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Allen of Dorland, to Johannah Berndt, second son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Berndt, of Stirlville. The Rev. Laurie Price, of Belleville, assisted by the Rev. E. Hipler, of Evangel Temple, Napanee, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The wedding music was played by Miss Gaynell Berndt, of Toronto. Miss Margaret Pocklassie, of West Hill, sang "O Perfect Love," and "I'll Walk Beside You."

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, wore a white gown of lace and net with beaded headdress and fingertip veil. She carried a corsage of red and white roses.

Her attendants were, Miss Florence Allen, bridesmaid, in green net, trimmed with lace, and Miss Willa Berndt, of Toronto, maid-of-honor, in yellow nylon tricot. Both carried corsages of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

The groomsmen were Baumber Berndt, Toronto and David Thompson of Mount Chenery. The ushers were Murray Wilson and Glen Miller, of Napanee.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Memorial Building, Napanee, where several guests were received by Mrs. J. Shelley and Mrs. F. W. Berndt.

The young couple left on their honeymoon for the United States and other points in Canada. They are residing in Belleville.

BRUNTON—JOHANSEN

BONARLAW.—A wedding of interest was solemnized on Saturday, December 11, at 3 p.m., by the Rev. W. H. Bears at his United Church parsonage, Springbrook, when Evelyn Johansen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thomson, Bonarlaw, became the bride of Douglas Brunton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brunton of Stanwood.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Thomson, was gowned in white silk moire taffeta over the bridal veil, and carried red roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Isabelle Grills was gowned in pale blue with headdress to match and carried yellow and mauve mums.

The bridegroom was assisted by Mr. Rayburn Johanson.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brunton.

After returning from their honeymoon they will reside in Campbellford.

Staff of Zellers Limited Enjoys Turkey Dinner

On Wednesday evening, a Christmas party, preceded by a delicious turkey dinner was enjoyed by the staff of Zellers Limited, at Club Cedars, Canniffon Road, with 45 in attendance.

Following the bounteous repast with all its trimmings, Mr. A. H. Walsh, manager of Zellers, presided as master of ceremonies, and distributed to those present the Christmas bonuses and the profit-sharing bonuses, which were greatly appreciated, especially at this time of the year. This was climaxed by the appearance of Santa Claus, who appeared with beaming face, and from a brightly-laden Christmas tree, presented each one with a gaily-wrapped gift.

Later, the husbands and boy friends were welcomed, and the rest of the evening was spent in dancing, making a happy occasion to a close.

Children's A.S. Board Gives Detailed Report of Year's Work

The regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society for the City of Belleville, the County of Hastings and the Town of Trenton was held in the Bridge Street United Church parlors this week. Mr. C. B. Morgan, vice-president of the Society, presided.

Minutes of the November monthly meeting, the November meeting of the finance committee and the last meeting of the personnel committee were read and so read. Mr. C. I. Hyde, the treasurer, reported that the disbursements for the period 1st April to 30th November were in excess of the receipts. The allocation of the Belleville Community Chest, one-sixth of the total Chest budget and which this year should amount to approximately $4,500, will serve to substantially decrease this over-expenditure. It is hoped that the increased services to the children in the care of the Society.

Mr. Hyde also reported that in accordance with the new Ontario Child Welfare Act which comes into effect on the 1st of January, 1955, the Society will be applying to the Court for an adjustment in the per diem rate paid by the various municipalities now contributing to the maintenance of the children in the care of the Society.

PERSONNEL PRACTICES

Personnel practices, as prepared by a committee of the board under the chairmanship of Mr. C. B. Morgan, with Mrs. K. E. Folwell, Mrs. R. H. Macklem, Mr. J. Fred Wilson and Mr. B. M. Kerr as members, were presented for the approval of the directors. It was explained that if the Society were to secure its share of the trained and experienced workers in the field today, it was necessary to establish personnel practices that would place the Society in a position to compete with other welfare agencies throughout Canada. In speaking of the new policy the superintendent, Mr. Kerr stated, "not only must we be in the position to entice staff to our agency—we must be able to keep them here."

CLERICAL STAFF

Additional office clerical staff was approved. Commencing with the 1st of January, 1955, a stenographer will be made available to the Belleville and Hastings office every afternoon from month to report the evidence taken in matters relating to the work of the Society.

Approval was given to the appointment of Mr. Alan Sprague as solicitor to the Society in all court matters. It was pointed out that the majority of the municipalities appearing before the court in matters relative to the Society were represented by counsel. Due to a drastic change in the residence laws of the province dealing with deserted children it was felt that in cases presenting a non-of-the-province problem, the Society should be represented.

347 CHILDREN UNDER SUPERVISION

In presenting his report the superintendent, Mr. Kerr, stated that only one child had been taken into the care of the Society in the month of November. This he said, might be attributed to the fact that the fall had been unusually mild. Under normal circumstances 10-15 children might have been admitted to care. There are now 347 children under the care and supervision of the Society; 61 in foster boarding homes; 61 in free homes; 94 in boarding homes; and the remainder in hospital or institutional care.

The first eight months of the current year, 52 children were placed in adoption. Referring to the concerted efforts of the Society to place all children in adoption for whom adoption would appear to be the best plan, Mr. Kerr said, in 1953 the Society placed 18 children; in 1953, 23 children were placed.

In the summer of 1954 a full time adoption department with a professionally trained and experienced worker in charge was established. That such a move has paid dividends is now obvious to all. Disregarding the unsettled labor market and even looking at it from a purely financial standpoint, the potential saving of this community have been saved in the neighborhood of $15,000, this year alone. Multiply that by the 10-12-15-18 years these kiddies might have remained in the care of the Society and the figures are staggering.

CHILDREN RECEIVE GIFTS

All children in the care of the Society will receive a substantial gift at Christmas. This includes those children in institutional and hospital care.

Mrs. Ramsay Park, of Trenton; Mrs. J. M. Baker, Mrs. Pearl Holmes, Mr. R. H. Macklem and Mrs. C. B. Morgan, the latter from the Belleville area, were appointed to act as nominating committee to the annual meeting.

Mrs. John Watson, Mr. C. I. Hyde and Mr. George Whitman were appointed to arrange for the annual general meeting of the Society to be held some time in February.

Catholic Women's League Gives $1,000 to St. Michael's Bldg. Fund

The December meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in St. Michael's high school on Monday evening with Mrs. E. Logan in the chair and the spiritual adviser, Rev. Father Garvin, present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. J. C. Baker, and the financial statement by Mrs. J. J. Boyd showed a donation of $1,000 had been given to St. Michael's Building Fund.

A detailed statement of the recent bazaar was given by Mrs. R. E. Barrett with special mention of the work done by Misses A. Doyle, A. Lafferty and C. Woodcock, who were in charge of the tickets on the fruit cake, which item contributed much to the success of the bazaar for which Mrs. Boyd acted as treasurer.

BROWNIE ENROLLMENT

Leader of St. Michael's Brownie pack, Mrs. P. Cleary, reported on the recent enrollment of Brownies by Mrs. Arnott, at which the mothers of the new members, together with Sister M. Andrew, and Mrs. Baker, were guests. At the close of the exercises, refreshments were served by the Brownies. It was noted here that the seven annual boxes of clothing and toys recently sent to the inmates in Northern Ontario by the Catholic Women's League, three boxes of toys had been donated by the Brownies.

A letter by Mrs. E. Logan, diocesan convenor of radio, screen and television, was read which said in part: "During these winter months we will be seeing more films, watching more television and listening to more radio broadcasts. In our subdivision we must organize 'watchers' and be on the alert for anything detrimental to our faith and morality, particularly where our young people are concerned.

RADIO—A WEAPON

"Pope Pius declared in a recent broadcast that radio has become a weapon of great importance in the battle which the church wages everywhere for truth, morality, justice and charity. He called television both a precious and dangerous instrument because of the deep reactions it is destined to have on the private and public life of the nation."

Holloway St. WA Branches Elect 1955 Officers

The ladies of Holloway Street United church W.A., afternoon and evening groups held their Christmas meeting, in the church parlors, Thursday evening.

Mrs. Martin offered prayer and Mrs. Knight told the Christmas story "The Infant Christ."

Letters of thanks from members were read for kindnesses received during illness and bereavements.

Mrs. Wilson reported for the parsonage. It was decided to get new gowns for the junior church choir at a cost of $11.50 each.

The guest speaker of the evening, Miss Maloney was introduced by Mrs. Wilson. Miss Maloney, a teacher in the Institute School for the Deaf recited a beautiful Christmas story, "Germany and the Star," which was greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. Daniels and Mr. Mooney rendered a fine duet "O Holy Child of Bethlehem," accompanied at the piano by Mr. Tempter. Mr. Hughes favored with a solo "The Birthday of a King."

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of life memberships to Mrs. Gordon from the W.A. by Mrs. McMurry, for her faithful services.

Mrs. Gordon, though taken completely by surprise, graciously accepted the Society for this lovely gesture.

Mr. Larman spoke briefly and in an impressive installation ceremony, installed the officers of both groups for the coming year.

Mrs. S. Westover, on behalf of the nominating committee thanked each officer for taking office and remarked that it was an honor and a privilege to serve in an organization such as the W.A.

Apples Don't Just Grow' Story Of Mother's Love, Great Courage

By A. HENDERSON

"Apples Don't Just Grow" Bicclland and Stewart, Toronto, $3.50, by Maide Parlow French, author of "Boughs Bend Over," and "All This To Keep", was the outcome of viewing a map of the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway which necessitated the taking over of property which had been left by settlers from the Crown nearly 200 years ago to her United Empire Loyalist ancestors; the land on which she had to return in order to provide a home and sustenance for her seven fatherless boys, David seven, Warwick six, and Alan three.

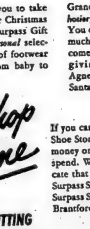
With three growing boys and a fast diminishing income from her writings, and sensing that city life was fast becoming impossible and a detriment to the lads, and that if something were not done speedily they would soon be numbered with the city's delinquent children, she decides for the old homestead and the peninsula, untilled as she was to meet its various drawbacks and hardships.

Here follows the author in her unflagging zeal to restore and prune a living from the Mcintosh orchard which had been derelict for 13 years; pictures of her feeling of frustration when the promise of a flourishing crop of apples is blighted time and time again by atmospheric conditions, birds, insects, worms, and codling moths. But, like King Bruce of Scotland, Maide Parlow French, "did despair", tried again, and won. The reader rejoices with her as her efforts begin to produce the perfect Mcintosh apple, though not before she had learned the hard way the secret of untiring work of pruning, spraying, and fertilizing. If one year was a failure, the hope for a succeeding, successful one looms always bright on the horizon.

One watches, too, as she, assisted by her mother, transforms the old, run-down farm into something liveable, and delights when she gets the help of the 'Old Man' and the 'Old Woman' whose desire for work and honest dealing is not diminished as complimentary as it might be. She is a real companion to her boys as she plays with them in recreation to the exclusion of her beloved art; treks with them through mud, slush and mire to bring home a calf they have won from a neighboring farmer, and allows them to have their pets in the orchard that they look after them themselves.

The story is written in a sweeping fresh, conversational style which carries the reader forward from the first chapter to the last without the slightest hesitation of interest. It is realistic, charmingly human, and interspersed with the humor and pathos of everyday life; the bright spots outweighing the dark ones.

The only criticism that might be offered is the attributing to the Bible the quotation, "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb," with which she quotes David's concern about the lamb being deprived of its warm coat on a cold day, while the farmer wore his. This particular quotation is taken from Laurence Sterne's "Sentimental Journey."



"Apples Don't Just Grow," the story of a mother's love and unbounded courage, is worthy of a place in every home library, and book shelf.

Diamond Wedding Celebrated By Mr. and Mrs. W. Donaldson

On Friday, Mr. and Mrs. William Donaldson, 21 Pine street, celebrated their diamond wedding, the 60th anniversary of their marriage.

William Donaldson, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Donaldson, was born in the township of Thurlow, October 8, 1864. His father was the engineer of the first passenger train pulled out of Belleville, on the old Grand Trunk Railway.

Mrs. Donaldson, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Grills, was born in Thurlow township, December 15, 1867.

They were married December 17, 1894, by the Rev. L. Adams.

After their marriage they lived in the Second Concession of Thurlow, until 1926, when they retired to live in Belleville.

They have two grandsons, Manley and Donald Mitchell and four great grandchildren, Marlene, Caroline, Ronald and Sharon Lynne.

Mr. Donaldson is the last of his family; Mrs. Donaldson has one surviving sister, Mrs. J. Wickett, who lives on Catherine street.

Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson are members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church and although retired, they are still active and always ready to help in the community and church's health permits.

A large circle of friends and neighbors join in congratulations to the happy couple and wish them continued years of happy life together.

GOOD MANNERS

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

By MRS. REECKMAN

WHEN IN DOUBT ABOUT ATTIRE, ASK HOSTESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Next month I am spending a week-end with my aunt and uncle, in a city quite distance from here. A good friend of mine, a girl I knew very well in college, lives in that city, knows I am coming to visit there, and has invited me to go with her to quite a large, formal dinner to be given by an important city official and his wife for a famous guest of honor. I know very little about the customs of this place, since my aunt and uncle are elderly and aren't able to go out much socially, and so I don't know whether the men will wear tails or tuxedos. Which do you suggest I wear? —Hat.

No reason to be indefinite about this. Write (or better, telephone, if possible) to the girl who invited you and ask her to ask the hostess whether the men are expected to wear "Black tie" or "white tie." In getting correct, customary for a guest, when in doubt, to ask the hostess or host the type of attire to be worn by the men.

CEREMONY-PLACE ON MARRIAGE ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are planning the formal announcements of the marriage of our daughter, to take place soon. We have a problem about the wording of these. We live in a large city, but for a very special reason our daughter is to be married in the small village where we have always had our summer home. On the announcements should we put the name of the city where we live (she lives with us) or the name of the small town? —K.W.

On the formal marriage announcements it is correct, and extremely important, to give the name of the city (village and state) where the ceremony was performed.

THE DISHER AND THE GRACIOUS WEDDING GUEST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've been told that it is not at all necessary for a wedding guest to say anything to the usher as he is escorting her up the aisle. Is this so? —Minna H.

I suppose I'll have to admit that it isn't exactly "necessary" for the wedding guest to say anything to the usher as they go up the aisle together . . . but this silence seems to me to be a bit socially awkward. Of course the guest does have to tell him whether she wishes to sit "on the bride's side" or "on the groom's side" . . . and customarily she says politely something, even though just about the weather, "What a beautiful wedding day!" or "What a shame it's raining . . . I hope it will clear soon." Or she may say, "What a beautiful setting for the wedding!

MAKE IT DEFINITE . . . "NO PREFERENCE, PLEASE"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I will be "in residence" in our new home at Christmas-time, and about the last of January we would like to give a housewarming. But we've heard so many owners of new homes hint for housewarming presents for their new homes that we would like to make it very clear on the invitations that we don't want the guests to bring presents. Is there any polite way to do this, Mrs. Beeckman? — Hostzi-o-be

I wish there were some charmingly gracious way to make this request . . . but really the only way is to write on the invitations "No presents, please." Or perhaps "Please, no presents" sounds a bit more graceful.

RIGHT: "CREAM PITCHER"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

"A" says it's not correct to use the word "creamer" for "cream pitcher." "B" says it is correct to use either. Who is right about this? — A and B

A WARM HANDSHAKE TO EXPRESS SYMPATHY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When you are leaving after making your call-of-sympathy on a bereaved family, either in a home or in a funeral parlor, what is the proper answer when they say "Thank you for coming"? — Elsie M.

A warm, sincere handshake will express your sympathy. Or you may say, as you shake hands, say, "My thoughts are with you in these hours, dear Mrs. Hall (or "dear Mary")."

URGENT NOTE:

This column has room for only a fraction of the answers I give to you. I often receive letters from readers signed with initials, who take it for granted that I will answer through the column, yet ask for an answer by a certain date (right now "before Christmas.") Please give me a choice by including your full name and address so I may mail my reply if necessary, to comply with your date. A stamped envelope speeds my answer.

QUESTION;

Last year you gave a recipe for unbaked Christmas cake. It was very good . . . have lost recipe.M.S.

ANSWER:

UNBAKED FRUIT CAKE

One lb. vanilla graham crackers, seedless raisins, dried figs, marshmallows, 1 cup nuts, 1-2 cup maraschino cherries, 2 cups whipping cream. Roll graham crackers very fine. Put in mixing bowl with nuts, marshmallows fine. Mix all ingredients, but cream very well, then whip cream and fold in. Line a Loaf pan with wax paper and press mixture in, smoothing top. Chill 24 hours. Store cake in refrigerator.

QUESTION:

. . . ever since your excellent advice on table manners I've been trying to find time to thank you . . . with our three girls (your rules) improved the mealtime scene considerably . . . have found the reward of drinking milk through a straw reaps amazing results than the "threat" of having to clean up spills . . . they like it better than mopping up with a sponge; . . . is there any use using cream of tartar at all if it is not fresh? . . . my husband thinks fish would a treat as an investor . . . any change in cooking time when it is used? . . . am throwing away good food when discarding core of each cabbage leaf? . . . any suggestions for using frozen raspberries and strawberries that have become soggy? . . . I use whole-wheat flour exclusively and think the resultant cakes and cookies delicious. . . I think your white sauce mix is a real time saver. . . noticed articles on how undernourished Canadians are . . . you are doing a wonderful job of educating us mothers who have such an opportunity for building healthy bodies. . . my 6-year-old was inviting a playmate for lunch, last summer, then going to her place next day. I had to put a stop to it as a typical lunch there was white bread and jam sandwiches, . . . freshie and cookies. . . yet when their little girl came to our place she would devour soup, brown bread and egg sandwiches, fruit, and two 8-oz. glasses of milk . . . the milk colored to suit her fancy and drunk through a straw. . . last year our food budget averaged $55 per month. . . I tried to get as much nutrition per penny as possible . . . I try to put as much nourishing foods into our system as possible, the children sometimes eat an amazing amount. . . our food budget has jumped from $1 to 4 dozen per week and we eat two pounds of cheese per week, but for the first nine months of this year our food bill has averaged $68 per month. . . thanks for your help in the endless round of three meals a day.—Audrey F.

ANSWER

While I have omitted parts of your letter— I have kept the following paragraph. Your understanding is better than much fine food. If the wheat germ smells fresh and is not rancid tasting it still retains some if its vitamin content. Yes, increase cooking time by 10 minutes for foil-wrapped food. Only discard very tough centre rib of large cabbage leaves. Regarding the mushy frozen berries— it is advisable to use them uncooked to retain their optimum food value. Rarely defrost them and use them in whips and Bavarians and sponges, folding them in when gelatin base has partially congealed. Instead of whipping cream you can use skim milk powder for whipping— sprinkle 1-3 cup on 1-2 cup ice water and beat until stiff, adding 2 teaspoons lemon juice when half whipped.

Rawdon

CHRISTMAS M.B. MEETING

RAWDON — On Sunday morning, Miss Ruth Linn arranged the Christmas meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Sunbeam Mission Band which was held at the church with a record attendance. Thirty-five members were present and only two were absent on this auspicious occasion.

Miss Marilyn McConnell presided. All joined in a sing-song of Christmas carols after which Raeburn Scott read his report. The children sang a Christmas hymn and the two Bible lessons were read by Kaye David and Dianne McAdam, after which the leader gave the "Christmas Meditation."

Kenneth McConnell and Ralph Reid gathered the offering which amounted to over $7. Miss Lois McConnell read the special Christmas story. At the close, the leader, Miss Ruth Linn, presented each child with a gift.

Four members, Dianne McAdam, Carol Sharpe, Ina Scott and Eleanor Smith had perfect attendance for the year and they each received a New Testament.

Mrs. Burton Sharpe voiced thanks to Ruth for her leadership during past two years, and for all her efforts in making the children more concious of Missions. When Ruth replied she voiced thanks to all the children and their parents for their kindly co-operation.

School Section, No. 4, Williams at Mount Pleasant, with Mrs. Marjorie Couch as teacher, won first prize award at the Santa Parade with a merry-go-round float, and S.S. No. 17, Snarr School, with Miss Enid Coomber as teacher, came second with "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." They were the only two schools in the township to enter the Santa Parade. It is hoped that several other schools in Rawdon will have good ideas for 1955 and be ready to join the parade.

Miss Janet Heagle recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Ray Heagen, Belleville.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU HAVE A GOOD IDEA—GET GOT BUSY ON IT!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 23, married, and have one child three years old.

Because my husband is trying to develop a business of his own, he works very long hours, seven days a week, and when he gets home at eight or nine o'clock he is so tired that he just wants to go to bed.

I realize that he certainly must be very tired, and that, in the long run, what he is working for will be worth it, but I get very lonesome having so many hours alone at home. Perhaps if I went out more in the daytime, I wouldn't mind the evenings so much.

What do you think? — Mrs. L.M.

Dear Mrs. L.M.:

It is very sensible of you to realize that the key to the solution of your problem might be to develop some new interests. It is fine, too, that you realize the difficulties under which your husband is working, and that if you bear with them as cheerfully and patiently as you can, there will be something very worthwhile to show for it eventually.

Since you yourself suggest developing interests outside your home, I assume you have a way of caring for your child any time you are away. So how about looking in to various community activities in the town where you live, such as the Women's Auxiliary of the hospital, the Girl Scouts, the Red Cross, and so forth? Every town has a number of such groups, and to take an active part in work for others is one of the best ways I know to get one's mind off one's own problems, to find new friends, and to make life in general livelier and more interesting.

You might also check with your local YWCA to see what they have to offer that you would enjoy.

You've already taken the first step by realizing that you must be up and doing. Now take the next one by going out and investigating these possibilities immediately.

TRY INVITE HIM; HE INVITES YOU!—TRY IT!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a boy I like very much but I don't know how to get him really interested in me, although we have had frequent conversations. He does not have any girl friends nor do I have any boy friends.

Do you think it would look funny if I gave him a Christmas present, and if I would be better to wait awhile before giving him any kind of gift.

It would be perfectly all right, however, and a very good idea, to invite him to come to your house some evening when you are having some other girls and boys over. If you gave him such an invitation, and he accepted it, then it would be his turn to invite you on a date and you might find a nice friendship started.

Take one of your best girl friends into your confidence on this, and see if she can't help you plan some sort of simple little party you could give at your home so you could see what comes of it.

ARTIST DIES

ROME (AP) — Federico Gullonelli, 88-year-old painter and militarist, died Thursday. He was known as the owner of Rome's oldest old Cafe Greco Italian meeting place which was purchased by his grandfather and patronized for decades by Italian and foreign artists and tourists.

THERE'S real satisfaction for a child in making a gift that's unusual and truly useful. Get a wooden cutting board and a few cup hooks. So each make a key rack that will be welcomed in any household. He can stain it, too.

Mrs. M. Nickson Ottawa's First Woman Ald.

By PEGGY THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Combining civic politics with a home and three children won't prove too big a problem for Mrs. M. Nickson.

Just elected Ottawa's first woman alderman, she plans to leave the children with her husband while she keeps Mayor Charlotte Whitton company at council meetings.

A pretty brunette, 36-year-old Mrs. Nickson has civic politics in her blood. Her father was an alderman four-nine years. She always hoped to follow in his footsteps, she said in an interview. She entered the race this time because one of the sitting aldermen was retiring and she thought "it was too good a chance to miss."

TAKES IT SERIOUSLY

Mother of three young children, Mrs. Nickson said she had hoped there would be more women in civic politics before she got there because she wasn't anxious for the attention that goes with being a pioneer.

However, now that she's in she hopes to stay for more than a two-term term. But she has no ambition to be Ottawa's second woman mayor.

That's a full-time job and it'll be years before the children don't need me.

Meanwhile she is being swamped with suggestions from her constituents about the dog, the playgrounds and street cleaning.

CAREER CHANCE

"Being an alderman is going to give me a chance to serve ottawa as well as a husband and children," she said.

Her husband, an economist with the trade and commerce department, supports her choice. He is willing to baby-sit with Paul, 5, Vicky 3, and Daphne, 2.

Mrs. Nickson had a varied career before marriage, starting in the accounting department of the Bank of Canada, and ranging through selling insurance, statistician with institutions and supply department, seven months nursing with the Red Cross in London, and finally the trade and commerce department.

Centenary

CENTENARY — Mrs. William Slavin was hostess for the December meeting of the Centenary 2 T's Mission Circle, with the president, Mrs. Orval May, in charge. The meeting opened with the roll call, followed by secretary Elaine Bain's report. The vice-president, Mrs. Ralph Lowry, read Mrs. May's letter of resignation as president owing to ill health.

NEW 1955 OFFICERS

The new officers for 1955 are as follows: President, Mrs. Ralph Lowry; vice - president, Lorna Kay; recording and corresponding secretary, Elaine Bain; supply secretary, Elinor Roblin; treasurer, Mrs. Lloyd Pearson; first group leader, Mrs. Orval May; second group leader, Margari Slavin.

The supply secretary is to contact WMS headquarters to ascertain if the port of entry, Halifax, is open for parcels once more.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Lowry, who read a few passages from the "Upper Room."

The Christmas theme in the Missionary Monthly was followed, with Elaine Baine representing "India," and Mrs. May representing "Canada."

The Rev. R. W. Middleton closed the meeting with prayer, and the hostess and helpers served refreshments. A vote of thanks to Mrs. Slavin for her hospitality was given by Mrs. Lowry on behalf of those present.

Sorry to report that Mrs. Judson Kelly is still a patient in the Belcrest Nursing Home on the Marshall Road, and that Mrs. Edgar Ray is still confined to her home. All sincerely hope that these ladies will be on the road to recovery in the near future, and are glad to see Mrs. Albert Christopher able to be up and out again after her recent misfortune.

Trip Tips for Travellers

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

(Editor's Note—This is the third of a series on careers in America's second highest paying career for men, commercial traveling.)

Our friendly, the Old Drummer, talking again with some not so old-fashioned ideas on how to be successful at travelling for a living:

"The average salesman of men on the road—more specifically, salesman-is second only to that of men in the legal profession. But like all careers, it requires many personal adjustments.

"The traveling man, if he is to be a normal family man like most, must learn how to leave his work behind when he comes home, and divide his trips so that he has some time for both his family and his personal, social, and community activities necessary to any well-adjusted life. There's no sense making money if you never have a chance to enjoy its greatest benefit—leisure time.

"Traveling on business without wasting time can be tiring, so he must learn how to develop stamina and resistance to illness. But he must also learn when he has had enough for a while, both physically and mentally.

WEARINESS CAUSES SLUMP

"The worst thing that can happen to a commercial traveler is to fall into a slump, which makes him useless to himself and to his firm. More often than not, a slump—defined as a temporary loss of confidence and enthusiasm—is a result of weariness.

"On the other hand, he can't be a loafer or he loses that keen edge, which leads to a slump. He has to learn how to draw the line.

"One reason the traveling man has acquired a better reputation than he had once as the subject of jokes is that he has developed dignity. Few really successful salesmen today are loud-mouths or wise guys. The respect they've earned has come from giving respect to the men they deal with.

"The typical successful traveler no longer barges in on his customers at their busiest hours; he makes appointments. He doesn't put his hat or his shoes on the man's desk, and he doesn't cajole or attempt to bribe him into buying things he doesn't want or need.

EDUCATIONAL FUNCTION

"His function and value is educational—showing a man what he may not realize he does need. Impressionable customers may fall for buying something they don't need, but usually only once—and the salesman's career soon is finished.

"The salesman learns lots of things and makes lots of adjustments as time goes along. His wardrobe may be a little different from the average man's; it must be keyed to traveling light. No man wants to lug an extra overcoat or hat, so he learns how to buy one of each to go with all his suits.

"He learns his dress must not overpower, offend or distract his contact. The more conservatively he dresses, the more attention his man will pay to what is being said or shown.

"The smart man soon learns never to have anything to do socially with competitors he may run into on the road, no matter how personally kindly he may feel toward them. Almost any conversation will turn to business, and inevitably each man will divulge information not his to divulge. The classic example of this is the $1,000,000 lawsuit which once resulted from a company secret casually passed by one salesman to another over a dinner table. The competitor parlayed it into a new business and almost bankrupted his 'friend's' firm.

PARTIES FOR CLIENTS

"Let the salesman reserve his dinner parties for his clients—and then only if he's sure the client won't averse to the idea. Entertainment may be considered subtle bribery. Sometimes it actually is.

"Though chances of being accidentally killed or injured while traveling are very small, the full time traveler is in more danger than the stay-at-home, and he is wise to have his life-insurance program geared to this possibility with such items as double indemnity. Loss of property or money is an insurable hazard too. His insurance agent can plan a program for him.

"There are so many little things he learns every day for years and years. He remembers to break bills every time he pays for something so he always has change handy for tips, taxis, and other occasions when cashing a bill is awkward.

"He learns how to buy clothes that don't require tailor visits and which hang out overnight if they do wrinkle. And he learns how to pack them so they don't wrinkle anyway.

"How to get along with a minimum of cash and when not to check baggage because a connection is too close for the station is too busy and the bags might not make it, are some of the other things he gets to know about.

"Speaking of baggage, the most important thing the traveling man has with him is his brief case. Without it, chances are he's as useless as if he were home. It's something he never lets out of his sight or possession. And any man who's ever lost one about the staggering loss of time, money and inconvenience that it ran cause."

Shirley and Bob Sloane cannot answer questions about places to go and routes to cover, and suggest that readers contact their each club, company, or any travel agent for information of this sort. However, they will try to answer, in this column or by mail, specific questions on the "how-to" of travel.

Cree Indian Hanged in 1879 For Cannibalism

OTTAWA (CP)—This is not an appropriate Christmastime story but Monday is the 75th anniversary of the hanging of a Canadian cannibal.

In 43-below-zero weather on the early morning of Dec. 30, 1879, Kah-kee-see-koo-chin (Swift Runner), a Cree Indian, was hanged at Fort Saskatchewan for eating his wife, five children, brother-in-law and mother-in-law.

It was the first legal hanging in the vast area then known as the Northwest Territories of Canada.

The Northwest Mounted Police in early 1879 received a report that Swift Runner had left Athabasca the previous year for his usual autumn-winter hunting and trapping, accompanied by his wife, five children, brother - in - law and mother-in-law, but had appeared alone the following spring at Big lake, now St. Albert, Alta.

UNLIKELY STORY

Questioned, the Cree said his family had died of starvation and that he himself had boiled and eaten his teepee to keep alive.

The unbelieving Mounties left in quest of the "starvation" camp, taking Swift Runner with them. The suspect kept applying them with false leads so he was given a dose of mus-kee-kee-ow-bowee, prepared by allowing a generous quantity of plug tobacco to soak in a strong brew of tea. Swift Runner became quite talkative.

Next morning, the Cree led the Mounties to the abandoned camp deep in the bush. Skulls and bones lay scattered about and other evidence of cannibalism was uncovered.

Kah-kee-see-koo-chin later confessed he had eaten his family. He said that some years previously, on a hunting trip, his young companion had died of starvation and to save his own life he had eaten the boy and thus acquired a taste for human flesh.

Local Couple Raises Chinchillas

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rollins, Belleville, are shown with one of the Chinchillas which they breed as a hobby. Their "ranch" is the basement of their East Bridge Street bungalow. Mrs. Rollins says she enjoys looking after the expensively furred little animals.

Belleville Couple Gets Started In Breeding of Chinchillas

A mink coat is the dream of almost every young girl and woman, but for sheer luxury—and cost—the choice may well be chinchilla.

For this formerly little known fur is gaining the favor of discriminating fashion leaders and as result breeding the soft coated little animals on a commercial scale has become a lucrative hobby for many on the North American continent.

Top grade chinchilla pelts at a fur auction in New York City last April brought up to $175 each and a full length chinchilla coat would take up to 200 of them. A Toronto department store recently offered a chinchilla stole, the price asked being a mere $6,500!

In Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rollins, Bridge street east are the only known local breeders of the expensively furred little animals, but there are half a dozen breeders in the Oshawa district and so on all across Canada.

Yes, chinchilla breeding is now big time; breeders have their own breeders' association and hold regular shindigs shown; the animals are tatooed for positive identification and are registered and are also rigidly graded for the quality of their pelts.

The modern history of chinchillas dates back to the turn of the century when the fur became very popular—so popular in fact that the little animals, found only in the lofty Andes mountains of South America, were trapped almost to extinction.

In fact the chinchillas may well have become extinct had it not been for an American engineer who in 1927 decided to do something about saving the animals. So with the idea of raising the animals domestically he roughed it for several months in the Andes Mountain region and managed to capture eleven chinchillas and bring them back to the United States.

It is from this initial stock that all the chinchillas in the United States and Canada have been raised.

Until this year, however, chinchillas have been raised only as breeding stock. But recently it was felt some animals could be spared for pelting and last April the first chinchilla pelt auction was held in New York. The stole mentioned earlier in this story was the first chinchilla coat to be offered for sale in Canada.

BREEDING STOCK COSTLY

Getting started in the chinchilla raising business is a bit expensive with the best breeding animals costing anywhere from $1,000 to $1,300 a pair.

But from all accounts from then on in chinchilla raising should be clear sailing. The animals are claimed very easy to raise, they are clean and odorless, and the basement or any other such quarters can be used as a "ranch".

They require very little looking after and even the "messy" could do this chore in her spare time. Chinchillas prefer a temperature of about 60 degrees, but they are hardy little fellows and 40 degrees will not hurt them a bit.

BREED TWICE YEARLY

With good luck a pair of chinchillas will have two young twice a year. The young animals are weaned at two months, are mated at six months and usually have their first offspring before they reach their first birthday.

Popularity of the chinchilla stems from the fact that it has a very fine and dense fur. Denseness of the fur comes from the fact that where one hair normally grows the chinchilla can sprout about 70. The pelts are bluish gray in color and are graded into three shades, light, medium and dark.

In keeping with their size the chinchillas are very small eaters and cost of feeding them is almost negligible.

"Their main diet is timothy or alfalfa hay," states Maurice Rollins who has been interested in chinchilla raising for the past two or three years. "They are also fed vitamin pellets of concentrated meal, and are given all the water they want to drink."

"And I like looking after them," said Mrs. Rollins. "They are no trouble at all, and I think they are cute."

British Political Scene Shows Few Changes in '54

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The British political scene showed few notable changes in 1954. The ruling Conservatives consolidated their position and the Labor opposition remained preoccupied with internal conflict.

Legislatively, it was a dull period for Prime Minister Churchill's party, concluding its third full year in office, concentrated on international diplomacy and on maintaining a domestic prosperity which its opponents claimed was largely fortuitous.

Foreign Secretary Sir Anthony Eden, back in good health after a serious operation, won applause—and a knighthood—for untiring work at international conferences. At home, R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, won points by strengthening in Britain's monetary position. His critics replied that the improvement was mainly due to a change in the terms of trade, favoring Britain, and of misdirected investment.

FEW UNEMPLOYED

Unemployment dropped during the year to a low of one per cent of the population, in stark contrast to a Labor prophecy of 1953 that there would be 1,000,000 unemployed by Christmas.

There were two major shuffles in government ranks, in July and October, enabling new blue Field Marshal Earl Alexander, former defence minister, to go into retirement. But the big three—Churchill, Eden and Butler—all stayed at their posts, confounded confident forecasts that Sir Winston would finally step down in favor of Eden.

The prime minister celebrated his 80th birthday Nov. 30 without giving a hint as to his intentions. A few days before he told how he had sent a telegram to Field Marshal Montgomery in 1945 urging Montgomery, then a general, to push German arms carefully at the end of the Second World War for possible use against the Russians.

The speech produced a lively reaction in Britain and the controversy was complicated by the fact that the telegram could not be located.

The Labor party also had its troubles. The three-year-old split between its moderate right wing and a more radical group led by Aneurin (Nye) Bevan persisted. Three of Bevan's followers—his wife Jennie Lee, pamphleteering Michael Foot and J. P. W. Mallalieu—were in hot water with the party executive for their attacks on trade union leaders, published in the left-wing Tribune.

Party dissensions transcending these differences were exposed in the lingering debate on German rearmament. At the party's annual conference at Scarborough delegates voted in favor of rearmament, but only by the small margin of 248,000 votes out of 6,252,000. A last-minute switch by one small union made the difference.

When the issue came to a general vote in the House of Commons, in a Parliamentary division on the London and Paris agreements for a rearmed Germany, seven Labor party members defied the leadership's orders to abstain. As a punishment, the Parliamentary party decided to withdraw the party whip from the offenders, who now function as Independent Labor MPs.

Some political observers felt the party's divisions sprang partly from a malaise caused by inability to find an appealing, distinctive policy against a government party sponsoring a brand of welfare capitalism.

Generally the tide appeared running with the Conservatives who won a by-election Nov. 18 in the marginal constituency of Derby West with an increased majority. They took the triumph as a portent of bigger things to come in the general election expected in 1955. It was the 46th by-election the Conservatives had fought without losing a seat won at the October, 1951 general election.

But despite this by - election pointer the public opinion polls reported in October and November that Labor would be returned to power in the next election, by a narrow margin.

Under Such Mental Stress MacKenzie Almost Willing To Stretch Neck to Be Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — It took 16 months of solitary confinement and incessant interrogation for the Chinese Communists to break the spirit of Sqdn. Ldr. Andy MacKenzie.

In the end, his will to resist snapped and he signed a false statement that, while serving with the U.S. Air Force in Korea, he had been instructed to fly into China and had "invaded Chinese air space."

MacKenzie, 34-year-old Montreal fighter pilot who destroyed 8½ enemy planes during the Second World War, told a press conference Friday about his two-year ordeal in a Red prison camp. He spoke calmly, evenly.

NO WAY TO RESIST

"I felt strong enough to resist. But you do get to a stage where you are practically, as they say in Chinese, mahobanfa—that means "there is no way out.' And there is no way out . . .

"I used to stop and shake my head a few times—criticize myself and talk to myself and try to keep my courage up and tell myself I could beat these fellows.

"I was wrong."

A reporter asked: "Did you feel that by signing the statement you had given in to them?"

Looking reporter straight on, MacKenzie replied without the slightest hesitation: "Yes, certainly."

LANDED IN N. KOREA

MacKenzie was shot down over North Korea Dec. 5, 1952. He had received no instructions to fly into China.

For several weeks, he was held in solitary confinement in North Korea and then, handcuffed, moved to his prison near Mukden in northeast China.

Still he was held in solitary. For one stretch of four months he was not allowed to move off the bed. He was not permitted to read. He was threatened with handcuffs again when he tried to look out the window.

Outside in the jail corridor, behind the thick, green, wooden door of his cell, the guards paced back and forth, looking at him through a small slit each time they passed.

"I was under the impression I was going to die and that it was just a matter of time. Every time someone came in, I thought 'This is it' . . .

"It was not allowed to shave myself in solitary . . . they shaved me with a straight razor once a month . . . I was in such mental stress that I would have almost stretched my neck for them to cut . . .

"If I hadn't signed the statement, I probably would still be in solitary confinement."

NO PHYSICAL VIOLENCE

MacKenzie said he was not subjected to any physical violence whatsoever and that he was adequately fed.

He indicated three American fliers held with him had also signed statements and that they had been in solitary confinement for less time than he had—two or three months.

MacKenzie said the only reason given by the Communists for the solitary confinement was that he should be given time to think, to make his case "clear"—that is, that he had "invaded Chinese air space."

The Reds had indicated to the three Americans they would be released when American policy toward China "was such that conditions were right."

The Reds first demanded that MacKenzie sign the false statement in October, 1953, after he had been in solitary 10 months. The Canadian airman held out another six months. He said he had even tried to ruin his health so that he could stop the "insatiable" interrogation by his captors.

MacKenzie finally signed and was permitted to join the Americans, who had been living together in the compound for some time.

The Americans, shot down in China, are still held by the Chinese, together with Lt.-Col. Edwin Heinz Wyngaarden, Pic., who was in hospital in Mukden when MacKenzie left.

REDS INFILTRATE THAILAND

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Thailand is being infiltrated by about 2,000 Thai Communists who have completed special training in guerrilla warfare in Red China, Tatao news agency said today. Tatao, operated by the Nationalist interior ministry, said the Thai Reds were equipped late last month with light arms and now are infiltrating through Northern Viet Nam.

News Cameraman Kept Right On Taking Pictures

VANCOUVER (CP)—A second newspaper photographer was told by police to put his camera away here Friday night but he kept right on taking pictures.

Detectives did not arrest Bill Dennett of the Vancouver Sun but told him it was his "last warning."

Executives of the afternoon paper did not take immediate action.

Dennett and reporter Bert Watson were at the scene when police arrested an elderly suspect in a service station holdup after an armed man escaped with about $85.

DOING JOB

When detectives told the photographer to put his camera away, Dennett replied he was not interfering with the police but was merely doing his job.

"Let's not go through it all again," Dennett said as he shot a picture and the police drove away.

Wednesday night, Bob Olsen of the Vancouver Province was detained for 30 minutes at police headquarters after ignoring an order not to photograph a robbery suspect.

Province publisher A. W. Moscarella promptly protested to Mayor Fred Hume, chairman of the city's police commission, demanding an apology.

May Control Immigration From Commonwealth

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Legislation may soon be introduced in Parliament to control immigration from the Commonwealth, observers predict.

The issue has been raised by the unprecedented flood of West Indians into Britain within the last year.

Viscount Swinton, secretary of state for Commonwealth relations, told the House of Lords Thursday that the government is giving urgent attention to the problem and that a decision will be announced "as soon as possible."

He said the appointment of two committees to study the matter has been suggested. One would study the social conditions of colonial citizens now living in Britain and the other would consider what action might be taken.

Most observers speculate that any restrictions imposed on Commonwealth immigration would be of a strictly reciprocal nature. Most Commonwealth countries, including colonial territories, have controls on immigration both from Britain and other Commonwealth countries. Britain, it is assumed, would apply restrictions on a similar basis.

Ontario's Civil Service to Ask For $300 Raise

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's civil service will ask Premier Frost for immediate $300 across-the-board annual increase, it was announced Friday.

Harold Bowen, president of the Ontario Civil Service Association, is to request the increase in a forthcoming interview with the premier.

The association executive approved the request Friday. The proposed increase would cost the province $6,000,000 a year.

The motion was passed after members of the executive said low pay was lowering standards of living of civil servants across the province.

Mr. Bowen said the premier is in sympathy with the association's demands. It will also ask for a reclassification of employees and a shake-up of the civil service commission.

PROHIBITION ACTIVITY

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Indian government's planning commission Friday night announced creation of a liquor prohibition inquiry committee to blueprint a "program for prohibition on a national basis." The Indian constitution requires the government to "endeavor" to achieve prohibition, but so far the matter has been left to individual states and only a handful have gone dry.

Lt.-Col. E. S. Fairman, commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, was honored at the weekly regimental parade at the Belleville Armouries this week when he was invested with the Efficiency Decoration for loyal devotion to duty.

Presentation of the decoration was made by Lt.-Col. P. H. Wills, honorary colonel of the regiment. He congratulated Lt.-Col. Fairman on the high standard of efficiency being maintained throughout the unit and also commended the regiment on the smartness of their parade. The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is one of the biggest militia units in Canada today.

Lt.-Col. Fairman thanked the officers and men for their loyalty and co-operation during the past year and extended the season's greetings to all members of the regiment.

In a second presentation during the parade Regimental Sergeant-Major J. Down received a Royal Warrant confirming his rank as a warrant officer, class 1. The presentation was made by Lt.-Col. Fairman, commanding officer of the regiment.

U.S. Close to Adopting Policy Of Opposition to Neutralism

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States administration apparently is close to adopting a policy of respectful opposition to neutralism in the Cold War.

President Eisenhower himself laid down the line in the message he delivered Friday night as he lighted Washington's community Christmas tree. The Voice of America repeated his remarks in overseas broadcasts.

His statement is regarded as a challenging bid to individuals or countries who believe it is possible and desirable to support neither side in the struggle between the Free World and communism.

"The times are so critical and the differences between these world systems so vital," the president said, "that grave doubt is cast on the validity of neutralistic argument."

That sentence was inserted—and several others were edited to make it fit—after the speech text had been released in advance of its delivery.

While thus questioning the basic beliefs of those who, like India's Prime Minister Nehru, hold themselves aloof from the international conflict, the president firmly laid down two other points of his policy.

1. The U.S. will continue to demonstrate "respect for the right of self-decision by these neutrals."

2. The U.S. will try to build understanding and sympathy with them on the common basis that neutralists and Americans alike "hate aggression and condemn wars for conquest."

Talking as much to the Communist rulers as to the community gathering, the president said the world is large enough and the skills of men great enough to house mankind in peace. This knowledge "can be the fruitful beginning of responsible life together," he said, but added:

"Let no man think we want peace at any price; that we shall forsake principle in resigned tolerance or shrivel into that we may pawn our honor for transitory concession."

To forget crimes against justice and violations of human dignity was "to condone and to provoke new outrage."

In expressing "grave doubt" about neutralism, the president did not lay down a firm policy, nor did he present a settled decision. But his words provided the raw material of official thinking and policy making for American diplomats all over the world.

No parking fees will be collected during Christmas week, town council decided. Meters will be covered with hoods bearing season's greetings.

Fifteen Die In Collision Of Two Trains

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Fifteen passengers died in the head-on collision of an inter-urban rail-coach and a troop train in southeastern Algeria Friday. Scores of French officials said the wreck apparently resulted from negligence at a switching station.

Soldiers from the military train could pull out passengers only from the rear of the passenger train. Flames kept them away from the front. No injuries among the soldiers were reported.

Royal Family Makes Year One of Travel With Canada High on The Itineraries

By MURIEL MARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The royal family in 1954 travelled farther—and more frequently—than ever before. Canada ranked high on the itineraries.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh spent almost a third of the year abroad, and everyone from four-year-old Princess Anne to the 84-year-old Queen Mother went touring at least for a week or two.

The Queen and the duke returned in May tanned and fit after a six month tour that took them 50,000 miles through the Commonwealth, with the longest stops in Australia and New Zealand.

HISTORIC WELCOME

Thousands roared a welcome home as the royal couple, accompanied by Princess Anne and Prince Charles who had met their parents in the Mediterranean, passed up the Thames in her magnificent royal barge and then by state coach through the streets to Buckingham Palace.

Later, the Queen told parliament at a state dinner in the mansion house that "my people might be sure constitutional monarchy was not an archaic and meaningless survival, but 'real and living' to the hearts of the people."

Two months later the duke jumped almost directly from a polo pony to an RCAF CF trans port to begin the three-week tour of Canada. During his 18,000mile journey he drove across the continent, paused in Vancouver for the British Empire Games and then swung in a wide arc through the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

NEW INFORMALITY

The duke's visit was officially described as the first of a series of "informal" royal tours, characterized by greater speed and informality.

The RCAF's special four-engined aircraft was also on duty in August, carrying the Duchess of Kent and Princess Alexandra across the Atlantic. The Queen's 47-year-old aunt and 17-year-old cousin gave Canadian women a glimpse of celebrated wardrobes during a three-week visit to the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario.

In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Don Spencer, who is in Belleville General Hospital, Mrs. Kenneth Green is acting secretary.

Mrs. Harmon Montgomery took charge of the program.

Mrs. Jean Young gave a reading. June Bowerman sang two solos, Linda Rowe favored with two musical numbers, Mrs. Montgomery a reading.

Mrs. Thompson was the winner of the Jumbo contest. Refreshments were served.

A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess, lunch committee and program convenor and all who helped with the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, of Stirling, spent Friday afternoon with her sister, Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald, in her home. All wish her a speedy recovery.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Mrs. D. Snider whose funeral took place on a recent Saturday.

Several in this neighborhood have been sick with flu and colds.

A number attended the C.G.I.T. Christmas Vesper service at Albury Church, on Sunday evening. While gifts were also presented.

A number gathered at Mr. Dawson's hall on Monday evening for a social time. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dempsey, a recent bride and groom, were honored.

Both thanked everyone for the gift.

Refreshments were served.

There were seven Christmas carols and Christmas readings given by the members and a solo by Mrs. F. Yorke. Mrs. Bertrand assisted by Mrs. Clarence Martin were much appreciated. All were glad to hear that the allocation had been reached and the Baby Band quilt finished is a gratifying report.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Treverton spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Yorke.

Mr. and Mrs. John McCullough, of Belleville, called on the former's mother, Mrs. M. McCullough, on Sunday afternoon.

Miss Beryl Swan, Belleville, and Miss Muriel and Mr. Ralph Swan, Gilead, attended the candlelight service at the Melrose United Church, Sunday evening.

Canadian-U.S. Relations Appear on Firmer Footing

By LLOYD McDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's relations with the United States, a matter of importance to many Canadians early in the year, appeared on a firmer footing as 1954 neared its close.

Particularly in the field of international trade—and to a lesser extent in the realm of trade—the outlook for closer co-operation between the two great North American neighbors seemed much more hopeful at the year's end than when it began.

Both Secretary Dulles' "brinksmate instantly" speech in the second week of 1954 caused alarm in Canadian circles as well as among other Western Allies. A question immediately arose in Ottawa as to whether the U.S. might be prepared to "go it alone" under certain circumstances of aggression—and whether Canada and the other Allies would be consulted before the U.S. took any action.

But the year passed without such a major crisis, and by December the subsequent Western conference at Paris, the Big Four conferences and in the United Nations caused most of the Allies' fear of any precipitate U.S. steps.

COOPERATION ON GERMANY

Canada played a major role with the U.S., Britain and others in European defence—which included the touchy problem of rearming West Germany—and in President Eisenhower's atomic pool plan, which fell within the framework of the UN.

Still a subject of some disagreement between Washington and Ottawa, however, was the Far East arm question. Prime Minister St-Laurent and External Affairs Minister Pearson during the year cast the prospect of recognition of Red China, on which the Canadian attitude was one of facing the fact that Peiping government does indeed hold sway over a significant proportion of Asia's population—whether we like it or not.

Pearson, in a Chicago speech, said there is a "strong attitude in the U.S. against Red China's recognition," but we in Canada are a little more cautious. We feel that if there are no new aggressions . . . we should take another look at that problem—a more realistic, less emotional look."

But in the UN, Canada has sided with the U.S. against any immediate admission of Peiping representatives to the world organization.

ATOM PLAN PARTICIPATION

In the atomic field, Canada took a major part in the London conference involving America, Britain, Russia, French and Australian delegates. The conference failed to bring about any real views together. Eventually the five Western powers proceeded with plans to form an international atomic resources and development pool for peaceful purposes without Soviet participation.

Canada also was prominent in the London conference with the U.S. and the seven West European powers which set the stage for the Paris agreement on rearming West Germany. The invitation to Canada to participate reflected her rising status in world councils.

Canada and the U.S. also reached agreement later in the year on the building of an early-warning radar network across the Canadian Arctic from Alaska to Greenland. The U.S. agreed to finance the project.

In the economic field, the U.S. during the year limited imports of oats and barley, although leaving Canada the biggest share of quotas in these grains. There had been opposition, particularly in western Canada, to the American restrictions, but after the terms were announced Trade Minister Howe said the blow would be "not too serious."

ECONOMIC DIFFERENCES

There was some criticism from the U.S. side during the year about American investment in shaky Canadian mining promotions, based mainly on the Montreal Exchange, and Canada's refusal to permit the Ontario securities commission dropped its agreement with the U.S. securities and exchange commission on the grounds that loopholes in the pact gave narrow control U.S. promoters the chance to sell stock in the U.S. without registration. Finance Minister Harris would continue to guard against high pressure selling methods by brokers based in the province.

On the subject of trade and investment, Canada's ambassador to Washington, A. D. P. Heeney, called for lower U.S. tariffs and fewer restrictions on Canadian exports—on the grounds that this is the only way Canada can benefit as a result of the heavy U.S. capital investment in Canada. "Whether or not Americans realize it," he said, "they have acquired an important stake in Canada's foreign trade."

And Health Minister Paul Martin made similarly emphatic remarks in a speech to Michigan businessmen:

"For every foolish player who heads north, we send two hockey players to liven things up in the National Hockey League. We just wish that we could maintain the same favorable trading balance in respect to other commodities."

In the absence of the president, secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Bryant took the meeting. The devotional was given by Miss Marrineau, who took her text from Isaiah and told the girls how important it was for each and every one of them to so live that the prophecies therein would soon come about.

Vesper service was discussed.

Mrs. East's group dramatized "Daniel in Lion's Den." Several girls took part with Lynda Taylor reading the story. These dramatizations are especially interesting and are prepared by the girls themselves. All sat in a circle and played, "The Adjective Game" and "Animal Meeting Animal" with Tape.

The girls of the C.G.I.T. are holding their annual "National Christmas Vesper Service" in the United church on Sunday, December 19, at 7.30 p.m. There will be thousands of girls in Canada, who may be worshipping together on this day.

Garden Notes

December Garden Chores

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Every year when snow and frost put an end to our garden chores we decide to clean up the tools and leave them ready for next year's work. Week-ends we putter around the basement and manage to clean up and oil the shovel, rake and hoe. Perhaps we have a sudden spurt of energy and even paint the handles and sharpen the hoe, but the plant food spreader is generally neglected.

A spreader is a comparatively large investment as compared with a rake or hoe, yet without adequate care it will deteriorate rapidly, while neglected hand tools remain useful for years.

This is because the spreaders are made from light gauge metal, as compared with rakes and hoes. Further, the ingredients in plant foods are more rust-producing than caked soil on the other tools.

WEATHER AFFECTS TOOLS

Comes winter, and even though your tools may be stored in a weather-tight shed or garage, changes of weather can cause condensation of moisture on them with subsequent formation of rust. The tool which faces the worst is the spreader.

This week, plan to protect your investment and put your spreader in condition to with stand the winter and be ready for spring

Use a wire brush to remove all accumulations of plant food and rust. Turn the hose on the spreader and rinse it out thoroughly. Allow it to dry in the sun, or in the basement, oil the shutoff mechanism on the bottom of the spreader, its wheels, axles and all places bare of paint.

Comes spring, and your spreader is ready to go. This chore is warranted to give you at least a double glow of satisfaction; one when the job is finished, the other in the spring, when you come to use the spreader, to say nothing of the minor ones you get when you catch a glimpse of it through the winter.

A YEAR ROUND PLANT

Did you bring in a few cuttings of your Vinca Minor from your local greenhouse. Pot the cuttings in sharp sand, or a glass of damp vermiculite until they have formed roots. Then pot in four-inch pots in soil, which contains also a teaspoonful of complete plant food. I preferred a food tablet in the side of the pot, push it under the surface with a fork and water with tepid water. Vinca will soon form roots and start new top growth. Nip off leaves, where you wish new branches to form. Buds will form at the base of the former leaf. In a few weeks your will have a window full of green and white foliage. This plant also is suitable for a bracket container. Fasten the bracket to the window frame, high enough for the stems to trail over the edge and still remain above the level of the window sill and in full daylight.

If the pots are placed on the window sill provide a support. You can make one with a coat hanger. Straighten out the hook and use this to push down into the soil to hold it firm. The other part should be shaped into a circular form and the vinca trained on it. This is a handsome contrast to African violets patience, or blooming wax begonias.

Broadway Blues Suit His Style Of Play Says Danny Lewicki

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

The National Hockey League's new mutual aid plan of recruiting help from the front runners to bolster the bottom clubs is less an act of charity than a desperation move to fill empty seats in Boston, New York and wherever the Chicago Black Hawks happen to be playing.

This new attitude of brotherly love on the part of Toronto, Montreal and Detroit, where sell-outs are guaranteed before the season opens, though unique in big time sport, is hardly the vittee it has been painted. No one is less money but baseball and football leagues, where losses are more common than in major league hockey, have managed to struggle along or years with weak sisters who either "liked it or lumped it" without expecting gifts from the champions.

Hockey, of course, is unique in its player set up and that, as much as the fact that there are only six teams in the National League, has precipitated the present crisis.

* * *

The Pittsburgh Pirates in the National Baseball League and the unlamented St. Louis Browns of the American League, were the despair of baseball's box offices for years, but neither the Yankees nor the Dodgers and Cards, where championships were expected, gave away first rate players to remedy the situation. Franchises are sold or shifted in baseball when times get tough.

* * *

Competition for players, however, makes it possible for baseball and football teams to help themselves. Hockey, unfortunately, has erected a labor structure into which the bodies are shunted when they are 14, 15 and 16 years of age. The obstacle are put in recruitsition thick without their knowledge and their professional careers, if they want such, are determined for them by mutual agreement among the teams with the players either agreeing to co-operate or not playing at all.

A hot baseball prospect can sell his services to the highest bidder and pocket the proceeds. No player can be contacted or contracts made until he leaves high school. Not so in hockey. High school students with a hockey future are shunted into the farm system as far down as Junior B. The players have no say about which team they will play for and who ever heard of a bonus paid to a hot hockey prospect?

The best way to remedy the manpower situation in the National Hockey League is to make all players below the National League free agents. Any team could then bid for their services. Great prospects, like Edgar LaPrade, the best amateur in Canada for several years, while Montreal tired of getting him in uniform when he really wanted to play for Rangers, would be available to the club with the best offer. An ironclad agreement that OHA players could not be tampered with by the pros would also eliminate hasle packed amateur teams and give some semblance of sanity to local competition. Local boys could stay at home if they wanted to, giving hockey a flavor that is lacking when the "hometown" team is composed of talent brought in from all parts of the country.

* * *

Another thing that would increase interest in National Hockey League and possibly sell more tickets would be to expand the league to eight or even ten teams. This would not only give more people a chance to see NHL hockey and create more widespread interest, it would also produce a greater fight for the playoff positions and perhaps eliminate, in the fans' minds at least, the notion that there is a mid-winter slump in the present 70-game schedule. The cry that there are not enough NHL calibre players to staff two or more new teams is pure poppycock. The NHL'ers bring up squads of adequate replacements from the AHL, the Western Canada League and the Eastern Senior League each year to knock that argument into a cocked hat.

* * *

Until Chicago, who has the money for players but no one to spend it on, can bid in the open market for gifted minor leaguers like Jean Beliveau was two years ago, there is nothing much to hope for in the way of improvement in NHL tail-enders. Palming off the expendables on the front running clubs is no way to stimulate fans' interest for the cellar dwellers.

* * *

The Memos had their chance in the first period last night when they had a wide margin of the play and outshot the visitors 11-5, but Mr. Johnson came up with a fine performance between the pipes and finally the front lines began to click. That was that.

Kingston was leading 2-0 at the end of one, added the only goal of the middle session, although the locals broke up more than one rush with a good bodycheck at the right moment, while the teams split four goals down the centre in the final twenty minutes.

* * *

The DeGray-Doran-Pete Jones line was the pick for Belleville, with Wilson coming up with a neat job back of the blueliner. Barclay looked shaky in the nets, although he did not get much protection at times.

* * *

At the time of writing the only score we had from Brockville was at the end of the second period with the Magedomas out front 4-0. Presuming they held the lead in the last period this is the way things look now. Kingston held top spot with 27 points, followed by Cornwall with 24, Belleville in third has 22 and Brockville pulled into a fourth place tie with Whitby, each with 19 points. Clinton is next with 16 and Peterborough brings up the rear with a lowly 9 points. If Whitby came back to win they will be alone in fourth with 21 while Brockville will have 17.

* * *

The Goodyears would like nothing better than to make it five straight over Boucher's bevy and it will be tough to stop them on their own ice. It has been done though, so tonight's battle at the Community Centre should be a thriller. A win for the locals would put them into a tie for second, at least until Sunday when Cornwall are hosts to the Petes. On the other hand another Kingston victory would give them a good margin over the rest of the pack.

Former Maple Leaf Cast-off Has Scored Seventeen Times In 31 Games This Season

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Broadway Blues suit Danny Lewicki just fine.

The up-and-down kid of Toronto Maple Leafs is strictly a stay-up boy with New York Rangers and his National Hockey League goal-getting record is the reason why.

The 23-year-old winger from Fort William broke into the NHL with Leafs in 1950-51 scoring 16 goals in 61 games. In three more season he scored five times in 45 games with Leafs. Thos he was traded to New York. He's counted 17 times in 31 games in the current campaign.

IN STYLE

The difference, Danny says, is in the style of play.

"The Leafs stress back-checking," he said in an interview.

"I stress the no checking. With New York I have more freedom to concentrate on scoring. It's just a difference in the style of play. The Leafs concentrate on defensive, Rangers on scoring. It's easier to score. Rangers play more on the offensive."

Lewicki's 17 goals with Rangers is second only to the 21 scored by 32 games by Bert Olmstead, Montreal Geoffrion of the league-leading Montreal Canadiens to date.

"I hope I can add a couple more tonight," Danny said, referring to Rangers' meeting with Leafs in Maple Leaf Gardens in one of two games tonight. Boston Bruins are at Detroit and Montreal is at Chicago in the others.

NO TOUGHER

Toronto goalie Harry Lumley could have something to say about Lewicki's scoring tonight, but Danny doesn't figure he's any tougher to crack than the rest of the NHL netminders.

"Lumley's tough because he has a good defence in front of him," he said. "But they're all good. They have to be to be playing in the league."

Danny gives Ranger coach Muzz Patrick, who he says is "very good," credit for boosting his goal output this season, too.

"He (Patrick) told me before the season started that I wasn't shooting enough," Danny said. "He told me to shoot more and I did. I've scored a lot more since."

LACE WINS

As for Rangers as a whole, Lewicki says the club "gels along well, but we're not going too well right now in the win column." Rangers have tied two and lost seven in their last nine games and currently are in fifth place, three points behind Boston.

Canadiens lead the league with 41 points, face more than Detroit and four more than Toronto. Bruins have 28 points.

Leaf forwards George Armstrong and Gord Hannigan, out with injuries, may be back in action tonight. Armstrong, a right winger, suffered a cut ankle recently and letwinger Hannigan has been out several weeks with a broken hand. Both practised Friday and said they felt well.

K-W Canucks Win Fourth Game By Beating Marlies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League have won four games this season. They've lost 21.

Canucks got their fourth victory Friday night with a 5-4 overtime victory over Toronto Marlboros before 600 customers. It was their second win against Marlboros this year.

The tall-end Canucks earned the victory, holding an edge on the sluggish Marlboros most of the way although they trailed on the score sheet, until late in the third period.

In another game Guelph Biltmores defeated the second-spot St. Catharines TeePees 3-2 in overtime at Guelph.

BANK WINNER

Bob White sank Ted McAuliff's pass for the winner in the third minute of overtime ad-Kitchener. Ken Mariboro netminder, Al Larose set up three Kitchener goals. Whitey Youngberg scored twice for Canucks while McAuliff scored the tying goal at 16:45 of the third.

Billy Harris scored two of the Toronto goals. Jake Smola and Bob Pulford scored one each.

Ron Howell scored on a hard drive from the blue line to give Biltmores their second victory. Stu Scott and Bill McCreary accounted for the others. Cec Hoskins and Hank Ciesla scored the TeePee goals.

Big Bob Baker Whips Wallace For Third Time

NEW YORK (AP) — Big Bob Baker is a grown soul. He wants to give Nino Valdes a chance to "redeem himself" for the fight he lost to him 16 months ago.

After whipping Coley Wallace Friday night for the third time (once in the amateurs and twice as a pro), the hulking Pittsburgh Negro wants to move up in his class.

Baker rates No. 4 among Rocky Marciano's contenders. Directly ahead are Nino Valdes, No. 1, Don Cockell, No. 2, and Ezzard Charles, No. 3. Perhaps the order is scrambled in some ratings but that's the usual rotation.

Because he holds a decision over Valdes May 21, 1953, the Cuban's last ri:fe:l, Baker wants him first. He knows he has little chance of coaxing Cockell over from London because the British heavy reportedly has the inside track to a title match next June.

"I goofed a couple of times when I should have stopped him," said Baker Friday night after his unanimous decision in a Madison Square Garden 10-rounder. "He (Wallace) took a couple of good chops. He tries to kill you with that right."

Wallace was a weary, well-battered man at the finish. For a time, in the 4th round, he seemed on the verge of flooring Baker. From the fifth on, he was no menace, strictly a left jabber trying to go the route.

Wallace was down to 201½ pounds and Baker 211 for this rematch of their decided bout, Oct. 1, Baker won that, dropping Wallace in the fourth, but he couldn't put him down on the deck this time.

Kingston Goodyears Strengthen Grip On Top Spot Of Senior 'B' Loop

Set Memos Down by 5-2 Count Although Locals Outplayed Winners Over Most of Game

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Kingston Goodyears strengthened their grip on first place in the O.H.A. Senior "B" grouping here last night with a decisive 5-2 victory over the Belleville Memos before 1,013 spectators. The setback left the Memos in third place, two points back of the Cornwall Colts and five behind the Goodyears.

Although the local squad came up with their best hockey of the night in the first period, Kingston jumped into a 3-0 lead, added one in the middle session, while the teams split four goals during the final twenty minutes. It was a clean, hot, at times, a hard-hitting affair with the visitors drawing five of the dozen minor sentences handed out by Referees Crombie and Heffering.

Ken Johnson in the post for Kingston turned in a brilliant rifle save in the opening ten minutes of the game as both teams applied the wide-open, end-to-end rushes that are typical in a game between these two old rivals. Ted DeGray came close in the first minute of play when his bullet drive had Johnson beat but caromed off the goal post above the custodian's shoulder.

Ted Nicholson and Les Douglas combined to chalk up the first counter of the game at 13.26. Belleville had the carrying end of the play but Douglas picked up the puck at centre ice and sweeping with Nicholson taking a perfect pass, cutting in a little from the right side and letting go a short, hard drive that had Barclay beat all the way.

Three minutes later Toppazzini made it 2-0 on a slap-shot from along the wing bench that caught the far corner of the twine Nicholson drawing an assist on the play. Fifteen seconds remained in the period.

The Memos applied a different style of hockey in the second period, checking closer and using their body more to good advantage. George MacGregor made it 3-0 at 2.02. Kingston took Tommy Goodfellow's pass, outmaneuvered defenceman Jake Wade and streaked in close before slipping the disc past Barclay.

Five minutes were handed out as play became rougher but they did not figure in the scoring. Bob Wilson and George MacGregor went off together at 9.22 for roughing while Lionel Bellringer and Stewart also drew minors as Kingston outshot the homesters 15-7 in this session.

The third period opened with Stewart in the penalty box from an interference penalty called at 18.25 of the previous period. Shortly after his release, Tommy Goodfellow made it 4-0 on Murray's passout from behind the Belleville cage and at 2.08 Goodfellow caught the official eye for crippling, leading to the first Belleville goal.

TOOK MACEY'S PASS

Doug Day was the marksman, taking MacGregor's pass while waiting on Johnson's doorstep, eluding him and flipping the rubber into the open corner. Johnny Wilson got this one back at 5.20 from a faceoff to the right of the local's net, beating Barclay on a solo effort.

Hub Macey completed the scoring fat 7.36, on a three-way play with DeGray and Pete Jones, firing under the bar from about 20 feet out that was partly screened.

Nicholson and Goodfellow racked up a goal and assist each to pace the club's attack while Macey had the same for the Memos. Kingston club played well as a unit while Wilson was good on defence for Belleville.

The teams:

Kingston—Goal, Johnson; defence, Nicholson, Lundry, Goodfellow, Irvine; forwards, Murray, MacGregor, Toppazzini, McKeown, Wyke, Senior, Douglas, Thakeer, Bellringer, Stewart.

Belleville—Goal, Barclay; defence, Goyer, Macey, Wade, Wilson; forwards, Kr. Duncan, Ed Duncan, Day, Doran, Dugan, DeGray, F. Jones, D. Jones, MacDonald, Muckler.

Speegle Turns Down Coaching Job at Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Cliff Speegle would probably be assistant coach of Edmonton Eskimos than coach of Ottawa Rough Riders.

The former centre with Oklahoma University was one of three prospects interviewed last week by officials of the Big Four football club in search of a successor to Clem Crowe, Crowe resigned last month after a season that ended with Ottawa at the bottom of the standings.

Speegle, after the three Americans were interviewed, was reported on the inside track to the job. But Jack Tarbert, club president, got word that Speegle plans to stay with head coach Frank Ivy and the Canadian champion Stallions.

"Now we'll have to look some more," said Gill. "Last week after our talk with Speegle we looked to be in a fair way of getting him as coach. But, after returning to Edmonton, he has talked it over with his family and decided to stay in Edmonton."

OTHER PROSPECTS

The others the Rider officials interviewed are Lou Zarza, head coach at Wayne University, Detroit, who is understood to have been a Rider prospect years ago, and Joe Bach, formerly with Pittsburgh Steelers (of the National) Football League.

The three were selected from a list of candidates for the job as worthy of an interview.

Gill said he has been decided whether either Zarza or Bach will be offered a contract. It was understood, however, that Riders will look for new applicants.

United States Sweeps Davis Cup Round Winning All Games

By WIL LORIMSLEY

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—The United States completed a 5-0 rout of Australia in the challenge final of the Davis Cup competition today behind the booming racquets of Tony Trabert and Hamilton Richardson.

Trabert, the Cincinnati blaster whose game had been far off before the start of the round two days ago, crushed Lennart Bergelin, 6-2, 6-1, 3-6, 6-2. Richardson, substituting for Vic Seixas who was given the day off by captain Billy Talbert, rushed past Sven Davidson, 6-0, 8-3, 6-3.

Thus the final score came out 5-0, just as Talbert had predicted. Numerous experts here thought the Swedes had a good chance of upsetting the Yanks and advancing to the challenge round against the Aussies on Dec. 27-29.

But there was no stopping Talbert's finely-trained crew. The big surprise was the contrast in performance turned in by young Richardson, the national intercollegiate champion from Tulane University.

He was nothing short of superb as he dethroned Davidson earlier this year won the American indoor championship in New York. The Swede, however, was no match for Dick. His service ranged from poor to horrendous and the delivery merely set up kills for Richardson.

Sven, a fellow who seems to discourage too easily, broke through Richardson's service just twice, in the seventh game of the second set and the fourth game of the third set.

Richardson seemed to be determined to show Talbert that he should get a singles berth in the challenge round. It's something the captain will have to mull over because Sven never looked better.

Trabert's match provided him with a good opportunity to work on his service. Tony's delivery is one of the strongest points in his game, and without it, he is vulnerable to someone like Lew Hoad of Australia.

"It was a good win," said captain Talbert after the match.

"It was completely pleased with the way Tony played," he said. "Richardson played well, too.

"If anything should go wrong, it is gratifying to know we have a man like Richardson who can step in."

Bluebird Scheduled Soon To Punch 'Water Barrier'

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A 2½-ton structure, claimed to be the strongest and most rigid for its weight ever built, is scheduled to try to punch through the "water barrier" sometime soon.

It's the Bluebird VII, a £25,000 engineering marvel described as the world's first all-metal, turbo-hydroplane.

The flat-bottomed beauty was designed for Donald Campbell, son of the late speed ace Sir Malcolm Campbell. Only a few months remain for some research into the nature of water racing, and to smash the present world record of 178.497 miles an hour, set by American Stanley Sayers.

The Bluebird is to start trials on Ullswater, in the Lake district, next spring.

NOVEL DESIGN

"It is an entirely new conception in shape and structure," said Campbell. 33. "On the water we are up against enormous resistance. "One of these is the 'water barrier.' It is the sudden increase in drag between the water and the planing (or riding) surfaces, which gives rise to high frequency pitching.

"Its effect is to disintegrate the hull structure, giving the visual appearance of an explosion."

Campbell has provided against that unhappy event as well as science allows. He can be jettisoned from the hydroplane—armed cockpit, and will breathe air from a special tank.

Special ship-to-shore communications will relay indications of stress to the driver, enabling Campbell to slow up when necessary.

STRONGER THAN PLANE

The Bluebird is of special alloy on a hidden principle. The body looks like an airplane fuselage—it has been built to withstand twice the stress carried by such a modern jet plane—and has two outrigger floats.

The actual riding surface of the Bluebird is expected to be about two square feet.

The engine will carry fuel for only about 45 minutes and special flaps will prevent water getting into the air intakes. The engine uses three tons of air a minute, and develops a thrust equivalent to 6,000 horsepower.

Because of research and other factors, Campbell has laid down no definite date for trying to smash the record.

Directors Reject Offer to Buy The Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland baseball directors Friday unanimously rejected two offers from prospective purchasers of Cleveland Indians.

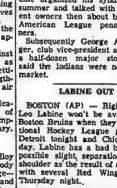
The board members, who own approximately 51 per cent of the club's stock, issued a statement saying they have "no intention of getting out of baseball."

One offer came from a group whose names were not disclosed. The directors said they were committed to keep this group's request "not to reveal the names or its members unless its offer was accepted."

THE OFFER

The other offer was from Joseph E. Cole, president of the National Key Co.

Figures were given for either offer, but advance guesses on the Key bid were around $1,500,000.



Already a minor stockholder, Cole organized his syndicate last summer and talked with the present owners then about buying the American League pennant winners.

Subsequently George A. Medinger, club vice-president and also a half-dozen major stockholders said the Indians were not on the market.

LABINE OUT

BOSTON (AP) — Right winger Leo Labine won't be available to Boston Bruins when they play National Hockey League games at Detroit tonight and Chicago Sunday. Labine has a bad insides and possible slight, separation of his shoulder as the result of a collision with several Red Wing players Thursday night.

Leo Durocher Named Manager Of the Year

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Leo Durocher of baseball's world champion New York Giants, named manager of the year in a landslide vote, world today.

"The players ought to get that award. I don't know how you can arrange to give it to all the fellows on my club but that's where it belongs. I didn't get a hit or field a ball all summer."

Durocher climaxed a brilliant year by leading the Giants to a four-game sweep over the Cleveland Indians in the world series. He received 216 of the 426 votes cast by baseball writers and broadcasters throughout the nation in the annual Associated Press poll.

Al Lopez of Cleveland was second with 32 votes, followed in order by Charlie Grimm of Milwaukee and Paul Richards of the Chicago White Sox. Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees, chosen the No. 1 pilot four of the previous five years, was first on only seven ballots.

Minor Hockey

Three midget and three squirt games were played in the city on Thursday night with Robb's blanking Big "A" 3-0; Northern Electric over Sherwood Warner 7-0, and Booth Radio shutting out Lewis Auto Electric 4-0 in contests in the midget division. Squirt scores were Black Hawks and Red Wings 3-1 while Canadiens edged Bruins 1-0, and the Maple Leafs were over the Rangers by the same score.

MIDGET

Latchford paced Robb's with two goals, Bob Armstrong and Gord St. Louis scored for Northern in their victory with Bill Foster picking up one assist.

All three goals were solo efforts in this third fixture with Caddick, Kerruish and Austin scoring for Booth.

SQUIRT

Donny Graham got the lone Leaf goal, while Billy Rushlow netted the only marker for the Canadiens. Bob Hall and Jerry Reid scored for Hawks in their tie with Wings with Billy Grayden getting the equalizer.

At this time of the year, with the sun low in the sky during late races, horses entering the turn sometimes looking to the glare of the sun and shy. Several spills have occurred.

Crow-Shooting

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables.)

For a good many years we, my son and I, have been shooting crows. When winter comes and the upland shooting season draws to a close, we have been finding our fun in the outdoors in the systematic reduction of the black pests which winter hereabouts.

Most of our shooting in past years has been flyway shooting, done from a blind located near one of the roosts. There are thousands of crows which winter in our general area and they, during the winter months, concentrate in the chosen winter roosts.

We have a stuffed owl which we have used with moderate success. This sort of shooting depends upon the use of a good crow call. These are not easily come by, as we contented ourselves mostly with flyway shooting. There is a plentiful supply of birds—a fact which is amply evidenced by the size of the annual ammunition bill.

A real good crow calls are a rarity. We have tried out many, varieties but none of our selections seemed to sound enough like a crow to be completely effective. To do the job right, a crow call must sound exactly like a crow—one which is in serious trouble and in need of help.

STRANGE TUBE

This fall, a friend of ours came over from eastern Pennsylvania to do some woodcock shooting with us. Hanging from a leather thong around his neck was a strange-looking wooden tube. I asked him about it.

"Oh, that," he said, "that's my new crow call."

"Is it any good?"

"Best I ever saw," he replied. "come out here and I'll show you."

My friend's routine after the day's kill, down next to the golf course; we ran shoot on private property if we are so inclined. Accordingly, we went outside and looked around. There were no crows in sight.

"Don't worry about that," said my friend, "they will show up soon enough." Guns ready, we stood inside our garage while he reached outside and began to call. Within a matter of minutes the crows put in their appearance, flying from all directions toward our house, yet in the distance. Sometimes looking to the glare of the sun and shy. Several spills have occurred.

REPEATED CALLS

We knocked down several and the flock dispersed but repeated use of the call brought them back, regardless of gun fire. Knowing crows fairly well and having great respect for their intelligence, I simply would not have believed it had I not seen it happen.

That crow call fascinated me. En route to and from the woodcock covers, often we would park the car beside a country road, walk a considerable distance from it, and conceal ourselves under a convenient tree or bush, any crows that were in the vicinity would rally to the rescue as soon as they heard the call. It would bring them from incredible distances, all carrying excitedly and circling around overhead until we knocked some of them down.

My friend tells me that the call is made by a Pennsylvania farmer, who speaks with a pronounced Pennsylvania Dutch accent. He began making them as a hobby in his leisure time, but the demand for them became so great that he now manufactures them commercially.

My son and I have ordered two of these calls. I am sorry that I do not know the name of the maker. However, if enough people want more information, I can find out who he is.

In the event, I am looking forward to some interesting sport with these crow calls next year. For me, at least, a crow call which actually will bring birds in will be a distinct novelty.

Looking for Site

TORONTO (CP)—The metropolitan planning department is looking for a site for a 50,000-seat capacity civic stadium, it was reported Friday.

Officials said the site must be within easy reach of public and private transportation. When completed, it will be an all-purpose sports arena.

The department will make recommendations in time to metro planning and parks committee.

WINS AWARD

NEW YORK (AP)—Jimmy Carter, Golden Gloves champion a world championship twice, Friday was named the winner of the Sullivan award as the outstanding amateur athlete of the year poll for his spectacular 15th technical knockout of Paddy DeMarco.

The lightweight champion last his crown to De Marco by decision March 3. In their return in San Francisco, Nov. 17, Carter handed DeMarco a sound trouncing, stopping the latter in the second round.

Major Leagues Likely to Talk Of Kiner Deal

NEW YORK (AP)—Ralph Kiner and Allie Reynolds, who usually do most of the talking for their fellow major leaguers, figure to be the subject of conversation today when the majors' 16 player representatives hold their annual winter meeting.

Kiner probably will be the most discussed, in view of his turnabout request for a salary cut in excess of the 25-per-cent limit—a limit demanded by the players only recently achieved.

The requested—and received—cut was imposed by Kiner after the trade which sent him from the Chicago Cubs to the Cleveland Indians.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick, however, has decided to hold up the contract and ask Kiner to sign a new one.

CONFER SESSION

Kiner also warrants the players' attention in that he had served as the player delegate from the Cleveland league. His departure to the American means a new delegate probably will be named to the Indians.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick, however, has decided to hold up the contract and ask Kiner to sign a new one.

Pee Wee action at the arena this morning saw the Black Hawks win over the Maple Leafs 4-1, the Canadiens whitewash the Red Wings 3-0 while the Rangers and Bruins battled to a 3-3 deadlock.

Robert Pointer defeated the Leafs single-handed as he scored all four of his teams goals, two of them unassisted. Earl Clare and Bobby Dugan had one helper each. John Graham was the lone Leaf marksman.

The Canadiens too were sparked by one player in their win. Doug Dafoe racking up both goals. The only penalty of the morning was handed out in this game with Gordon Gazley getting two minutes for throwing his stick.

Richard Woods and Robert Burr tallied the Bruin markers with Greydon Scott and Jim Preston each scoring one for the Rangers.

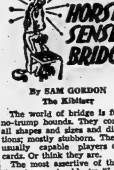
Subjects of 'This Is Your Life' Not Informed Says Edwards

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Everyone in Hollywood is worried about how to keep the subjects of "This Is Your Life" secret. Everyone except Ralph Edwards.

Lately there has been much talk about leaks in the super-secret setup concerning the honored guests of Edwards' Wednesday night TV show. Some columnists claimed that the identity of last week's subject, director William Wellman, was known all over town before the show went on.



I asked Ralph about it.

ONE SHOW CANCELLED

"Everybody else seems concerned about keeping the secret," Ralph told me. "But I'm not. As far as our organization is concerned, there are no leaks. Some of the people appearing on the show may give out the information, but we have no control over that.

"As far as we know, only one of our subjects ever found out ahead of time. That was Ann Sothern and we cancelled that show."

All the others have been surprised, he said. Either that, or they've been good actors, which is very possible. Only two persons were informed ahead of time. Because of the nature of her stage—a battle against alcoholism—Lillian Roth's cooperation was required. And Eddie Cantor was asked for his permission because of a heart condition.

By SAM GORDON
The Elkhart

The world of bridge is full of no-trump hounds. They come in all shapes and sizes and dispositions, mostly stubborn. They are usually capable players of the cards. I think they are.

The most assertive of these is the player who blurts: "I bid a strong no-trump." He means his opening bid of one no-trump promises a hand that can stand a response from partner no matter how weak.

Most of the prominent teachers have run the scale from weakest to strongest no-trump opening. They are mostly settled on a good and sound footing which is a practical middle course.

Culbertson, after numerous changes, seems to have come to this: It shows 3½ to four honor tricks (no more or less), stoppers in not more than three suits, a balanced hand distribution.

Goren says an opening one no-trump bid shows 16, 17, or 18 points; balanced distribution; at least three suits protected. With more than 19 points, some other kind of opening bid applies.

Accordin' to Gordon, any opening one bid shows five tricks with two aces; no-trump denies a suit bid. So, an opening of one no-trump shows five no-trump tricks with two aces and no biddable suit.

Take the south hand you see here:

♠J 8 6 3
♥K Q 10
♦K Q J 6
♣A 9

Culbertson rules would say this and should open with a bid of one no-trump. So would Goren's rules. My rules would tell you to start with an opening bid of one diamond; your biddable suit.

Both Culbertson and Goren have good reasons to offer for their selection of no-trump instead of suit with this hand. They prefer to show the distribution at the expense of hiding their suit.

My policy of first showing the biddable suit has its own good reasons. They are reasons you may or may not approve. But this is no reason to avoid reading my coming series of proofs of bids.

MALA POWERS FULFILLS TWO TOP AMBITIONS

If she weren't an actress, Mala Powers would prefer a career as a geologist. Currently co-starred with Lex Barker, Howard Duff, William Demarest and John Ireland in "Outrage," Universal-International's Coley production of "The Yellow Mountain" closing tonight at the McCarthy Theatre, the popular screen beauty also is one who can enjoy both ambitions. For the screen, in her role as Nedra Wray, portrays the sawyer of Goldfield, Nevada, gambling territory's downtown gold-rush era.

On the screen Miss Powers' ambition is to avoid being typed, an objective she has achieved since her dramatic studies at the Pasadena Playhouse and her early roles in radio productions which included characterizations of Hyrana, Egyptian princess, and gurgling infants. Since reaching the screen when producer-director-actress Ida Lupino discovered her and assigned her a role in "Outrage," Mala has appeared in "Edge of Doom," portrayed Suzanne in "Cyrano de Bergerac" and played feminine leads in "Room of Dreams," "City Beneath the Sea," "City That Never Sleeps" and "Geraldine."

"The Yellow Mountain," presented in Print-by-Technicolor, was produced by Ben Hunter and directed by Jesse Hibbs.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR MONDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You'll have to exert yourself if you want returns today; may even have to repeat your efforts to improve procedures you thought were good. Be willing to compromise if necessary. But maintain your ideas.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) —With firmness and honest intent you can advance now. Adjust yourself to conditions, make necessary calculations, be progressive and use good judgment.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) —Your attributes, if used rightly, will carry you to high success. A determination to achieve, tempered with a friendly smile, will win more credits than you expect.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Your outlook for now has an ascendent tendency until around 3 p.m. Mark time first, carefully compile assets and be ready to act efficiently at the opportune moment. Don't rush things.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)— Some relationship may seem strained; financial matters need more care. Things will brighten with steady, sturdy application. Don't make snap judgments.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Be wary of dubious suggestions pertaining to business or professional matters. Analyze all situations before acting, then proceed with confidence.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — You may encounter a few snags, some "don't". But, with your innate adaptability, you can overcome obstacles, go forward to bigger gains.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Aspects indicate big things as a reward for your faith and consistency — especially if you don't try to burn the candle at both ends or force issues. Study, double-check.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — You may not be as quick or observing as usual today. Pause for reviewing where it will help and you will work better, more easily. Good effort will produce.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Similar tendencies and prospects to Gemini now. There's aggressiveness in the air and it can be helpful if it isn't used to dominate others. Be rightly ambitious but use persuasion instead of force.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Some restraint may be necessary to avoid extremes, but day on the whole can be productive. Allocate your tasks carefully; not where to avoid useless repetition.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Business and financial transactions can be greatly improved but it is imperative not to be careless or too sure. Heart, home interests favored.

YOU SORN TODAY are usually direct, unselfish, fearless, capable in an emergency; can be depended upon to act or stand by in an efficient manner. You have keen intuition, distinctively know right from wrong, and dislike pettiness or anything dishonest. You are proud of your heritage, are ambitious and persevering. Develop your many fine qualities, use all your assets rightly and you will attain top honors. Be patient with necessarily slow matters and persons less bright than yourself. Birthdate of: Leopold von Ranke, German historian.

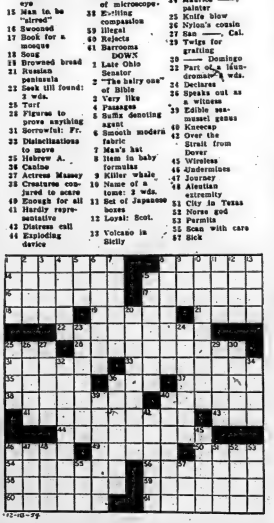
Little Benny's Note Book

Mr. Jones kept pop awake agin last night snoring next store, and this morning pop said to ma, By golies I'm going to board the roaring lion in his den. I'll have a personel talk with Jones, he said.

That's just what I've been urging you to do, ma said. If you speek to him man to man and face to face in a reasonable way, without letting your head fly off the handle, Mr. Jones will be glad to cooperate and take some constructive action, she said, and pop said, Do you mean like moving out of the neighborhood?

I meen sleeping in a sitting position propped agenst pillows, or some other wierd known remedy, ma said, and pop said, It might be more efficient if he slept with his head in a buckit of water.

And he left for his office and I walked to the bus with him on my way to school, and I said, G, pop, there's Mr. Jones now, waiting for the bus.



I'll take the bull by fog horns, pop said, and he said to Mr. Jones, "I was just talking about you, ... that we can count on one another being on ..., in fact especially night, ... you can hear me ring, Mr. Jones said. And he lafted like anything, being a man that always laffs at everything, and he said, Mrs. Jones and I have enjoyed many a good laff about my snoring, it's quite a family joke. Here's our bus, I'll tell you some good stories about my snoring on the way downtown, he said.

And he lafted while they were fat getting on the bus, and pop didn't.

Local Phone Numbers Part Of Continent-Wide System

Belleville's telephone numbers will become part of a continent-wide numbering system next spring when the local exchange is changed over to dial operation.

G. W. Proctor, Bell Telephone manager here, today explained the new numbering system. Under the new system all telephone numbers will consist of the first two letters of an exchange name plus an exchange numeral and four other figures. The exchange name for Belleville and district will be WOodland 2 and WOodland 6.

The new numbering system is designed to allow for continued expansion of the telephone network, and conforms to a uniform numbering plan being introduced throughout Canada and the United States, which calls for all numbers to consist of two letters and five figures, Mr. Proctor explained.

PART OF ADVANCE

Uniform numbering is a part of an important advance in long distance telephone service. When the plan is complete a Belleville man in distance exchange will be able to dial direct to a telephone in San Francisco, or any other major centre —across provincial, state and international boundaries — without the assistance of any operators along the way or at the distant centre. Eventually the plan will be extended so that the telephone user will be able to dial his own long distance calls.

More than a third of all long distance calls in Bell's Ontario-Quebec territory are now completed by operators using this faster method. In about two years that fraction will have risen to three-quarters.

90 NUMBERING AREAS

Under the uniform numbering system Canada and the United States are divided into about 90 numbering areas, each identified by a three-digit code. Within each numbering area only the exchange must be unique. Exchange names and numerals are used, because they allow ample scope for selecting exchange prefixes.

Work to expand the telephone wire and cable network serving Belleville and vicinity is well under way in preparation for the dial changeover, Mr. Proctor said. These projects call for the erection of 70 poles, the stringing of miles of cable and wire on poles and the placing of 2,900 feet of cable underground.

"The installation of dial equipment is going ahead on schedule in the exchange building at the corner of Bridge and Church Streets," Mr. Proctor said. The new program to change all Belleville telephone numbers to prepare for dial operation is well underway and some 10,000 telephones will be ready when the cutover takes place.

MAY CHANGE NUMBERS

"Although the new type of telephone numbers appear lengthy, the actual numbers on the new dial plates, these numbers are not necessarily final in every case," Mr. Proctor explained. "Businessmen especially, should bear this in mind, and wait until the changeover to the dial system before ordering stationery, business cards or advertising material on which their telephone numbers will appear. The dial equipment being installed is extremely complex, and our customers' telephone needs can change with new developments that function will have risen to three-quarters.

Royal Children Will Have Happy Christmas With Parents

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—This Christmas, unlike to be a happy one for the royal children, will find them reunited with their parents and further away to set their hearts a-flutter.

A red two - wheeler stored in Buckingham Palace may be the answer to Prince Charles' prayers for a department store Santa Claus that he wants a bicycle for Christmas. For Princess Anne, toy sales of miniature baking dishes and a real electric oven were purchased by the Queen Mother on her North American visit. For Charles, she bought a stage set of real plastic bricks.

Charles and Anne love moving gadgets—from the 53 toys any child might find in a Christmas stocking to a radio-controlled car set, presented in 1951 by Windsor, Out.

QUEEN GOES SHOPPING

On a personal shopping tour, the Queen showed special interest in American toys. At a counter where everything costs less than $3, she purchased a 5s 11d toy that jumped down stairs and tested—with delights—a toy that space gun which stimulated a red ray flash.

She bought blue noses and comic eyebrows for the two children to make potato men, plus some practical toys, such as a pencil and doll, with yellow wolf cloats, blue jeans and red-cotton-like check shirt, was added to the list.

The Royal Family leaves London Dec. 22 for Sandringham.

The children are well into Christmas preparations. Big event of the moment at Buckingham Palace is painting Christmas cards — for "mummy" and Charles' "grandmamma" and "aunt Margot".

A children's Christmas party will be held before they leave London and Charles is leading a band in the parceling of gifts for the guests. A serious pre - Christmas task is weeding out the toy cupboard for "children in hospital." Discarded toys are given a new look by the palace staff.

At Sandringham it will be a united Christmas, very different from last year when the Queen Mother and her people from New Zealand and said wistfully: "... We all want our children with us at Christmas time."

INFORMAL CHRISTMAS

Away from public gaze, the Royal Family indulge in informal, happy Christmas fun, animated talk and dancing. The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret are sure to be there and probably the Kents and the Gloucesters.

Charles and Anne look excitedly to find out what Santa has brought down the chimney. After breakfast they visit church with parents and family and, if the weather is fine, walk home through the park.

Then comes the unwrapping of presents from the Christmas tree. Many, no doubt, will come from other lands. Numerous toys presented to the Queen and her Duke of Edinburgh during the world tour are earmarked for future use.

The duke also brought back from his July visit to Canada a miniature igloo, an Eskimo doll, native furniture and beautifully-moulded Arctic animals and birds.

The family gathers with the children about the tree when the Queen retires to her study to make her Christmas broadcast.

$FLIT MONOPOLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government began splitting up its half-billion - dollar synthetic rubber monopoly today and selling it to private business firms Friday, at least three will be identified, it disclosed. No sale will be final until Congress has had 60 days to examine it.

Canada's Stature as Major 'Small' Power Increased Through UN Undertakings

By WILLIAM HARCOURT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada's stature as a major "small" power increased through the Canadian undertakings at the United Nations in 1954.

Canada's efforts as a mediator during the ninth session of the General Assembly resulted in one of two rare Russian test agreements and considerably influenced the other.

Even before it adjourned, the session was called "historic" by delegates in view of the unanimity reached on disarmament and on President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan.

Health Minister Paul Martin's negotiations on a disarmament resolution with the late Andrei Vishinsky won praise from all sides and marked the first time in UN history that the Russians submitted their views to the West in private meetings aimed at a compromise solution.

The success of the Martin-Vishinsky discussions and Canada's urging prompted U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge to follow suit and eventually win Russian backing of the U.S. plan for development and sharing of the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

After eight days of meetings with Martin, Vishinsky announced Russia would accept Canada's invitation and join Britain, France and the United States in sponsoring the Canadian resolution on disarmament.

Russia's acceptance of co-sponsorship marked the first time since 1948 that the major powers had joined in sponsoring an assembly resolution.

Canada's efforts were further rewarded when the resolution—which provides for a resumption of disarmament talks among the five powers — was unanimously approved by the political committee and then the General Assembly.

Assembly President Eelco Van Kleffens, Jr., referring to the decision to resume disarmament talks, said, "No one can foresee the results of the discussions . . . but, apart from this uncertainty, there is one important point, and that is that there is now a possibility of making progress."

Canada played another behind-the-scenes part in the atoms-for-peace discussions while the role of mediator was handled by LGdge.

The Lodge - Vishinsky meetings were the more remarkable in the light of Lodge's statement when he first came to the UN that he would show the Russians how tough he was.

The procedures followed in both cases underscored a statement made in the general debate last September by External Affairs Minister Pearson, chairman of the Canadian delegation.

In the first of his two appearances before the General Assembly this year, Pearson stressed the increasing importance of the UN as a centre of negotiation, reconciliation and unity in the face of divisions persisting in the world.

"Pearson made his second and last speech from the assembly rostrum when he spoke in December in support of a U.S. request for UN intervention in the case of 11 fliers imprisoned as spies by Communist China.

For most of the session, Martin acted as leader of the Canadian delegation. When Martin returned to Ottawa in mid-November, the leadership was taken over by D. M. Johnson, Canada's permanent delegate.

Earlier in the session, Johnson was elected vice-president of the assembly's first political committee, which debated the disarmament and atoms-for-peace plans.

Canada also maintained its contribution to the funds to aid underdeveloped countries, Arab refugees of the Palestine war and the rehabilitation and unification of Korea.

In addition to Pearson, Martin and Johnson, the Canadian delegation to the 1954 assembly included Senator C. B. Howard of Cheticamp, Que., G. D. Weaver, member of Parliament for Churchill, L., Chandler Ber of Parliament for Richelieu-Vercheres, Mrs. K. G. Montgomery of Edmonton, Charles Ritchie, undersecretary of state, and K. P. Kirkwood and Stuart Hemaley, both of the department of external affairs.

Wellington

WELLINGTON — On every side we are reminded of the coming of Christmas. We see it in the gaily decorated shop windows, in the occasional Christmas tree, the busy shoppers, the postoffice with its throngs of eager people and in the faces of the happy children. And the Christmas story is an inspiration to these modern days of hurry and worry.

UNITED CHURCH WMS

The Christmas meeting of the WMS of Wellington United Church was held in the Sunday School room on Tuesday afternoon. The room was bright with a decorated Christmas tree, candles. The president, Mrs. Gerald Stoneburg conducted the meeting with Mrs. Barton Cronk, secretary, and Mrs. E. Maybee, pianist. Among others taking part were Mrs. Ralph Dorland who reported for temperance, Mrs. J. L. Ross and Mrs. C. Hicks, a former president.

The highlight of the meeting was the showing of pictures on the screen, depicting the Christmas Story. This was under the direction of Mrs. McMaster and gave the story from the time the Saviour's birth was foretold by the prophets until the birth of the Christ-child. The views were explained by Bible passages and the singing of several Christmas carols including, Hark the Herald Angels Sing, Silent Night, Come all Ye Faithful, and Joy to the World the Lord is Come. Mrs. McMaster concluded with an address. Mrs. W. Hamel gave the treasurer's report. At the close a social hour with refreshments was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vanderwater and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Vanderwater.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cleave and family were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Cleave, Glissed, on Sunday, in celebration of Percy's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Youret and family expect to spend Christmas with relatives at Egansville.

Word has been received that Miss Helen Arthur of Belleville has safely arrived in St. Petersburg, Florida, where she will spend the winter. She reports cool weather in the sunny south.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Benham, Bloomfield, will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carley on Christmas Day.

Mr. M. Greer and bride (nee Miss D. Elliott), were honored by friends with a post-nuptial shower at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Greer. The happy couple received many gifts and a pleasant evening is reported.

Mrs. Edna Platt is expecting to spend Christmas with friends in Welland.

Miss Mary L. Platt has accepted a position as secretary in Toronto.

Survey of Homes Shows Return to Pre-TV Habits

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Some of television's domestic effects on living habits and on other forms of entertainment are beginning to wear off, if viewers in New Brunswick, N.J., are typical.

The Canadian and Walsh Advertising Agency here has been conducting annual surveys of New Brunswick homes the last five years and its report for 1954 shows a strong trend toward a return to pre-TV habits and activities.

The surveys in past years had shown night-time radio listening the hardest hit of all by TV, but it's on the upswing again. Morning radio listening, at least in New Brunswick TV homes, never was affected and has steadily increased.

NEWSPAPER READING UP

"Newspaper reading is the only form of mass communication in the home which showed no reaction when TV sets were purchased," says the report.

"In 1951 reading of newspapers among adults in the panel of identical families was up nine per cent during the first year of TV in the home. This same group of buyers in 1951 showed an increase of 20 per cent in 1952 and an added 12-per-cent increase in 1953. This year's survey shows that newspaper reading has remained at its 1953 peak."

Movie attendance from TV homes, after declining steadily through 1952, turned upward in 1953 and showed a substantial increase in 1954. Magazine reading, after a 33-per-cent drop, showed a faster a 33-per-cent drop, showed a 70-per-cent increase this year on top of a five-per-cent gain last year.

GENERAL TREND

While these findings, based on a "guinea pig" study of a city of just under 60,000 population, might vary in degree from the national average, reports from other independent specialists indicate that they accurately measure the general trends.

In Canada, where TV still is relatively new, the Retail Bookseller's Association reports no effect on book reading, as does the public library in New York, a city which has had TV a long time. Financial reports of the big movie companies show continued gains in movie attendance. New radio stations continue to come on the air, and more than 600 applications for station permits are pending.

It doesn't mean TV is a passing fad, and all the evidence is that it will have a lasting and powerful impact. But there are growing indications that the public is adjusting to TV to allow for resumption of more normal living habits.

TORONTO YOUTH CHARGED WITH ATTACK

Russia Threatens To End Friendship Pact With Britain

Note on Paris Agreements Similar to One to French

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet Union today threatened to cancel its friendship pact with Britain if the Paris agreements for the rearming of West Germany are ratified.

The Soviet threat was contained in a note to Britain handed over today. It follows a similar threat levelled against France last Thursday.

The Paris agreements have already been approved by the British Parliament.

Under Article Seven of the treaty each side undertakes not to conclude any alliance against the other.

The Soviet note said Russia threatens to cancel was signed in London in 1942. Operative for 20 years, it provides for either side to go to the aid of the other if involved in hostilities with Germany.

The Paris agreements would end the occupation of West Germany and bring it into the Western European defence community.

Russia threatens to cancel the treaty unless Britain also wanted to wait for the approval first of the Paris treaties to rearm West Germany and admit it to NATO, return sovereignty to West Germany and put the disputed Saar valley under the proposed western European union.

These enemies of the premier, are said to feel that the responsibility for nullification of German rearmament might turn out to be political suicide that Gerodd can't keep him out of power permanently.

The 627-member Assembly accepted Mendes-France as premier last June by a 419-to-47 vote and approved the Indochina peace he concluded at Geneva a month later, 400-to-13. October, however, he could muster only a 350-to-213 vote to ratify the Paris agreements which later were incorporated in the Paris treaties on Germany.

In balloting Friday on technical points of the Indochina budget, the premier was defeated on one vote, 301-to-300, and again, by a margin of only by minute margins, 298-to-289 and 295-to-293.

Sam Hunt, 20, Seriously Hurt, Train Hits Truck

Sam Hunt, 20, is in serious condition in Belleville General Hospital, following an accident about 7.15 Sunday evening in which the truck he was driving was hit by the Montreal-Toronto Flyer, at the level crossing at Marysville. He was alone in his truck.

Hunt, thrown clear of the wreckage of his 1950 model panel truck, was found unconscious crumpled in a deep ditch at the side of the highway about 10 minutes after the accident by OPP Constable J. A. Fullerton and Maurice Waterbury, Jr., Jim McCauley, 16, and Gerard McCauley, 13, all of Marysville.

He is believed to have suffered a fracture at the base of the skull and contusions of the brain.

Hunt, a carpenter who works in Belleville and Trenton, and who boards in Belleville, was spending the week-end at the home of his foster-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Wrings, Marysville.

He had just finished helping Mrs. Wringe trim their Christmas tree and was on his way to a drugstore in Demorcito when passenger autos 6235 slammed into his westbound panel truck.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Waterbury, who live near the crossing, were the first persons from their home to reach window. Mrs. Waterbury stated that her husband rushed from his chair as he saw Hunt's truck approach the crossing. She said that the train "sort of dragged the truck into the air" when it hit.

The truck was completely demolished. The Flyer, which hits the 80-mile-per-hour on the Marysville flats, went three quarters of a mile before the crew could bring the crossing before coming to a stop.

Maurice Waterbury Jr., and the McCauley brothers raced to the scene when they heard the crash.

Train crewmen set out flares to stop the second section of the west-bound train.

Dr. D. C. McVicker, Deseronto, gave emergency treatment at the scene before Hunt was rushed to Belleville General Hospital by Bush's Ambulance.

Crewmen on the train were Horace Farrar, Trenton, engineer; Ross Hine, 115 Golfdale Road, Belleville, fireman; and Jim Albey, Brockville, conductor.

Elephants Go Nuts Over Nuts

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuters)—Some Victoria schoolboys may report seeing pink elephants but none of them will watch the claim of a sober Uganda game department official—he saw a herd of drunken elephants.

The tipsy pachyderms were sighted south of Lake Albert, in western Uganda. They had stuffed themselves with over-ripe nuts which bursaria palms bear. Nuts are highly alcoholic in this state.

They staggered and reeled about zooning into trees and colliding with each other. One of them lurched blindly into the office of the district commissioner.

Malnutrition Affects Third Of Canadians

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto doctor says a third of the population of Canada is suffering from malnutrition despite the year-round availability of foods rich in vitamins.

Dr. Harold N. Taub of the Mount Sinai Hospital here told the hospital's women's auxiliary Sunday that millions of the victims have abnormal growth, chronic fatigue and indigestion.

Many of the diseases of later life are the result of poor diet in youth, he said.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synoptic: Polar air which invaded the Ontario Sunday still holds the province in its grip. Overnight temperatures fell below zero along the south shore of Lake Ontario, while expanding dipped to 24 below. This cold weather will continue today and Tuesday, but light winds and occasional sunshine will combine to give fine weather in most sections of the province.

MENDES-FRANCE WINNER IN VOTE ON INDOCHINA

Debate on Paris Pacts On Germany Next Test

PARIS (AP)—The French National Assembly today gave Premier Pierre Mendes-France a vote of confidence—319 to 179—on his Indochina peace, the first important hurdle on the way for a four-day debate on German rearmament.

The number of the premier's supporters was sharply reduced from his total on previous votes of confidence since he took office six months ago.

Paul-Henri Teitgen, speaking today for the Mouvement Republicain Populaire, said the party's decision to abstain instead of voting against it was taking this attitude "so that the grave debate on foreign policy should not be delayed." He pointedly said that this decision to abstain "signifies defiance."

The MRP, which had the fight for European defence community has been bitter at Mendes-France since that project was defeated.

Although the premier's critics showed increasing strength, the imminence of the debate on German rearmament helped him as the advantage in the Indochina vote.

Many deputies who wanted to overthrow him also wanted to wait for the approval first of the Paris treaties to rearm West Germany and admit it"to NATO, return sovereignty to West Germany and put the disputed Saar valley under the proposed western European union.

These enemies of the premier, are said to feel that the responsibility for nullification of German rearmament might turn out to be political suicide that Gerodd can't keep him out of power permanently.

Weird Blue Glow in Moonless Sky Marks Fireball's Visit to Alberta

By JIM SHRIMPTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—A weird, blue glow burst in the moonless northern Alberta sky Sunday night and at least 25 persons reported seeing a bright object whooshing from the heavens in a trail of red sparks to disappear just before it reached the earth's surface.

The telegraph operator at a three-hour jingle in the Edmonton headquarters of the 2,000 - member Royal Astronomical Society of Canada as stargazers reported: "I saw it. What was it?"

The society's answer—a fireball, a meteor from outer space which broke into pieces after colliding with the earth's atmosphere and zoomed like a burning aircraft to the ground.

Society officials took down sighting details from each caller, some 50 to 60 miles away. The data will be sent to the Dominion Observatory in Ottawa where all records of meteor landings in Canada are kept.

A society spokesman said that if ter in outer space.

the reports indicate the fireball was a meteorite it may have also integrated just before coming to earth—Ottawa may be asked to dispatch party to hunt for its crater.

The fireball may have been an advance guard of the December meteor shower which annually rubs shoulders with the earth's atmosphere in its own orbit around the sun, the spokesman said.

The glimpses of seeing such an object, he added, are "very rare." Only two particular showers recently, out a "sunshine fireball," brighter than the moon, similar to the one seen by Sunday's fireball. This type of meteor could weigh from one pound to tons or more. In this case, the society believes it is likely the lighter variety.

Late Sunday the fireball's probably landing place had been plotted somewhere on a line between Edmonton and Camrose, Alta., 48 miles southeast.

By examining and counting meteor landings in Canada are to be kept.

Officials Refuse to Talk About Manitoba Jail Riot

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Boarded windows and uncommunicative officials shut off Manitoba's Headingley jail from the outside world today as prisoners repaired the damage they caused within its red brick walls Saturday night.

Jail governor E. G. Weeks said Sunday night that "everything's fine" and referred all queries about the riot, which involved most of the jail's 300 inmates, to the attorney-general's office.

Brig. G. M. M. Kay, deputy attorney-general, offered no elaboration.

"Everything is back to normal," he said Sunday night.

Attorney-General Ivan Schultz, in a statement Saturday night, said a "complete investigation" of the riot would be held. He said no more than 50 inmates of the population of 350 were involved. The jail houses prisoners serving terms up to two years less a day.

Brig. Kay said Sunday none of the prisoners had been charged.

Newspaper men were not allowed past the main entrance during the weekend and Governor Weeks refused to answer any questions that sh through the barred entrance or over the telephone.

However, trusties who were inside the jail at the time said unknown began Friday night a guard refused to give a prisoner a cigarette. The prisoner and another inmate were put in solitary confinement.

"There was a lot of noise in the dormitories Friday night," a trusty said. "And all day Saturday there was a persistent rumor that something was going to happen at supper time."

At approximately 4:40 p.m. when the prisoners were in the third-floor dining hall for the first supper sitting, the riot began.

Flying mob overturned tables, throwing dishes and food on the floor. They moved to a first-floor dormitory and began smashing windows, plumbing fixtures, radiators, railings and light fixtures.

The mob grabbed makeshift weapons—radiators and table sticks—and swung their way past the guards to the third-floor dormitory. The inmates then flocked to a third-floor storeroom used as shoemaking quarters for two trusties and storage space for screens.

Two trusties were in the storeroom. They were joined by two more trusties and the four barricaded the door. The mob, using broken radiators, smashed in the door and set fire to the screens and clothing.

The St. James fire brigade had the fire under control within an hour, but not before the room was gutted.

Mr. Schultz said the jail governor persuaded the men to return to their cells after 24 hours but their curses and shouting could be heard through the smashed windows.

A trusty said several inmates "got a working over" seriously. Two guards were also reported to have suffered minor injuries.

Sheppard Jury in 4th Day Of Deadlock Over Verdict

By RELMAN MORIN
CLEVELAND (AP) — For the fourth consecutive day, the jurors in the Sheppard murder trial were back in their locked room today silly for the last time.

If they remained deadlocked today, Judge Edward Blythin could discharge them. This would necessitate another long and costly retrial for Dr. Samuel Sheppard, accused of murdering his wife.

Courtroom veterans were unable to remember any jury going so long hours without a verdict, or being held so long by a judge.

The jurors took the case at 10:13 last Friday morning. When they were excused Sunday night there was no after-dinner session —they had been together nearly 56 hours, and actually deliberating by the jury room just over 24 hours.

Sheppard was pale, drawn and unutterably gray.

The state alleged that he killed his wife Marilyn, 31, by slightly steadfastly denied any guilt.

Under Ohio law, a prisoner must be brought from his cell to the courtroom every time the jury recesses for meals or for the night. Sheppard had one overnighted them eight times, up till this morning, since they began deliberations Friday.

Each time, he hopefully searched the faces of the jurors and each five women for some sign.

When he came into the courtroom today, Sheppard looked as usual, first greeted his two brothers, Stephen and Richard.

The strain showed, too, in the faces of his brothers and their wives, Mr. Fuesdale said Sheppard.

"I've never seen a jury like this one," a court officer said. "Usually some hint slips out—maybe just a look—but never little thing that tells you how it's going."

"But not this time. Once outside that jury room, they talk about everything in the world but the case. They can't even tell whether anybody is mad at anybody else, which is always a sign."

Eyewitnesses Say Mindszenty Is Now Free

VIENNA (Reuters)—The Roman Catholic news agency said today it has received eyewitness reports that Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, Hungarian primate jailed by the Communist regime on treason charges, is free and living in Budapest.

For several days rumors have been circulating in Austria that the 62-year-old archbishop has been freed. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in February, 1949, on charges of treason, espionage and currency offences.

The rumors, which first reached here from Budapest last week, say the 62-year-old prelate is living in a small palace in Budapest. There is no confirmation of the reports, and so far there has been no statement from Hungarian authorities.

Board Announces Certification Of Union Revoked

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada labor relations board announced today it has revoked the certification of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (CIO-CCL) as bargaining agent for a unit of employees of radio station CKWS, Kingston.

The decision followed an application by the station by the employees and the taking of a representation vote. The vote was held late March 20, 1955.

The board also announced it has ordered a vote in a unit of employees of radio station CKTB, St. Catharines. The NABEET has applied for certification there. The vote, to be conducted by D. H. O'Neil of Toronto, is expected to be taken within a week.

PLANE HITS PIER BRINGING DEATH TO 26 ABOARD

6 Survive Airliner's Crash at New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Salvage crews planned to raise today the wreckage of an Italian airliner that crashed into Jamaica Bay Saturday, killing 26 persons just as their flight from Rome to New York was about to end. Six others survived the crack-up near Idlewild Airport.

The civil aeronautics board, which has been checking the crash at the scene, scheduled preliminary hearings today.

Wreckage of the four-engined DC-6B Italian airliner was located Sunday by navy divers, who reported it appeared to be in three main pieces.

Bodies of nine crash victims were recovered. The last, found Sunday, was that of a 10-year-old girl, Wendy, daughter of Mrs. Natali D'Ugo of Chicago.

GIRL DISAPPEARED

One of the crash survivors said Rosalia had appeared to be clear of the wrecked plane and he had seen her struggling in the water.

"I swam over to her," said Frank Messina of Yonkers, N.Y., "and put her on two seats which had fallen out of the plane and were drifting near me."

Messina said he went to get better floats, but when he came back Rosalia was gone—"the seats were still there. She wasn't."

Two young Canadian students returning from Italy were uninjured and able to go home. The others were taken to hospitals.

Investigators said the plane apparently struck the end of a 2,000-foot pier with its tail as it approached the airport. Officials said the pilot, who had missed three earlier radar-guided approaches to the field, was warned he was coming in too low.

Investigators said that from the appearance of the pier the plane struck it a second time midway to the shore. Wreckage finally settled under 30 feet of water about 200 feet from shore.

MacKenzie's Luck Turns, Wins Turkey

MONTREAL (CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. Andy MacKenzie was himself a 15-pound Christmas turkey Saturday night with a colossal bit of luck.

MacKenzie, recently released by the Communist air force after two years imprisonment, and his wife Joyce, attended the weekly bingo party at the officers' mess at Air Transport Command, headquarters here, and saw a prize.

MacKenzie and two others tied for a win on the first round. It was decided to cut a deck of cards for the winner—high card wins.

The two others both cut kings. MacKenzie, last to cut, came up with an ace.

Girl In Hospital As Throat Bruised With Silk Scarf

Scarf Twisted So Tight Victim's Eyes Haemorrhaged

TORONTO (CP) — An 18-year-old Toronto youth was charged with doing grievous bodily harm with attempt to disable today following a west-end laneway attack on a 17-year-old girl Sunday night.

It was reported previously the youth was charged with attempted murder.

Police said William Luther Nixon will be questioned about his whereabouts at the time of each attack of Toronto's infamous strangler. They said there is little chance he is the man since he was in custody charged with indecent assault when the first killing occurred in September.

Police said Nixon offered to see Nancy Musgrove home because the stranger was "around."

GIRL CHOKED

Miss Musgrove is in hospital with severe throat bruises. Police said she was choked with a silk scarf after she became sick on the way home and went into a laneway.

The constable on the beat said he found the couple wandering north after the attack occurred. Nixon had given the girl his overcoat as most of her clothes were torn away.

Nixon was sentenced to three months in jail July 16 on charges of indecent assault and assault causing bodily harm in suburban York township, police said.

Police said the girl had been twisted so tightly about the girl's throat that her eyes had haemorrhaged. Most of her clothes had been ripped from her body.

In addition to her facial injuries, Miss Musgrove had a bump on the head and scratches all over her back.

Two detectives from a special squad that has been investigating recent attacks on women—two of them fatal—were at the girl's bedside at the hospital.

According to police Miss Musgrove was grabbed in a lane between Pacific and McMurray Avenues, north of Dundas street west, early this morning.

WENT FOR WALK

Police said the girl told them she met Nixon in a restaurant and later went for a walk with him.

Pc. George Boyd, who is on his beat on Dundas street, near McManagan, saw a young dishevelled girl walking toward him with a young man.

"She gasped something about a man attacking her in a lane," he said. "Then she collapsed and I more."

Boyd said the youth told him that he had left the girl for a few minutes and then ran back to see how she was. He added:

"I was right in the district and didn't hear a scream, so I became suspicious and took him in for questioning," Boyd said

Nixon was arrested. Nixon was laid later.

Police at St. Joseph's Hospital said the girl was taken were Det. Sgt. Charles Cook and Det. George Sellars.

They belong to the special squad investigating the strangling of Mrs. Mary Lypowecki Sept. 24 and Mrs. Olga Zacharko Oct. 19. Two weeks later Mary Shatalow, 17, was dragged into a lane but escaped when a passerby saw the struggle and shouted.

Last week Mrs. Jean Ellis, 30, and Mrs. Hilda Bastelak, 29, reported to police that they had been chased by a man with a razor, one on Tuesday night, the other on Wednesday night. Neither was harmed.

Dolls, Trains and Cowboy Suits Leading Parade in Christmas Toys

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kids are going old fashioned this Christmas with traditional dolls, traditional toys, with dolls, trains and cowboy suits leading the parade.

It may be the atomic age but children don't acknowledge it. A trend now is towards construction sets for boys and house-keeping sets for girls. Children are eager to age their elders.

One sour note came from Hamilton where toy manufacturer Gordon Button said the $50,000,000-a-year Canadian toy industry is not having a pleasant Christmas. He urges parents to "buy Canadian" as German and Japanese mechanical toys invade the market.

Prices are the same as last year and quality is better. Parents who used to favor plastics are now turning to wooden, metal and better gadgets.

This year girls are getting extra attention from toy manufacturers. There are model telephone switchboards, doctor's sets and grown-up outfits, complete with feminine pearl-trimmed revolvers while boys get pistols.

Oddities on the market turned up in Toronto. A miniature radio station sells for $7.95, a planetarium which projects the galaxy of stars on the ceiling and walls of a darkened room for $14.95, and a mechanical robot, operated by remote control.

Girl Boy Is Drowned At Point Anne, Goes Through Ice

Franklin James Rouse, age 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Roure, of Point Anne, was drowned in the Bay of Quinte early Sunday afternoon when he broke through the ice while playing with his brother and two companions.

The boy's body was recovered less than half an hour later but artificial respiration by Dr. Earl MacDonald and firemen from Belleville failed to revive the lad. Dr. MacDonald also used a heart pump but there was no response.

Young Rouse had been playing along the bay shore with his brother, Donald, 4, Tom MacDonald, 6, and Ruby MacDonald, 8, and had walked east toward The Narrows more than a quarter of a mile from their home. The ice broke in the Narrows keeps the ice thin.

It is believed that one of the children tossed a stone out onto the ice and when it did not break through, Rouse ventured out from the shore. The ice broke when he was about thirty feet from shore.

RAN FOR HELP

When he broke through the other children ran the quarter of a mile to tell their parents but when help returned the boy was out of sight.

Fred M. Clarke, Point Anne fireman and wife learned of the accident and other volunteers responded and the lad's body was recovered in about five feet of water below where he had broken through. Provincial Constable Stephen and Robert Hutching recovered the body working from a boat.

In addition to his parents, the drowned lad is survived by his brothers, Donald, 4, and Gordon, 3-28, and a sister, Patsy, age 5.

Ontario Provincial Police Corporals Ray Kowal and Gordon Stout investigated.

Shriners Hosts At Crippled Children's Party

An atmosphere of boundless gaiety pervaded the Shrine Club on Highland Avenue, Saturday, as some ninety moppets from the district romped through the annual crippled children's Christmas party staged by the Shriners.

President C. M. Cawker, master of ceremonies through the three hours of scheduled and impromptu fun, later described the party as the biggest and best the club has ever sponsored.

Some 25 Shriners were on hand keeping the small fry continuously active from 2 o'clock through the afternoon around and about a huge decorated Christmas tree.

The job of providing lunches for the litterbugs was taken over by the Shrine stewardess, Mrs. Edith Woodhouse, who served 'em in quality and quantity.

Keeping the ball rolling and convincing the kids of a real between games the Shriners lined up several top-notch entertainment acts for the afternoon.

Sheila Canning and Randy Gray appeared in dancing and musical acts while the highlight was provided by 45-minute presentation by the Warren Marionettes from Kingston. The novel antics of the tiny doll-like figure caught the fancy of the youngsters, who made no bones about showing their appreciation of the outstanding presentation.

Canadian Legion Hall, Bancroft, Destroyed by Fire, $20,000 Loss

BANCROFT (Special) — The Canadian Legion Hall at Bancroft was totally destroyed by fire early Monday morning with loss estimated at $20,000 by Chief Ed Bell. The Bancroft volunteer fire department fought the blaze in 20-below zero temperature but were unable to do anything to save the structure.

Origin of the blaze was not determined but the fire is believed to have started in an upstairs room, which had not been occupied for a week. The building was heated by oil stoves but there were no stoves upstairs.

Elmer Wannamaker was the first to discover the blaze. Sleeping in the bedroom of his home only 30 yards away Wannamaker was awakened by the glow of the flames playing on his bedroom wall. He looked out and saw the west upper gable of the building afire. He ran to turn in the alarm but before he could do so the alarm was raised by John Pilgrim, who happened to be driving past. The blaze occurred about three o'clock.

Firemen under Chief Cecil McAlpine answered the alarm in less than five minutes but the blaze was too far advanced to be held under control.

The building had been completely re-decorated during the past summer with new tile floors being laid on the main floor.

Truck Damaged Beyond Repair, Hit by Train

A late model pick-up truck smashed beyond repair, when it slid into the path of a Canadian Pacific Railways freight at the Sidney Street crossing west of the city, and a Belleville motorist, who was involved in two minor accidents, one of them a four-car chain reaction affair, topped the list of well over a dozen accidents recorded in the city over the week-end.

Saturday afternoon, Lionel Westfall, 30, Front St., was driving a Riggs Motor pick-up truck north of Sidney Street, when the Pacific plant, when his vehicle stalled on the icy hill. He backed part way down the hill and it stopped on the railway track and before the vehicle could be moved the eastbound freight rounded the curve and smashed into the truck. Damage to the vehicle was about $1,250. Westfall jumped away and stood helplessly as the locomotive struck the truck.

INVOLVED IN TWO CRASHES

Clayton Kellar, 390½ Front St, must have thought it was rainy his unlucky week-end. He was involved in two auto crashes within minutes of each other. The only consolation was that the same fender was crumpled in both accidents.

Sunday two autos driven by Gerald C. Doyle, 37 Harriett St. and Ernest W. Boulton, 36 Moira Street, collided on East Moira, causing $450 damage to both vehicles. Doyle's westbound vehicle was eastbound when the Boulton car swung left to turn on Cameron Street and the collision resulted.

Henry Featherstone, 77 W. Moira Street, lost control of his vehicle at the corner of Moira and Ponton Street and skidded into a tree. Featherstone suffered a broken knee cap, while the vehicle was damaged to the extent of about $200.

Police were called on the jump as they strove to keep up with the series of motor accidents, which took well on of dozen, most of them minor accidents, being reported over the week-end.

Christmas Party Much Enjoyed By Children

The members of the Brewers' Warehousing Company Ltd., under the direction of Ted Jones, manager, and ably assisted by his assistant, Norman Gardiner, put, and backed by an energetic committee played hosts to the children of their employees at the Masonic Temple on Sunday afternoon.

This is a party that is eagerly looked forward to each year and the anticipation of the visit of Santa Claus kept the children in a state of excitement. Refreshments went all out to see that every child, regardless of age, had a good time. Every year when it was over they departed tired but happy in the fact that they had not forgotten them.

The auditorium of the Temple was suitably decorated and members of the staff were on hand to see that the children had a good time. After three fine films were shown, and which were suitable for the occasion of Christmas, Santa Claus came down the chimney and after greeting the children proceeded to distribute the gifts arranged around the Christmas tree.

After the gifts had been distributed, the children left their pictures with Santa Claus and all dispersed to their homes, ending another joyful afternoon.

The older members of those present were entertained to refreshments at the headquarters on Front street and the staff congratulated on their efforts. William Brewers is made a splendid Santa Claus.

Our smiles hide all the while.

ARE YOU POORER THIS YEAR?

Are you poorer this year than last?

You are not? Then you are one of the lucky ones. Canada's gross national product in 1954 is expected to be worth half a billion dollars less than that of 1953. There was thus less wealth this year to be shared amongst more people. If your slice of the national cake was no smaller, it is obvious that somebody else had jo take a smaller, it is obvious that somebody else had jo take a double cut. As many Canadians were fortunate enough to escape any reduction in income, it means that some Canadians found their share of the nation's wealth dropped considerably more than the overall two per cent reduction in the national product. There is not much difficulty in locating these unfortunates. They are the unemployed and the farmers.

Farmers were among the major sufferers. Indeed, the bureau of statistics says that the decline in the national product will be entirely due to lower crop output and farm income. Prices also dropped during the put. While manufacturing output also dropped during the first nine months of the year, overall non-farm production appeared to be stabilized after a decline in the fall and winter of 1953.

It might be noted, however, that the drop in farm production may be more apparent than real. Lower prices for farm products could reduce the cash value of the nation's crops, without any reduction in their actual quantities. As a matter of fact, both lower prices and smaller crop played a role in the reduction in total value of crops this year. As far as the individual farmer is concerned, the reason for the decline in his income may be immaterial. From the standpoint of the nation there is material. From the standpoint of the nation there is a great difference. Lower prices for goods consumed have a twofold result, reducing the income of the producer but increasing the real income of the consumer.

As for the unemployed, they are not enriched nobody. The nation is poorer by the amount of goods which jobless men and women, if they had been working, could have produced. The only remedy for unemployment is employment, but it is a remedy which it is difficult to apply.

It is worthy of note that this year's decline in the cash value of the gross national product will be the first in ten years. In 1945 the gross national product dropped by $100,000,000. That year, though, the decline was good news. It meant that Canada had been able to cease producing the materials of destruction.

It was not to be expected that our national production could keep on increasing year after year without a halt. What is needed now is to establish temporary setbrok. What is needed now is to establish a foundation for a further series of increases. Whether such a foundation has been established already is problematic. It is, however, interesting and encouraging to learn that in the midst of the present year Canada's gross national product was running at a rate unchanged from the two previous quarters. If there was no sign of an upswing, it was also true that there was no indication of a further decline. That, in itself, gives good reason for hope.

In economic affairs, as in other fields, there is a reaction to every action. The decline in the gross national product was a reaction to our post-war boom. Once the tide of economic activity has ceased to ebb, however, we are justified in hoping that the reaction to this recession will eventually set in. That appears to be the point we have now reached.

A MAN OF HIGH COURAGE

To read Sqdn. Ldr. A. R. MacKenzie's account of his experiences as a prisoner of the Chinese communists is to be seized by high admiration for his integrity and moral courage.

It is true that this Canadian airman signed a statement which was a falsehood. Remembering that this signature was won only after sixteen months of imprisonment, of solitary confinement, of questioning, of fading hope of freedom and of growing expectation of death, let those of us can find it in their hearts to condemn their fellow countryman for his act do so—and let them pray that they never have to face a similar ordeal.

But Sqdn. Ldr. MacKenzie's strength of moral was undermined by the circumstances of his imprisonment, it blossomed forth in magnificent and heart-warming strength when, once more a free man, he faced the acid test.

Having signed a false confession, detrimental to the cause for which he fought, there must have been a strong temptation to plead in his defence the extenuating circumstances surrounding the extraction of the lie.

MacKenzie could have said that he had been starved, that he had been beaten, that he had been threatened with death.

Everybody would have believed him.

Instead he said that the food he received was always adequate. He said that no physical violence was used, that he was never even pushed or shoved. He told the truth, when the truth was not what his listeners would-have expected and when the truth was to his advantage. He refused to lie about the men who had forced him to lie.

MacKenzie even declined to agree that he had been "brainwashed," although the use of such a word would appear to many to be amply justified by treatment which included solitary confinement, continued questioning and forced inactivity, spending his days sitting on his bed, under threat of being handcuffed.

If there is a more noble example of the spirit of a free man, of the love of truth for truth's sake, we would like to hear of it.

"Per ardua ad astra."

But one thing needs to be added.

Sqdn. Ldr. MacKenzie appears to be fortunate enough to reside in a country where the government is worthy of men like him.

There has been no suggestion that he be punished for the lie he told under pressure from the Chinese. There has been no pressure by his own government to have him lie again by relating an impressive, but false, story of starvation and torture.

So do the leaders of the government join with Sqdn. Ldr. MacKenzie in displaying an encouraging belief in truth which, despite the doubting, shall one day make men, all men, free.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SUPPER ON THE FARM

For more years than I like to say I have lived in our two biggest cities—in fact ever since I came out of college and went to work for a banker in merchant Prince, or some such an individual. New York is now my home, but I so often long for the little town where you know everyone. It isn't home in the great city. It's a place where you work, are shoved here, there and are entertained by an everlasting noise and growl.

I stood at the window in my office of a recent evening, looking out from my 28th floor window, and viewed an area of lights truly magnificent and magical—with thousands of hurrying people below yelling for cabs, and crowds in black masses moving to eating places all over this town. But I got nostalgic. I wished it could be possible to be immediately transported to our farm and to the table. We could again have one of those delightful suppers there with my family.

Everybody was so God-genuine on the farm where I once worked. The old farmer during my early days, at least, was a "man of parts," and I never got lonely nor did I have any urges to become a "merchant Prince" while working there. There were hardships and things missing that nearly all farms have today, but there was a spirit and an honesty with the place that gave you cheer and hope, for there we did the smell of the soil and the flavor of those good meals, morning, noon and twilight.

Never can enough credit go to our farmers, they toil early and late. They are intelligent and good

India Changes Divorce Law

(St. Catharines Standard).

In India, where conditions are not all that they might be, a reform movement is doing its best to keep couples married for at least three years.

The law allows divorce by mutual consent, even easier than across the border, but to discourage hasty divorces it is stipulated that only in exceptional circumstances will the court accept a divorce petition within three years of marriage. And if by then by that time the couple would have learned to live peacefully together.

Indians are also considering a bill to raise the age of marriage among Hindus to 21 for boys and 18 for girls.

The present minimum ages for marriage are 15 for girls and 18 for boys. The proposed law would apply only to Hindus, of whom there are 300,000,000 in India, according to the census, or 85 per cent of the population. The bill is one of a series of long-debated amendments to the Hindu code, which if passed would change the entire structure of Hindu society.

The changes proposed indicate that the people of India are looking after their own welfare.

Churchill Farsighted

(Chicago Daily News)

The strange preference for one form of bloody tyranny over another, which many Washington circles during the pre-war and post-war years, is hardly explicable in the criticism being heaped upon Sir Winston Churchill. Some British Left-Wingers are complaining, in effect, that he insufficiently distinguished between what he once thought it might be necessary to rearm democratic Germany in order to cope a Russian advance across Europe.

Mr. Churchill holds that events of recent years would have completely justified his policy even if the horrors of the Nazis were hideous brutes, the Communists were peaceful reformers and Hitler's Germany were in their hearts. Some of Americas most distinguished Generals share Churchillian with having finally adopted the Goebbels propaganda line that it, like the Allies were fighting the wrong enemy.

Churchill's warning in 1946 again points up the farsighted wisdom of this shrewd statesman's political judgment in the juvenile optimism that shaped our own policies at that period.

In the British Prime Minister's 1945 appraisal of the situation we can see clearly discerned Stalin's intentions.

"He was so carried away by the triumphs of victory" says Churchill, "that he thought he saw a clear cure for Russia and for Communism the domination of the world."

This was the same Stalin with whom President Roosevelt was sure he could deal, and who remained to President Truman "Good Old Joe". It was this egregious misconception of Stalin as a benign statesman that enabled him, in the closing days of the war, to wrest from the Americans unjustifiable gifts of industrial equipment for post-war delivery.

These benefactions included tire plants, oil refineries, machine tools, machinery and machine tools. Russian commissions roamed the country, obtaining from American industrial methods, and haggling over the purchase prices which, in fact, was to be sent to the U.S. Treasury.

These gifts were made on the assumption that Russia was a peaceful democracy which could be required only the generous cooperation of America to take its place among the enlightened nations. The pointed advice of Churchill, that the direction from which Europe should be invaded, had already been shrugged off by Roosevelt.

It surely could have been no part of the plans or policies of Washington that Churchill had instructed Field Marshal Montgomery to keep German arms intact and handy; that he had suggested to Eisenhower such a similar policy with respect to aircraft, that he had warned Foreign Secretary Eden that the Russians were losing no time in beginning Communist penetration in Denmark.

Yet the trustful naivete which characterized such that, even after the postwar Soviet effort to occupy a section of Turkey, Churchill's warning speech in 1946 at Fulton, Mo., created a resentment which in this country.

The Prime Minister's convictions about the Russians have been fully recorded in his memoirs, so that the footnote he now adds to his story is no change of position. The only thing the Bevanites can possibly find in it to give offense is affront to their spiritual cousins, is that its timing might indicate a lack of confidence in under-standing with the Russians.

This is hilge twaddle. Any wife men in the Kremlin certainly knows that Churchill never trusted them, and that he had good cause for his attitude. If they have any misgivings about the sincerity of his search for peace, it will not be affected by the statement of a fair-minded statesman who has yet to be proved wrong in his estimate of their basic intentions.

New Houses Create Jobs

(Financial Post)

As a yardstick of national economic health, why so much stress is placed on what it generates so much immediate and future business for a wide range of other industry.

In a Montreal speech last week, federal Public Works Minister Winters outlined the contribution that new housing briefly and graphically.

This year, he said, 105,000 new houses or housing units will be finished in Canada. That has meant jobs and payrolls for 105,000 men in direct construction at the site of the new building. It has also meant a new market for $2.5 million tons of steel, a billion board feet of lumber, and train loads of shingles, wall board, glass, paint and similar products. For metal lath and basic building, plumbing and electrical equipment for the 105,000 new houses will amount to almost $700 millions. But that is only part of the business generated.

Not many people will be satisfied to move into empty quarters and sleep on the floor. There is furniture to be bought, including beds, pianos, radios, pictures, rugs and drapes. There are at least 100,000 new users of electricity to be supplied.

When you start building houses it's like lighting a string of fireworks. Once you have made the first move, others follow automatically.

Slow Plane Evades Jets

(Boston Post)

In this jet age, a student pilot who stole a light single-engine plane managed to escape from protective custody of jet interceptors, and for a time, at least, even outfox the old years about the hare and the tortoise.

The plane flew about at speeds higher than that of sound, lose the novice pilot because of the low speed.

While he moseyed along in his plane, at 100 miles per hour, the jet pilots had to make wide, sweeping turns to keep from flying right by the object of turning lost sight of their quarry.

It has been generally assumed that a slow plane is a sitting duck for a fast one. But is it?

The student pilot has raised a question of real importance which has yet to be answered. Suppose a slow plane on a low-flying mission could elude the efficient operational altitude of jets.

And suppose that the slow, low-flying plane was taking evasive action? Then what?

No doubt the U.S. air force has an answer to this. But the fact remains that jet planes did lose sight of a slow single-engine plane.

Does it mean that there still is a place for the slow, fire-hopping piston-engined plane?

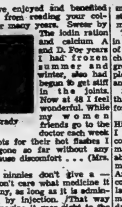
Customer Is to Blame

(Hamilton Spectator)

For several days now, we have been discussing the proposition of Mr. J. M. Boyle, who is president of the Retail Merchants Association, that the way to obtain better public eating in Canada is to have restaurants owned and run pass an examination. And still it doesn't look right to us.

We entirely agree that by the standards of any other well-developed country, public eating in most Canadian eating places is abominable. But the responsibility for this, in the fault is not entirely the operators. In fact we suspect that the operators of the best restaurants are generally referred to as operators rather than cooks, just as a machinist but not a creative artist —is a fair tip-off to where the real blame lies.

Consider for a moment some of the disadvantages facing an average Canadian as he lowers himself on to a chair at a restaurant table (which, more often than not, is much worse, a stool at a counter).



He is a citizen of a country into whose national subconsciousness a unique blend of Scottish austerity and English puritanism has embedded the conviction that the refined pleasures of the flesh are in some way sinful and that eating, therefore, is a necessary evil—as a necessity for the sustenance of life but not as a joy.

Second, he is in a hurry—and speed is utterly destructive both of the appreciation and digestion of food and of the proper enjoyment of it. Third, he has been conditioned to what might be termed the snack approach to food—the machine-fed breakfast cereal, the store-bought pie, the peanut butter sandwich, the cookie from the jar, the easy meal that is whipped up from packages and tins—the frying pan without benefit of sauce or seasoning. In fact the average man has probably never eaten real food in his life and wouldn't recognize it if it were put before him.

HERE'S A LUCKY GIRL

Dr. Brady

I have enjoyed and benefited greatly from reading your column for many years.

Swipe by the iodin ration and emulsion A and D. For years I had frozen arms in a cold winter, also had begun to get stiff in the joints. Now at 48 I feel wonderful. While my women friends go to the doctor each week for shots for their hot flashes I have gone so far without any menopause discomfort . . . (Mrs. C.R.)

The zinnies don't give a — they don't care what medicine I is, if say, as long as it is administered by injection. That way they imagine is the right to the seat of the trouble, instead of traversing the alimentary canal and taking the roundabout way to get there. Besides, if the stuff costs $3.75 to $7 a shot it must be pretty powerful, what?

In the pamphlet The Menopause

Relief or distressingly frequent hot flashes, from which some women suffer for years, has been obtained with re-markable celerity in many instances from improving calcium metabolism.

That means primarily including in the everyday diet several pints of high calcium content — milk, cheese, egg (yolks), peas, beans, greens, potatoes, nuts and supplementing the diet with calcium and vitamin D.

Some readers may have noticed that I recommend calcium and D for many different complaints.

But as a faithful follower of Hippocrates I must tell you what I believe is true even if I get committed for it. I believe Sherman was right — H. C. Sherman about the deficiency of calcium in modern refined American food. And I believe that a great many common complaints in Yankeedom and are the manifestations of malnutrition from insufficient calcium intake.

If you wonder why I include vitamin D with calcium, it is because sunshine vitamin D promotes assimilation and utilization. It is not essential for assimilation and utilization of calcium and phosphorus. I call it sunshine vitamin because you can manufacture your own by exposure of your body to sunshine or to dilute daylight (in the shade).

ALERTED FOR LOST CHILDREN

Some time ago a child was lost in North Dakota. When the word went out that a searching party would convene at a certain place, 200 people showed up, coming in cars and busses some from points hundreds of miles away. Then they all joined hands and started across the plain, looking for the child.

We do not have to go to North Dakota to find lost children. They are right in the community in which you and I live—some of them on our street. Sometimes even within the circle of our family love. Two thousand years ago Jesus said that whosoever offended against a little one, it were better for him that a millstone had been hanged about his neck and that he be cast into the depths of the sea. Yet men and women quarrel with each other and break up their homes. They indoct their children into drinking habits and themselves by saying that they are teaching the children to drink moderately. They give and attend parties that are bad examples to their children. They indulge in little things, and about big things. They put money and style first.

Lost children! It does not take a line of searchers a mile long to find these. They are everywhere, what we have to do is to avoid the circumstances that allows them to get lost in the first place, and then when they do get lost make our search for them the things of greatest importance.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When Christmas collides with the weekend as it does this year, it pelles the holiday trifle on top of the normal weekend traffic which carries on the year round. Travelling is always returning to city and town, tens of thousands of young people from villags and farm who make the invariable exercise of returning home to village or farm from the city each weekend, and the thousands returning to their winter wonderland—by car, bus, railroad, all means of transportation—will be doubly loaded this Christmas.

Which results in that for a very considerable slice of our population, Christmas is no holiday at all. Employees of bus, railway operation and maintenance staffs, control-ling-and-directing staffs are called in larger force than at any other time of year; and work in the bus companies, the service station operators all along the hundreds of thousands of miles of highway, the hotel staffs, telephone companies, all are under the gun on Christmas. Police, firemen, are not excused duty on the holiday, but work more than on normal days. In the deserted down-town sections of cities and towns, in the factories and industrial plants, more thousands of janitors, maintenance men and caretakers are at their lonely jobs on Christmas Day as on any other day.

But there are people among us who don't forget those who are denied Christmas in the interests of the rest of us, and it probably concludes his Christmas dinner by the light of the kitchen and making up a basket full of turkey sandwiches, with cranberry sauce, pumpkin pie and a thermos quart of hot coffee which he drives around to the railway station and "for any of the boys on duty". On a trans-Canada passenger train last Christmas, a sentimental old sport went through the Pullman cars, and with his own hands, and at the first half-hour stop, grabbed a taxi, bought out half the stock of a local grocery and brought them back to be distributed among the passengers, often and often their train crew, to take home to their wives with the best wishes of a grateful company. Experienced at an office building, an elderly bachelor relieves his three subordinance men on Christmas Eve and they relieve him at 5 p.m. Christmas Day.

These personal touches are of course the essence of Christmas.

At 2 p.m. every Sunday afternoon in the C.M.M. Breadner public school, 500 children come to worship at the Protestant Sunday School meetings.

The school is divided into four age groups.

The "Sunshine Corner" for 180 pre-school children is superintended by F/Sgt. A. Davies, and a staff of 21 teachers.

The "Primary Department" is under the direction of Mrs. A. J. Ireland. Mrs. Ireland is also the Sunday School pianist.

The "Junior Department" is headed by WO2 W. G. Goodason.

F/Lt. J. W. Whitely teaches the "Junior-Intermediate Department," which has an attendance of about 20 teen-agers.

RECORD ATTENDANCE

The superintendents and teachers of the school believe they have a record of attendance for services Sunday School. On one Sunday in November there were 602 pupils and teachers at Sunday school.

The "Life of Christ," a series of family films, has been booked for this season. Pictures of the birth of Christ, the ministry of John the Baptist, the call of the disciples and incidents in the life of Christ have already been shown. Parents have been urged to attend the films with their children.

TWO FAMILY SUNDAYS

Two "Family Sundays" are planned for the Sunday school's Christmas activities. The first was on Sunday, December 19th, at 2 p.m.

The program started with the "Sunshine Corner," consisting of nearly 180 children, divided into groups of 16. Each group delighted the audience with short Christmas songs.

There was no stage fright apparent when the children came on stage. Each tot was proud to show the parents what had been learned at Sunday school.

The "Christmas Tableau," a dramatization of the Christmas story, was presented by the junior choir of S R.D. Station. With the manger, the Christ Child, Joseph and Mary in the background, and a group of shepherds in the foreground singing Christmas hymns, the three "Kings of the Orient" sang their hymn and presented their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh to the Christ Child.

Following the S R.D. group, South Station pastor F/L F. D. Ross addressed the gathering. F/L Ross stated the children as a special Christmas gift to him, their teachers and their parents, that the children sing "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

After this hymn, the Sunday School superintendent, W/C D. A. Cunningham closed the program.

ANOTHER FILM

Sunday, December 26th at 2 p.m. a Christmas film in sound and color will be shown. Again, the parents are requested to accompany their children for this second special family program.

Replacing the customary "White Gift" Sunday this year, was a special offering. The money will be sent to the mission boards of the Anglican, Baptist, Presbyterian, Lutheran and United Churches of Canada to be used by their missionaries in foreign fields.

Commonwealth Charter Needed Cleric Asserts

TORONTO (CP)—A clergyman, banned from returning to the Union of South Africa, asks when clear principles does the British Commonwealth stand for?

Rev. Michael Scott of the Church of England said in an interview during the weekend it seems wrong that a country like South Africa should expect to enjoy the advantages of Commonwealth membership while following racial policies which offend members such as India and Pakistan.

Mr. Scott served three months in jail for his passive resistance to South African laws requiring the segregation of Indians.

SUGGESTS CHARTER

He said it also seems wrong that other Commonwealth members, by not making a stand against these policies, should give the appearance of condoning or even approving them.

Such a state of affairs could break the Commonwealth in two, he said.

Mr. Scott suggested a Commonwealth charter which would give the fundamental principles for which it stood. Members would be expected to keep to them.

Father and Son Race Their Cars, Baby Injured

TORONTO (CP)—A father and son were racing their cars along a Toronto street when, police said, when one went out of control, hit five persons on a sidewalk and smashed into a store.

The careering car struck a baby carriage and tossed Gloria Fisher, 1, to the ground. She was picked from a litter of smashed glass and rushed to hospital with a broken right arm and a possible skull fracture.

Police charged Joseph Blondal, 49, and his son, Henry, 18, with dangerous driving. They said the father's car mounted the sidewalk when the vehicles level pegged and that Henry's car hit a parked one.

Patricia Attaway, 18, Charles McDonald, 18, Roy McDonald, 18, and Gus Cogolis, 45, were treated for minor injuries.

Nesbitt Haggarty, Wife, Four Small Children Escape Fire; Home Destroyed, $12,000 Loss

WOODLOT (Special) — A 30-year-old Wooler woman and husband awakened in time to save their four small children from fire that destroyed their $12,000 two-storey frame home here, early this Monday morning.

Homeless this morning is the family of Nesbitt Haggarty, Wooler transport operator.

Mrs. Haggarty was round 3 a.m. choking from smoke. She called to her husband and then, clad in her nightgown, ran barefoot 100 yards through the snow to a telephone to raise the alarm.

Meanwhile, her husband washed to waken their two sons, Barclay, 3, Nesbitt jr., 5, and daughters, Bessie, 2, and Colleen, 4. Father and mother struggled with their children over the ice and through snowdrifts to reach the shelter of a neighborly home.

The family were in their night attire when they reached Bordon Branscombe's house.

Flames raged through the newly-remodelled house as the family fled in the bitter cold. Strongly sub-zero temperatures.

Alerted, by Austin telephone company operator, Helen Bentley who stood by the switchboard all night, firemen were soon on the scene from all directions. The Trenton fire department dashed eight miles to help the bucket brigades, hastily organized by neighbors.

EFFORTS FUTILE

However their efforts were futile. The flames were soaring out of control by the time the fire fighters arrived. Neighbors first to reach the Haggarty property saved the refrigerator and few other articles from the house. Lost in the flames were many lifetime family possessions.

When the fire was at its height firemen saved a fleet of transports parked in a yard nearby.

The house, one of the oldest in the district had been undergoing remodelling. A carpenter was due to arrive this morning to add some finishing touches.

It is believed that the fire started in a back kitchen of the house, where a coal stove was burning after the family went to bed.

Now homeless, the Haggarty's are presently staying with the neighboring Branscombe family.

Radio Station Gets News By Carrier Pigeon

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) Radio station WWBG went on the air today with news delivered by carrier pigeon.

A dispute with the Northern Ohio Telephone Co. left Howard R. Ward, head of the newly constructed station, temporarily without lines to bring in Associated Press service. So he arranged, to have his AP teletype machines installed in a department store at Toledo, some 20 air miles distant, and got the loan of about 30 pigeons from the American Homing and Racing Pigeon Union.

The birds included such famous names from pigeondom as Columbus Queen, veteran of many Patrion lines had been cut during an idle hatline, and GI Joe who was credited with saving the lives of 1,700 British soldiers after commandation lines had been cut during an Italian engagement in the Second World War.

Weddings

WADDINGHAM—LECH

St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, was the scene of a lovely wedding on Saturday Dec. 11, when the marriage of Trudy Frances Lech, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lech, of City Road, and Mr. Waddingham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Waddingham, Napanee, took place.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, wore a waltz length gown of white satin brocade, fashioned in Elizabethan style with molded bodice, the nylon yoke and high collar were trimmed with pearl centred lace medallions. The long sleeves ended in points at the wrists. Her three-quarter-length pearl studded veil hung gracefully from a rhinestone and seed pearl trimmed tiara and she carried red and white roses.

Miss Mary Lech, Kingston, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing maize nylon with lace bolero. Bridesmaids, Miss Helen Pchola, Kingston and Miss Marilyn Waddingham of Napanee, niece of the bridegroom, wore identical gowns of net over taffeta in swaying style, in green and mauve respectively, with matching feathered gray hats and carried bouquets of contrasting chrysanthemums.

Little Miss Gloria Lech, Kingston, sister of the bride, was flower girl, wearing daffodil nylon, mauve net headdress and carried a nosegay of mums.

The bridegroom's brother, Mr Wayne Waddingham, of Napanee, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Mayhew Ford, of Shannonville, and Mr. Derward Waddingham, Napanee, brother of the bridegroom.

Immediately following the ceremony, dinner was served to 125 guests by friends of the bride. The bride's mother chose blue taffeta, white hat and gloves, and wore a corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's mother wore azure blue with beige hat and gloves and a corsage of yellow roses.

Following their honeymoon in New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Waddingham will reside at the bridegroom's home, R.R.1, Marysville.

Guests were present from Napanee, Falls, Peterborough, Shannonville, Madoc, Napanee, Kingston and Lonsdale.

MOTT—BLUE

Silvered evergreens and lighted candelabra formed a lovely background in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Belleville, on Saturday, December 11, at 2.00 p.m., for an early winter wedding when Beverly Ann Blue, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. M. Blue, became the bride of Robert David Mott, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Mott. The Rev. C. G. Hornsby, of Picton Presbyterian church, formerly of St. Andrew's, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Mr. Egerton Boyce, church organist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Alex Cunningham, who sang before the ceremony "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register "The Wedding Prayer".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Clifford Yerrow, of Toronto, was radiant in her bridal gown of embroidered tulle over white allover satin, fashioned with molded torso having a scoop neckline outlined with rhinestones, short sleeves, and full-length skirt in crinoline effect misted by triple tiers of tulle over satin. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a Juliet cap studded with seed pearls and rhinestones. She wore long tulle mitts, and carried a heart-shaped bouquet of white carnations and white pine sprays.

Mrs. Robert Guthrie, of Belleville, was matron of honor, Mrs. Roy Taylor, and Miss Donna Blue, sister of the bride, both of Belleville, as bridesmaids, were attired alike in princess style, floor-length gowns of holly red velvet, featuring fitted bodices with shoulder drape effect. They wore headdresses of white pine and red Sweetheart roses, long white gloves, and carried bouquets of silver and crystal leaves crested with white pine and red Sweetheart roses.

Mr. James Mott, of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman; Mr. George Baldwin of Marmora and Mr. Carl Wallace, of Cobalt, Ontario, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held in the church parlors, the guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore iridescent brown taffeta of street length, with turquoise accessories, and corsage of bronze and turquoise mixed mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing heavenly blue satin in street length with bronze accessories, and similar corsage of bronze and turquoise mums.

For travelling to points west, the bride chose a three-piece wool dress fashioned on princess lines with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Mott are residing at Lemoine Street, Belleville, R.R. 6.

Guests were present from Toronto, Buffalo, N.Y., Colborne, Napanee, Cobalt, Marmora, Peterborough and Montreal.

• • •

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored by three showers and at the last one, which was a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. E. D. Mott, a miscellaneous shower with Miss Beverley McCabe, and Mrs. D. Block, at the latter's home; also a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. R. Guthrie and Mrs. Roy Taylor, as hostesses, at the former's home. A presentation of crystal by St. Andrew's Presbyterian church choir of which the bride was a member; and the staff of the Parasite Laboratory made the presentation of an electric sandwich toaster.

Fellowship Club, E. Aux. Hold Joint Meeting

The Fellowship club and the Evening Auxiliary of Hollowy Street United church W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. Harrison Hart, Wednesday evening for their Christmas meeting.

Each group conducted its business period separately. The devotional was taken by the Evening Auxiliary and opened with the carol "O Come All Ye Faithful" with Miss Leona Morton at the piano. The Scripture, taken from Luke 2:1-21, was read by Miss Ruth Brentnall, followed by reading by Mrs. Elfreida Vassel, Mrs. Bernice Fox, Miss Hazel Smith and Mrs. Marjory Miller, interspersed by carols and lighting of candles.

Misses Lenore Wilkes and Lorna Fairman enacted the manger scene with the group singing "Away in a Manger." The closing prayer was offered by Mrs. Ruth Brentnall.

Miss Doris Hill entertained with several Christmas selections on her electric guitar.

The special Christmas gift offering was to be used in buying revised versions of the Bible (one was displayed) to be sent into the Home Mission Field at Atherley.

Refreshments were served in the Fellowship club and thanks were extended by the president of both groups, Mrs. Mary White and Miss Norlene Frederick, to Mrs. Fox, for opening her home.

'Happy Gang Sewers' Learn Use of Materials

The fourth meeting of the Happy Gang Sewers was held recently at the home of Mrs. Donald Mitchell.

Each member answered the roll call by stating color, style and fabric of the blouse she intends making. It was decided that blue and gold, the Institute colors, would be chosen for the record book covers.

A discussion period followed on the topics "Blouse materials; preparation of material; taking measurements, and selection and use of pattern." The girls learned how to determine their size; also the allowance for seam material, mark and cut material.

After the home assignments were copied down, the meeting was closed.

Refreshments were served and many thanks extended to Mrs. Mitchell for entertaining.

The club wishes to thank the members of the Quinte Women's Institute for the invitation to their Christmas party. It was a most enjoyable evening.

Pine Grove W.I. Enjoys Yuletide Meet

Mrs. Leslie Finkle, and Mrs. Frank Finkle were co-hostesses for the December meeting of Pine Grove Women's Institute. The president, Mrs. G. Barlindale, presided and 14 members answered the roll call with a short Christmas poem.

Following the reading of correspondence it was decided to send two members to the short course in Guelph, January 3-7, if there were any who could go. It was agreed that a letter be written to Premier L. Frost, of Ontario, in February requesting the government to take action to implement the recommendations of the penal reform for women's relief committee during the session of parliament.

A copy of Miss Anne P. Lewis' report was read to one of the standing committee conveners to be read after which it will be forwarded to another convener.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

Mrs. A. Finkle and Mrs. F. Finkle presented the Christmas program with the latter acting as chairman.

Christmas carols were sung, followed by several Christmas readings: "Christmas Hints," Mrs. C. Ross; "Wake and Light Your Candles," Mrs. F. Finkle; "Keeping Christmas," Mrs. B. Lindenfield; "Christmas," Mrs. M. Tanney; "The Gift of Christmas," Mrs. H. Detlor.

Mrs. A. Finkle gave a paper which she had prepared on the topic, "Christmas."

"The first Christmas to be observed on the American continent was in 1492 by Christopher Columbus. Various European countries have different ways of celebrating the coming of Santa Claus, but one thing they do have in common, Santa comes either before or after Christmas and is not associated so much with the day. Christmas itself is observed as a 'religious day,' the day of the birthday of Jesus. This is more fitting than on the American continent where it is commercialized that it has become 'a weariness to the flesh,' or a big blow-out."

Mrs. G. Bartindale gave a demonstration on making Christmas tree fan decorations, using whipped paraffin, also Christmas candles and various window decorations.

The meeting concluded with a Christmas carol after which a Christmas gift exchange was conducted. Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Theatre Guild To Present 'Joan Of Lorraine'

"Joan of Lorraine" one of the most novel and interesting plays in many seasons, is a two-act drama by Maxwell Anderson, which has been selected as the next attraction to be presented by the Belleville Theatre Guild. An outstanding success when it was produced by Theatre Guild performances, with Ingrid Bergman in the title role, it evoked the highest critical praise. Called "an ingenious piece of theatre" by the PM critic and "a drama of substance and invention" by the N.Y. Journal-American reviewer, it will be presented here at the Collegiate auditorium for two performances, on January 18th and 19th. The play will be directed by Syd Rose.

The cast of 20 in this excellent drama consists of the following, many of whom have done excellent work in previous productions: Jim Alexander, Harold Bankier, Doris Chipps, Phillips Faulkner, Phil Flagler, Fred Goldberg, Lloyd Healily, Joe Journeay, Ben Johnson, Jerry Putman, Syd Quinn, Carl Reid, Sadie Rose, Don Rose, Rod Rose, Ted Schwab, Joan Tanner, Nicki Thomas, Joy Wormington.

Written with Anderson's usual skill and virtuosity, "Joan of Lorraine" centres on Ilelf boit with the story of the Maid of Orleans, and with the problems and emotions of a group of actors and actresses rehearsing the play on the bare stage of a theatre. The action of the play takes place on the stage of a theatre during the final run-through of a production before opening night. The audience is shown the back-stage mechanics of producing a play, and simultaneously, a fresh presentation of the Joan of Arc story, many similarities being pointed out between the story of Joan and the problems facing actors and directors in the world today.

One of the theatre's most prolific writers, Anderson's well-remembered hits include "Winterset," "What Price Glory?" "Mary of Scotland," "Eve of St. Mark" and "Ann of the Thousand Days."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HUSBAND WON'T GIVE YOU ANY PIN MONEY? MAKE SOME YOURSELF!

Perhaps one of the most difficult problems a woman can have is a husband with the distorted idea that he should keep all the family funds in his own pocket, and dole out to his wife no more than the few dollars he chooses to allow her.

Of course there's some definite psychological quirk behind such behavior, but it would take an expert to ferret it out. The average wife is certainly not in a position to do this herself. About all she can do, is to try to figure out some practical solution for it.

Whatever the blame may be in technical terms, this type of quirk is usually an extension of the ordinary male instinct to dominate a woman. It also bolsters up his ego by giving him a feeling of superiority to know that he is the boy who makes the money and his woman is completely dependent on what he wants to give her.

It might make the thing a little easier to stand, however, if a wife accepted the fact that this quirk did exist, and then went on from there.

Pleading with this kind of husband, or begging for money, rarely gets her anywhere. So what should be done, I think, is for her quietly to lay plans for earning some money of her own, even if it is no more than a small sum that would provide her with pocket money to do with as she pleased. Moreover, if she were to do this, she might find an added bonus coming in such a change of attitude on the husband's part. For if he heard no more arguments, and was involved in no more quarrels about his wife having no money of her own to spend, he would, no doubt, be curious about the reason for this. Then, when he found out what was going on, and that his wife had become financially independent of him in a very small way, it would jolt his feeling of having her competely under his thumb.

A great many women have found it possible to earn money even when tied down at home with children. Indeed, strange as it may seem, the very fact that they must be at home so much frequently provides the opportunity to spend some time earning money in the kitchen, say, at the sewing machine, or by some other means.

One of the best know women writers—Mary Roberts Rinehart—began her writing career in just that way—when she was tied down at home with small children. She did her first writing at the kitchen table, after she had put the children down for their naps, or when they were playing around where she could keep an eye on them at the same time. Her experience only goes to show that if the will is there, the way can be found.

These days, there are more ways of earning money at home than most women realize. Numerous books, in fact, have been written on the subject, giving a great variety of suggestions and telling exactly how to go about carrying them out.

I have a list of some of these books, which I would be very glad to forward to anyone who would like to have it and who will send me, with the request, a stamped self-addressed envelope. All these books should be in your public library, but many women might like to purchase one or more of them to keep as permanent guide books.

So don't say of you just go around thinking hard thoughts about your husband—if he is the type who feels that if he pays the bills you should ask nothing more. Get busy yourself, and see what you can do to put money in your own pocket.

11 SPLIT $179,426

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) The General Assembly voted Friday to pay $179,426 damages to 11 Americans fired from the United Nations for refusing to tell United States investigators whether they were Communists. The assembly accepted a World Court decision of last July 13 saying it should pay the damage awards the UN administrative tribunal had made to the discharged employees in 1953.

Bonus Readers' Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

There is "cramming room only" at this late date if I am to give you the recipes you asked for before Christmas.

Helen H. asks for

AMMONIA COOKIES

(Lemon biscuits)

One-half lb. butter (1 cup), 3 eggs, 2 cups white sugar, 1 pint (3 1-2 cups) sweet milk, 1-2 oz. pulverized baking ammonia, dram oil of lemon, 6 cups sifted flour, not sifted all-purpose flour. Cream the butter and sugar, add the eggs well beaten. Sift ammonia several times in the flour, then add. If not stiff enough you may have to add a little more flour. Add the oil of lemon and mix with the hands. Roll out to 1-4 inch thickness and cut into oblong cookie shapes. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. These keep indefinitely and make feathery light, crisp biscuits, usually only found at the confectioners'.

Addie V. L. wants me to repeat Christmas fruit cake drop cookies with fruits and spices, that appeared here last year. Something's wrong somewhere for I've gone through all the files and have no cookie with this name. The one which follows fills your requirements but is called

FRUIT DROPS

Three-quarters cup shortening or butter, 1 1-3 cups sugar (or light brown sugar well-packed), 2 well-beaten eggs 2 1-3 cups sifted cake flour, 3-4 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, 1 cup each light sultanas and chopped fresh walnuts, and 2 dozen glace cherries. Cream butter until light then cream sugar into it; beat in eggs. Sift 2 cups of the flour with the soda, spices, salt, and add to mixture. Add raisins and nuts mixed with remaining 1-2 cup flour. Drop by teaspoon on greased cookie sheets about 2 inches apart. Press 1-2 of a cherry, rounded side up, on each drop. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 15 minutes. Makes approximately 4 dozen.

Mrs. J. C. says " a friend gave me some chicory. They grow it in their garden. I do not know how to use it."—Mrs. J. C.

Chicory is used for salads. Break it up and use it in a tossed salad. It is often used as the bed of greens in a salad bowl, and is good under tiny strips of celery, in stuffed celery. French dressing is usually served on it. It should be well picked over and washed and dried before using.

K. M. M. wants to know how to make a stew in a pressure cooker, using 1 lb. stewing meat, also how to pressure cook a stewing chicken, how much water and how long; when to put in dumplings and how long to cook—her dumplings are always a failure when pressure cooked.

BEEF STEW

(Pressure cooked.)

Cut meat in small pieces and sear in 1 tablespoon hot fat in pressure cooker on all sides. Add 3 potatoes, 1 carrot, 1 onion, 1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce, 1-4 cup water, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-16 teaspoon pepper and if desired, 1-4 teaspoon MSG. Cook at 15 lbs. pressure for 30 minutes if desired vegetables may be held out, and added after meat cooks 20 minutes—but of course, care must be taken in allowing at once before adding them.

STEWED CHICKEN

(Pressure cooked.)

Dress, clean and cut up fowl and put in cooker with 1-2 tablespoon salt and 1-2 teaspoon pepper. Add 2 cups water. Cook at 15 lbs. pressure 25 to 40 minutes time depending on age of fowl. Reduce pressure slowly. Thicken stock with 1-4 cup flour diluted with enough cold water to thicken.

DUMPLINGS

Never pressure cook dumplings. Drop dumplings on solid part of stew; cover with ordinary lid (not pressure cooker cover), and steam 13 to 15 minutes. Do not peek before 12 minutes have passed.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

LEG SLIMMING

Overweights can pack their torso into foundation garments that fix 'rain curves to a certain extent. They can select frocks to camouflage them. But even with skirts at the present length, fatted calves are often revealed for all to see.

It is not unusual for excess fat to be inclined. It may settle above the waist line or below it. The torso may be of normal measurements but the legs have expanded. In that even, the remedy will be found in exercise. Slack muscles are the favorite stamping ground for fat cells.

Even the busiest woman should be able to spare ten minutes a day in the effort to retain or cultivate a pleasing contour. If heavy legs are your problem, make it a practice to walk "tippy toe."

Stand tall, chest high, tummy in head on the the level, hands extended out from the shoulders. This exercise will not only have a beneficial effect on the legs, but on the figure as well.

Up on the toes half a dozen times, inhaling and filling the arms and exhale. There will be a hard pull on the muscles extending from the ankles to the knees.

Try running movements while you stand still. Kick up your heels as high as you can. Do the goose step, lifting the foot as high as you can with each step.

Massage is helpful if it is heavy enough. Anoint your hands with cocoa butter, pick up the flesh, pinch and roll it. Follow with an ice friction.

Theatre Guild Holds Party

The Belleville Theatre Guild highlighted its regular meeting in the Bridge Garden, Bridge St. this week with a party for guild members.

The meeting, well attended, opened with the usual business period under president, C. A. Robb, assisted by acting-secretary Betty Sadler. Bulk of the business ranged around the Guild's forthcoming production of Anderson's "Joan of Lorraine," to be new year. A publicity drive for the production was minutely discussed.

Business over, the members squared-off in a session of square's dancing under the tutorship of young high school student, Warren Frid. Acting as "caller" and instructor, Warren steered the groups through an exciting hour's dancing, western style.

Miriam Bishop had charge of the games, conducting the members through several theatre skits.

The evening concluded with the serving of refreshments.

YACHT STEALER JAILED

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A young University of Chicago graduate who admitted stealing a yacht and traveling with his wife and another girl as far as Nazulan, Mexico, on proposed round-the-world cruise, was sentenced Friday to six months in jail. Kenneth Oliver, 20, received the sentence as part of 10 years' porbation.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

GUEST OF HONOR SHOULD GIVEN LIFT AT PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I are giving a luncheon for my son's fiances. We do not call it a shower, and intend it simply as a luncheon in her honor, to introduce her to our friends, since the wedding is to be small. But everyone we have invited has mentioned a gift. The luncheon is to be held in a private dining room of a hotel. If guests do bring gifts there, as I'm sure they are planning to do, would it be proper to open them there? I'm sure the giver will be disappointed if we don't but we do want to do what is proper.—Fiance's Mother

If your luncheon guests do bring gifts to your son's fiancee, the guest of honor, she should indeed open the gifts at the luncheon party. Certainly, as you say, the guests bringing gifts would be disappointed if she didn't open the gifts to express her delight and enthusiastic appreciation. When she should open them would take some careful thought. If there is time before the luncheon for her to open each gift as it is presented to her and to express her really-adequate appreciation, that's the best time. But I imagine there won't be, and so she would probably have to wait until after the luncheon. However, she should, as soon after the luncheon as possible, write a gracious note of thanks to each guest who was so thoughtful and generous. (If you see she may not be planning to do this, you might drop a gentle hint about it!)

HAVE GOOD TIME MAKING CHRISTMAS CARDS MORE PERSONAL

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I ordered our Christmas cards inscribed with the form of name Mary and John Smith. The cards have just arrived, and they seem so formal with the last name, to send to our relatives and very close friends. Anything I can do about this at this late date? — R.E.

Yes! Cross off (in ink) your last name. Above the names write "Affectionately," or "Lovingly" or whatever is appropriate. Then write below your names a warm little (or big) personal message, a greeting, or perhaps a news-message.

ABOUT GROOM'S RESPONSIBILITY FOR FLOWERS

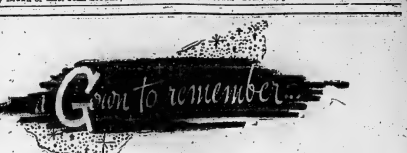
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My son is to be married in January. He and I were told yesterday by some relatives that it is the groom's responsibility to buy the flowers for the church and for the reception (or at least to pay for them if the bride and her mother prefer to order them). True or false?

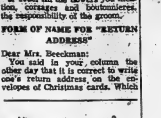
2. Also, I have always thought that it is the groom's responsibility to provide the corsages for both mothers (and in our case for his bride's grandmother and for his grandmother), and the boutonnieres not only for his best man and ushers, but also for the fathers, the bride's father who is to give her in marriage, and his own father. True or false? — Groom's Mother

1. False. It is the bride's family who plans and pays for the flowers to decorate the church and the reception.

2. True. All the flowers you mention, corsages and boutonnieres, the responsibility of the groom.



FORM OF NAME FOR "RETURN ADDRESS"



Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

You said in your column the other day that it is correct to write one's return address on the envelopes of Christmas cards. Which form of name should I write?—Mary Brown or Mrs. John Brown?

—Reader

Write Mrs. John Brown. Your formal name is the one to use for this public information.

Turkeys from 10 to 16 Cents Pound Lower Than Last Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Turkeys are plentiful in Canada this Christmas season and, on the average, prices are 10 to 16 cents a pound lower than last year's.

A Canadian Press survey today showed wide variation in turkey prices from one locality to another. Winnipeg, for example, reported a low of 42 cents a pound while Toronto prices ranged from a low of 50 to a high of 76.

But behind the festive act of buying a Christmas turkey a silent no-holds-barred price war is waged. In Toronto, Christmas turkey prices are guarded more closely than atomic secrets until a week before the holiday. Let one store discover another's prices ahead of time and drop its own a few cents. Meanwhile 25 Christmas approaches pig chain stores steadily reduce prices to the outrage of small retailers.

TREND CHANGES

The last two years has set a new trend in turkey buying. Turkey supplies were low and eviscerated (pre-drawn) fowl were imported from the United States. Consumers jumped at them and since then eviscerated plants have sprung up in many parts of Canada.

Formerly, Canadian housewives bought turkey undrawn with heads and legs on. Although eviscerated turkeys sell for approximately 10 cents a pound extra, the demand is split 50-50 this year between the two types.

In the Maritimes, turkey, geese and duck are plentiful and prices fairly high.

Quebec turkey raisers count 946,795 birds on hand this year, a record production. Prices there range from 44 to 60 cents a pound, but are expected to reflect the general price reduction too.

Price range of turkey in the West is generally lower than in the East. There has been a great stepup in turkey raising brought on by high prices during the last few years.

Bay of Quinte W.I. Holds Party-Meeting

The Bay of Quinte Women's Institute held its December meeting in the form of a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Clarence Holmes, R.R. 3, Belleville.

A gaily lighted Christmas tree gave a festive air to the occasion. The president, Mrs. Ross Stickle opened the meeting.

In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson, Mrs. John Reid called the roll, which was answered by a donation to a needy family.

Mrs. P. Bolton expressed thanks to the Institute for their kindness in sending her husband, while ill, cards and flowers. A letter of thanks was read from Mr. Clarence Holmes for flowers sent him while ill.

Mrs. Gregory ordered three quilts from the Institute. It was moved that Mrs. Ross Stickle, Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson and Mrs. John Reid be a committee to prepare baskets for the needy at Christmas and baskets of fruit for the shut-ins. Several ladies promised to give donations towards a layette at the January meeting.

Christmas carols were sung and a reading by Mrs. C. Holmes "What Christmas Should Mean to Me". Christmas gifts were then exchanged which were to cost no more than 25 cents.

Mrs. John Reid expressed the appreciation of the Institute to Mrs. Holmes for the use of her home and to the conveners for the refreshments.

The next meeting will be held on January 12, in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Wilson, Belleville, R.R. 2.

Housekeeping Big Job On Cunard Liners

MONTREAL.—Canadian housewives who are wont to contemplate the annual problem of Christmas catering and entertaining with some trepidation may get a measure of consolation from comparison of their lot with the responsibilities that face those charged with housekeeping chores on aboard large Atlantic liners. Every day of the year.

For instance, to equip the 22,000-ton Cunarder Saxonia for a five-day crossing requires more than 58,000 pieces of linen, including 6,400 sheets, 8,500 table napkins and 2,800 blankets.

When it comes to the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary, the housekeeping increases accordingly. Each day, each of these giant Cunarders requires more than 500,000 pieces of china, glassware and cutlery to serve the average daily 11,000 meals. Linen supplies for a voyage in each Queen include 210,000 towels, 31,000 pillow cases and 21,000 table cloths.

Women's Institute

CANNIFTON W.I.

The December Cannifton Women's Institute meeting was held in the Cannifton town hall, Monday evening after a turkey dinner at the Golden Acre Inn had been enjoyed by members and three guests. Gifts were exchanged at the close of dinner.

It was voted two Christmas baskets be sent needy families in the community. Plans were also made for the turkey dinner for the Corbyville office staff on December 22.

The meeting was then turned over to the directors—Mrs. Milton, Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Latchford.

Mrs. Georgina Charlton, of Belleville, entertained with humorous recitations of which were much enjoyed by all.

Bingo was played for the remainder of the evening.

Women's Activities

MELROSE W.I.

Mrs. J. MacFarlane graciously opened her home for the December meeting of the Melrose W.I.

The president, Mrs. J. McLarren, presided. Mrs. R. Badgley reported that the proceeds from the community supper amounted to $27.75.

At this point a vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. K. Lazier for cooking and slicing the ham for the supper.

Cards and personal "thankyous" were extended by Mrs. Goodfellow, Lyn Stratton, Mrs. O. Stratton and Mr. J. Blatherwick.

Mrs. K. Lazier moved that district delegates' expenses be paid which was seconded by Mrs. R. MacFarlane.

Mrs. R. MacFarlane was appointed to secure a new boiler and Mrs. O. Stratton and Mrs. Clarence Hagerman were authorized to buy Christmas parcels.

Glowing reports of the convention were given by Mrs. F. Pascoe, Jr., and Mrs. K. McMechan

Mrs. Pascoe told of the suggestions submitted by the Institutes; the roll call which was answered with a short talk on many countries in which the W.I. is active; the United Nations appeal and the slides shown by Miss Barbara Redner on her recent trip to England.

Mrs. K. McMechan reported that each Institute should have a project of its own; that Institutes should print two programs per member, one for each member, and one to be presented to a visitor or prospective member and that each Institute should have a 'resolution convener.'

The program was taken over by Mrs. M. Lazier and a number of Christmas carols were sung. Little Miss Judy McLaren gave a recitation and Mrs. C. Bates, Jr., gave an interesting paper on "Christmas Evergreens," going back to the origin and relating interesting legends about evergreen trees, holly, mistletoe, and laurel.

Mrs. Earl Badgley gave a reading "Baby Boy at Christmas," followed by two contests.

Many beautifully wrapped parcels were on display and at the close of the meeting, Christmas gifts were exchanged.

Commission Plans 50-Mile Stretch of Highway Through Beautiful Gatineau Park

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal District Commission plans a 50-mile stretch of highway through beautiful Gatineau Park.

Work has started on the estimated $4,000,000 parkway that will meander at a leisurely pace through the 45,000 acres of wilderness across the Ottawa river from the capital.

The roadway will be strictly a scenic route designed to give visitors views of untouched nature from the comfort of automobiles and buses.

LINK BEAUTY SPOTS

The road will link the park's beauty spots and make them easily accessible. Starting from the western outskirts of Hull, Que., it will snake through the park, circle it, and come back, 50 miles later, to the starting point.

"We will keep the park as close to the way God made it as possible," park superintendent E. S. Richards said.

However, the Federal District Commission has improved on nature in many ways. Sprinkled throughout the park are tables and benches for picnickers, colored to blend with the surroundings. At East Picnic Spot there are outdoor fireplaces. The FDC even provides woodfor fires, "so no woodchuck will chop our trees."

The park is webbed with 100 miles of footpaths. Boats and tents can be rented at Lac Philippe, a lake about three miles long, at the uppermost end of the park.

SKIERS HAPPY

The roadway will open up a skiers' paradise, eyed hungrily by Ottawans for some time.

The parkway itself may take years to build. FDC officials say there is no definite schedule and only a few miles are planned for construction next year.

The highway will wander over the Gatineau Laurentians by Lac Philippe, Harrington and Meach lakes. The view will change constantly as the roadway winds through bush country, up mountains, through meadows and past lakes. Objectionable views will be screened with trees.

Bethlehem Policeman Guards Star Marking Spot Where Christ Was Born

By WILTON WYNN

BETHLEHEM, Jordan (AP)—Policeman Mahmood Selim patrols an unusual beat. He guards the star marking the spot where Christ was born.

The silver star set in the stone floor of a rock-hewn grotto beneath Bethlehem's Church of the Nativity has been guarded night and day since 1873. At that time the Turkish sultan placed a policeman on guard to prevent trouble between the various Christian sects interested in the site.

Since the Turks relinquished Palestine in the First World War, Bethlehem has been successively under British and Jordanian rule. Each regime has maintained the police guard over the holy site. Mahmood Selim has been on duty here since 1948, when Jordan took over the holy places after the Palestine war.

THREE CHRISTMASES

Because of calendar differences, Christmas is celebrated in Bethlehem at three different times—one for Roman Catholics and other Western churches, one for Orthodox churches and one for the Armenians.

Inside the gloomy grotto where Christ was born, every item is the specific property of one of the churches. An altar above the star belongs to the Orthodox, and Latins can never pray there. A few feet away is a reconstructed manger, the property of the Latins. Beside it is the altar of the wise men, where only Latins pray.

Two rows of lamps hanging from the sooty vaulted ceiling belong to the Armenians, while a third row consists of alternate Latin and Orthodox lamps. An asbestos curtain hanging along the crude stone wall is Latin property, while most of the items are Orthodox.

PROPERTY SACRED

During a Latin service, only Latin lamps and candles burn. During an Orthodox service only Orthodox lamps are lighted. If an Armenian or Greek touches the property of the other, Mahmood Selim may be called to quell a riot.

Closer inspection shows the beauty which this church once possessed, however. Selim keeps the keys to a section of boards over part of the floor. Lifting a lid shows that two feet below the present stone floor are the remains of beautiful Byzantine mosaics which once covered the floor.

Directly in front of the church is manger square, the centre of the Christian village of Bethlehem. Across the square stands the only mosque in Bethlehem. Otherwise, the town has a dominant Christian note, even though ruled by Moslems almost since the seventh century.

Power Tools, TV Sets Tops On Christmas List

Power tools and TV sets are tops on this year's Christmas list.

In record numbers this year's Christmas shoppers are snapping up do-it-yourelf tools for dad, TV sets for the family and useful but attractive clothes for friends and relatives.

A Canadian Press Christmas shopping survey in major cities indicates sales as good as last year in most regions and better in several. Volume is up too.

Ontario and British Columbia both report one of the best shopping years since the Second World War. Business is better in the Maritimes, about the same as last year in Quebec and ranges from a slight drop to about the same as last year on the Prairies.

Retailers say shoppers are shopping later this year, buying with greater caution and concentrating on more useful gifts than in the past. The result has been an increasing emphasis on salesmanship and advertising.

A Toronto shopping centre has set up a Christmas tree six storeys high. In Edmonton, a woman's wear store has been staging special "stag nights" for male shoppers.

British goods are in demand in most sections of Canada, although several regions report a short supply as a result of the November British dock strike. Especially popular are the traditional British woollens and fine china.

In Ontario sales and volume are up in the larger department stores but down in the smaller outlets. Sweaters, perfume and jewelry are the most popular gifts for girls; brushes, do-it-yourself tools and sports equipment for men.

"A MIRACLE THAT NO LIVES WERE LOST" IN T.C.A. CRASH

Man Who May Know Reason For Crash of TCA Airliner Is Not Yet Able to Talk

BRAMPTON (CP) — The man who may know what caused Friday night's crash of a Trans-Canada Air Lines Super-Constellation was still in hospital in critical condition today.

Capt. Norman Ramsay, 34, of Montreal suffered a fractured skull and jaw when the four-engined airliner plowed into a field four miles west of here and burst into flames. All 16 passengers and seven crew members escaped death.

Department of transport and TCA officials won't be able to talk to Capt. Ramsay for several days.

They completed their investigation Sunday, but their findings likely will not be known for several weeks.

CREW QUESTIONED

Every available piece of debris from the area, about 20 miles northwest of Toronto, is being collected for examination. The airport hopes to reassemble major parts of the plane.

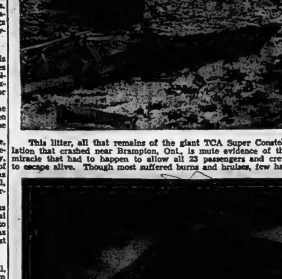
Most of the crew and some passengers already have been questioned on events preceding the crash.

Of the 23 persons in the plane, 21 still are in hospital. Most severely injured are Capt. Ramsay, first officer Gary Anderson, 32, of Gananoque, flight engineer Thomas Gordon Phillips, 34, of Montreal, and Mrs. Eleanor Law, 62, of Toronto, a passenger.

Ramsay, who with stewardess Irene Deruchie, 35, of Montreal climbed back into the plane to rescue Anderson and Phillips, has been no visitors except his closest kin.

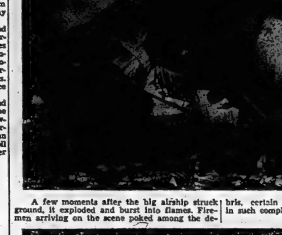
SUFFERED BURNS

Capt. Don Beattie of Montreal, another TCA pilot, was flown from Montreal Sunday after Ramsay asked to see him.



Anderson received head cuts and burns. TCA officials said an earlier report that he had fractures of the left arm and leg were inaccurate. Phillips received head injuries, fractured ribs and collarbone, a chipped pelvis and burns. Mrs. Law suffered severe face burns.

Still in hospital are: Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Harrison, Edna Lane and Vernon C. Hall, Toronto; stewardesses Miss Deruchie and Marion Doucet and steward John Renaud, Montreal; Paul Dutault of Quebec City and Jean Shaver of Woodstock, Ont.



This litter, all that remains of the giant TCA Super Constellation that crashed near Brampton, Ont., is mute evidence of the miracle that had to happen to allow all 23 passengers and crew to escape alive. Though most suffered burns and bruises, few had a thousand feet.

The huge plane was travelling on instruments that crashed about two miles from Malton airport, nine miles away, when it hit a snow-covered field, scattering wreckage over to remain in hospital.

Pilot of the Constellation, Captain Norman Ramsay of Vancouver, is credited with saving the life of his co-pilot. When all the passengers had assembled outside the burning plane after the crash, it was found that the only missing person was co-pilot Gary Anderson. Capt. Ramsay, above, went back into the blazing plane to drag Anderson to safety.

A few moments after the big airship struck ground, it exploded and burst into flames. Firemen arriving on the scene poked among the debris, certain that there were some casualties in such complete destruction.

Tail assembly of the Super Constellation was broken off from the fuselage and escaped the burning that destroyed the rest of the plane. Passengers had but a few seconds to crawl out of the twisted fuselage before it became an inferno and they were unanimous in saying "it was a miracle that allowed us to survive. (Central Press Canadian Photos.)

Vernon G. Hall, Toronto, suffered burns to his hands and feet in the crash but set off across a field of flaming debris, crawled on his hands and knees, and dazed, reached a building where motorists, attracted by the blaze, had assembled.

Criticism of U.S. Foundations For Promotion of Socialism Answered by Charges of Bias

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spokesmen for several United States foundations have hit back with such terms as "biased" and "flimsy" at a congressional committee report accusing the giant tax-free groups of promoting a socialism of "far greater menace" at home than communism.

The report was issued Sunday night over the signatures of the three Republicans on a special five-member committee headed by Representative Carroll Reece (Rep., Tenn.). One of them, Representative Angier Goodwin (Rep. Mass.) dissented from many of the conclusions, including the one that the foundations promote socialism.

Representatives Wayne L. Hays (Ohio) and Gracie Pfost (Idaho), the two Democratic members, filed a blistering dissent attacking the 416-page report as a "crackpot" view by persons suffering from "fear sickness." They put primary blame on the committee staff.

A "CARTEL"

The report signed by the Republican members pictured the big foundations as an "interlock" and "an intellectual cartel" which, it declared, wields tremendous leftwing power over American thought and policy.

The 12-page opinion by the Democrats described the investigation as dominated from the start by a "theme of pre-judgment" against the foundations "like the theme of doom in a tragic opera."

The Republican report said the foundations influence national policies through the power of the purse—"public" money because of the foundations' tax-exempt status—amplified through a host of "intermediate" organizations, such as interlocking clearing houses and professional societies.

Mentioned most often were the country's big Philanthropic fund groups: The Ford Foundation, the Rockefeller Foundation, several Carnegie groups, and what it called "offshoots" of the big three.

The Republican report also assailed the New York Times, Herald York Herald Tribune and the Washington Post and Times Herald, which it said had connections "educational and financial" and criticized the investigation. The latter two newspapers said statements made in the report were not true. The Times had no comment.

Despite Illness Pope Will Give World Message

By WEBB McKINLEY

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Despite his illness, Pope Pius will address a Christmas message to the world over Vatican radio at noon Friday.

But the ailing pontiff will not deliver the complete message personally, as he has for the last 15 years. Instead, he will begin the message and then allow another speaker to complete it for him.

At noon on Christmas day he will appear at his apartment window and bless the throng that will be gathered below in St. Peter's Square.

L'Osservatore Romano, the newspaper published in the Vatican, announced these plans today after the Pope was reported to have rested "quite well" Sunday night, despite a brief return of the hiccups.

Another automobile ride and brief walk in the garden were planned for the pontiff today if the weather remained good. It would be the third successive daily outing for the Pope.

X-rays taken last Thursday also showed the Pope has a small hernia of the esophagus.

Mayor Drapeau Briefs Newsmen On City's Policy

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's new mayor, energetic 38-year-old Jean Drapeau, wants to bring his municipal government closer to the people.

Estimating that fewer than five out of every 1,000 Montrealers have ever visited city hall, Mayor Drapeau said Sunday he feels citizens should know more about their government, how it functions and where it operates.

He outlined his views at an unprecedented meeting in the council chamber. His listeners included more than 100 representatives of newspapers, news agencies, radio and television stations; men who handle public relations for large companies in the city, and officials of advertising firms.

They were all invited to the meeting and were seated at desks normally reserved for the city's 46 councillors. From the mayor's dais Mr. Drapeau said he had called the meeting to establish a contact between his government and the people.

PLAN MORE MEETS

The meeting was the first of its type since Mayor Drapeau was swept into office Oct. 25 on a "clean up Montreal" platform. But he said similar meetings are planned for the future.

Speaking first in French and then in English, the mayor announced his desire to collaborate with all media reaching the public.

As a start, said Mayor Drapeau, a member of his staff soon will be assigned to handle queries from newspaper men and to receive their suggestions on coverage of civic matters. Eventually a public relations or public relations staff would be attached to the mayor's office.

Pierre Desmarais, chairman of the executive committee, said that the new administration has determined the $1,200 a year gratuities formerly paid to reporters covering city hall. This was done, he said, lest the gratuities should prevent anyone from telling the "truth" and t how that the new administration respects the integrity of reporters.

Pioneer Magistrate Will Retire in North

HAILEYBURY (CP) — Magistrate Siegfried Atkinson, 74, pioneer magistrate in northern Ontario and senior in service to all Ontario magistrates, will retire this week. He has served 48 years on the bench.

Magistrate Atkinson's area now stretches as far north as Timmins, where he presided until a few years ago.

The first of Ontario's travelling magistrates, his duties then took him to Timmins, Kirkland Lake and Haileybury. His district covered more than 1,000 square miles.

Lindsay Woman Frozen to Death

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — An 80-year-old woman apparently froze to death early Sunday when she slipped on an icy sidewalk and was knocked unconscious.

Police said the woman, identified as a Mrs. Costello, wandered away from her son's home without a coat. Her body was found by two men on their way to work.

Police said she probably died of exposure in weather that was 12 degrees above zero.

BEWARE: BEAR LOADED

BLACK MOUNTAIN, N. C. (AP) — The old wive spout being loaded for bear got switched Sunday. J.H. Armfield, engineer for the Blue Ridge parkway, reported a roaming black bear broke into a tool box across here and ate 14 sticks of dynamite.

Hammarskjold Is Preparing For His Trip to See Chou

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Secretary-general Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations announced Sunday night after a meeting with Communist China's ambassador to Sweden that he still plans to leave for Peiping some time after Dec. 28, but the exact date has not been set.

As Hammarskjold conferred at a luncheon with the envoy, Gen. Keng Piao, Peiping radio broadcast further Japanese charges against the release of the 11 United States fliers China is holding as spies. The radio quoted a brief by a Chinese judge that the Korean armistice applies only to the North Koreans and the Chinese "volunteers" in Korea, not to the Chinese peasants and police the broadcast said captured the airmen.

An official announcement from Hammarskjoldsaid his 2½-hour discussion with Kent was on practical matters concerning his mission to China. The Swedish diplomat will seek the release of the American airmen and all other UN personnel still held by the Chinese since the Korean war.

Wildor Foote, UN press chief, relayed Hammarskjold's announcement at a press conference in the Swedish foreign office. He said all details of the China trip will be announced as soon as they have been settled.

Foote added that no further meetings were planned with the Chinese before the secretary-general's return to New York Tuesday.

The Peiping broadcast quoted Mei Jo-ao, a Chinese lawyer at the Japanese war-crimes trials, as saying the case of the American fliers had nothing to do with the Korean armistice because the truce applied on the Communist side only to prisoners captured by the North Koreans and Chinese "volunteers." This implied, Mei said, China's contention that she officially was not involved in the Korean war.

Peiping radio said in another tough-talking broadcast that the case of the fliers and that of 35 Chinese civilians detained by the U.S., "fall under two entirely different categories."

"Every sovereign state has the right and duty to arrest and punish foreign spies," the broadcast said, "but what crime has been committed by the Chinese students in America?"

The Chinese Communists earlier had hinted that they might be willing to trade the fliers for the students, who have been denied U.S. exit permits but not put under any sort of confinement. The trade deadlock appeared to be broken, and many Chinese students already have begun packing for the homeward journey.

Missing Man's Body Is Found

SCHOMBERG, Ont. (CP)—The body of a 40-year-old man, missing since the Oct. 16 floods, was found Sunday on the bank of a drainage canal in Holland marsh.

The body of John Naggl was found two miles from his home, which was under water at the peak of the floods.

He had lived alone in this village, 35 miles north of Toronto.

NOT FOR STREET WEAR

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP)—The town council took time out from Christmas gift-wrapping Sunday to announce approval of a proposed by-law that would ban Bikini bathing suits next summer on the streets of this summer resort.

Men, woman or child over 12 must be covered "to a point midway on his or her knee." If they stray from the beaches, the measure said.

Sunday's Snow Fused Into Ice In New York

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Subfreezing weather chilled New York state today, fusing into an icy coat the wet snow that fell Sunday in western and northern sections. Highway travel in some areas was perilous.

Temperatures dropped to the 10-to-20 range across the state overnight, after Buffalo and vicinity were hit Sunday by a storm that swept in off the Great Lakes, dropping an eight-inch blanket of snow over western New York. Roads were sloppy, and threatened to become dangerous as the temperature dropped.

INVENTORS STILL TRYING

TOKYO (AP)—Three amateur inventors turned on the power on Japan's first jet-helicopter Sunday —but the machine refused to leave the ground. The inventors, who have made 3,000 attempts to fly the machine, say they haven't given up.

Two separate accidents in the North Bay area took the lives of Norman Sutherland, 39, and 13-year-old Donna Jutras of North Bay.

Sutherland was killed when an oil truck he had parked slid backwards and crushed him against a boom. Jutras died when he was struck by a car as he walked along a highway.

Mrs. Achiel Van Hooren, 52, of Langton, was killed in a two-car collision near that village 30 miles east of St. Thomas.

In Lindsay, a 20-year-old woman identified as a Mrs. Costello, apparently froze to death after she slipped on an icy sidewalk and was knocked unconscious.

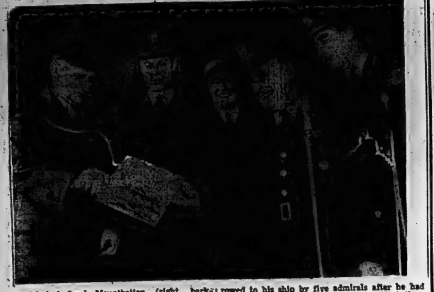
At Windsor, N.S., three-year-old Carol Anne Jane Riley of nearby Three Mile Plains died in hospital of third degree burns and shock after her dress caught fire.

Adrien Lavoie, 27, drowned when he was pinned beneath his car after it skidded off the road into a brook near Campbellton, N.B.

Marlene Stewart, of Penthill, Ont., Canada's outstanding golfer, suffered minor bruises and burns in the Constellation crash. Her mother, sitting with her, heard of the disaster over the radio, spent many restless moments until she arrived at Peel Memorial Hospital to find her daughter safe and smiling.

London Airport Workers Return To Their Tasks

LONDON (AP)—A back-to-work movement began at London airport early today among the 315 British European Airways maintenance men who were dismissed Friday.



The danger of heavily disrupted Christmas schedules on the airline's big European network receded as a majority of the men filed in to be interviewed before return to work.

The wholesale firing was ordered by Peter Masefield, BEA chief executive, Friday after the men attended an unofficial mass meeting during work hours.But he told the men Sunday that they would come back with no loss in seniority if they promised in writing to honor negotiated agreements.

Jim Matthews, secretary of the trade union side of the National Joint Council for Civil Air Transport, pleaded with the men to return. But Jack Peters, union shop steward over whom the controversy centered, told the early morning meeting: "Big brother Peter Masefield is prepared to take you back . . . and if your skill is good enough and you are prepared to knuckle down under the conditions we have had for the last three weeks, you can go back."

The mass meeting Friday was called to discuss the airline's refusal to allow more than 2½ hours daily to Peters for his union duties.

Admiral Lord Mountbatten (right, background), who has relinquished his post as commander-in-chief of NATO naval forces in the Mediterranean to become first lord of the British admiralty, was presented with a scroll of honor in a ceremony at SHAPE headquarters "for outstanding services rendered to the free world." In return, Lord Mountbatten presented SHAPE with an autographed photograph of himself being rowed to his ship by five admirals after he had left his headquarters at Malta for the last time. In this scene are, left to right: Viscount Montgomery, deputy supreme commander, SHAPE, holding the Mountbatten photograph; General Norstad, air deputy; Admiral Lemonnier (background), naval deputy; General Alfred M. Labor Found Increasing Resistance to Improving Contracts With Employers

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian labor tightened its ranks internally during 1954 but found increasing resistance to improving contract terms in its dealings with employers.

Within labor, the year's most significant event was the signing of a no-raiding agreement between the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, with 340,000 members, and the 375,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor.

Union leaders see the armistice as the first step towards eventual amalgamation of the country's two largest labor bodies.

How effectively the pact works will depend on its reception by the big autonomous unions of the congresses. Unions covering the bulk of the membership are expected to go along.

Apart from this move against the disruption of labor's economic strength through interunion scrapping, progress was made in organization, and by the end of the year organized labor numbered more than 1,200,000.

On the negotiating front, employers were at their toughest since the war, a mood created by a downturn in some major industries. Wage increases and other concessions were slim. Some unions had to settle for none at all, for the first time in years.

The largest bargaining group—the 145,000 nonoperating rail workers—got their smallest package since the sweep round of demands started. It was enforced by arbitration after they had threatened to strike.

The year's biggest strike saw 6,500 workers walk out of Ontario plants of Ford of Canada.

In the field of labor legislation, chief development was Parliament's adoption of legislation banning discrimination on ground of race or creed among workers in industries under federal labor jurisdiction.

The government adopted the same principle in its own contracts with private industry. But the Commons defeated an attempt to have the checkoff of union dues made mandatory upon employers. It also took no action on a proposal for equal pay for men and women doing the same work.

Late in the year, the prospect of relatively heavy unemployment this winter led the government to draw up legislation to improve unemployment insurance coverage. It was to be introduced early in the session opening Jan. 7, earmarked for priority and fast passage.

Among labor personalities, 1954 was a milestone in that it marked the retirement of Percy R. Bengough as president of the Trades and Labor Congress after a dozen years at its head. The 71-year-old chief was succeeded by Claude Jodoin, 41, youngest president in TLC history.

Acquit Boy, 12, In Murder Case At St. Jerome

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — A Montreal boy who was acquitted Saturday of the rifle slaying of an aged farmer returns to court today to find out whether he will have to answer charges of murdering the farmer's wife.

The 12-man jury, without leaving the courtroom, found Gilles Boisjoly, 14, not guilty of the slaying of 63-year-old Josephat Therrien. Therrien and his wife were found dead Oct. 18 in the couple's Laurentian farm home at nearby Val David. They were killed with a .22-calibre rifle.

Boisjoly is to appear today on the charge of murdering Therrien's wife but legal experts expect the charge will be dropped.

Another youngster, 15-year-old Guy Desrochers, is being given a mental examination and is scheduled to go on trial Jan. 17.

STATEMENT RULED OUT

The jury's verdict came after the presiding judge, Mr. Justice Claude Prevost, ruled a statement allegedly made by young Boisjoly to provincial police following his arrest inadmissable as evidence.

He also told the jury the crown had failed to prove intent on the part of the accused.

The boy broke down and wept when the verdict was announced. His mother rose from her seat in the spectators' section and wept also. Provincial police helped her from the courtroom as her detective-husband followed.

Young Laborite Is Seeking Right to Renounce Title

LONDON (AP) — A 29-year-old Labor member of Parliament is in line for a title and a place in the House of Lords—but he doesn't want either.

In fact, Anthony Wedgwood Benn so strongly dislikes the idea of becoming a peer that he is petitioning Parliament to allow him to renounce the hereditary title of his father, 77-year-old Lord Stansgate, and so avoid having to sit in the Lords.

It's an unprecedented move in British parliamentary history, but the fairhaired young legislator's father, also a socialist, is backing his son all the way.

As heir of a peer with a hereditary title, Wedgwood Benn would normally assume his father's title when his father dies, leave his seat in the House of Commons and move up to the House of Lords.

Explaining why he doesn't want a title, he says he wants to remain a commoner, "free for the rest of my life to seek election, or if elected, to sit as a member of the House of Commons."

Supporting his son, Lord Stansgate, former Labor secretary of state for India, said Wedgwood Benn is "exercising the right of every citizen" in putting forward a personal bill applying solely to himself and not altering the general law.

JOHN NIAGARA Talks about:

LARGE BILLS And How to pay them

Most people spend large sums of money only when they know where the money is coming from. But there are some bills that you just can't plan for. For instance, car smash-ups, unexpected medical expenses, fires, thefts and anything completely out of your control. Bills . . . that hit you like a bolt out of the blue. These large bills are often a serious set-back to a family. That's when a Niagara loan can really be of help. At any rate there are a lot of letters in our office which were written by people who certainly think our service was a mighty fine answer to this difficult kind of problem. You'll find if you inquire, that friendly loans at Niagara finance often have lower rates. Another point about Niagara, loans to $1500 are life-insured at no extra cost to you. If you have a large unexpected bill which you can't handle why not drop in or phone; we'll be glad to see you.

Detroit Lions Defeat Browns On Last Play

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bobby Layne's passing moved Detroit Lions 16 yards in eight plays for a last-minute touchdown Sunday as they edged Cleveland Browns 14-10 before 34,183 fans in the last game of the National Football League's regular season. The two clubs, both divisional champions, meet again next Sunday for the NFL title.

The game meant nothing in the final standings but maintained Detroit's mastery over the Browns, whom they have beaten eight times since coach Buddy Parker took over the Lions four years ago.

John Kissell, who returned to the Browns this year after playing a season with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football Union, recovered a Detroit fumble in the first quarter to set up Cleveland quarterback Otto Graham for a touchdown.

Layne wiped it out with a 26-yard touchdown pass to Dorne Dibble early in the third quarter, but Lou Groza put Cleveland ahead again with a 44-yard field goal later in the quarter. Then Jug Girard caught Layne's 11-yard toss for the winning score.

Two More Names Dropped From Argonaut Club

TORONTO (CP) — Two more names have been dropped from the Toronto Argonauts football club. They aren't players, however.

Club officials said two of the oldest executive members, Dr. J. J. O'Connor and Dr. M. D. Kinsella, have been replaced.

They were members of what was known as "the old guard" which favored a "go slow" policy. It is thought they were dropped to clear the way for the club's new policy of bringing in name imports from the United States.

Their places will be taken by T. E. Norris, a member of the executive of Argos' Turnbie Bailey Beach farm club, and H.C. Lackie.

Breaks World Mark

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Bill Mihalo, 39, former Olympic Games competitor from Detroit, Sunday broke a 63-year-old world's walking record by winning the world's professional association five-mile race in 35 minutes, one second.

The old record of 35:24 was set by Frank Donovan of New York in 1892.

Week-End Stars

Maurice Richard, Montreal, who scored the 400th goal of his career Saturday and assisted on another as the Canadiens whipped Chicago 4-1 and came back with two more assists Sunday as Montreal blanked Detroit, 3-0.

Ted Kennedy, Toronto, who got one goal and assisted on three others as the Maple Leafs defeated and tied New York, 3-1 and 3-3 in two weekend games.

Gerd Bewe, Detroit, who scored one goal and assisted on a second as the Red Wings defeated Boston 4-1 Saturday.

Jacques Plante, Montreal, who turned in his second shutout of the season as the Canadiens blanked Detroit 3-0 Sunday.

Harry Watson, Chicago, who scored one goal and assisted on three others as the Black Hawks split two weekend games, losing 4-2 to Montreal and defeating Boston 6-1.

DIES IN HOTEL

RENFREW (CP)—Timothy Nolan, 61, of Killaloe, Ont., was found dead Sunday night, his body stretched across a flaming bed in a room at a hotel in this Ottawa valley town. He is believed to have suffered a heart attack while lying on or standing near his bed smoking a cigaret. Dr. L. J. Mulvihill, coroner, said the man had been dead for some time before the fire was discovered.

Moon Is Voted Rookie of Year In National

NEW YORK (AP)—Wally Moon, who smashed a home run the first time he went to bat as a major leaguer and didn't stop hitting until the season's close, Sunday was voted National League rookie of the year by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

The 24-year-old speed merchant, who was thrust into the popular St. Louis veteran Enos Slaughter's shoes on the eve of the National League's season, collected 193 hits, scored 106 runs and batted a highly respectable .304 for the Cardinals.

Moon got 17 of the 24 votes and scattered the remaining among three other first-year men. Ernie Banks, slick Chicago Cubs' shortstop, received four votes, Gene Conley, the smooth working right-hander of the Milwaukee Braves had two and Henry Aaron, Conley's teammate, who made the big jump from class A to the majors in one year, got the other.

Back in the days when the well-attired man considered a sword and dagger part of his walking-out dress, a social encounter was likely to be a matter of the survival of the fastest. That's when the handshake was first accepted as a token of friendship. It showed that a man's sword arm was not engaged in reaching for his weapon. The warm handclasp is still a symbol of friendship, a gesture of welcome to old friends and new, especially during this happy festive season.

Rocket Richard Scores 400th Goal As Canadiens Add To NHL Lead

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

CAN BE BEATEN!

The cloak of invincibility, or rather near-invincibility, in which Mr. Michael J. Rodden, sports editor of the Kingston Whig Standard, has enshrouded his Kingston Goodyears this season, with allowances (?) for setbacks, is not so puncture-proof, after all.

The two-team pedestal upon which Mr. Rodden placed the Goodies, and the Cornwall Colts, may prove to have a slightly clayish base. Friend Miquel once wrote to the effect that the Goodies and the Colts were in a class by themselves, as far as the senior "B" group is concerned. And as Finn McCool's great-grandson from Dublin remarked when he saw his first giraffe, "It's a dom lie—they's no such craytur."

After all, you can't blame M.J.R. in a way—and it is a bitter dose for him to swallow—to have those upstarts from the wigwams of the Moira defiate the Goodies before their own faithful in their own service station.

Early season dope had it, after the Cornwall Colts began to cut a wide, undefeated swath, through the pack, that the down-east club would be the team to beat for the group honors. The glowing predictions had the Colts a superior Senior "A" club, which had no business competing in a league like this.

True, the Colts, in our opinion, are one of the better teams in the league but, like the Goodyears, a win streak does not by any stretch of the imagination elevate them to the status of unbeatable supermen.

The Memos took care of that. They draped a neat 2-0 collar around the Colts' necks in their own corral, and the rest of the loop perked up its ears.

Not because the Memos showed superlative strength and ability, but the fact the Colts could be beaten—and by their own forward at that. Since that time the down-easters have tasted defeat seven or eight times, if our memory is correct.

We are not depreciating the strength of the Goodyears. They, too, comprise one of the better clubs in the loop — but they are not going to match through the schedule of a group such as this without getting their ears pinned back but plenty, by any stretch of the imagination.

As for blaming their defeats on "tiredness after road trips"—that can go down in the crazy archives as a stock alibi. Every team in the group travels but plenty—and a quick guess would say the Goodies travel the least distance of any entry in the loop.

The Memos should have convinced Mr. Rodden that they are contenders with their 4-3 setback of the Goodies Saturday night. Sure, sure, Mike, and it's me that knows the Goodies shellacked our side 5-2 the night previous. They were the better team, if slightly, on the night's play—and, incidentally, that phrase is not a bad one for other typewriters of the loop circuit sports mills to use when the occasion demands, instead of trite alibis.

However, Saturday night's victory, the third in four starts during the week, turned that twi-term top pedestal into a three-way platform. The Memos now share an even keel in second place with Cornwall with 22 points, three behind the group-leading Goodyears.

Brockville (don't sell 'em short) Magedomas, turned the tables on their Whitby conquerors of Friday and defeated them 8-4 to climb into fifth spot with 18 points, one ahead of the Clinton Comets (18), who incidentally clipped the lowly Petes 6-4 on Saturday night.

This is being written "flying on one wing" in Belleville General Hospital, which we hope 'to be out of' by the time this is read. Sunday's scores are not included in the above standing comments.

The Memos have a twin engagement with their ancient feudists from Peterborough this week, entertaining Eddie Redmond's crew here tomorrow night and paying a return visit Wednesday gloaming.

And those Pesky Petes are liable to throw a monkey wrench into the Memos' win machinery. They always 'were tough nuts to crack regardless of where the game was played, and they have been no different this season despite the standing.

It semes the Petes believe the nearest the hockey bone the sweeter the meat of victory and the Bouchermen are not selling them short. They handed the much-touted Cornwall Colts a 3-2 setback a little while ago and if they display that kind of hockey here tomorrow night the Memos will have to show their entire bag of tricks to pull out a win.

THANKS A MILLION!

We cannot close this first column in a week without expressing our appreciation to those grand guys who "remembered" us while doing a week's forced stint in hospital with a splintered collar bone. One just can't push a stone step out of the way with a shoulder via the flying tackle route, so we discovered. And if anyone tells you the right side of the face cannot be scratched with the left hand going behind the neck, tell him to crack a collarbone and discover his mistake.

Thanks to the many fine sportsmen for cards, cigarettes, etc., especially the senior "B" club. They were really appreciated.

Habs Win Two Over Week-End While Leafs Win and Tie; Hergesheimer Fractures Leg

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Life will be a little easier now for Maurice Richard, the man with one of hockey's costliest tempers.

The 33-year-old rightwinger, the most shadowed forward in the National Hockey League, Saturday night became the first player to score 400 goals.

There was some of the old Richard flair when the Montreal Canadiens star fired a hard shot past goaltender Al Rollins of the Montrealers defeated Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 in Detroit.

Rocket, a grin replacing his usual scowl, was hoisted triumphantly to the shoulders of his team-mates.

That was the highlight of the league's games weekend. In two other Saturday games, Toronto Toronto Maple Leafs beat New York Rangers 4-3 in Toronto and Detroit Red Wings walloped Boston Bruins 6-1 in Detroit.

CANADIENS LEAD

The front-running Canadiens repeated Saturday night with a 5-2 shellacking over the Red Wings. Meanwhile, the Rangers came from behind to tie Leafs 3-3 in New York and the Boston Bruins were tripped down 6-1 by the upstart Black Hawks.

It left Canadiens in first place with 39 points. Detroit Red Wings have a five-point lead over the Red Wings, who now are tied for second. The Bruins remained in fourth spot with 26 points and the Rangers are fifth with 24, seven ahead of the cellar-dwelling Hawks.

Rollins has been the unwilling partner in Richard's two most famous goals. He was in the Chicago net at Chicago Stadium, Nov. 8, 1952, when Richard scored his 325th goal and one thousands of fans into delirium. That eclipsed Nels Stewart's record of 324.

Richard was back in normal Sunday night—400 goals, a host of admirers and enemies and a record of 82,200 in league fines behind him since the 1946-47 campaign.

TWO LATE GOALS

Almost lost in Richard's moment of glory—which came at 4:05 of the third period—were the other Saturday scorers. They were Bert Olmstead, Jean B'Livia and Floyd Curry. Jack McIntyre and Metro Prystai counted for Chicago.

Kenny Mosdell tallied twice Sunday and Bernie Geoffrion, Curry and Dick Moore added the others to give goaltender Terry Sawchuk of Detroit a nightmarish time.

The Leafs scored two third-period goals against Rangers before 12,488 fans at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens. They broke loose on goals by defenceman Jim Thomson and centre Ted Kennedy to snatch the decision.

Thomson scored the winner by beating netminder Lorne Worsley at 11:57 of the third period with a scorching blueline shot.

Leftwinger Sid Smith scored the other Leaf goal. Little Wally Hergesheimer was tied for Rangers before he was helped from the ice late in the first period with a broken left leg. He broke the same leg late last season and returned to the Ranger lineup only recently.

GOT THINGS GOAL

At New York Sunday night, Dan Lewicki scored his 11th goal of the season and sent Rangers to the deadlock against the Leafs.

Rightwinger George Armstrong led the Leafs with two goals. Defenceman Jim Morrison got the other. Pete Conacher and Ron Murphy tallied the other two New York markers.

The Red Wings breezed through their seventh straight game without a defeat when they nipped the Bruins 4-1 Saturday. Earl Reibel, Gordie Howe, Johnny Wilson and Marcel Bonin were the Detroit marksmen. Pete Babando scored for the Hawks, his seventh of the season.

At Chicago Sunday night, rookie Eddie Litzenberger scored twice for the Hawks. Johnny McCormack Frank'Martin, Harry Watson and Gord Hollingworth got the others. Real Chevrefils tallied Boston's lone goal.

No games are scheduled until Wednesday, when the Red Wings take a crack at the Rangers in New York.

Guelph Biltmores Within Point Of Second Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A goal with only 13 seconds of overtime play left bolsted Guelph Biltmore to within one point of the second-place St. Catharines Tee-Pees in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League during the weekend.

Captain Bill McCreary scored the winning goal to give Guelph a 6-5 victory over St. Catharines Saturday. The victory gave Biltmores 27 points. It was Tee-Pees' third straight loss. Toronto St. Michael's College Majors lead the league with with 38 points.

In other games Saturday Hamilton Tiger-Cubs beat the Black Hawks 5-2 at Galt and Barrie Flyers defeated St. Michael's 3-2 at Barrie.

In the Toronto doubleheader Sunday Marlboros beat Galt 4-2 and St. Michael's downed St. Catharines also 4-2.

HOWELL STARRED

Although the winning goal came from McCreary, Ron Howell started for Guelph with three goals and an assist. John Gillis and Tom McCarthy scored the others. Barry Cullen scored twice for Tee-Pees, Elmer Vasko, Hank Ciesla and Coe Hoekstra scored once each.

Rival Tennis Teams Settle Down to Work

By WILL GRIMSLEY

SYDNEY (AP)—Australia's Lew Hoad got out from under the "goat" on his back and professional Jack Kramer was conscripted to work with the Americans today as the world tennis teams settled down to the hard final week of preparation for the Davis Cup challenge round.

In an apparent psychological counterblow to the American's booming confidence Harry Hopman, the Aussies' team captain, announced his No. 1 player and problem child had regained his top form—which had disappeared mysteriously during the warmup tournaments.

"I am quite pleased with Hoad's showing," said Hopman, who added:

"I rate the Australian team more powerful than it was at this time last year."

Spectators watching practice at White City, scene of the Dec. 27-29 challenge round play, were impressed by the zip in the game of the big redhead. Hoad, from Sydney, it was only recently that Hoad complained he was fed up with tennis because "everyone is on my back."

The Sydney Morning Herald reported "Hoad's power service was working faultlessly and he showed his best form since winning the Queensland singles championship at Brisbane."

U.S. captain Bill Talbert announced that Kramer, only one of America's outstanding players of recent times, would assist the U.S. players in practice.

Kramer is here for clinics and to write and broadcast descriptions of the cup matches.

"Jack is not being brought in as a coach," said Talbert. "As an American, he also is interested in recovering the Davis Cup and he volunteered his services.

"We are very happy to have him."

Memos Outlast Goodyears To Win First Game Of Year In Kingston

Muckler Scores Winning Goal In 4-3 Contest; 15 Penalties Handed Out in Tough Game

KINGSTON (Special) — Belleville Memos, flashing "comeback" power that was a revelation to a crowd of 2,519 fans in the Community Memorial Centre on Saturday night, outlasted Goodyears, their 3 to 2 conquerors of the previous evening, and racked up a meritorious 4 to 3 win that could be tagged as a surprise. It was the Memos' first triumph in four tests against the potent Dougjansen and it moved them into an abbreviated, second-place deadlock with the Cornwall Colts.

Referees Maurice Walsh and Ted Topping doled out 15 penalties, but only one goal was registered against a short-handed team. Goodyears being the beneficiaries when George MacGregor opened the tallying at 19.41 in the first period the while "Red" Doran and Ted DeGray watched proceedings from the penalty bench. Each team served seven minor sentences, Frank Bettiol of the Memos being assessed two at the same time, the lone misconduct was inflicted on the veteran "Hub" Macey.

George MacGregor, who was at one time a member of the Memos, got his fastest goal of the night when he scored with a goal and two assists while Don Murray, the Goodyear flash, and Erwin Duncan of the visitors, each scored twice. The most spectacular goal was registered by John Muckler who, made a rink length dash and let Ken Jansen with the payoff marker at 18.30 in the final period.

SOMEONE PULLED CORD

Owing to the fact that goal umpire Del Cherry did not flash the light following Muckler's goal, the awarding of the counter was disputed by Goodyears and some of the spectators but Cherry later explained that spectators in the vicinity had inadvertently disconnected the electric current and not being a magician he couldn't produce the signal light. The puck however, had clearly crossed the line and he so signalled the officials.

It was a tense struggle from the start and no less than half a dozen penalties were inflicted during the opening period. Tommy Goodfellow launched the heavy trek to the bench, when he interfered with an attacker at the 3.18 mark, Muckler drew the next sentence at 4.30 and Jack White was sent away, at 12.25.

Goalkeeper "Tony" Parisi was detected in a tripping act at the fifteen-minute mark and Edwin Duncan drew the first misconduct penalty, Goodyears quickened their pace and Joe Fargo was subjected to heavy fire during the remainder of the session. "Red" Doran was cleared at 19.01 and Ted DeGray joined him nine seconds later. Then at 19.41 MacGregor, aided by Nicholson and Toppazzini shot Goodyears into a 1 to 0 lead.

Willie Pawchuk was assessed a minor for roughing at 2.59 in the middle period but fine defensive play kept the Belleville goal safe as his absence. There was no letdown in speed or effort and while two teams matched teams waged exciting warfare. The wily Duncan drew Parisi out of his cage, collaborated in forcing a deadlock at 8.30 but then Murray sliced for Nicholson and MacGregor, got that one back at 10.18 twenty-two seconds later. Davey Jones fell the webbing behind Ken Johnson after Muckler had engineered the swift attack.

TERRIFIC CLASH

A terrific clash in mid-ice featuring big Vezeau and the hardy Bob Lundy provided an unexpected highlight. Both fell and a half minute later Goyer was relieved by a team mate. The 50 odd fans forced the issue during the following few minutes but were fobbed, when Ross Fraser and Parisi drew a penalty for charging.

A quick break by MacGregor and an accurate shot from close range by Don Murray lifted Goodyears into the lead at 3.05 in the final period.

At 4.30 Goodfellow was benished for interference and the visitors moved into high gear. A strong effort was applied them but they kept trying. At 8.44 Erwin Duncan drew the last penalty of the night. They had spearheaded the assault.

Johnny Myles was penalized at 12.47 for boarding and when Nicholson joined him fifty seconds later referee Ted Topping drew a round of jeers, the Memos reserved to goaltay attacks that failed them. They were also whistled to a stop, when a questionable offside was called against them. At 15.43 a melee ensued, and penalties were dished out in aplenty.

Toppazzini drawing one and Frank Bettiol two for roughing and high sticking "Hub" Macey, expressing displeasure drew a misconduct but seconds later a trip by Erwin Duncan went unpunished.

SHOVED PUCK ACROSS LINE

With the game nearing its close and everything beckoning John Muckler electrified Belleville supporters and "executed" the clincher when he sped from one end of the rink to the other and just managed to shove the puck across the goal line.

Goodyears protested the award and so did some of the fans but they were unaware that the electric system had been put out of order.

Goodyears came right back again to meet the Whitby defending OHA champions tonight in the community memorial centre and another exciting duel is anticipated.

All Cards Need Is Couple Of 20-Game Winners

NEW YORK (AP)—If figures don't lie, Bill Rigney and Leo Durocher become contenders for the National League pennant in 1955 by obtaining a couple of 20-game-winning pitchers.

Certainly, the Redbirds, as a unit were the hardest hitting club in the senior circuit last season, leading club batting with .281, hits 1,51 runs 799, doubles 285 and runs batted in 746. Their pace-setting batting mark was 11 points higher than any other club in either big league.

This was disclosed Saturday, along with the expected tidings that Willie Mays of the pennant-winning New York Giants had captured the individual championship, with the release of the official National League batting statistics for 1954.

Mays' .345 mark just edged teammate Don Mueller with .342 and Brooklyn's Duke Snider with .341 in a close competition that came right down to the final day of the campaign.

Clutching slugger Ted Kluszewski captured the home run crown with 49 and also led in runs batted in with 141.

Stan Musial, as usual, was prominent among the list of most productive batters. Besides his .330 batting mark—good enough highest—the Cardinals' stalwart tied with Snider for the most runs, 120, and by leading in doubles with 36 netted a mark held by the great Honus Wagner. Each has led in two-baggers eight times.

Ed Furgol Will Take Rest Cure For Right Arm

HAVANA (AP) — Ed Furgol headed for a Florida rest cure for his ailing right arm today, pondering along a $2,000 first prize check from the Havana invitation golf tournament and his first victory since he won the United States National open last June.

Furgol, who has carried a withered left arm since a childhood accident, didn't seem to notice the injured right arm in the tourney windup Sunday. He shot a 67 over the par 72 Havana Country Club course, a 6,377-yard layout, for a 54-hole total of 211 and a three-day pay.

It wasn't the best round of the tourney for Furgol—he shot a 66 the first day—but the consistency did it. It brought him up from the field for a one-stroke edge over Bob Rosburg, Phoenix, Ariz., Mich., who's making a habit of finishing second in this event.

SECOND LAST YEAR

Burkemo, the 1953 PGA champ, also wound up second last year, when Bob Toski won it.

Furgol never led in the four-day event until the final round and was in a tie for second place with his right arm, injured during an Australian tour two months ago.

Al Besselink, Holland, had a three-stroke lead going into the final round, but wound up tied for the first round leader with Tommy Bolt on a 65, tied for third with 75 total.

Point Separates Indians, Hornets For AHL Lead

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only one point separated the first place Springfield Indians and the second place Pittsburgh Hornets today as the two clubs fought for the lead in the hot American Hockey League pennant race.

Pittsburgh moved a step closer to the top Sunday night with a 3-2 overtime victory over Buffalo Bisons while Springfield took a 3-2 decision from the lowly Providence Reds.

The pair of goals by Andy Barbe, the last one at 3:25 in overtime gave the Hornets the victory and dropped Buffalo a tie for last place with Providence.

Chuck Schena's goal at 4:45 in the third period enabled the Reds to squeeze out a victory over the Indians despite a third period rally late in the final session.

Big Seven

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thirty-three goals were scored during weekend play in the National Hockey League but the standings in the race for scoring honors remained much the same as when the action started.

Gordie Howe's goal at 4:45 in the second period enabled the Reds to squeeze out a victory over the Indians despite a third period rally late in the final session.

Howe still setting the pace with 27 points on 22 goals and 15 assists. His goals total is also tops in the league.

Maurice Richard and Jean Beliveau are deadlocked for second place with 23 points apiece. Richard has 16 goals and 16 assists and Beliveau 14 goals and 18 assists.

Ken Mosdell of the Habs holds down fourth place with 28 points, followed by Alex Delvecchio and Gord Howe of Detroit with 26. Sid Smith of Toronto rounds out the list with seven with 25.

There is a three-way tie for the leaders and among the Kennedy of Toronto, Doug Harvey of Montreal and George Sullivan of Chicago, each with 20.

Ted Williams Made Sports 'Comeback' of Past Season

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Ted Williams who may not come back to baseball any more, was voted today as having made the greatest comeback of the 1954 season.

The mighty slugger of the Boston Red Sox, generally recognized as one of the greatest of all hitters, finished the not over another of the all-time greats, Bobby Feller, veteran righthanded pitcher of the Cleveland Indians.

The 422 sports writers and sportscasters throughout the United States who participated in the annual Associated Press poll had a widely diversified opinion, tabbing no fewer than 43 players as "comeback kids."

Williams received 34 votes to Feller's 30. The Splendid Splinter was well for Cleveland after the Indians had acquired him from Baltimore last June, was third with 33 votes, Joe Coleman, veteran Baltimore righthander, was fourth with 29 and Sal Maglie, clutch righthander on the New York Giants, was fifth with 29. Maglie led all National Leaguers on the comeback trail.

STILL ON COMEBACK

The rest of the top 10 are Johnny Antonelli, Giants, 22; Larry Doby, Indians, 15; Mary Grissom, Dodgers, 13; Steve Gromek, Detroit Tigers, 11 and Jim Wilson, Milwaukee Braves, eight.

Those who voted for Williams obviously put more faith in the 36-year-old outfielder as still on the comeback trail although he returned from his second 1952 hitch in the marines in August 1953. Ted went on a batting rampage in the closing months of the 1953 season, hitting a blistering .407 in 37 games and followed that up with a terrific .345 mark in 1954 palgn in 1954.

Feller made a remarkable comeback last year, posting a 13-3 won-lost record following two ordinary years in which his combined total was 19 victories and 20 defeats.

Wera Hartnett was the 1954 homers after joining the Indians in June and drove in 41 runs.

Maglie, who will be 38 next April, bounced back from a mediocre 8-6 season in 1953 to win 18 games while losing six. Antonelli 12-13 with Giants in 1953, led the National League in won-lost and earned run percentage to be recognized as the circuit's No. 1 lefthander.

Goalie Allows But One Goal In Two Games

By the CANADIAN PRESS

Goalie Charlie Hodge returned to the Montreal Canadiens nets Saturday and allowed only one goal in two games to help the Royals record their first victories in the second place in the Quebec Hockey League.

Hodge had replaced Jacques Plante of the National Hockey League's Montreal Canadiens who had been sidelined with a broken checkbone. Plante was injured once against Hodge when the Royals downed the Senators 2-1 Saturday but he came on to shutout the Royals blanked Quebec 5-0 Sunday.

The Aces dropped two games during the weekend. They fell 4-3 before the Canadiens and 3-2 in a second place in the Quebec Hockey League.

Wave of Upsets Features British Soccer Action

LONDON (Reuters)—A wave of upsets featured British soccer action Saturday with part of the first four league-leading teams escaping a loss. Wolverhampton Wanderers, English League first division leaders, managed to gain a 2-2 draw with Sheffield United on Monday.

Most amazing result of the day was Peyton Orient's crushing 7-2 victory over Torquay — a win which put Leyton at the top of division three's southern section.

The former section leader Brighton fell before 4-1 at home by Gillingham.

Bristol and Aycliffe are level on points. But the London squad has a better goal average.

Stoke City division two leader, lost to Birmingham City 2-0, while Fulham, second in the standing, lost to Blackburn 3-1. Those results left Stoke with a three point lead.

Hull City 3-0, on top. Blackburn is second and Luton third.

In the northern section of division three, Scunthorpe had its leadership challenged by a 3-1 defeat at the hands of lowly Halifax.

Russia Plans Contest to Rival Davis Cup Play

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Russia is out to kill the Davis Cup by luring European countries into a tennis competition of their own, Australian manager of the Swedish team said today.

Furthermore, added Gunnar Galin of Stockholm, what the amateur tennis countries may be easily tempted unless bigger tennis powers assist them.

"In recent months I have seen Russian officials at practically all big tournaments all over Europe," Galin said. "They are always talking with sponsors of these tournaments about a plan for a strictly European competition with money and new trophy to be set up as the prize."

Galin said it was his understanding the Russians are anxious to enter international tennis competition but the Soviet takes a dim view of the Davis Cup which has been dominated by America and Australia in recent years.

"Simply because the Davis Cup has become almost a private competition between America and Australia some of the smaller countries may decide it is no use and go for something new," the Swedish captain said.

STRIKE IN 11TH WEEK

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The strike of 5,700 Ford of Canada workers here entered its 11th week Sunday. The strike, which has spread to two other Ford plants in Ontario and prevented the production of any 1955-model Ford vehicles in Canada, is over wage and fringe benefit demands.

The Ford workers at the assembly plant in Oakville struck 10 weeks ago, and four weeks ago the employees at a parts depot plant in Etobicoke, a Toronto suburb, left their jobs.

K-W Canucks Lose 4-3 To Que. Frontenacs

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Junior Frontenacs defeated Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior League Sunday 4-3 in a Laurier Trophy game.

The victory gave the Frontenacs two wins, two ties and no defeats in the trophy series.

Canucks coach Jack Stewart pulled goalie Claude Dufour from the nets with two minutes left in the game but failed to break Quebec's lead engineered on two goals by Richard Bouchard and tallies by Gaetan Duey and Dick Bradley.

Larose scored twice for the Ontario club and Baliuk opened the scoring at 2:55 of the first period. A crowd of 3,431—1,000 of them youngsters from nearby Lasalle high schools—were on their feet throughout the last two minutes of the game as Quebec goalie Jacques Marcotte handled seven shots peppered at him by the desperate Ontario club.

The game was worth four points in the Laurier series and gave the Quebec club eight points since the series began three weeks ago. The Kitchener-Waterloo outfit has another two points but shots on goal were about even with Dufour stopping 29, two more than Marcotte's 27 saves. Referee Len Currivaud dished out three minors to each team, two in each period.

In the first heat U.N.O. crossed the line a length on top. Country Lad won a photo decision for second from the fast-charging Mac Bingen.

Mac Bingen, with Al Cert Rogers up, won the second heat with speed to spare. U.N.O. outfinished Country Lad in a photo for second.

Bacall Bounces Back After Being Off Screen Three Years

GIFT FROM TITO

A crowd gathers for a close look at a 6-foot-high statue of a horse and rider, symbolic of peace. It is a gift from the government of Yugoslavia to the United Nations, placed atop a pedestal in the north garden of the U.N. headquarters in New York. The bronze statue, called "Ildir" (peace), depicts of a woman on horseback. In her outstretched left arm she carries an olive branch, and in her right hand is a symbol of the world. It is the work of Yugoslav sculptor Antun Augustincic. (Central Press Canadian).

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's time for a checkup on the Bacall renaissance.

This Bacall is Lauren, and until recently she has been known chiefly as the retiring wife of an actor named Humphrey Bogart. Not that she is retiring by nature. She has a ready wit that can keep a steady pace with her vigorous husband.

Miss Bacall's retirement has been a self-imposed one. Between "Bright Leaf," her last film under contract to Warners, and "How to Marry a Millionaire," she was off the screen for three years. That might be enough to kill the career of most film stars.

But she bonfired back to prominence in "Millionaire," in which some reviewers said she stole the film from Marilyn Monroe and Betty Grable. Now Miss Bacall is established at home for several months, then returned in "A Woman's World." That did it.

GETS GOOD OFFERS

Now she has all the offers she can handle. Good ones, too. For the first time in years, she is free from one picture right into another. She now is under Hal Wallis' wing with Richard Widmark, Charles Boyer, Gloria Grahame, Lillis and others in the cast. Wallis hurries to "Blood Alley" with Robert Mitchum.

"Oh, it's grand to be pursued again," she said in her kidding manner. "Just knowing it has been long enough since that has happened. That three-year stretch was the longest period I was away. But I wasn't exactly idle. I went to Europe and made 'Bold and the African Queen' and I also motherred Stephen.

"I always had offers. But they were either for crummy pictures or I didn't want to do, or they wanted me to play heavies. I don't think I'm the heavy type. Really I don't." She stroked her blonde hair in the mock gesture of a film siren.

Miss Bacall left Warners under rather bitter circumstances. She had endured umpteen suspensions there for turning down pictures like "The Girl from Jones Beach." She argued that she wasn't the girly type.

GETS REVENGE

"Finally I had to buy my way out of the contract," she said. "That really burned me. Because two months later they were letting everyone go. All had to do was intimate that you wanted out. They'd step you in the middle of a sentence and say goodbye."

She'll have a revenge of sorts. She returns to Warners for "Blood Alley" and at a very fancy figure.

Miss Bacall says her stage play caused the rebirth of her career.

"It's hard to say," she pondered. "Certainly turning has a lot to do with anyone's success. And the element of getting older and maturing is a factor (she's now 30). There's no doubt that I'm a better actress than I used to be, which is not saying much.

"It's not because I kept busy acting, because I didn't. But I think radio had a lot to do with it. Both and I did a series and I learned a great deal."

CCF Students Plan Parley

TORONTO (CP) — The eighth annual convention of the Co-Operative Commonwealth University Federation will be held here Dec. 29, 30 and 31, it was announced today.

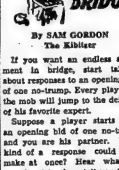
Main issues before the meeting will be the CCF stand on the National Federation of Canadian University Student's Dominion scholarship campaign, and the proposed re-organization of the student federation.

Fourteen universities are expected to be represented at the convention. Fraternal delegates have been invited from the Student League for Industrial Democracy and the Students for Democratic Action, both United States' student organizations.

Skater Drowns At Mattawa

MATTAWA (CP) — Nine-year-old Clifford Alexander J. Belanger was drowned in the Mattawa river Sunday when he fell through the ice while skating.

The boy's cousin, Joseph Belanger, 15, and another boy, George Thibert, said they tried to reach him with a stick, but he was unable to hold on.



Provincial police dragged the river for five hours before recovering the body.

ACTOR, 100, DEAD

LONDON (AP)—Warsaw radio Sunday reported the death at Krakow of Ludvik Solski, 100, described as the world's oldest actor. The broadcast said Solski was active in Polish plays until last November when he took the role of grandfather in a locally produced comedy.

STUDY ATHEISM AT SEA

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet Navy studies "scientific atheism" while at sea, the newspaper Sovyetski Flot reported. Shipboard lectures are given on scientific themes in an attempt to prove to the sailors that religion is "superstitious." The talks are usually followed by films on the same theme.

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

If you want an endless argument in bridge, start talking about responses to an opening bid of one on three. Every player in the mob will jump to the defence of his favorite expert.

Suppose a player starts with an opening bid of one no-trump and you are his partner. What kind of a response could you make at once? Hear what the prominent teachers tell you to do.

Culbertson says: Pass with no more than 1½ honor tricks and no six cards; raise to two no-trump with two to 2½ honor tricks; raise to three no-trump with three honor tricks.

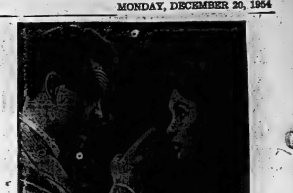
He also says a simple takeout gives opener a choice; one-jump takeout forces immediate one-jump takeout to game is the limit.

Goren says: Pass with balanced hand and less than eight points; raise to two no-trump with eight or nine points; raise to three with 10 to 14 points.

He also says: A simple takeout to a minor suit is not showing strength; a simple takeout to a major suit is encouraging; one-jump takeout forces; immediate jump takeout to game is a limit bid.

Accordin' to Gordon: Pass with not more than two tricks; with more than two tricks follow T-A-N-J-U-M-P; takeout forces to game; for each high card in excess of two, raise once in no-trump.

Scuh'n opens with a no-trump and you have this north hand:



♠A 7
♥K Q 7
♦Q 7 4 3
♣J 9 8 3

Jump raise to three no-trump. It will tell your partner of the four high cards your hand contains. You show this by the fact that you can raise once in no-trump for each high card in excess of two.

Such is the bid that would be used in any system. But if your hand contained a biddable suit you might have an argument on your conscience. You would have enough answers to paper the kitchen.

What you may need is proof you will read in my future series.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for Tuesday, December 21, 1954.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Over excitement or undercontrol at meals or during business activities are hindrances to success and health, adversely affect your disposition.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Necessity is the mother of invention. Be a good listener; less talk will insure more efficient work, less controversy. Approach contacts, tasks with a kindly attitude. It always pays.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Indications show a chance to advance in both business and personal affairs so especially where investments for the future are concerned. With better systematizing, gains will come easier.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Your planetary aspects, which couldn't be any better than they are today, will continue to be fine for the remainder of month, so get things started briskly. Aim especially at maintaining a steady tempo.

YOU BORN TODAY are generally ready for hard work and eager to drive straight to a goal. You dislike red tape or any sort of time-fuss. You may be too outspoken at times, though you never really mean to hurt. It's your way of saying, "let's get down to brass tacks." But we must be tactful, too, eh? You are innately honest, in business and at home, with the public also. Curb a tendency to overwork. Protect your nervous system. Use that bright, busy mind well! It will return big dividends. Little Benny's Note Book

Mr. Jones next store disturbed pop's good sleep by roaring again last night, and this morning pop said to me, "Here's the last straw that broke the pack of Camels, and I'm going to do something about it.

I'm glad to hear it, but such as what? ma said, and pop said, Such as getting up a petition among the naybors, and sending it to Jones.

Mr. Simkins on the other side of him is the only naybor with hearing distance, ma', said, and pop said, All rite, 2 names ought to be enough for a petition if we scrawl them nice and large. I'm going to speek to Simkins, he said.

Which he did when he saw him leaving his house just when pop was leeving ours, and pop said, Good morning, you're the, very man I want to see.

I'll be glad to see you, but I'm afraid I can't hear you, because my ears are still deff from listening to that herd Jones snoring all night, Mr. Simkins said, and pop said, That's exactly what I want to see you about. I want you to join me in signing a petition to send him.

Good, this solves my problem, Mr. Simkins said. I've been wondering whether to commit murder or arson, and this will keep me out of jail. Just give me the thing and I'll sine my name under yours, he said, and pop said, Well, you live on the rite side of him, and these things go from rite to left, so maybe your name ought to come first.

Not a bit, petitions are signed up an d down, and you were the first to bring the matter up, Mr. Simkins said, and pop said, On, from that angle, I see what you mean. Well, I'll think it over, he said.

Which he is probably still doing.

Will Study Plan For Diverting Water to Fraser

OTTAWA (CP)—The resources department will conduct an investigation next summer into the economic feasibility of diverting water for hydro power from the Columbia river into the Fraser river system in British Columbia.

Resources Minister Lesage, announcing the investigation today, said it will complement studies being made by the international joint commission on the power potentialities of the Columbia river basin which straddles the line in Canada and the United States.

It has been estimated, Mr. Lesage said, that several billion kilowatt hours of additional power could be obtained annually by the diversion.

The diversion would be made at the Columbia's "big bend", where the northwest-flowing river turns south through the U.S. border. Seven miles from the bend is Summit lake, the source of the Kaza and South Thompson rivers. Water diverted to the lake would flow down to the Fraser.

NEED CONTROL DAM

"Owing to the lack of complete storage in the Columbia system," the minister said, "a large amount of the flood water of the Columbia river could not be used for other purposes.

"If it were constructed below the big bend of the Columbia with control facilities in the vicinity of Revelstoke, it might be possible to use the waters thus stored for the production of power on the adjoining Fraser river.

Calm Returns To Cyprus After Riots

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters) — The British colonial government eased emergency restrictions today as calm returned after weekend demonstrations for "enosis"—union with Greece.

Only a few isolated streets where mobs of students fought police riot squads during the weekend, remained under curfew.

Authorities withdrew the order prohibiting more than five persons to assemble and a ban on carrying such potential weapons as sticks and canes. Barbed-wire barricades were dismantled.

ORDERS TO FIRE

Heavy police patrols were still maintained, and posters were pasted on walls with the notice that police have orders to fire if necessary on any rioters or looters.

The Greek-Cypriot newspapers on the strategic Mediterranean island southwest of Turkey gave a detailed account of the bomb explosion and pictures of the student-led riots in which 40 persons were arrested. Three students were wounded by police fire in the port town of Limassol Saturday.

The rioting was chiefly against British authorities, but mobs in Nicosia and Limassol also shouted "chase on America." They were expressing their anger at our American support of a United Nations resolution shelving a dispute with Britain over the future of Cyprus.

THURLOW TOWNSHIP NOMINATION MEETING

Notice is hereby given to the Municipal Electors of the Township of Thurlow that a meeting will be held in the Township Hall, Thurlow, on Monday, January 3rd, 1955, at 10 o'clock a.m. for the purpose of nominating candidates for the following positions: Reeve, Deputy Reeve, Councillors (three to be elected), Trustees for the Public School Area (three to be elected), Members of the Public School Board (three to be elected), and Trustees for the North Thurlow Public School Area (three to be elected). If a poll, if a greater number of candidates than required to fill Office are nominated and make the necessary declaration, the said election will be held on the 10th day of January, 1955.

If a poll is held be noted that nominations must be in writing, and also that when a nomination candidate is not present at the nomination meeting, his nomination paper must be signed by two electors who declare that the person nominated consents to be so nominated.

Vancouver Fog Shrouds Thieves In Six Robberies

VANCOUVER (CP)—One person was killed, traffic damage reached $7,000 and there were six robberies with violence during 36 hours of the worst fog here so far this winter.

At sea, a single-engine mercy plane was forced to land about five miles from here on a flight to Vancouver with an injured workman from the Kitimat aluminum development up-coast.

The float-plane was towed to shore by a radar-equipped tug.

The fog blew in from the Pacific Friday. It dispersed early Sunday.

Dwayne Myers, 16, of Abbotsford, B. C., 45 miles east of here, died in hospital Sunday of injuries suffered during Friday's fog when the car in which he was riding skidded from the icy trans-Canada highway.

However, most accidents were confined to battered fenders and police in Vancouver even cancelled pre - Christmas roadblock plans as the fog held Friday and Saturday-night motorists to a crawl.

Nine persons were arrested Sunday in connection with the robberies. Three were juveniles.

Brandon Boy's Drawings Used By Magazine

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Two Christmas drawings by a Brandon school boy who likes to draw "just for fun" are the cover illustrations for the December issue of the house magazine of a Canadian oil company which goes to 90,000 readers and reaches all parts of the world.

The artist is David Watkin, a Grade Six pupil in David Livingstone school. The drawings appear on the Imperial Oil Review.

The front cover, in vivid purple and green, shows the star of Bethlehem shining down on the stable with an excited shepherd in the foreground. The back cover is a frolicsome, snowy interpretation of Santa Claus' workshop.

WON COMPETITION

David's teacher is Verna Lundy whose class won first place in a competition at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto in 1951 with a mural on the oil industry. Imperial Oil Limited later invited the class to do a cover design for the magazine.

Miss Lundy declined last year because the school program did not permit the project, but this year drawings were submitted by six pupils, and David's work was selection for both covers.

FEW BIRDS OF THIS FEATHER

What appears to be an exotic flower is actually a beff-colored Poland Bird, one of the most unusual exhibits at the British National Poultry Show in London. The only feature visible is the point of the beak. The bird was highly commended in its special class. (Central Press Canadian).

CHRISTMAS SCULPTOR

Andre Bilodeau, 25, of Quebec City, decided to make his own Christmas tree this year with the help of a recent snowfall. He piled snow eight feet high around a pole and spent four evenings chipping it down to look like a fairyland Christmas decoration. Then he iced it and put colored lights in the crevices. Mr. Bilodeau hopes there will be no thaw before the end of the Christmas season. (CP Photo).

Duplessis Turns More of Work Over to Sauve

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—During Quebec legislature debates Premier Duplessis sometimes turns to a cabinet minister who sits in a second-row bench, whispers instruction, and tops briskly out of the legislature assembly.

The gesture, occasional in recent years, is becoming increasingly frequent. The deputy he turns to is Youth and Welfare Minister Paul Sauve, son of the man who "initialed Mr. Duplessis in politics more than 25 years ago.

Mr. Duplessis steps out of the assembly usually only for a few minutes, and Mr. Sauve's job is to exercise control over the 86-member Union Nationale Party in the 92-seat elected assembly.

PLANS FOR FUTURE

In recent moves to turn the reins of debate over to Mr. Sauve in the assembly, political observers see Mr. Duplessis' experienced political hand at work shaping his party's future.

There is no question of retirement at the moment. Mr. Duplessis will be 30 years in politics in 1957.

Mr. Duplessis, who likes to say he is "good for another 15 years, at least," is apparently testing the abilities of younger party men.

An example of this is seen, observers say in Mr. Duplessis' appointment during the weekend of parliamentary assistants for Quebec cabinet ministers.

Young men like Daniel Johnson, 39-year-old Montreal lawyer, Col. Raymond Roche, 47, and Jean-Jacques Bertrand, 36, have been appointed to posts which inevitably will put them into the limelight of provincial politics and prepare them for bigger jobs, probably in the cabinet.

Mr. Sauve himself is only 47 but he has been a member of the legislative assembly for 24 years.

WINTER BEAUTY

Icicles hanging from the lighted lamp and snow along the wrought-iron fence surrounding the basilica in Quebec City provide an unusual display of winter artistry, in the evening after a day-long snowfall. The picture was taken (CP Photo).

Nehru's Regime Launches Defence Of Economic Plan

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru's government today launched a defence of its economic policy, aimed at creating a socialist state, and sought to give assurances to those favoring more private enterprise while quieting the fears of those seeking a greater role for private investors.

As India's lower house of parliament started to debate economic affairs, the government took two steps likely to upset private financial groups: 1. Nehru introduced a constitutional amendment designed to facilitate the government's powers to acquire, requisition, regulate and reform private, industrial, agricultural and other holdings 2. Finance Minister C.D. Deshmukh announced plans to nationalize the Imperial Bank of India in order to create banking credit facilities in rural areas.

Nehru and Deshmukh gave new emphasis to their concept of a "mixed economy," with state enterprise in the primary role and private industry in a secondary role, as an economic controversy raged through India.

The dispute was sparked a month ago when Nehru and his ministers indicated they were determined to put effect to their often-repeated promises to create a socialist state.

DOG SHOOTS MAN

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A dog shot a man Sunday, deputy sheriff Arlin Welchoid reported. He said Edgar Moesnick, 43, was standing beside his car when his children called their dog, which was in the car. When the dog bounded to the back seat, it discharged a rifle and Moesnick was taken to hospital with wounds in his right hand and hip.

Editor of Citizen Critical Of Aid Given Colombo Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — C. J. Woodsworth, editor of the Ottawa Citizen, said Sunday the Canadian government "struck a pitifully weak blow for humanity and democracy" last week in announcing Canada's contribution to the Colombo plan will be increased by $1,000,000 a year.

Speaking on the CBC's capital report, Mr. Woodsworth described as "disturbing as it is disappointing" the boost over the present contribution of $25,000,000 a year for the rehabilitation of southeast Asia.

The editor, recently returned from a 10-week visit to the Far East, said the contribution is a poor contrast to the $2,000,000,000 a year Canada is spending on military defence.

"What I have seen," he said, "has convinced me more strongly than ever that, unless we in the West—the countries like Canada that have the resources and the technical knowledge—are prepared to make these available in far greater measure, those countries in Asia that are still free are going to go Communist."

Mr. Woodsworth said one Canadian cabinet minister—unnamed—stood out for a $10,000,000 increase in the contribution.

But he said those in government aware of what conditions in Asia may portend are "haunting" by a right wing element in the cabinet.

He mentioned "a minister of finance (Hon. Walter Harris) who insists he is not a banker, a business 'realist' who looks at things in terms of dollars-and-cents return to Canada, but who few here think has ever had any real faith in assistance programs."

Apart from anti-communist effects, Mr. Woodsworth said, a larger Colombo plan contribution would improve Canadian trade prospects. By helping raise the income of Asian peoples, Canada could channel further trade in the direction of this country.

Use Radio Hookup For Mutual Aid Fire Protection

A person reporting a fire will be switched by the local operator to the Kitchener fire department on a private line. After he informs the department of the nature and location of the fire a Kitchener fireman will press a button and an untended fire siren will sound in the village closest to the fire. Volunteer firefighters in the vicinity will get a report by radio from Kitchener headquarters as to the nature and location of fire and how to get there.

KITCHENER (CP)—A project to improve fire protection in Waterloo county by mutual aid is nearing completion.

The plan involves a two-way radio system linking Conestoga, St. Jacobs, Baden and New Hamburg with control headquarters at the Kitchener fire department.

Fire chief Kenneth Putnam of Kitchener said the heart of the mutual aid program in fighting fires is radio communications.

The system, which is scheduled to go into effect next month, will operate like this:

TV PERSONALITY DEAD

Dinsmore was born in Brookline, N. H., and for several years worked on Boston radio stations before going to Buffalo in 1948.

Steam Turbine Blast Kills Two

CHICAGO (AP)—Two Commonwealth Edison Co. employees were killed and five more were severely injured Sunday night in the explosion of a steam turbine in an electric generating plant.

A company spokesman estimated the damage to the 160,000-volt-capacity plant at $10,000,000.

The company said the crippling of the plant had no effect on power service during the night hours, but about 100 large industrial customers were asked to reduce their power use by 25 per cent for today.

The dead were Clarence T. Jorgenson, 36, a shift engineer who was precipitated by flying metal, and George A. Thorsen, 34, a turbine operator.

GANDHI FILM OKAYED

NEW DELHI (Reuter)—Prime Minister Nehru has tentatively approved the rough outline of a script for a film on the life of Mohandas Gandhi which Hollywood producer Otto Preminger plans to make. The producer said that if the full script is approved he hopes to start production of the film in November, 1955.

Hastings County Farm Forum

Five forums reported meeting last Monday to discuss "Getting Started." Brookdale (13) met at Ken Faull's; Foxboro (22) met at Harry Coulter's; Hazzard's (13) met at Stanley Moorcroft's; Melrose (16) at Leslie McLaren's, and River Valley (12) at Edward Heasman's.

In reply to the first question, most young farmers are backed by their parents. Perhaps they have worked on their father's farm, with occasional outside work during winter months to help finance them when they take over. Some thought it a good plan to rent an equipped place for a few years or to work on shares. This would save the high cost of equipment. Veterans receive help from Veterans' Loan Act. Money is sometimes received from private lenders, Jr. Farmers' establishment loans, or even the bank. It is very encouraging for young farmers to start on land when farms and equipment are so expensive, and farm returns not in accordance with these prices.

Many young men from the farm go into industry with much better pay and much shorter hours. A young man must like the farm way of life and make up his mind to stick to it through good times and bad in order to make a success.

START EASY

A young farmer should not expect to start where his father leaves off. The harder he works for anything the more he appreciates it. Melrose suggests to buy good used machinery quite reasonable at sales. Several forums suggest co-operative use of machinery.

Some of the Dutch families come here and buy two or three farms together, and all use the one set of equipment. Foxboro suggests homesteading agricultural areas in far west. Also choosing lines of agriculture that give the greatest returns and yet keep the investment as low as possible.

Aircraft Over Prestwick When Passengers Jolted

Auto Gadgets To Beat Radar Traps Are Flop

TORONTO (CP)—Auto accessories guaranteed to beat a radar speed trap are all the rage here, it was reported today. The trouble is, they don't work.

Professor G. E. Reid, special electronic consultant to the provincial police, said stories concerning the devices, have been chocked and there's nothing to them.

Here's how they are supposed to work:

A two-foot length of chain, fastened to the rear bumper of a car, is supposed to ground "rays" emitted by the radar mechanism in the speed trap and prevent them from being bounced back and picked up by the device.

A second gadget, ball-bearings sold as "radium" pellets, are put in the hub caps and supposedly emit gamma and beta rays which "confuse" the speed trap.

So far, no speed traps have been confused, police said.

PRESTWICK, Scotland (CP) — Fifteen passengers received cuts and bruises when a Trans-Canada Airlines Super Constellation from Montreal ran into unexpected turbulent air some 40 miles outside Prestwick airport today.

The aircraft, carrying 54 passengers and a crew of seven, was flying at 15,000 feet. The unexpected jolt threw some passengers to the floor. Others struck their heads on the ceiling.

"I got a slight bump," said A. J. C. Sweeney, an Ottawa businessman. "Those sitting on the left-side windows had the worst of it. We ducked, but it was all over in a flash and "felt rather like a bumpy landing."

All 15 injured passengers were given hospital attention and three were detained in hospital. The Constellation, flight number 2532, was captained by S. R. Round.

Council Votes For Full Probe Of Suite 1735

TORONTO (CP) — City council Monday night voted for a full investigation into the affairs surrounding suite 1735 in the Royal York Hotel and former mayor Allan Lamport's entertainment expenses there.

In a last minute change of heart, council turned down a limited inquiry proposed by Mayor Leslie Saunders and board of control.

Instead of confining the investigation to the six months Mayor Saunders has been in office, council accepted an amendment from Ald. Herbert Orlffe to give the board of inquiry full scope.

Mayor Saunders, switching his vote in the final count to support the amendment, said he would ask senior county court judge Robert Forsyth Roach to become a county judge to make the investigation.

Then Mayor Saunders set the time in its history under section 258 of the Municipal Act, which provides that it can act as a county court judge to inquire into any matter connected with city government.

Council also gave board of control power to engage counsel to assist the city and assist the judge in the investigation of the matters. It was the first time the clique ran city hall from there.

Board of control will be asked to find funds to meet the cost of the inquiry, estimated as high as $1,000 a day.

The three kept in hospital are Mrs. Mary Apps of Paris, Ont., Mrs. Eva Young of Toronto, Alta., and Mrs. Margaret Penniman of St. Catharines.

Hospital authorities said that in most cases the shock they suffered minor injuries. Most also suffered a slight back injury and the other cuts and bruises.

"They are in no danger," a hospital official said.

Secretary Spring of Toronto, one of the passengers, said: "It was as though a gigantic hand had picked up the plane and shook it."

Tried to Make Flier 'Confess' Germ Warfare

OTTAWA (CP) — The Chinese Communists tried to get Sgdn. Ldr. Andy MacKenzie to confess falsely to germ warfare charges, it was learned today.

But the 36-year-old Montreal flier, released by Communists on Dec. 5 after two years in a prison camp, held out against signing.

Informants said MacKenzie also held out against confessing other false charges made by the Communists, because the nature of these other charges was not learned.

FALSE STATEMENT

At a press conference here last week MacKenzie said that after 16 months in solitary confinement he had finally given in to the Communists and signed a false statement that he had "invaded Chinese air space." The statement said he was briefed to do so by the U.S. Air Force, which he said was serving in Korea when shot down Dec. 5, 1952, on his fourth patrol.

It was recalled that MacKenzie said that after he had been kept in solitary for 10 months, he had been presented with a "typed" statement which the Communists wanted him to sign.

It was understood this statement contained the charges that the United Nations was practising german warfare in Korea.

KEPT IN SOLITARY

MacKenzie remained in solitary after he refused falsely to the germ-warfare and other charges. He held out another six months before signing the false statement that he had "invaded Chinese air space."

The final statement signed by MacKenzie after a month of rewriting was seven pages long, between 500 and 600 words.

MacKenzie indicated the three Americans held with him had signed statements after being held in solitary two or three months.

Lost His Frock

KYOTO, Japan, (AP)—Temple officials in this ancient capital of Japan have unclocked a thief who stole and worked in a pinball parlor on the side.

They also accused him of pawning several of the temple's belongings.

"Even a monk has to eat, was his excuse.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Overnight low temperatures in Ontario ranged from near or below zero along the lower lakes to 15 to 25 degrees below in northern Ontario as the cold snap over southern Ontario entered its third day today. It will be bitterly cold again today and Wednesday will bring little relief, although there will be less wind.

FOUR MEN DIE IN MONTREAL WAREHOUSE FIRE

Firemen Estimate Damage at $30,000

MONTREAL (CP)—Four men died early this morning in a fire that gutted a two-storey warehouse under Jacques Cartier bridge in the east end of downtown Montreal.

Dead are: Aurel Mayrand, 20, and Adrien Lagalerie, 48, both of Grondines, Que.; Albert Cadue, 32, of Lorenzo Gauthier, 27, both of Montreal.

Dominique Girard, 26, and Joseph Lapointe, 35, both of Ste. Anne-de-la-Perade, Que., escaped the blaze by identifying their dead companions.

STARTS FROM STOVE

Two of the men were watchmen. They worked as drivers and the other was a warehouse employee.

Fire department officials estimated damage at $30,000.

The two-hour fire, punctuated by explosions, is believed to have been started by an overheated stove. The first alarm was turned in at 12:45 a.m. EST.

One of the survivors, Girard, said he was resting in his living quarters on the second storey of the warehouse when he discovered the building on fire.

JUMPED TO ROOF

"I heard an explosion and roaring flames, and smelled smoke," he said. "Then others all rushed into my room and one of the other men broke my window through to make a little window on to anadjoining roof just below."

Some 15 firemen, hampered by failing snow and below-zero temperatures, used eight streams to bring the fire under control. The concrete-block building was gutted.

An inquest into the deaths is scheduled for today.

Udd's Firm Finds Manganese In New Brunswick

MONTREAL (CP) — John C Udd, president of Strategic Materials Corporation, said today a potential 150,000,000 tons of manganese is indicated in the Woodstock-Glassville area of New Brunswick.

Udd said he has been going on quietly in the area for almost two years and "drilling operations are proceeding up more and more all the time," he said.

Mr. Udd is also president of Stratmat, Limited, the corporation which is developing the iron ore. He is developing the region. The parent company and Stratmat are backed almost completely by United States' capital.

Stratmat Ltd. is the firm which is conducting drilling operations at Nictau, deposits of magnetic, magnetic ores in the Arm Mills-Perkins ing area around Marmora and Blairock.

Mr. Udd said tests so far indicate a composition of about 10 per cent manganese and 18 per cent iron ore.

"We propose no further drilling and our next step is to work out a plan for milling the ore."

Good and Light Now Flood Earth, Doom of Tidal Waves Is Postponed

CHICAGO (AP)—A prophet of doom who had predicted that cataclysms would engulf the North American continent before midnight said this morning that there would be no disaster today.

Mrs. Dorothy Martin, who had predicted that tidal waves would sweep over much of the land between the Arctic circle and the Gulf of Mexico, said that "by the intervention on the part of the God of Earth, disaster has been stayed."

Mrs. Martin said she and 11 her disciples in her home in suburban Oak Park, "had sat for the Father's message the night through, and God has spoken."

"Now since the beginning of time upon this earth has there been such a force of good and light as now floods this room, and that which has been loosed within this room now floods the entire earth."

Dr. Charles F. Laughlin, who lost his job on the student health staff of Michigan State College by acceptance of Mrs. Martin's prophecy, was among the 14 at her home throughout the night.

Mrs. Martin said the "Father's message" had been received by "two lines."

In her statement she said: "For this day it is established that there is but one God of Earth and He is in thy midst and from this hour hence no man will twist words and might is the word of God. The world will have ye been saved, or from the mouth of death have ye been delivered."

Mrs. Martin's prophecy had called for the destruction of Chicago. She also said the west coast would be submerged from Seattle to Chile. Dr. Laughead had said the east coast would be engulfed, too.

But Dr. Laughead said that by the "Father's message," the disaster had been "stayed." He said the secret was no prediction as to how long.

Mendes-France Seen Doomed By Enemies' Bitter Vendetta

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARIS (CP)—The struggle to conserve Premier Mendes-France's life for his political life and few expect him to last in office more than three or four weeks.

The bitterness of the parliamentary opposition is such that most observers, including Cabinet colleagues, are convinced it is just a matter of time before he is unseated.

The betting is that either Rene Mayer or Antoine Pinay will take over in January.

Both have the prestige of ex-premiers and both are somewhat aloof from the worst of the current parliamentary fist-fighting.

The vendetta against Mendes-France—described by Paris correspondents as a most intense campaign in post-war French politics—is going on even as the big issue of foreign affairs, the life-or-death question of German rearmament.

His opponents are expected to vote for the London and Paris accords on German rearmament with the idea of associating Mendes-France with them. They see many's renaissance. Then they will try to bring him down on any issue that looks promising.

One hope for Mendes-France is that the deputies, returning to their constituencies for the Christmas recess, will be struck by the sentiment of his popular support and will change their minds about him.

It seems a slim chance. There is no doubt that Mendes-France is popular, but the variety of reasons the French people are shying away from making their feelings known.

Another possibility is that if Mendes-France can stay in office long enough to show the sincerity of his social policy, the Socialists might join the government in giving him more solid parliamentary support.

But the opposition may not wait. It centers broadly of the alliance between the rightist Mouvement Republican Populaire and the independents, a loose right-wing conservatives.

Independents at a recent meeting howled "down with Mendes-France" and "throw him in the sea," references to the premier's anti-alcohol campaign.

Francois Mauriac, noted author and journalist, denounced them for their "animal cries."

The French have a saying—"Plus ca change plus c'est la meme chose"—meaning the more it changes the more it's the same."

An observer reviewing the post-war political scene believes it would be inclined to agree.

Military Chronicle in Europe Shapes Up as Homiest of Lot

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The Canadian military Christmas in Europe, fourth since the first air force units arrived in 1951, shapes up as the homiest of the lot.

With the emphasis on church services, and bountiful tables and treats for children, hundreds of families are planning hearth-side celebrations in the spanking new married quarters.

The single men and women and those separated from wives and children, have a wide range of alternative activities during the season.

The 5,500-man 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade group at Soest, Western Germany, is the biggest Canadian unit at the army's base at Soest.

North Luffenham, the RCAF No. 1 Fighter Wing and daddy of the four-station air division, faces the toughest program in some years.

Yuletide planning catches its spread-eagled between England and France in the course of a transfer to Marville, France. Some personnel and families will be in new surroundings, while a few will be in transit. Others will be packing out the station plan a Christmas party and dance for 2700 Canadian children, plus 1000 youngsters of civilian workers.

Hundreds of children—Canadian, French and German—are lined up for parties. Activities will include carol ing ice cream, cake, candy, favors, music and gifts from Santa Claus.

Yuletide tends to take on some of the flavor of the area. Germany for the five concentrated camps of the 4th Canadian Brigade Artillery at Baden-Soellingen and Zweibruecken: French for the air division headquarters at Metz and the station at Gros Tenquin.

In the camps, the menus for Christmas and New Year's includes a pound of turkey per man, plus a goose and Canadian beer. Following tradition, privates will dine with officers, with officers serving them at table.

The Soest camps, clustered near the Dutch border, will cater for 4,200 Canadian wives and children, while garrison are extra 1,200 German youngsters.

Christmas will be rung in at Soest by 14 church bells from 10 churches in the area, said to be the oldest populated part of Germany.

French National Assembly Opens Paris Pacts Debate

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP)—The French national assembly was to begin debating final committee reports and got down to actual debate on ratification of the Paris treaties on German rearmament.

A parade of 40 listed speakers was led off by Gen. Pierre Aumeran, former Gaullist. He opposed the treaties, saying they contain no way of preventing a rearmed West Germany from breaking with the western defence bloc at some future date.

Lobby talk persisted that a motion might be submitted to postpone debate. This could be introduced at any time. But there was no decision on any motion to that move.

Should such a motion be forthcoming, it was expected to go down to defeat in the face of Premier Mendes-France's pledge to the assembly action before Christmas on the Western European Union and NATO. West Germans as uniformed soldiers of the north Atlantic alliance. Similarly it was expected that the Assembly would vote finally—perhaps Wednesday—on the nine four treaties. Political sources said some of Mendes - France's chief enemies would use the premier to be held responsible in the future for German rearmament, which those factions believe will prove a political liability.

The four treaties would (1) restore to West Germany almost all the sovereignty she had lost; (2) creates allies have exercised over their occupation powers; (3) admits the West Germany to a seven-power Western European Union including France, Britain, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, and (4) provides for the entry of 500 West Germans in an army, navy and air force; (5) admit rearmed West Germany into the north Atlantic alliance, and (6) ends the Brussels Treaty powers under the political control of the projected West European Union.

The seven 30 and 40 deputies were expected to join in the general debate on the treaties before they go after submission of the final committee reports.

The foreign committee's recommendation for postponement of the debate was the only committee report Monday night which did not advocate approval of the treaties.

Britain Rejects Kremlin's Warning

LONDON (AP) — Britain today rejected Soviet Premier Malenkov's that Soviet Russia will scrap their 1832 treaty of alliance if London and Paris go ahead with plans to free and rearm Western Germany.

Her Majesty's government in London made much quiet fit the Anglo-Soviet treaty of 1942, to which they have always attached importance, were to be cancelled or annulled by the Soviet government," a foreign office statement said.

"At the same time, they deplore the tone and language of the note in which that government now threatens such cancellation.

"They cannot accept the argument used in the Soviet note."

BANDITS BLUNDER TO $50 PAYOFF IN CIGAR STORE

Made Sales to Customers While Robbing Manager

TORONTO (CP)—The cigar-store manager had no adhesive tape to bind his wounded hand after a strong enough.

So two composed bandits tore the cord off a radio and bound the manager, Findlay Henderson, 52, to a back-room stool, then made off with $50 in cash, some of it from sales they had made to unknowing customers.

It happened Monday night at a downtown Toronto Loblaw's shop where Mr. Henderson was working alone.

Two men came into the store and asked for a roll of adhesive tape, Mr. Henderson said. The manager said he had none, so the bandits settled for a roll of transparent tape.

"I told them that would be 25 cents," Mr. Henderson said, "and one of them said, 'that's great.' They dropped a dime into a small room at the back of the store and tried to tie my hands together behind me with the tape.

SOME BARGAINS

"It wasn't strong enough to hold so they ripped the cord from the radio and used that."

Four army cadets in uniform stood in the store outside the store window during the process.

When a customer stood at the counter, Mr. Henderson said, one of the men threw off his coat and went to the left. Finally the two men scooped up the cash and left.

One of the cadets returned to the store to see if Mr. Henderson, but the bandits were well away.

Forty-One Chinese Cross Border Into Red China

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Forty-one Chinese repatriated from the United States crossed the Hong Kong border Monday into Communist China.

Officials said all were Chinese who wanted to return to Red China including some the U. S. had deported. Most were students who had completed their studies in the U. S.

It was understood that their return was not part of prearranged exchange. Officials here said they thought the American initiative in returning them had some significance for the future of the projected visit to Peiping of the United Nations secretary-general Dag Hammarskjold, for discussions on the release of the 11 American airmen sentenced as spies.

Ontario Shivers While Prairies Have Heat Wave

Winnipeg's Blanket of Fog Divides Hot and Cold Fronts

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg struggled under a thick blanket of fog for a second day Monday.

To the east, its Ontario neighbors shivered in the snow and cold.

To the west the hardy Prairie folk perspired.

A fog blanket some 1,000 feet thick and 160 miles wide formed a dividing line between a mass of very mild Pacific air and an eastern cold front.

Thermometers in most parts of Ontario registered temperatures close to zero during the night. Toronto had a chilly seven degrees, Moosonee, in northern Ontario, was a shivery 25 below. Hamilton felt four above and Ottawa seven below. The rest of the province was below 10 degrees and the Winnipeg mark and the picture will not change for a day or so.

Winnipeg has been in the centre of this blanket since Saturday and the weathermen forecast the cover would move east of the city by noon today.

In the meantime, city life was disrupted. Sixty-two flights of RCAF and commercial air traffic centre, was cancelled. Outbound flights were cancelled. Incoming flights were landing at Rivers, 140 miles away, and all outbound passengers were brought into the city by bus.

SHIP MAIL TO RIVERS

An airline official said Monday night that with the predicted lifting of the fog today normal schedules were expected to be resumed. Mountains of Christmas mail were being shipped by rail to Rivers for transfer to commercial planes. Despite ice-glazed runways and reduced visibility no serious accidents were reported.

The fog blanket kept temperatures above normal; Winnipeg's high Monday was 2 at 6 p.m. a high of 20 was predicted for today.

In northwestern Ontario, temperatures ranged from nine above zero at Port Arthur to 19 below at Earlton.

Storms building up in the Pacific pushed great masses of warm air over the mainland. Vancouver basked in a high temperature of 50.

SHIP MAIL TO RIVERS

In Alberta and Saskatchewan, Christmas shoppers walked through the streets with overcoats unbuttoned.

Horseshoin, in the heart of Alberta foothills ranching country, stifled heads-degree zephyrs.

Even the frozen north was unfrozen. Nog River, Alta., had a high of 42 and Fort Chimo, P.Q. 49.

And the perspiring weatherman says the winter heat wave should continue for a couple more days.

Space Ships Called 'Little Dreamy' But Pentagon Planning Satellites

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson has ordered questions about space ships "a little dreamy" and discussed knowledge of such studies by the Pentagon, but his department said today that it is actively exploring the possibility of one-man artificial earth satellites.

And it has been doing that for at least six years.

In response to a question about the status of the space ship mentioned in a 1948 report by the first secretary of defence, James Forrestal the department today gave this official answer:

"Studies relating to a satellite program as mentioned in 1948 are active and are proceeding at a rate commensurate with the technical state of the art.

"These studies are being co-ordinated within the office of the secretary of defence and provide for full utilization of the combined efforts of the services."

Wilson was asked at a press conference on Nov. 16 if there was such a study under way. The exchange went this way:

Wilson: "In the space ship business? Oh, no."

Reporter: "Forrestal wrote about that. It was a study in 1948. Has it been discontinued or is it still under way?"

Wilson: "You are going back too far for me. I don't know of any such study."

Reporter: "There have been repeated published reports that the Russians have given priority to the establishment of the space station and satellite. Are you concerned that they will beat us in the air with it?"

Wilson: "I am sorry I can't help you did."

Reporter: "You really wouldn't? You mean you don't care if they get to the moon first?"

Wilson: "I don't care either they go off to the moon or some other place. I have no interest in it."

Last week this reporter submitted the question—"Is the program still active?"—to the defence department. The formal reply was produced today.

As far as is known, the project still is in the phase of laboratory study and paper planning.

Substantial progress has been made since 1948 in perfect bottle rocket propellants, both in the United States and abroad.

Brampton Mayor Requests Change In Airport Beam

BRAMPTON (CP) — Mayor B. Harper Bull of this town 15 miles north of Toronto has asked Transport Minister Marler for immediate action by the department on alignment of airport beam approaches to Malton airport.

Residents and officials of the municipality expressed grave concern at the town's lying in the path of a radio beam that guides planes into the airport.

Mayor Bull's action followed the crash of a Trans-Canada Air Lines Super Constellation airliner four minutes of here Friday night.

The aircraft crash-landed and burned in a farmer's field but the 16 passengers and seven crew members escaped unhurt.

"I cannot think what would have happened had that plane hit the town," said Mayor Bull.

Deputy reeve Fred F. Beckett, a senior TCA pilot, said the beam should be switched to bring the planes in over open country.

Mayor Bull said in an interview "insufficient consideration" was given by transport department officials when the beam for the present instrument landing system and the charted directly over Brampton with its 8,000 residents. He estimated changes in the location could be made for $15,000 to $20,000.

Deputy Beckett added that in clear weather, TCA planes do not normally fly over the town.

Meanwhile TCA and department of transport officials awaited the report of the chief inspector of Transair of Montreal, the pilot of the plane, to hear his story of the crash.

Capt. Ramsay suffered shock and head and leg injuries and TCA officials expected it would be several days before they could speak to him concerning details.

Twelve other persons aboard the plane still are in hospital here and in Toronto.

An investigation at the crash scene has been completed. Most of the crew and some of the passengers have been interviewed but TCA officials said it may be weeks before investigation findings are made known.

Courtesy Cards Given by Police To Motorists

The city police department has adopted the Christmas spirit and instead of handing out tickets for run of the mill parking meter violations courtesy cards are being given to delinquent motorists.

The cards, issued under the name of Police Chief R. W. Probert, extend season's greetings to the motorist and at the same time ask the co-operation of the motorists in preventing accidents. Motorists are asked to watch carefully for pedestrians, especially children, crossing streets; to observe all "stop" signs and traffic signals; to park properly and to drive carefully.

Police point out that motorists are still expected to purchase their parking time in the customary manner but for minor overtime violations the courtesy cards are being given out instead of parking-tickets. This does not hold true for parking in restricted areas and for offences of this nature the usual tickets will be handed out.

"It's just a courtesy gesture to benefit the Christmas shoppers," was the official comment.

Rotarians Given Christmas Theme By Brig. Dixon

Belleville Rotary Club yesterday celebrated Christmas with a special seasonal program at its weekly luncheon in the Bay Quinte.

Highlight of the program was a recital of carols by the Christ Church Boys' Choir, led by their director, Jack Wilson, the choir gave some beautiful renditions of several old festal airs.

A special Christmas message was delivered by Brig. Alfred Dixon, of the Salvation Army Corps.

"Christmas is a good time for traditions, but, yet, we remember what it really means," he told the club, tracing the motif and inspiration of the significance of the first Christmas Day.

"Christ was that which pertains to the life that really counts."

He noted however, that there are "some ugly questions mark" Yuletide in the spirit of Christmas.

"You see it in the shades of life at Christmastime. It is darkness, which was there "even in the inn," he said, "where room, "the inn was full and there was no room for the Son of God."

Christmas Day thanksgivings are dissipated when we remember the true splendor and glory of Christmas.

"Thank God there has been a Christmas," he said.

He concluded with a fitting quotation from a story, where "far, far away is Bethlehem, And the years long and slim Shall be filled with the Holy Child And sing to him. But still to hearts where love and faith Make room for Christ in them He comes again, the child of Bethlehem."

Two Christmas Parties Held By Belleville Lock

On Friday last at the Club Commodore, the Belleville Lock-Belleville Artisans social club held its annual Christmas dance.

Upwards of two hundred people danced to the music of the Commodore orchestra and all present agreed that it was the most enjoyable Christmas dance the social club has yet held. Door prizes were won by Harold Reid and Hay Hayes. Lucky spot prizes were won by Irene Blakely and Clare Reid. Other prizes awarded were won by: Harry Patrick, Bruce Storey, Lou Beaman, Teg Bennett, Art Ashton and Betty Duby.

On Saturday afternoon, the social club held its annual Christmas party at the Orange Hall. Mrs. Lil Murray, president of the club, welcomed all present, after which Messrs. Ken Willerton and J. F. Reid, vice-president and personnel manager of the company, respectively, spoke briefly. The party was then turned over to the ever popular Vic White for sing-a-long and fun. Then, on the arrival of Santa, gifts were presented to each child, together with candies, nuts, cokes and ice-cream.

It was heartily voted by all that Lil Murray and her committee had certainly excelled in arranging two wonderful parties which were so much enjoyed by everyone.

Lighted Candles On Trees Out Says Fire Chief

Watch how you decorate that Christmas tree this year.

Desire to decorate your tree like a prize effort, or just plain carelessness could leave you without a home for 1955, or at the least, the possibility of a fire.

In particular don't highlight your decorations with lighted candles.

"Lighted candles on or near Christmas trees are absolutely against the law."

Emphatically fire chief, Gerald Vance, this morning clarified one aspect of Christmas that has been bothering some city residents.

The chief's statement followed several enquiries to the fire department if Christmas trees, decorated with lighted candles, present any fire hazard. They do, the chief said, also like to warn the people about some of those electric bulbs they are buying," the chief said.

"They should be checked to ensure they are not overly hot. If over-heated, they can set the tree on fire."

The Belleville fire department wishes everyone a fire-safe Christmas.

"Naturally we do not want to start the new year with hazards and carelessness," he concluded.

Party for Handicapped People Sponsored by Belle Haven Club

The handicapped people of Belleville attended an enjoyable Christmas party Saturday evening at the Moose Lodge hall on Victoria Avenue, where they were the guests of the Belle Haven Club.

The guests enjoyed a delectable turkey dinner with all the trimmings, were treated to some top-notch entertainment by local artists and even had a visit from Santa Claus.

The party for the handicapped was the result of a co-operative effort on the part of Belle Haven Club officials, local merchants, and other citizens, who contributed towards the dinner. The dinner was served by the Women of the Moose under the convenership of Mrs. Ritchie. As a safety measure Fireman Joe Wyone was in attendance.

Paper hats and noisemakers put the guests in the right holiday spirit for the evening's fun, with guitar playing "Danny Boy" leading to carol singing before the dinner hour.

Entertainment interests during the dinner hour were Belle Haven Club president Howard Ackerman and Fred Bowler, who acted as chairman of the evening. Rev. Ian Rowley said grace and also gave a brief talk.

VARIED PROGRAM

Mr. E. Vandervoort acted as master of ceremonies for the program of music, tap dancing and other numbers. Included were numbers by Miss Ruby Fowler and Rhythm Ranch Riders; "Danny Boy" Smith and his dummy; tap dancing numbers by the class of Barbara Dimmick, including Judy McKaigh, Barbara Thrasher, Iris Lohnes, Jane Gray and Gail Hendricks, and also dance numbers by Freddine Smith and her dancing school, including Geraldine Gill, Judy Gill, Judy Watson, Kathleen Brock, Frances Elgar and Sharon Archer, and Miss Anabel Hardwick.

A novelty act of comedy and songs by Ralph Beasley, Earl Vandervoort, Chuck Collins and Bill Salter, accompanied on the piano by Dorothy Mitchell, literally brought down the house. William Gander also favored with several solos, accompanied by Ralph Beasley.

DRAW FOR LINEN

A draw was held for a lovely linen cloth, hand-worked by Mrs. Lewis Clemens, handicapped club member, who has been confined to her bed for several years. A sum of $21.50 was raised through the draw conducted by Miss H. Ackerman.

Transportation to and from the hall for the handicapped people was arranged by Jack Bush, Orland Pinkston, Bill Simpson, Floyd Bleecker and Jack Hutchison. St. John Ambulance workers were in attendance to help those requiring assistance.

There were treats for all as each guest left for home and even those unable to attend were not forgotten. Christmas food was sent to the hospital for those unable to be present.

Cocker Spaniel Remembered By Many Friends

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Sandy, a cocker spaniel with personality, made quite an impression as a sidewalk superintendent.

Every day last summer she wandered over to the neighborhood paving project. The men began offering her bits of food from their lunch pails and adopted her as their unofficial mascot.

Then the job was finished and the workers scattered to other jobs across the land. But they didn't forget Sandy.

Her owners, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Miller, reported Monday that so far Sandy's fans have sent her 13 Christmas cards and a box containing a parcel of dog food and toys.

One card came from Hollywood, Fla.

German Brunette Given 5 Years For Espionage

BERLIN (AP)—A beautiful German brunette was sentenced today to five years in prison after she pleaded guilty to espionage activities out of two United States intelligence officers for Russian pay.

The pair, both of the two American sectors were not introduced in court. U. S. officials previously said the 24-year-old charmer — irregard Margarethe Schmidt—was the only witness at the Soviet espionage trial.

The prosecution described her as one-of-the most dangerous spies encountered here since the war.

PLEADS GUILTY

The girl pleaded guilty to transmitting to Russians for money details of the order of battle for Allied defence of West Berlin. She also admitted a second charge of approaching a German national in the intelligence to get military information.

She pleaded innocent to a third charge of attempting to obtain details of the entire network of American agents in West Berlin. This accusation was dismissed on a prosecution motion.

German counsel Egon Bach urged the court to be lenient with the girl. He said she had been reared first under nazism and then under communism in the Russian zone, and had been forced into her spy activities by the Russians.

REJECTED BY JUDGE

Prosecutor Frank E. Lancian recommended that she receive a maximum penalty of three years in prison. she had co-operated throughout the investigation.

But Judge Andreas Follier said spying called for greater penalties, and imposed a five-year sentence on each count. Because of her co-operation, he said, the terms would run concurrently.

After 23 Years Ottawa Selects City Hall Site

OTTAWA (CP) — The nation's capital, the ashes of, its old city hall cold for to these 23 years, has come closer to getting a new one than ever before. City council Monday night approved a site.

Councillors accepted a recommendation of the civic building sites committee that a new city hall be built on the downtown spot where the old one stood until fire levelled it March 31, 1951.

After the fire, city hall rentals were demolished and, as part of the national capital plan to provide a broad, unbroked approach to the war memorial, grass now grows where it stood.

All that is needed now is federal government approval of the site. That is a formality. Construction would likely begin next year. Council feeling was that the approval would be given. The new city hall is expected to cost between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000.

MAY OBJECT

Maj-Gen. Howard Kennedy, chairman of the federal capital commission which co-ordinates development of the capital plan, said Monday, however, that the FDC had not considered the city proposal. He said the FDC probably will follow the recommendation of the national capital planning committee and select it.

The objection would be because the council's site, central capital plan, was to be kept as a park area to enhance the approach to Confederation square. There, national Remembrance Day ceremonies are held each year and statesmen and politicians, kings and queens visiting Ottawa from various parts of the world always find time to pause there and place a wreath at the memorial.

Canada Packers Opposes Railway Agreed Charges

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada Packers Limited Monday accused Canadian railways of using a form of compulsion to force shippers to sign agreed charge contracts.

The accusation was made by H. L. Rowntree of Toronto, counsel for the packing company, to a royal commission studying the agreed charge method of setting railway freight rates. Agreed charges are special low freight rates granted by the railways in return for a guaranteed percentage of a shipper's business.

Mr. Rowntree said the general practice of the railways is to withdraw a competitive rate following the signing of an agreed charge contract. This meant that shippers outside the contract were required to pay a normal rate which was higher than the competitive or agreed-charge rate.

"This withdrawal of the competitive rate can only be described as compulsion on the part of the railways," Mr. Rowntree said. "The practice also is unfair, unjust and undesirable."

Mr. Rowntree asked the commission to recommend that agreed charges should not apply to the packinghouse industry.

Fire Damages Ship's Interior

HOBOKEN, N. J. (CP)—The interior of the S. S. Melville, a Canadian freighter out of Montreal, was damaged Monday night in a fire that broke out while the vessel was docked at the Todd shipyards here.

Shown above are four East Hill residents, whose private toy repair program will bring happiness to some needy children this year. From left to right are Eric Cooper, Jack Clark, Gerald "Mike" Cooper and Ralph Clapp.

Mrs. J. G. Ritchie, holding a repaired steam shovel, conceived the idea of the toy repair program last fall as a project to make use of his extensive basement workshop. As the project grew Jack Clark and "Mike" Cooper, Mr. Cooper's son, began devoting spare time to collecting and repairing toys. Ralph Clapp volunteered to paint all toys.

Mrs. J. G. Ritchie, of the Doll House, Trent Road, not shown in the picture, volunteered to repair broken dolls.

Toys are being distributed by church groups.

Eric Cooper and Helpers Repair Hundreds Of Broken Toys for Christmas Distribution

A basement wood-working shop, spare time, an idea and an generosity will pay big dividends in happiness this Christmas for for some 300 Belleville children who otherwise might have gone without toys.

A private toy-repair project that mushroomed during the past two months to more than 300 items was conceived last fall by Eric P. Cooper, 328 Bridge St. E., as one way to make use of his extensive basement workshop.

He appealed for broken toys in a series of small advertisements last October as a result of these notices, and by word-of-mouth, news of his project spread.

Offers of assistance with the project came in with broken wagons, sleighs and dolls.

Mrs. J. G. Ritchie, proprietress of the Dolls' House on the Trent Road, saw the notice and offered to repair broken dolls. At present she has more than a dozen almost-new dolls ready for Christmas distribution.

Ralph Clapp responded by offering to paint all items. His spray painting equipment, when not in use refinishing cars at his service station, has been busy giving new color and finish to repaired toys and new items coming off the miniature production line in Mr. Cooper's basement.

Repairing broken slats in sleighs was easy enough but problems began accumulating when it became necessary to match wheels for doll carriages, find marbles for Chinese checker sets, wooden disks for checker, spokes for tricycles, and seats for model sail boats.

As model trucks, small trains, tables, chairs, wheel barrows, a punching bag and assorted animal toys rolled in, Jack Clark, a neighbor, and Gerald Cooper, Eric's son, started spending their spare time evenings and weekends rebuilding or repairing these toys.

Scrap lumber donated by Jack Sills, by sawing, planing and sanding, was converted into 30 bags of building blocks.

All toys, collected from donors by Mr. Cooper and his helpers, will be ready for distribution this week. Meanwhile, all tools in his basement workshop will be humming with last minute repairs.

The Cooper workshop which has made this year's effort possible includes such power tools as a band saw, jig saw, table saw, drill press, lathe, sander, grinder and jointer as well as hand saws, wood chisels, drills and a large quantity of nails, screws and small hardware.

Finished products piling up in the Cooper basement promise a substantial number of appealing toys for distribution. Distribution will be carried out on a first-come-first-served basis by church groups which have contacted Mr. Cooper since announcement of the project.

Toys not spoken for immediately prior to Christmas will be given to the Salvation Army.

"Our efforts this year are a start," said Mr. Cooper. "Next year we hope to do even better."

Follwell Supply Co. Purchased By Vandervoort Hardware of Kingston

Frank S. Follwell, M.P., owner of Follwell Supply Co., announced today that he has sold his business to Vandervoort Hardware, of Kingston. The sale will become effective January 1st, 1955.

Mr. Follwell purchased the business in 1944 from the St. Charles Supply Co., which had been in business in Belleville for 100 years as a carriage company, an automobile company and latterly an auto supply house. Mr. Follwell joined the St. Charles Co., in 1930.

Mr. Follwell stated that pressure of duties as member of parliament for South Hastings made it almost impossible for him to devote adequate time to his business. He announced no plans for the future other than that he would be occupied with the next session of parliament from January until next July.

The staff of four, including manager, Miss Lillian Courneyea, will continue with Vandervoort Hardware.

Ralph Whiteman, assistant manager of Vandervoort Hardware's Napanee branch will be the new manager of the company's Belleville store.

PLAY IT SAFE

Why die?

That is the question of the season, which is being asked in press releases from varied sources and in editorials in most newspapers.

All have the same theme, the urgent necessity of taking additional safety precautions at the Christmas season. This necessity is voiced in a wide variety of striking slogans or phrases. "Live and let live" one press release urges. "Suggestions for a Merry Firesafe Christmas" come from the office of Ontario Fire Marshal W. J. Scott. "Watch how you drive—if you want to be alive in '55" is the catchy contribution of the U.S. National Safety Council. Our choice, however, is the product of the editorial pen at the office of the Hamilton Spectator. "Where will you have the wreath this Christmas —on your door or on your mouth?" the Spectator asks.

There may be some who will see in this stress on safety at Christmas time an odd type of sentimentality and who will insist that life is just as sweet—and as important—in June as in December. That, however, is overlooking a pertinent fact. The Christmas season is a dangerous season.

In fact part of Canada, the snow has recently arrived and drivers and pedestrians alike have not yet relearned the lesson of the treachery which lurks in downy flakes and glassy ice.

It is a season of hurry. Hurry does not go well with driving at dusk. Hurry does not go well with icy roads. Hurry and dusk and ice spell death, the dictionary to the contrary notwithstanding.

The Christmas tree, that symbol of joy, may become a tragic torch. "Sadly enough," says the Fire Marshal's office, "helpless children seem to be the most frequent victims, yet the decorations are put up for their particular benefit."

Best safeguard against death, on the highway or in the home, is common sense. There are, however, some rules which assist us in letting common sense rule our actions.

The Fire Marshal's department suggests that when you select a Christmas tree you choose one freshly cut and not too large, that you do not have the tree in the house longer than necessary, that a diagonal cut be made at least an inch above the original cut and that this new cut be kept completely immersed in water. Lights are a common cause of Christmas fires. Make sure that yours bear evidence of the Canadian Standards Association approval. Check each connection and socket for fraying and damage. There should not be more than four sets of lights on each branch circuit and lights should be turned off before retiring or leaving the house. Plastic toys may be inflammable. Only non-flammable decorations should be used. Santa's beard or the candles at church services may bring sorrow.

The U.S. National Safety Council lists five rules "to compensate for the extra hazards" on street and highway at this season:

1. Start automobile trips early and take it easy. Be extremely cautious in bad weather and darkness.

2. Don't overspeed in traffic. Let the other driver have the right-of-way and you take the right way.

3. Don't pass without a sure margin of safety. And don't change lanes unless you are sure no one is coming up behind you.

4. Stay alert. Don't let distractions take your mind off the road even for an instant.

5. Don't let those who have been drinking—and refuse to ride with drinking drivers. If you don't drink, watch out for the fellow who does. Remember that tipsy pedestrians and drinking drivers are most common during the Christmas-New Year season.

"If you, drink, don't drive; and if you drive, don't drink" has now become a familiar slogan. Too familiar, for familiarity breeds contempt and this rule cannot safely be treated with contempt. Yet, as most of us know, it is not an easy rule to follow. Saying "No" at a friend's house is not easy. Here is a hint which might help. Few of us go calling empty, or limit our Christmas calls to one night. You and your companion can share the duties—one drinking, the other driving. You will be surprised how much more easily a refusal to imbibe is sustained if you explain that you and your companion are "sharing duties."

It's more fun that way, too.

BOOKS

Good books are friendly things to own.
If you are busy they will wait.
They will not call you on the phone
Or wake you if the hour is late.
They stand together, row by row,
Upon the low shelf or the high.
But if you're lonesome this you know:
You have a friend or two nearby.

The fellowship of books is real.
They're never noisy when you're still.
They won't disturb you at your meal.
They'll comfort you when you live are ill.
The lonesome hours they'll always share.

When slightest they will not complain,
And though for them you've been unkind
Your constant friends they'll still remain.

Good books your faults will never see
Or tell about them round the town.
If you would have their company
You merely have to take them down.
They'll help you pass the time away,
They'll counsel give if that you need.
Has true friends for night and day
Who has a few good books to read.

"It's certainly no mystery how they learned the combination to the safe."

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 21st, 1914

The new organ in Bridge Street Methodist church was used for the first time on Sunday last. Prof. Albert D. Jordan of the First Methodist church, London, Ontario, was the guest organist for the day and the choir was under the direction of Mr. Jas. Cannon. The members of the large choir appeared for the first time robed in Geneva gowns and caps. It is of interest to note that the first musical instrument used in the service of this congregation in the church which was then on Pinnacle street, south of the market, was a bass viol which was played by the late Mr. Nathan Jones. One of the ministers took strong objection to the use of this instrument and on one occasion he announced: the congregation will now open the service by singing and fiddling the hymn number—this was the first organ used in the services of this congregation on the south side of Bridge street east. This instrument had wooden ladies and Mr. Nathan Jones became the first organist. The congregation moved to the new church at the corner of Bridge and Church street in 1865 and some time later an organ costing $4,000 was installed and Mr. Nathan Jones continued as organist until 1877. Four of the men and two of the ladies who were members of the choir when the congregation moved to the new church at the corner are still living here; they are Mr. David Price, Mr. William Hoult, Mr. James Feard, Mr. C. S. Merriday and the ladies are Mrs. David Price, formerly Miss McCreary, and Mrs. C. S. Merriday, formerly Miss J. Booth. The organists of the church since Mr. Nathan Jones, have been Prof. Wm. Ward, W. Flint Jones, Miss Minnie Jones, Miss Cassie Jones, Prof. Donnelly, Miss Davies, Prof. Peters, Prof. Dingle, Prof. Hurst, Prof. Preston, Prof. Thomas and Miss Elliott.

Strength for the Day

BR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

OUR DIVINE ORIGIN

Some moulds age a huge python escaped from a zoo presumably slithered around in a large city for several days. At last it came back and curled up in some bushes about 300 feet from the zoo. And as it approached the zoo, strange things happened. The animals began shrieking, the elephants trumpeted, the lions roared. The noise became so terrific that the python terrified and screamed incessantly.

How did they know that the python was in the vicinity? This is a question that probably can never be answered fully. We call it "instinct." A dog lying in a room begins barking because another dog is passing the house 50 to 100 feet away. How does the dog know this? Instinct.

The lower animals are guided by instinct, and we think it is marvelous; but we are guided by something much more marvelous, and we seldom think about it. We partake of the nature of God Himself and therefore have the capacity for choice. We have a few instinctive reactions left very few compared with the animals. In many ways it is better for us to have to choose for them. We must constantly choose between alternatives. This is difficult but it is also the secret of growth.

The world about us by making us like Himself. We often reflect on our likeness to the animals' world, but we should reflect on our likeness to the divine. We are made in the image and after the likeness of God.

Funny Money

(By Sir Hilary Festal in London Calling)

I always seem to come back from the Continents and usual-lavorious journey overseas with an extraordinary miscellaneous collection of foreign currency. The lesser and less valuable the metal, the more I seem to collect it. And as for paper money — it lines my pockets with disgusting, greasy, creased international fiver much more filthy than the old Scottish printed notes which used said, when boiled, to produce a rich, even a nutritious, form of pea soup.

A recent examination of the left were coins of a continental country to two countries disclosed currency of five sovereign states and a Secretary in South Africa, and the Indian Ocean, showed a strong leaning towards the travel trophies to the foreign currency branch of my hard-earned filing. I brought it to the office to mill these days. But I found that the bulk of the bank proved an exceeding small. "You had better leave it with me," said the cashier reassuringly. "We shall have to calculate the exact exchange value." I replied, with dignity, "I just credit the proceeds to the account." And somehow they did. I had a credit entry of one shilling and seven pence.

By and large, over my life, I have had quite a lot to do with foreign currency. There was the Ceylon rupee, for instance, in Ceylon, in the first world war the basic commonsense, silver rupee had to give way to notes. The silver coinage was of such fine high, and silver so valuable, that the actual value of the rupee as bullion was higher than its face value, and rupees were going underground. The Government issued and two-rupee notes came along to join their fellows in the table — five, ten, hundred, and thousand rupee brothers, already well known to all the Colonial Colonial Treasury invented a useful refinement — the rupee and rupee notes were small, perhaps about half the size of an English bank-note today, and printed on bond books of these small denominations were not produced, rather like a double- or treble-stamped books of postage stamps. The notes, therefore, were used in the ordinary way, and could at any time be returned to the bank at the holder's will and new books obtained. They kept the currency remarkably clean — not an unimportant matter in a tropical country.

But the notes never seemed to have the value of the old silver rupee — just as a sovereign always seemed worth more to spend than a pound note even in the days of parity. Perhaps it was because you could not think the notes one against another. When I was a child my father joined what a wise old colleague told me that when he had to buy land for government purposes, he always paid in silver. Natives, he used to knock the bag against the table to hear the chink, chink, chink, and the rich sound of silver rupee against silver rupee made the recipient quite content to sell — had a wonderful way of keeping the price down.

Years later, when I had to buy land myself, I found that to improve communications through the town of Trincomalee, I required a piece of land. I had the day of the silver rupee was long over, and the notes, but I found a similar form of enfeeblement. I found one. Not so good perhaps, but a reasonable one. The nominations came out fresh from the printers, with the Queen's profile, new and smelling of ink and rich paper, and were received with a bow and a smile by another by wire and a lead seal. I laid a bundle of notes on the table of my table, and when I, in my turn, chaffered with the Tamil owner, I counted out and ruffled the notes through my fingers. Not so good as the chink and clash of the old silver pieces — but effective nevertheless. Effective I would say the unwilling seller's eyes move from my face to the note bundle to the vendor's and I knew that he was weakening. The exorbitant price would drop, come nearer to the official valuation on which I was working, and the taxpayer had been protected from exploitation. I had the land for communications purposes, and the native owner went off happily with his new-minted notes bestowed in his cummerbund.

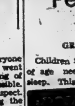
One book of notes (they were serially numbered of course) indirectly caused the downfall of the Ceylon Treasury. I was in Trincomalee. We were always having changes of clothes in the course of a day and that makes one careless about the contents of pockets; and I had come apt on occasion to be left about with a pocketful of silver. I had pocketed that one book, so left about, grew slowly but perceptibly thinner, and a careful record made of the serial numbers of the notes issued. Then one day I, as well as I had found the book useful. Now it was a well-established fact that in my day in Ceylon that a "boy," that is a Ceylonese servant, was the master of his master's property and cash. He made what he could out of everyone else, particularly on the local marketing, but petty thieving of master's money was inadmissible. So a ring was laid for the suspect.

Trincomalee was enjoying the visit of a circus, a most unusual treat. The boy asked for the night off to attend, and it seemed at first possible that the entrance fee would come from my diminishing book of notes. The box office was a table covered with the inevitable white cloth. Under this a Ceylonese policeman was concealed; and all was set. The boy arrived. There was a hush of excitement, and then he produced a coin, not a note! But he was drawn hilariously and outrageously drunk — and suggested that as he was the Assistant Government Agent's boy he should not be required to pay at all! That, of course, could not be allowed, and disgrace fell upon him and was assailed to the boy's boy of the head of the Station. Incidentally, I discovered, on auditing the book of notes, after he had left the house, and before he left the island, that on this occasion, two notes were missing. Somebody had paid for a very convivial evening.

Later in my life I had to get used to West Indian currency. Until the Second World War everyone in each West Indian territory — the island, or group of islands — had issued its own currency. They may do so still, though when I left there were talks of a common West Indian Currency Board. These West Indian dollars "go" at about five to the pound sterling; and the West Indian cent is, therefore the exact equivalent of a halfpenny. Even though they all had the same value, none of the territories' notes was valid outside the area of its own territory. Which is fun, a Trinidad dollar notes were unacceptable in Grenada — one has to spend my dollars from the Barbadian point of view, and one has to change them at the right moment to "boot! And when I myself once tried to buy a cup of tea in Port of Spain with a Trinidad dollars, I found they thought I would unkindly refused to spend precious hard currency to pay the bill. It was a way, I suppose, to keep the island's credit balance with America, but an inconvenient way at best. English or American money is usually accepted anywhere, of course, but the Barbados dollar is probably the most conservative creatures in the world — it hardly refused the then new English threepenny piece — made of alloy and many of the old silver coins — when it first came out, and for long regarded it with suspicion.

Then there was the 'Klipy Penny' in the eastern area of Sierra Leone. This is a very queer coin indeed. The Klipy Pennies are long thin bars of iron — about the length of a lead pencil — and as fat as a lead pencil. These pennies are made of locally produced iron and are valued at their value in relation to the value of iron in Sierra Leone, the important produce of the district. (As if an English farmer's penny were made of wheat or value according to the value of the milk produced by the cow responsible, by way they do.) I wonder what my friend in the bank would say if I handed the bundle of these tokens passed to him through his pigeon hole? Would he, I wonder, by chance rate would be a simple sum to consider, and would Lloyd Penny still exist, I wonder?

Perhaps the most unusual currency ever used in West Africa was blue cloth. This was a native-woven blue cloth made in Manchester. We used it in the Gambia as a unit. You could buy another might call that barter perhaps — but it was money. You used it for a purpose, we did not produce it, so it was hardly barter in the strict sense. I have mentioned this. During the time in which we had Kirby Hall as the drink of the afterwards tactfully called "in pelle difference," the Gambia found it necessary to issue notes. The troops had to be fed, and meat had, if possible, to be found. Fortunately many years Gambian herds of cattle had been ravaged by rinderpest, and our livestock census showed only about 80,000 head. A vigorous inoculation campaign against disease under control, but slaughter on the scale required by the Army demanded vaccination.



Someone had a bright idea. There was blue cloth. There was plenty in the neighboring French territory, the Senegal. Money marched with cure. True, the frontier was officially closed, but on the Gambian side, so far as the export of cattle was concerned, it was a wide open on cure, and when boundaries have been drawn with ruler and pencil on maps, they can pass through the middle of villages at will. Cattle were bought for blue cloth and an English part, it is not surprising if herds should occasionally find themselves on the other side of the frontier if inducement offered. From information received, we discovered that the Senegal cattle would take blue cloth as bait. And it was so. Few countries can have ordered their currency in such a way. We had cloth in thousands of yards at that

By DR. WM. BRADY

GROWING CHILDREN NEED THEIR REST

Children from six to ten years of age need eleven hours of sleep. This is not an inflexible rule, but a child who conforms to it will live a healthier life. A few may thrive on less; few are discussing the majority. Children continue growing until they are from 18 to 23 years of age.

Dr. Brady

If school starts at eight or nine the child should be tucked in at seven seven to eight. But in America we see in television, too frequently, groups of youngsters at late evening entertainment (?) are to be kind—ignorant of the duty of children.

Parents who have any voice in the choice of activities for their community youth group ought to have also enough strength of character to turn thumbs down at his regular time.

on any such unhealthy goings-on.

Following is a list of the sleep requirements of the average person, reference to Thomas Edison notwithstanding:

Ages 6 through 10: Eleven and a quarter hours.

Ages 10 through 15: Ten hours.

Ages 15 through 20: Eight and a quarter hours.

Ages 20 through 28: Eight hours.

Persons sixty and over can do on seven hours.*

If on rare occasions a person loses some sleep perhaps he can make up for it by getting to bed that much earlier the next night, but one who loses hours of sleep regularly or frequently, one or more nights each week can never make up for it. Impairment of health, vile, beauty if any, and functional efficiency is inevitable if we get insufficient sleep.

Sometimes students cramming for examination keep awake far into the night by drinking quantities of strong coffee or by taking some other medicinal form. Under the influence of caffeine (coffee, tea, kola, etc.) one can add or subtract, multiply or divide more rapidly—but less accurately. Coffee also makes one nervous. The student will probably do better in the examination if he studies for a reasonable time and then hits the cornhorks and gets a little rest.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NATURE AND ONE'S LIBRARY

Alexander Smith, who wrote in 1863 that charming book of essays called "Dreamthorp," once stated that the only immortality for which he wished was that he might be "occasionally quoted." So I quote: "In my garden I spend my days; in my library I spend my nights. My interests are divided between nature and books. What is the use of the flower I am in the present; with books I learn the past."

A stranger called upon Wordsworth, the great English poet and nature lover. A servant opened the door, and the visitor inquired as to where the poet worked. He would like to see his library. Said the servant: "This is master's room, sir. He studies in the fields."

From one's library comes the silent voices of history, poets, novelists, historians, scientists, inventors, discoverers, and all manner of people are all recorded in books that may rest upon anyone's library shelves at his will. The dead are dead, but they are also immortal for some volume. Civilizations have risen only to fall and be recalled only in books and crude characters does there remain any story.

We can select our own friends when we choose a library, and size is no criterion of worth. Stevenson once said, "A few friends but close is the ideal number." That's the way it is with books. Once you have read and digested, you want to stay with you for so long as you live—unless you send it out to find someone else.

The great of this earth, past and present, may be your silent visitors and night companions if you wish. To hold a great book in your hand is to taste of glory! Its warmth often reaches the heart. Books have souls. Buy them, lend them, send them on errands!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A fairly considerable number of our big stores and large businesses have "packsacks."

They can't be bothered doing anything more in exchanging over what they've got for your money. Here's the goods. Take it or leave it.

Some young friends of mine handed over to me the other day two brilliants for one of their number who was going to her first big dance. They were first water and as fat as a lead pencil. These pennies are made of locally produced iron and are valued at their value in relation to the value of iron in Sierra Leone, the important produce of the district. (As if an English farmer's penny were made of wheat or value according to the value of the milk produced by the cow responsible, by way they do.) J. F. McGregor Resigns Post Of Town Clerk

CAMPBELLFORD — Town council accepted with reluctance the resignation of town clerk, John J. McGregor, at a regular meeting here this week. Mr. McGregor, whose service in the corporation, both in the matter of years and faithfulness to his duty, has been without equal in local government. He had been clerk of the corporation since 1919, and has been associated with the town for more than 50 years.

After accepting Mr. McGregor's resignation, council instructed the legal committee to have a pension by-law drawn up for presentation at the next meeting. Mr. McGregor will continue his duties until the new year.

Council also authorized the purchase of granite curbing to be placed at the cenotaph to replace the present ones. The work will be done by William Garden of Norwood, who submitted a price of approximately $910, including the lettering.

DRIVERS ESCAPE INJURY

Two Belleville drivers escaped without injury on Sunday night when their cars collided on Highway 2, about five miles east of the village of Havelock. A car driven by David L. Moore, 20, of RR 4, Belleville, was attempting to pass a car driven by Frank J. Sanville, 33, of 149 Pinnacle St., Belleville, just as Sanville attempted to make a left turn. The right side of the Moore car scraped the left front of the Sanville vehicle, doing a total of about $150 damage to the two cars. OPP Constable Archie Eady of Campbellford, investigated.

Striking Ford Employee Demands Single Meeting of Union Members

TORONTO (CP)—A striking employee of the Ford of Canada plant at Oakville has demanded a single meeting of members of Local 707 of the United Auto Workers Union (CIO-CCL) and not four separate meetings as arranged by officials.

Vern Janeway, a steamfitter, said he asked for a mass meeting so the union executive could explain "why we're forced to accept a blanket policy we don't want."

Fred Childs, Local 707 president, said the union planned meetings at Oakville and Toronto, Brantford and Hamilton Tuesday and Wednesday because many Oakville workers live in those cities. Better attendance was expected by having the meetings near the homes of workers, he said.

Another reason was lack of a place large enough to accommodate the 2,700 Oakville workers, Mr. Childs said.

Earlier, Mr. Janeway said "control from Windsor" was running the Oakville union and there were irregularities in the September strike vote.

Chief Coroner Says Dept. Biased In Investigations

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Smirle Lawson, supervising coroner of Ontario, said Monday an independent board of aeronautical engineers, instead of officials of the transport department, should investigate last Friday night's Trans-Canada Air lines crash near Brampton.

No one was killed in the crash of the Super-Constellation, but all 25 persons aboard were injured.

"If the investigation is left to transport department officials, the Canadian public won't get the truth about the crash," Dr. Lawson said in an interview.

"My experience with the transport department over 30 years has not been a happy one. Investigators from this department bend over backwards to support the government in office. I have never found them willing to have the facts brought out if those facts might embarrass the government of the day."

Dr. Lawson said the department is biased in its investigations.

"There is some doubt as to whether the plane was on fire before it hit the ground," Dr. Lawson said. "The public won't get any help from its present investigation."

Television Films Of Prison Riot Are Destroyed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Television films shot at Headingley jail following Saturday's rioting were confiscated and destroyed by jail officials.

Camera man Myron Kupchuk said Monday he had just taken some exterior shots of the jail building for television station CJWT Sunday morning when he was escorted by guards to the jail office. There, officials demanded his film. Efforts to obtain the consent of the attorney-general's department to release the film were futile.

"They were just outside shots of the prison," Kupchuk said. "It was just like taking a shot of any building."

CJWT news editor Norm Lacey said his TV crew had been refused interior shots of the jail, as had newspaper photographers.

"Weeks (jail governor E. G. Weeks) demanded the film," said Lacey, "and Kupchuk suggested he call me. I phoned Kay (deputy attorney-general O. M. M. Kay) to ask permission to use the film but he wouldn't give it."

Newspapers Best Medium Of Publicity

KITCHENER (CP) — Newspapers are by far the best medium of publicity, Dr. E. G. Pleva, of the University of Western Ontario told the water resources committee of southwestern Ontario Monday.

As publicity chairman for that committee, he outlined plans to publicize its work. He suggested full-day speing and fall bus tours whereby members of the committee could get a close look at water supplies throughout the area.

Mrs. W. Burgoyne favored with a beautiful solo, "The Holy Child," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Bateman.

Miss Tulte told the story of "The Other Wise Man", by Henry Van Dyke. She said "We all know the story of the "Three Wise Men", but not many know of the Other Wise Man, who also saw the star and followed but never arrived. He was Artaban, a tall fine man of 40 years, a priest of the ancient order of the Magi, a Parthean noble. From the lore of the Chaldeans he learned that "there shall come a star out of Jacob' who will be the King of Kings.

"So he sold his possessions and bought a precious sapphire, a ruby and a pearl, and set forth to meet the Three Wise Men at a designated spot at a certain time. But on the way he met a man in dire need. He sold his sapphire and cared for the man and saved his life, then continued on his way. But the other had already gone on.

"Later, in his wanderings he sold his ruby to save the life of a child. He spent 33 years of hopeless effort trying to catch up until he came to Jerusalem at the time of the Feast of the Passover. Grey and with head bowed and ready to die, he found himself in a city filled with fear. Toward the Damascus gate, Parthian Jews told him an execution was to take place at Golgotha, two robbers and the King of the Jews. He wondered 'could this be the One?'

"Then as he passed by the old, daughter of a Parthian, who had died, daughter of a Parthian, who was to be sold as a slave for debt, with his last precious stone, his pearl, he paid for her ransom.

"Then the sky darkened and an earthquake shook the ground. A tile fell from a building nearby and struck the old man. A bright light shone around him and a voice said, "Thou has found Him for Whom thou searchest." And the old man said, "When saw I Thee, O Lord?" and the voice replied, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto Me. Thy search is ended."

Mrs. Wood thanked Miss Tulte for her beautiful story with its help toward giving a deeper meaning to Christmas.

Mrs. McMullen asked the ladies to stay for a cup of tea and a social half hour and Mrs. Fairman wished all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

I.O.D.E. Holds Christmas Meet

MARMORA — Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. held its December meeting in the Masonic hall on Monday evening, with Mrs. J. Lindsay, regent, presiding over a good attendance.

The meeting opened in the usual manner. The treasurer, Mrs. C. R. Whittemore, gave an encouraging report. Miss Miriam Savage, convener for services at Home and Abroad, reported the sending of books for the needy in Germany.

In expenditures the chapter included a good donation to the Santa Claus parade and also one to the Canadian Legion to help with Christmas baskets.

Mrs. W. M. Regan as education secretary, read an interesting letter from the teacher at the chapter's adopted school at Key Harbor, in the Georgian Bay area. She also read a letter with regard to educational system and the growing increase in membership in the schools.

The sewing convener, Mrs. M. Seeland, told of flannelette on hand and Mrs. W. Tupper, the knitting convener, pointed out there was wool on hand for sweaters.

The regent read a letter from the provincial secretary regarding organizing for civil control and the value of emigration and naturalization.

The meeting closed with the flag being brought forward by the standard bearer and the singing of the National Anthem, after which refreshments were served.

Banning Liquor Ads in Magazine Commended by Women's C.T.U.

The Christmas meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the "Y" with the president, Mrs. Fraser, in the chair. A welcome was extended to all.

Mrs. Farnsworth in opening the meeting said, "This is Advent season. It is a period of preparation for a fresh understanding of the Incarnation. What is meant by the Incarnation? The dictionary says—to clothe in flesh, to embody"—Jesus became Man. This is the great thought of Christmas. There are beautiful symbols—Santa, gifts, bells, trees, that delight the heart, but are not the essence of Christmas. Christmas means the Incarnation. Jesus Christ became Man and dwelt among us. Let us prepare our hearts to accept Him."

DEVOTIONAL

The devotional was taken by Mrs. A. R. Fisher, who read the story of Christ's birth as found in Luke 2:1-20. Christmas carols were interspersed with Christmas readings.

A reading, "Keep Christ In Christmas," was given by Miss Barnum. She said "Once again we approach the Christmas season that lovely time of kindliness and cheer will, yet a terrific tradition has grown up around the Christmas festivities, so many think hospitality is not complete without the serving of alcoholic beverages. Is it common sense to drink health in a beverage that can only hurt health, or is it kind to drink to the happiness of one whom we would love to help, in a beverage which may prove to be their first step downward?"

Miss Clark told how recently the Japanese business women have been in Canada. It reduces the amount of drinking and partying by their men-folk during the Christmas and New Years holidays.

At a two-hour tea party, the women, all company presidents, or senior executives, launched an "anti-booze" campaign which they hope will be adopted by the government and business offices. They frowned on men's "extravagance", especially their partiality for strong drink, when they should be helping solve the country's economic problems.

The Provincial Council of Women, meeting in Toronto, fall week, presented a list of resolutions, asking for action on many problems, including curbs on unemployment, education and sale of alcoholic beverages on Sunday, and thirsty Ontario, to the authorities at Queen's Park. They urged the government to take steps to enforce the section of the Liquor Act regarding display of alcoholic advertisements.

According to Time magazine, editors of Readers Digest have announced, beginning next April, advertisements will be carried in their American edition. There is this stipulation, however: liquor, tobacco, and medical-remedy ads will be banned.

It is quite possible that the flood of protests over the inclusion of liquor advertisements in the Canadian edition, has had a part in determining this new American policy. The editors admitted they had not considered the matter seriously before accepting contracts in the Canadian edition.

W.A. AND W.M.S. MEETING

The Halloway W.A. and W.M.S. held the December meeting at the home of Mrs. Earl Solder, with a good attendance. A lovely Christmas worship service was enjoyed. Those assisting were, Mrs. Fred Wellman, Mrs. John Wilson and Mrs. Embury Hough.

Mrs. Gordon Roth, W.M.S. president, took charge and the roll was called and responded to by the giving of a white gift, which was forwarded to the Salvation Army.

A special offering is to be held, in order to meet the allocation.

The W.A. president, Mrs. Harry McMullen, took charge. Nearly all members were present.

The treasurer, Mrs. Embury Hough, gave her report, which was most gratifying. It was decided to donate $10 to the M. and M. fund.

Mrs. McMullen thanked all for the co-operation given her during her term of office and expressed her good wishes to the new president, Mrs. Coleman Townsend for the next term.

A flower was to be sent to a sick member.

Mrs. John Kleft, a new bride, was the guest of honor at the meeting, and was seated in a chair by the Christmas tree, which was well laden with miscellaneous gifts, as she opened the gifts. She thanked each one for the kindness shown her.

Christmas carols were sung and three Dutch ladies, guests at the meeting, rendered in Dutch, a lovely carol.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, and another year completed in the work for the church and missions.

TAKE CHILDREN AWAY

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — The wife of television and movie cowboy Ray (Crash) Corrigan was granted a divorce and more than $300,000 in community property Monday, but the judge refused to give either custody of their three children. Judge Ernest Wagner said Mrs. Rita Corrigan, 34, was "unfit" to have custody and termed Corrigan's relationship to his two daughters "most reprehensible."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHOULD HE AND HIS FUTURE WIFE LIVE WITH HER MOTHER?

Just a couple of weeks ago, in this column, the story was told of a mother who went to live in her married daughter's home and became virtually an unpaid servant.

In connection with that story, I expressed the opinion that it was a mistake for any parent to live with a married son or daughter unless there was some urgent reason for doing so.

Now comes a letter from a young man of 23 who expects to be married next summer to a young woman of 22, and who is already facing this mother-in-law problem. In this case, the mother of his future wife does not propose to live with them: they would live in her home, which seems to me even worse.

Here is the situation, as he explains it:

"My fiancee's mother has been a widow for the past three years and still broods over her loss. She's the type that doesn't leave the house except to do the shopping and to go to church on Sunday.

"She has a son who doesn't spend much time at home and therefore, she and her daughter are very close. She would like us to live with her after we are married, and her daughter is inclined to succumb as her mother owns her own home and has plenty of room there for us.

"For my part, I believe that every married couple should start out on their own and live their own life, but my fiancee says she wouldn't be happy away from her mother as she'd always be worrying about her. I was planning to get an apartment only about five minutes from her mother's home.

"Is it asking too much to want to be alone with my wife, or am I being selfish in trying to take her away from her mother?"

To my mind, the question of selfishness does not even enter into this young man's problem. It is entirely a question of what is wise and what is not wise, and I am convinced that it would be distinctly unwise for this young couple to do as has been proposed. The young man is entirely right in believing that every married couple should start out on their own and live their own life." To do anything else is to invite disaster.

Since this young man's fiancee seems to believe otherwise, however, he may have a hard time convincing her. But he might try pointing out to her that, normally, every bride looks forward to making a home which will be a reflection of her own and her husband's personalities, such they can run as they please. He should tell her, as gently as he can, that if the two of them went to live in her mother's house, she would hardly be likely to have any say what ever about how it should be run. Instead, they would find themselves occupying the position of guests, while the mother ruled the roost.

He should also try to make his future wife see that if they do not begin living independently of her mother immediately after their marriage, they may become so involved that, before long, it would be practically impossible to get away from her. In such a case, it is almost certain that constant friction would soon develop between herself and her husband, which might lead, in the end, to serious trouble.

It is very sad that this young man's future mother-in-law should be the kind of woman he describes, with no real interests of her own. If she were the right kind of mother, she would want, not only to have her daughter live her own life, but to live an independent life herself, keeping busy and happy by being as active and useful member of the community in which she lives.

I warn this young man that unless he can make his fiancee realize that the success of their marriage and, in fact, their whole future happiness, may well depend upon how they start out on their life together, and so gain her sympathetic cooperation in making independent plans for it, he has better give serious consideration to the question of whether or not it would be wise for them to marry at all.

Beauty

CLOTHES CAN DISGUISE FIGURE FAULTS

Youth has few figure problems. Teen-age girls and those in their twenties are usually well proportioned and, if they carry themselves properly, have few distressing defects. But in middle-age there are changes in figures, as well as in faces. Surveys show that a large percentage of women in the forty-fifty bracket are overweight.

Many just haven't the courage to start a reducing campaign. Some make an heroic effort, cast off some extra pounds, then fall off the diet wagon. Those weak-willed women should realize, however, that the right kind of clothes can make bad lines look better—even good.

The commonest fault is the selection of dresses that cling too closely. To wear tight fitting clothes is to reveal every overcurve and to call attention to the large bust or heavy hips. Bodices should be softly draped. And a V neckline gives the effect of tapering toward the waist.

If a suit is worn, the basher should extend below the line of the hips. If it is short, it cuts the figure in halves. Or will bulk of a color other than the dress. Long graceful lines detract from body width.

Dark colors are more slenderizing than light ones, plain fabrics more flattering than figured materials. Simplicity of design, is high favor at the present moment, should be definitely in the buyer's mind when selecting a frock or a coat.

One way to make the plump neck more presentable is to have a short hair cut or to give the hair an upward sweep.

The bare-top, strapless formal is not for the middle-aged woman whose shoulders are over-plump and who may have a roll of flesh on the upper portion of the back. Soft, short sleeves are more kindly.

LAST-MINUTE QUESTIONS ABOUT CHRISTMAS

Question: (1) How does the wife sign Christmas cards for herself, husband, and their child if she includes the family last name? Is she entitled the last name? (2) Is red ink in good taste if it complements the card? On envelopes too?—Reader

Answer: (1) When a child's name is included in the signature, the father's name comes first: Jonathan, Mary, and Peter Robbinson. Or the signature may be: The Robbinsons, Jonathan, Mary and Peter. Or "Greetings from the three Robbinsons, Jonathan, Mary, and Peter." When the child's name is included, it would be natural, and proper, to include the last name. (2) Yes; it is proper to use the Christmas-red ink or the Christmas-green ink, either in writing the message and signature on the cards themselves, or on the envelopes. Some people even vary festively write with red ink and dot the i's and cross the t's with green ink, or vice versa.

Question: "I have known a certain boy for over a year, and for the past few months we have been dating and seeing each other after school once or twice a week. As things now stand I would not be surprised if he gave me a gift for Christmas. I am only 15 years old, and we are just good friends. Should I give him a gift for Christmas? — B.B.

Answer: I'm pretty sure that your mother would agree with me that it would be best for you not to start the gift-giving. If you give him a Christmas present and he doesn't give you one, you'll both be embarrassed. However, if your mother consents to this idea, you might buy a handkerchief with the initial of his last name on it, or a record you think he'd like, and be "prepared" to give him this attractively wrapped, if he gives you a present. But don't even consider giving him an expensive present, a too-personal and expensive present.

Question: I have been going steady with a girl, 15 years old, since the beginning of September. I am 16. This girl has two younger brothers, one 9 years old, the other 10. I have been told that it would not be proper for me to give Christmas presents to her parents and her brothers. I think it would be all right, but as I want her parents to like me and to think I am well-mannered, I would deeply appreciate if you set me right on this.—Jack.

Answer: I suggest that, on Christmas Day or the day before you take to the girl's family a general gift that can be enjoyed by all. For example: - a Christmas fruit cake; or a good-sized assortment of special candies, festive Christmas candies; or a box of crystallized fruits; or a box of salted nuts.

Question: Which of the following forms is correct for us to use to sign our Christmas cards (names included):

(1) The Bensons—Bill, Betty, Beth, and Bobby (Bobby being the first-born)

(2) The Bensons—Bill, Betty, Beth, and Bobby (of the Top Club dress "the lady first")

(3) Or does it depend entirely on personal preference? — M.S.

Answer: The father's name first, when children's names are included . . . as you have correctly suggested—in both examples. When children's names are included in order of their age, the oldest first.

name first: Bill, Betty, Beth, and Bobby. However, it is equally correct to give the children's names like best the order of the girl's

Christmas Dinner for Whole Family

By Mary Moore

Writing a column—talking to an unseen audience every day—is fine on ordinary days, but when the wonderful Christmas day rolls round I feel a tug. I want to see you. I want to say "Merry Christmas" face to face.

Your letters to me all through the year say "Merry Christmas" in effect. I will content myself, when I am eating my Christmas dinner at my brother's home with my family and his all round, with the thought that while we may be eating widely differing menus we are a strong family people observing a religious holiday—the significance of which we are constantly aware. With all my heart I hope you feel this is.

My beloved friend Barb raised, by the sweat of her and her husband's brow, 30 turkeys—15 White Hollands and 15 Broad-breasted Bronze. It is one of these gigantic broad-breasted Bronzes of Barb's which grew to tip the scales, live weight, at 30 pounds, that we will feast from on Saturday—fourteen of us ranging in ages from 9 to 75.

Three-Fruit Cocktail or Consomme with Toasted Almonds or Croutons
Roast Turkey Stuffing
Giblet Gravy
Cranberry Relish
Dauphin Potatoes
Christmas Succotash
Or French String Beans with Mushrooms a la
Cucumber Salad Molds with Stuffed Celery Sticks
Plum Pudding Foamy or Hard Sauce
Mixed Salted Nuts Coffee

The Three-Fruit Cocktail: One part each sliced fresh or frozen strawberries, halved green seedless grapes, canned Mandarin orange sections and juice or canned grapefruit sections and juice. Chill thoroughly. Very pretty when in their proper setting, for a first glimpse of the Christmas dinner table.

Dauphin Potatoes are glorified Potato Croquettes. I gave you the recipe in October. They are recommended for two reasons: (1) flavor and (2) they may be made 24 hours ahead and heated and browned in oven during last 20 minutes before dinner is announced.

Christmas Succotash is fresh or frozen peas or and limas with kernel corn and finely chopped pimento, buttered and well seasoned.

CUCUMBER SALAD MOLDS
(13 Individual)

These are new and delicious and including because they may be made 24 hours in advance. Pare, quarter, remove seeds and chop finely enough cucumber to make 2 cups well-packed. Season the cucumber with 2 teaspoons salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Mix 2 cups thick commercial sour cream with 6 tablespoons spirit vinegar, 1-4 cup chopped chives or green onion tops. Soak 2 tablespoons gelatin 1-4 cup cold water, then dissolve it by stirring over hot water. Add to the sour-cream mixture, then add chopped cucumber and mix well. Pour into 13 small molds (about 1-3 cup size) and chill until firm. Unmold on bed of watercress or endive and garnish with cheese-stuffed celery sticks. Very popular and attractive. No mayonnaise.

Foamy Sauce must be made just before using. If you don't want to keep an eye out.

LITTLE GIRLS' hair ribbons look their best, of course, if any a wrinkle is in sight. When you wash them, wrap them wet on a round jar, and no ironing will be needed. It's easy to make them smooth when they're dripping.—Sister can do it herself.

this last-minute job, make Hard Sauce the day before.

I hope to have space for details of some of your last-minute preparations tomorrow or next day.

GRACEFUL GREATCOAT

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Dark gray woollen is used for a handsome greatcoat, a very important fashion just now, since this type of coat has received endorsement all over the country. This one has a collar of black velvet and a black satin lining. The double-breasted panels and buttons widens toward the hips and the coat is not too fitted at the waist. The fullness makes itself seen at a lower mark than has been the case in other seasons. Slant-flap pockets are placed low to accent the line.

Business was dealt with. The January meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Webster, of Bannockburn.

Christmas Concerts

WHITE'S CHURCH S.S.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Despite the inclement weather on Tuesday evening a good crowd of parents and friends assembled at White's Church to hear the annual Christmas concert put on by the young members, assisted by a few of the older members and teachers who also helped with the necessary decorations.

As one stepped inside all was bright and cheery. At the front of the church was the gaily decorated tree, loaded with presents for young and old.

The pastor, the Rev. R. W. T. Middleton, called the gathering to order, and the opening chorus, "The Merry Christmas Time," was well received. Little Miss Betty Sandercock gave the "Welcome" to all, then Mr. Middleton officially welcomed all. Carol singing was enjoyed by the congregation with Mrs. Floyd Dudley as pianist for "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "Silent Night" and "O Come All Ye Faithful."

A pageant, "The Coming of Christmas in Korea" was portrayed by Sylvia Bilham as Mary, Clayton Drouillard as Joseph; Audrey Bowers, Nancy Hockaday, Suzanne Hockaday, Vicky Glyden, Joanna Gainforth and Sheila Caves as angels; Larry Bilham, Anne Blong and Gail Gingras as shepherds; Ivs Drouillard, Dianne Dale and Billy Arthur as wise men; Kari Arthur as a missionary and Monty Drouillard and Gary Gingras as two Korean boys. At "Joy to the World" we sung Audrey Bowers lighted the candles.

At the close as all knelt about the baby Jesus, "Infant Holy," was sung. Mrs. Dudley played softly throughout.

"Little Son of Mary" was sung by Audrey Bowers, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Donald Bowers.

A play, "The Christmas Tree," was well done by Suzanne Hockaday, Audrey Bowers, Joanna Gainforth, Nancy Hockaday, Sylvia Bilham and Sheila Caves. This ended by all dancing around a small, decorated tree on the platform.

"No One Ever Got Eyestrain on Looking on the Brighter Side of Life." A reading by Mrs. Blackburn; several Christmas carols were sung; a poem, "The Day After Christmas," was read. An exchange of gifts was much enjoyed.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and assistants and a social half hour much enjoyed.

Joanna Gainforth recited "Little Jack Frost" and Suzanne Hockaday delighted all by singing "I Saw Mamma Kissing Santa Claus."

DIALOGUE

A dialogue, "One Candle," was presented by Mrs. George Bilham as Grandma Beck, and Gail Gingras, Anne Blong, Audrey Bowers, Sylvia Bilham, Marilyn Bowers, Nancy Hockaday and Dianne Dale as choristers.

Debbie Glyden recited "Merry Christmas," throwing a kiss to all. John Hunt could hardly wait until Christmas in "Just Ten Days More." Audrey Bowers and Sylvia Bilham sang "O Master of the Loving Heart," accompanied by Mrs. D. Bowers.

Ivs Drouillard showed plainly, "I Pays to Pray."

A chorus, "Christmas", was given by Mrs. George Bilham, Mrs. Albert Hockaday, Gail Gingras, Anne Blong and Marilyn Bowers, accompanied by Mrs. F. Dudley.

Mrs. R. W. T. Middleton recited "Why the Chimes Rang." Recitations, "I Want What I Want," "King of Kings" and "Santa Claus" were given by Vicky Glyden, Audrey Bowers and Sylvia Bilham.

Mrs. George Caves sang "Here Comes Santa Claus" with the audience joining in. Santa arrived and caused much merriment, He distributed bags of candy, nuts and an orange to all the children, then called on some of the older girls and boys to give out the presents. In the primary grade and junior grade Larry Bilham and Audrey Bowers received prizes for best attendance.

All children received presents from their teachers. Barbara Sandercock wished Santa "A Merry Christmas" before he departed, then all joined in singing the National Anthem.

RAWDON

Daisy M. B. Elects Officers

RAWDON — Wellman's Daisy Mission Band held its Christmas meeting Sunday morning in the church vestry under the leadership of Mrs. Burton Morton, who conducted the Christmas worship service when several carols were sung.

The Christmas Bible story found in Matthew 2, was read by Richard Dracup, David Heagle and Yvonne King.

The leader outlined "The Meaning of Christmas."

The Christmas thankoffering was a bit unique as each child was to earn the money, write the story of how they did it on the back of an old Christmas card and hand it in with their gift. The leader then read the cards and the children enjoyed the novel idea.

A story followed about a missionary boy in India, entitled "Only a Stable." The band has five life members and a small number of annual members and they have raised over $90 this year.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The new slate of officers was elected as follows:

President, Jimmie Chumbley; vice-president, Allan Fletcher; secretary, Yvonne King; treasurer, Richard Dracup; pianist, Mildred Morton; leader, Mrs. Burton Morton; assistant to be appointed.

Thirteen children were in attendance at this meeting. They all received their "World Friends" and Mrs. Morton gave each child a special treat, at this Christmas meeting.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Selection of Christmas cards may give you worriment, and scouring through the telephone book for addresses may produce headaches, but whatever the trouble, these activities are important. They herald the day when the entire Christian world joins in celebrating, "Peace on earth, good will to all men."

One may be inclined to look backward at Christmas time. If one looks far enough, one finds that early Christmas observances on the continent took place in a crude chapel, much like the bark-covered long houses of the Hurons. This was the Mission Ste. Marie near the eastern tip of Georgian Bay.

To that wild land of forests and roaring waters, Jean de Brebeuf, Norman noble and kin of the Dukes of Arundel, had come as a Jesuit missionary. And there under the constellations of the Northern winter, he brought the Indians Father to sing to the tune of the Breton "Une Jeune Pucelle", a Christmas carol he had written for them in their own language.

That's something worth thinking about as one struggles through mailing lists, with its late omissions, and Christmas shopping, and dressing the tree, and providing the turkey. We don't have any idea of the words of the Brebeuf carol, though no doubt it was a simple and reverent piece of versification. As simple as the days before premature tinsel and baubles, store-windows full of electric trains, black lace and ties which once were considered too gaudy to wear.

So let us forget the crowded stores, the wrecks and weeks of "The Red Nosed Reindeer" and the other items which Tlapan Alley cuts in on the Christmas dollar, and with Thackeray:

I wish you health, and love and mirth,
As fits the solemn Christmas-tide.
As fits the holy Christmas birth,
Be this good friends, our carol still . . .
Be peace on earth, be peace on earth.
To men of gentle will.

Second Best Year for Business, Industry in History of U.S.

By L. A. SHOWN

NEW YORK (AP)—Things look good for '55. That's how the U.S. business situation shapes up now.

A year ago, those who predict the course of the economy were not as cheerful about the outlook for 1954. Some saw depression ghosts. It didn't work out that way.

Business did slow down from its fast post-war pace in the first half of the year. It picked up speed in the fall and now is rolling along at a rate that means prosperity for most people.

AIR OF CONFIDENCE

And that is the way it should continue in 1955, predict the majority of private and public experts.

This year was the second best for business and industry in the history of the U.S. Give or take a few soft spots, it was not too far behind the smashing record set in 1953.

There are hard reasons why the prospects for the New Year are considered rosy. Here are some:

1. The 1953 economy was sparked by an amazing building boom, principally in private building. It is confidently expected the boom in building will roll along in 1955, and some believe it may top the 1954 record of $37,500,000,000.

2. Expectation that the gross national product (the value of all goods and services) may top the 1954 figure of $336,000,000,000 by five per cent. Henry G. Riley Jr., newly-elected president of the National Association of Manufacturers, thinks it may exceed the 1953 record of $365,000,000,000.

3. A slow decline in retail prices, perhaps 2 to 3½ per cent, stimulating sales.

4. A rise in consumer spending. Prudential Insurance Co. economists believe there may be a bulge of $9,000,000,000 over 1954.

5. Continued high production in the automobile industry—and continued tough competition. Most industry sources see another big volume year, with predictions that production of passenger cars may reach 6,000,000. It was 5,398,000 in 1954.

SALES FACE CONTINUES

6. Expectation that first-quarter sales will equal and perhaps top those of 1954 and the belief the pace will continue through 1955. That's what many representative business men said at the annual meeting.

7. Employment to equal the 1954 mark of 62,000,000. There likely will be some cause for concern in January and February when unemployment is expected to increase more than seasonally and may reach 4,000,000. However, employment is expected to pick up perhaps more sharply than usual after an early-year slump.

Most all of the economists assert they see no boom, as such, in 1955. Rather, they see steady economic conditions, sparked by lively competition, with the consumer having a little better than he had in the last several years.

Agriculture is one soft spot. In 1954, there was a six-per-cent drop in net farm earnings. Real farm income, as measured by the farmers' buying power, was brought to the lowest level in 10 years. Net income in 1955 may be slightly below that of 1954.

500 HOUSES LOST

CAIRO (AP)—Floods caused by torrential rains in upper Egypt have swept away 500 houses in the town of Kena and 4,000 persons are homeless. Seventy tons of supplies from the Committee of American Remittances Everywhere are being rushed to Kena by rail.

U.S. Air Force Unit Tests Radar Screen Across Canada Searching Out 'Blind Spots'

POPE'S CHOICE AS SUCCESSOR

Cardinal Montini (above), archbishop of Milan, is believed to be the Pope's choice as a successor in the event of his death, Cardinal Montini recently received his red hat at the Vatican.—Central Press Canadian.

By VERN HAUGLAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Air Force disclosed today that a small and hitherto secret unit has been searching out "blind spots" in the Canadian-U.S. radar screen.

The intent is to find and plug all the gaps in the radar chain, designed as a continuous system, across Canada to spot possible attacking planes.

An air force spokesman said the unit also has been testing electronic counter-measures—means of jamming an enemy's radar and radio transmissions and of countering enemy attempts to do the same.

The unit was identified as the 4677th radar evaluation flight. It has been working for a year out of Hill air force base near Ogden, Utah. A flight is the smallest of air force units, less than a squadron of planes.

PINPOINT BAD SPOTS

The central air defence force at Grandview, Mo., said the primary mission of the flight is to calibrate or measure the coverage of radar equipment.

Accurate mapping of the radar range would pinpoint any blind spots caused by interference of one kind or another, so that defence planners could identify the areas to be covered by other means, such as by ground observation or by auxiliary radar units.

Although the area in which the work has been done was not outlined, it is believed to be primarily in what is called the "pine tree" radar chain, southernmost of three radar defence lines planned to guard the northern approaches to the continent.

The pine tree chain extends across the populated areas of southern Canada. It was built jointly by Canada and the U.S.

SECOND SYSTEM

Last April the governments of Canada and the United States announced plans for establishment of the second radar system "generally to the north of the settled territory in Canada."

This "mid-Canada line" was to be financed, built and operated by Canada alone. Last September the two governments jointly announced plans to build the "DEW" or distant early warning line across the far northern part of North America.

Brig.-Gen. James C. Jensen, head of the air force operational plans division, was sent to Ottawa as co-ordinator of U.S. air force activities in Canada.

Jensen's job will be concerned primarily with construction of the DEW line and operation of the mid-Canada line.

The 47-year-old general said in a recent interview that the DEW line would provide the U.S. northern border with about three hours' advance warning on the approach of 300-mile-an-hour jet bombers.

Jensen said plans currently are being completed for an early start on the line.

Biologists Can Tell Age of Moose By Their Teeth

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario lands and forests department announced Monday its biologists have discovered means to apply the teeth-examination method of "ageing" deer to learn the age of moose.

Wildlife biologists have for several years been able to determine the age of deer by examining the animals' teeth.

Dr. David Fowle, of the department's research station at Maple, Ont., says during the last year this method has been successfully applied to moose.

Like children, Dr. Fowle says, deer lose their baby teeth and these are replaced by permanent ones. The presence of loose milk teeth indicates the animal is about 18 months old. A full set of teeth with high, sharp ridges on the crowns indicates a two-year-old. Wear on the crowns indicates greater age.

"There seems to be a good deal more variation in moose and indications of age in the older animals are more subtle "Dr. Fowle says. "We will have to do more work on that problem. At present, only a very few of our biologists are sufficiently experienced to age moose."

Age information aids the department in determining population, life-span and needs for conservation of these animals in the province.

UNEXPECTED RICHES

Mrs. Etta Mae Stricker, 45, of Windsor, Ont., has been informed she is one of three heirs to a $2,000,000 fortune left by a late uncle, Robert Scott, who died last summer in Tampa, Fla. A deeply religious woman, Mrs. Stricker said her share of the fortune will be used in the work of the Lord. She is shown here with her son, Robert, 15; her husband, Douglas, 48, and a daughter, Jean, 8. She has another daughter, Beverley Anne, 10. (CP Photo).

Capital Punishment Question Again to Fore in Britain

By DAVE MASON

LONDON (AP) — Britons once again are asking themselves: Should capital punishment be abolished?

Uneasiness hangs over press and Parliament. On Dec. 15 a notice was posted on Halloway jail's grey wooden doors:

"Judgment of death was this day executed on Styllou Pantopiou Christofi . . ."

The 53-year-old Cypriot grandmother, convicted of strangling her daughter - in - law, was the first woman hanged in London in 31 years.

The jail doctor had declared Mrs. Christofi insane.

She refused to plead insanity, but the report of the jail doctor was available to Home Secretary Gwylim Lloyd George, who has the final say in the question of reprieves.

Nearly 50 Labor members of Parliament signed a motion expressing "extreme disquiet" over the case. The motion asked the government to "declare its policy upon the whole question of capital punishment."

The Star noted: "True, it was a peculiarly horrid crime. But inevitably the grim case . . . has revived the question of abolishing the death penalty . . . we still think abolition ought to be given an extended trial . . ."

The Daily Herald: "Hanging—is this barbarism? There is a great uneasiness over Mrs. Christofi's death, even among those who believe in hanging."

The Daily Sketch: "Even people who are not opponents of capital punishment may, however, be concerned lest in this peril—for case there has been an error."

Dr. Edith Summerskill, a leading Labor MP, said: "The only

Acquitted Youth To Face Second Murder Charge

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—A 24-year-old Montreal student, acquitted Saturday of the fatal shooting of an elderly farmer, today was ordered preliminary hearing Jan. 17 to face a second murder charge arising from the slaying of the farmer's wife.

Acquitted by a 12-man jury was Gilles Boisjoly, tried in connection with the slaying of 83-year-old Josephat Therrien. The farmer and his wife were found shot to death Oct. 18 in their farm home at the nearby Laurentian town of Val David.

Boisjoly and 15-year-old Guy Desrochers, also of Montreal, were arrested shortly after the bodies were found. Desrochers is undergoing mental examination and his murder trial in connection with the farmer's death is set for Jan. 17, the same date as Boisjoly's preliminary hearing on the second charge.

Mr. Justice Claude Prevost postponed Boisjoly's second case on request of crown prosecutor Lucien Thinel who said he wants to consult the Quebec attorney-general before taking further action.

Mr. Thinel's move came as a surprise to some, who believed he would ask for dismissal of the second charge in view of the boy's acquittal on the first charge.

possible excuse for capital punishment would be that it deterred people from killing. There is no evidence from any country to show that it does."

Several times in recent years, Britain has publicly worried about the death penalty. In 1953 strangler John Christie declared before he went to the gallows for one slaying that he had committed a murder for which another man, Timothy Evans, had been hanged. Suspicions were set off in the House of Commons and the case was reopened. A government inquiry-decided Christie had lied in taking the blame for the other murder.

Earlier in 1953, 19-year-old Derek Bentley was hanged for his part in the murder of a policeman. A younger accomplice, who fired the gun, was returned to jail. Another show of public indignation followed.

A royal commission has studied capital punishment methods, but it was not permitted to consider its abolition. Now some are urging that abolition be studied.

Under the Labor government in 1948, Britain scrapped capital punishment for a six-week trial period. Hanging was resumed after two men were convicted of murdering a child.

Expenditures For Entertainment In Montreal High

MONTREAL (CP) — When it comes to expenditures on civic entertainment, Montreal outdoes Toronto by a wide margin.

This was shown Monday in a comparison of amounts spent by the two cities over similar periods.

In 8½ years—May 1, 1953, to Nov. 1, 1954—under former mayor Camillien Houde, Montreal spent $260,319 on entertainment. During a similar period under former mayor Allan Lamport, Toronto spent 947,612.

Montreal newspaper men began delving through entertainment account, at city hall when a furore was raised in Toronto over expenditures by Lamport in a suite at the Royal York Hotel.

The search showed that the Montreal expenditures were listed under the general heading of "entertainment," with no breakdown given for amounts spent on liquor, hotels or food.

Mayor Jean Drapeau, elected to office Oct. 25 to replace the ailing Mr. Houde, has not yet announced what his policy will be with respect to entertainment expenditures.

COLD IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The Mexican capital shivered Monday in the year's coldest weather, which has claimed at least three lives. Temperatures dropped 25 degrees this morning and a heavy frost killed flowers and tender plants.

Campbellford Beats Stirling In TVL Fixture

MARMORA — Campbellford and Stirling participated in a high scoring hockey fixture at the Marmora Arena on Friday evening with the former team acquiring victory by the score of 13-8.

In the first period after Free and Fields had opened scoring for the winners Stirling tied temporarily with goals from the sticks of Robson and McMurray, but before the period closed Earp, Blake and Louth, rapped in another three to make it 5-2.

In the second the Stirling squad by dint of persistence came within an ace of tieing again as McMurray beat Mulholland for the second time with Stapley getting their fourth goal in the next minute. In less than five minutes Earp led off on another Campbellford scoring spree between which and his next and third goal Lee and Kemp also beat Jeffs. In the meanwhile Knapton added another for Stirling but Herrington placed his team another goal up just before the period closed.

The scoring see-sawed somewhat in the third with Jeffs, Dooher and Blake registering for the winners and the brothers Bastedo getting a goal apiece and Ackert two goals for Stirling.

With only nine penalties all told, the game was clean fought and such as to give promise of both teams furnishing stiffer opposition when more seasoned. The attendance was close to a hundred.

Stirling: Rose, D. Bastedo, Tanner, Wright, B. Bastedo, Stapley, Knapton, Day, Ingram, Ackert, Robson, O'Brien, Hurst, McMurray.

Campbellford: Mulholland, Louth, Blake, Payne, Herrington, Free, Earp, Pace, Jeffs, Hay, Dooher, Lee, Kemp, Petherick, Fields.

Referees: T. Cousins, Deloro; F. Steward, Deloro.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma finished the last page of her new book, saying to pop, William, I'm going to get my money back for this book.

Who's going to give it to you? pop said, and ma said, The publishers. They garanteed to refund your money if the book didn't hold your interist from cover to cover, and there was quite a long patch in the middle where the man acted like a perfect hooley. The girl was being bounded by a ruthless forriner named Count Ambrosia, at least he claimed he was a count, and the man knew very well that this Ambrosia was a cad of the derst water, so the whole thing was all his fault for not warning the girl, but when the mischief was done he carried on like a perfect cry baby, and how could a weak caracter like that possibly hold any reeder's interist from cover to cover? ma said.

Do you mean you actually let the book drop from your listless fingers somewiwere between the covers? pop said, and ma said, Goodness no, I was perfectly breathless to see if he could really be stupid enough to let matters take their coarse without lifting a finger, but you could hardly call that in- she said.

What could you hardly call it? pop ..... and ma said, Nothing more nor less than naturel resentment, and I dont think it's fair for the publishers to expect me to pay for righteous indignation when they promised me continuous interist, and what's so funny about that, William?

Oh, nothing about that, pop said, I'm laffing at a story I heard about a woman who had 13 children although she was married 12, he said, and ma said, Now is that funny?

It must be, it's making me laff, pop said.

And he laffed again to prove it.major league baseball. . . .

Three Members Of Line Leading Scoring Race

NEW YORK (AP)—The Cleveland Baron high-scoring forward line of Fred Glover, Eddie Olson and Jackie Gordon held down the first three places in the American Hockey League scoring race today.

Glover continued as the leader with 43 points on 17 goals and 26 assists, while Olson was in second place with 22 goals, 18 assists for 40 points. Gordon, who fell to fourth place last week, regained third spot with 25 points. Olson's goal total of 22 and Gordon's 26 assists led the league in those departments.

Pat Egan, playing-coach of the Providence Reds, took over as penalty leader with 78 minutes.

Veteran Gil Mayer of the Pittsburgh Hornets held a slight edge over rookie Don Simmons of the Springfield Indians for goaltending honors. Mayer has an average of 2.82 on 79 goals allowed in 28 games while Simmons has given up 54 goals in 195 games for a 2.84 average.

Ted Williams Likely to Play Next Season

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Post says Ted Williams, just voted baseball's "comeback of 1954," will announce his decision to return to the game by next month.

In his daily column, Gerry Hern says Williams will continue his repeated denials that he plans to return to left field for the Boston Red Sox until he informs Sox owner Tom Yawkey of his decision.

The Boston slugger, plagued by a painful shoulder injury and pneumonia which forced him to sit out part of last season, announced at the end of the 1954 season he was through.

Says Hern in his column:

"Ted Williams is returning to baseball. His decision will be announced late next month. The decision to return has hinged upon the settlement of a personal matter which now is reported to have been worked out successfully and the home run hitting left fielder will return for two more years of big league baseball. . . .

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—When Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, returned from his tour of Russia last summer, he said firmly that he had seen nothing whatsoever which would lead him to believe that the Soviet Union was doing any bigger job of subduing its athletes than has long been done in other countries which subscribe to the amateur code.

Possibly aware that his words had not been swallowed whole, Brundage now backs them up with a statement from Nicolai Romanov, head of Soviet's department of physical culture, which leaves no room for misinterpretation. So far as we are aware, this is the first time a responsible figure in the Russian sports scene made an official effort to still all subdivision rumors.

RULES UNDERSTOOD

Writing in the current issue of the IOC's bulletin, published in Switzerland, Brundage says that in two long conferences Romanov emphasized to him that the principal objective of his program is the health and well being of the Russian people, with competitive sport only incidental. He quotes Romanov as saying:

"We know, believe in, and respect olympic rules. We have, and want, no 'professional' athletes in the U.S.S.R. We operate no special training camps for the athletes in the U.S.S.R. We give no special inducements, cash prizes, or other material rewards to our athletes. We believe champion athletes have moral and social responsibilities, as well, that they should keep up with their work and studies

Worsley Fined For Acting As Peacemaker

TORONTO (CP)—Lorne (Gump) Worsley's part as a peacemaker in two fights at last Saturday night's National Hockey League game here between New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs will cost him a $50 fine, it was learned Monday night.

The diminutive New York goalie skated from his net Saturday night in an attempt to help break up fights between Toronto's Ted Kennedy and Rangers' Harry Howell and Eric Nesterenko of Leafs and Jack Evans.

The NHL classifies goalies as non-combatants, and though Gump didn't throw a punch or raise his voice—his good-will excursion will cost him $50, an automatic fine levied by the NHL on goalies who leave their nets during fights.

first, and that they should set a good example for the youth of the country.

"We do not believe in mixing sport and international politics."

What Brundage succeeded in doing, obviously, was to get the Russians flatly on the record. From here on, if any arguments arise as to that country's attitude toward the Olympic rules, there can be no question that it fully understands its obligations. That' making progress.

Page Jailed For Non-Support

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Joe Page, former star relief pitcher of the New York Yankees, was jailed by Magistrate Harry Lyons on charges of desertion and non-support.

The charges were preferred by Page's wife.

Constable Edward Roenick said he served a warrant on Page at the tavern operated by the former pitcher near Irwin, Pa.

Page tried a comeback with the National League's Pittsburgh Pirates in the 1954 season but was released.

"Christmas dinner is more fun for everyone if you carve with skill and confidence. So here are a few hints that might be of help to you when you are faced with that sizzling turkey."

Mr. Henri Delapierre, Café International

Start with the legs. Hold the drumstick, insert knife between thigh and body and cut to the joint with even strokes. Pull leg outwards and cut through joint. Then separate thigh from drumstick.

After carving drumstick by holding the bone and slicing downwards through flesh, start on thigh meat. Do not attempt to bare the bone too completely. Leave that to the finger technique exponents.

Press down the wing with the fork and make a cut just above joint to body frame. Use pressure to disjoint if necessary. The wing may then be severed completely from the body and removed.

Slice the breast with downward, diagonal strokes, starting each cut a little higher than the one before. When most is largely removed cut a hole above thigh joint for removal of the dressing.

SECOND PLACE IN SIGHT!

The Belleville Memos will have their sights set on second place when they begin their two-game series with the last place Peterborough Petes at Memorial Arena tonight. They should make it but there's many a slip between their own blueline and Jack Dunlevy's net.

So far this season the Petes have had a miserable time, winning only three and tying another three out of 20 games for nine points, and all of their points have been picked up at home. Going by these statistics, the fact that the local club has been travelling at a pretty hot pace lately and that we have picked up three out of a possible four points against playing coach Eddie Redmon's crew so far this year, the odds favor the Memos to at least win here tonight, and maybe make it two in a row on the Petes' ice come Wednesday eve.

One win would assure us of a second place tie with Cornwall when the league takes its Christmas holiday starting Thursday. The Colts are idle until Sunday, thus giving the local club a better chance of passing them or at least tying for the runner-up spot.

• • •

It will be the third meeting of the two teams this winter and so far the Petes have caused little trouble. Boucher's boys banded out a solid 4-1 setback in early November on local ice. It was a little different story last time with the tail-enders shoving power in the Littlest City last leading 5-1 and time had the Memos unloaded in the final session to pull out 5-5 tie.

Tonight's clash should be a wild one with the Petes' hard-hitting defencemen Redmond, Montgomery and McMaster, backing up Dunlevy. All of these boys can shoot and the forwards plenty of trouble before and Dunlevy is rated by many as one of the top netminders in the league when he gets the proper protection.

• • •

AT FULL STRENGTH

The Memos, meanwhile, are expected to be at full strength with three lines and four defencemen in front of Tony Parisi. Tony came up with a great game in Kingston the other night and will likely get the nod over Barclay to tend the twins. Wilson, playing much better hockey since Muckler was switched to forward, has been a tower of strength and the scoring has been divided among all the players. Not like last winter when the three-D line was the big threat, the opposition finds now that any one of four or five combinations can blink the red light.

It all adds up to a powder-keg of action and grit under way at 8.30 p.m. instead of the usual 8.30, due to the storm being open for the late Christmas shoppers.

HERE AND THERE

Johnny Meckler's winning goal in Kingston on Saturday night was his first of the year and now all the Memos have scored at least once except the goalkeepers .... Erwin Duncan is top man on the club in goals with 13 while "Wobbly" Day follows right behind with 12. Erwin has 21 assists to lead in that department, while Bobby Wilson's 36 minutes in the sin-bin gives him the badman honors .... Orillia Pontiac dealer Bert Shortreed, Vic Craig, for six weeks. The ex-Toronto Maple Leaf suffered a broken ankle in a game with Stouffville last week .... No outside rinks for the public school kids this winter. We remember the last time they played the rinks in the school yards but the warm weather prevented much use of them .... The Memos and Whitby have played more games in the schedule than any other club so far they have seen action 23 times while Kingston and Cornwall have had 21 outings and the Petes and Clinton an even 20 .... All minor hockey for this week has been cancelled but will continue Now Year's week-end. Whitby's Canadian Legion Brockton last Friday saw Tommy O'Connor score four of his team's six goals. They were the important ones, too, numbers three, four, five and six, of each other. The Wrens had only nine men dressed for the last two coming in the overtime period within a minute that game with the rest fighting an equally hard battle against the "fin bug ..... The Brockville Maroons follow up their league battle with Kingston tonight by entertaining the Ottawa Senators in an exhibition tilt on Thursday eve .... Happy to report that the boss is out of the hospital and should be back in action tomorrow .... Kingston ragged in two overtime goals last night to defeat Whitby 6-4.

Leaders Pick Up Eighteen Points in Three Games; Splurge Big Factor in 3 Wins by Team

MONTREAL (CP)—The big four of Montreal Canadiens picked up 18 points in three games last week and continued to dominate the National Hockey League scoring parade.

This splurge was a big factor in the three wins by Canadiens, who now hold a five-point margin over Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, tied for second place.

Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion counted two goals and two assists and remains on top with 21 points. He is league-leader also with goals scored, his total now at 22.

GOT NO. 400

Maurice (Rocket) Richard bagged two goals—one of them the coveted No. 400 in his NHL career —and also gathered in three assists. At 33 points, made up of 18 goals and 16 assists, Richard is tied for second place with teammate Jean Beliveau, who collected three goals and had two assists. Beliveau has 33 points, both points harvesting two goals and two assists for a 6-point week.

Gordie Howe of the Red Wings, getting back into scoring stride after a layoff because of injuries, picked up five points on a goal and four assists and moved into fifth place ahead of teammate Alex Delvecchio, who had one goal and three assists. Howe and Delvecchio each have 26 points. Howe being ranked higher because he has had scored 10 goals to Delvecchio's eight.

Sid Smith of Toronto Maple Leafs, only player in the league to score four goals last week, contributed two assists also and moved from an 11th place tie into seventh spot with 25 points.

Four players are grouped at 24 points — Bert Olmstead of Montreal, Gerard Cheeks bone, relegated to the Montreal nets. His average, including goals by his relief men, is 2.15.

Willie Mays Male Athlete Of Year in AP Poll

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Mays, the sensational young centrefielder who led New York Giants to a pennant and world series sweep in his first full year in the major leagues today was selected as the "male athlete of the year" for 1954 in The Associated Press year-end poll.

The 23-year-old batting and fielding wonder beat out miracle miler Roger Bannister of England by 33 points for the honor in the AP's 24th annual poll of sports writers and sportscasters.

The kid from Fairfield, Ala., winner of the National League's batting championship and chosen as the league's most valuable player, received 28 first-place votes from a panel of 122, and 185 points on a basis of three points for first, two for second and one for a third-place vote.

BROKE MILE BARRIER

Bannister, the tall, slender, 25-year-old doctor, who first broke the four-minute mile barrier in May, and then roared from behind to edge Australia's John Landy in the "mile of the century" in August, received 36½ first place votes and a total of 150 points.

In third place, far behind the two leaders, came Landy with 71½ first-place votes and 60 points. The Australian followed Bannister's monumental short - lived 3:59.4 world record with a spectacular 3.58 performance in Turku, Finland, June 21.

Fourth in the voting was Carl (Bobo) Olson, the Hawaiian-born middleweight boxing champion who successfully defended his 160-pound crown three times during the year. He was followed in order by heavyweight king Rocky Marciano, fullback Alan Ameche of Wisconsin; Frank Selvy, the basketballer of college and pro basketball fame; Ed Furgol, the surprise winner of the U.S. National open golf title; Dusty Rhodes the Giants' pinch hitter de luxe, and Maglie Gagliesi, Notre Dame all-America quarterback.

Probably Not Getting Enough Says Smythe

TORONTO (CP)—If televising of Toronto Maple Leaf National Hockey League games forced Ottawa Senators out of the National Hockey League, "then we're not getting enough money for our television," Conn Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, said Monday night.

"I don't think anybody is qualified to say what TV does," Smythe said in commenting on statements by Tommy Gorman, Ottawa club owner who announced Monday night that he was giving up his GM1. franchise because the NHL TV from Toronto dropped Ottawa attendance to one-third of what it was two years ago.

"I know that last year St. Catharines people were served over TV competing with their Saturday night games, but had the best year they ever had in attendance at games because they had a good attraction."

(St. Catharines TeePees of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League won the Memorial Cup last year.)

"If you have a good attraction you won't have to worry," Smythe said.

ORDER INQUEST

PEMBROKE (CP)—An inquest has been ordered into the death of Alvin Cox, 18, whose lightly clad body was found in the garage of his home Monday. The inquest was ordered after a post - mortem showed the youth, wearing only a pair of trousers and a sweat shirt, had died of exposure in the draughty building on the family farm four miles from this Ottawa valley town.

Gerry McNamara of the league-leading Toronto St. Michael's College Majors holds a slim lead in the goaltending race. He has allowed 36 goals in 22 games for an average of 2.34. Johnny Allard of Toronto Marlboros has been beaten 37 times in 19 games for a 3.9 average.

Goalie on Losing Side in Both Games Sunday

TORONTO (CP)—Little Marvin Edwards, regular goaltender for the St. Catharines TeePees of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, played a hockey doubleheader Sunday—for two different teams in two different cities, and in two different countries.

He was on the losing side both times.

After the TeePees dropped a 4-2 decision to Toronto St. Michael's College Majors, Edwards was driven to Buffalo for an American League game between Buffalo Bisons and Pittsburgh Hornets. The Bisons, parent team of the TeePees, lost 3-2 in overtime.

Bob Grim of Yankees Named Rookie of Year in American

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Grim, a 24-year-old ex-marine who never pitched higher than class A before he made the grade with New York Yankees last spring, today was named American League "rookie of the year" by the Baseball Writers Association of America, Inc.

The righthanded pitcher, who finished with a 20-6 record, received 12 first-place votes to runner-up Jim Finigan, the fine third baseman who was one of the New Yankee chain to star at Philadelphia (now Kansas City) polled seven first place votes and went to Al Kaline, Detroit's fleet outfielder.

In contrast with the balloting for most valuable player, there are no second or third place votes in the rookie competition. Each of the 24 committee members, three from each league city, selects only one man.

Last year's winner was Detroit shortstop Harvey Kuenn.

Ottawa Senators Bow to TV, Drop Out of Quebec League

MONTREAL (CP)—Ottawa Senators bowed to competition from television Monday night and withdrew from the Quebec Hockey League.

A special meeting of league officials accepted the withdrawal after Ottawa owner T. P. (Tommy) Gorman announced plans of National Hockey League games for cutting gate receipts to about one-third of the 1952-53 season.

Gorman first sought to have the league grant him the right to suspend operations for the remainder of the 1954-55 season. When told that the action was not permitted under the league's constitution, he said he had no alternative but to withdraw.

The league made no immediate plans to seek a replacement for Ottawa as the sixth team in the loop or to draw up a five-team schedule.

Gorman said receipts for the first 10 home games this year were $15,621, compared with $27,362 for the same number of games last season and $44,300 in 1952-53. Television made its debut in Ottawa last season, the Ottawa owner pointed out, and crowds have been dwindling ever since.

Gorman, former owner of the Montreal Canadiens of the NHL, said all Saturday home games of the Toronto Maple Leafs are beamed to viewers in Ottawa, and 20 miles outside the city, set owners can also pick up the Montreal home games.

At an earlier meeting, Gorman announced that the players had volunteered to take a pay cut to enable the team to stay in the league.

Withdrawal of the fourth-place Senators leaves the league with teams from Montreal, Chicoutimi, Quebec, Valleyfield and Shawinigan Falls.

Marilyn's Swim of L. Ontario, Mile of Century and Canada's Defeat by Russia Highlights

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A little girl's spine-tingling swim across Lake Ontario, the British Empire Games with its Mile of the Century and a humiliating hockey defeat by Russia gave Canada an historic year in 1954 sports.

It was the year of Marilyn Bell's 32-mile conquest of choppy Lake Ontario waters, Dr. Roger Bannister and John Landy, the world's greatest milers, crashing through the four-minute barrier in the same race at Vancouver, and Moscow Dynamos' 7-3 victory over Toronto East York in the world amateur hockey championship.

Adding to the punch was the Grey Cup final. The limping Edmonton Eskimos won it Nov. 27 at Toronto with a thrilling 26-25 victory over the highly-favored Montreal Alouettes — biggest cup upset in its 45-year history.

HONORS EVEN

Almost lost in the glamor were East-West international competitions—hockey, curling, golf, basketball, lacrosse and tennis. Honors in such events were about evenly split.

Hockey interest, apart from Detroit Red Wings' seven-game Stanley Cup victory over Montreal Canadiens, was centered mainly on the world championship debacle. The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association was bitterly criticized for sending a senior B team to represent the country in one of its most cherished sports.

The Marilyn Bell story buried into the memories of fans. The 17-year-old Toronto girl, who matched herself against America's Florence Chadwick, crossed the Lake from Youngstown, N.Y., to the Canadian National Exhibition waterfront in Toronto in 20 hours and 56 minutes.

Florence attempted the swim for $10,000 from the CNE but quit because of seasickness far from her goal. Marilyn tried it "for Canada." A loving public showered her with gifts and cash totalling more than $50,000.

THE EMPIRE MILE

At Vancouver, Bannister, from London, England, and Landy, the Melbourne flier from Australia, hurtled millions last Aug. 7.

Bannister won the Empire mile with a sensational 3:58.8 on a magnificent last-quarter kick. Landy's time was 3:59.6.

The cheers of thousands at Toronto Stadium also went to Toronto's Ruth Ferguson who placed third in the mile with a 4:04.6, the fastest ever run by a Canadian.

Canada was third to England and Australia in the unofficial team standings. Canadians won nine of the 83 gold medals and ran up 339 points. England had 614½ points; Australia 363½.

WIN ROWING

Canada pulled a couple of surprising victories in the Games when University of British Columbia crew won the rowing eights and Bill Patrick of Calgary took the high-diving.

Other sport events hardly caused a stir in comparison. Penticton Vedrigged Sudbury Wolves 4-3 in the best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup and St. Catharines TeeTees captured the Memorial Cup and Ottawa Rough Riders won the Edmonton Oil Kings.

Pat Fletcher, from Saskatoon, won the Canadian open golf title at Vancouver—the first Canadian to do it in 46 years. Stan Leonard of Vancouver took the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tournament.

TAKES GOLF EVENT

The $28,300 Open at Toronto went to Bud Holscher of Santa Monica, Calif. Harvie Ward Jr., from San Francisco, won the Canadian Amateur and Grant Dearnaley of Montreal took the junior crown.

Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., won the Canadian women's open and close golf tournaments. But she lost the British women's Amateur she captured in 1953 when knocked out in the quarter-finals.

The Williston Lions went to British Columbia, Australia won the Canada Cup and the United States defeated Canada for the Hopkins Trophy.

In curling, Alberta skipped by 27-year-old Matt Baldwin of Edmonton, won the Canadian title for the fifth time. Ernie Richardson's Saskatchewan rink grabbed the schoolboy curling championship.

The West took most of the basketball honors. Winnipeg Paulins defeated Toronto Tri-Bells in the senior men's finals and Vancouver Marpoles won over Toronto Marlboros in the junior men's. Vancouver Ellers snatched the Canadian senior women's title and Toronto Globetrotters the Canadian junior event.

FOURTH STRAIGHT

Peterborough Trallermen won their fourth straight Canadian senior lacrosse crown and the Minto Cup. And Vancouver Indians came up with the junior championship for the Minto Cup.

Frances Dafoe and Norris Bowden, both of Toronto, won the world pairs figure-skating title at Oslo, Norway. In the Canadian championships, 16-year-old Barbara Gratton of Toronto beat Frances Dafoe's sister Christabrook 19, also of Toronto, retained the men's senior crown.

Anne Heggtveit, 15-year-old Ottawa girl, was a sensational winner of the ladies' giant slalom at the Holmenkollen ski festival at Oslo, Norway, over 36 top skiers from seven countries.

In tennis, Canada won the first round of the North American zone tie against Chile but was knocked out by Mexico in the semi-finals of Canadian, British and United States and Canadian players took the major titles in the Canadian tennis champions at Toronto.

Don Smythe of Toronto won his third straight Canadian men's lightweight boxing crown. Mart Shedd of Toronto took the women's singles crown.

Windsor AKO downed Winnipeg Rams 13-9 for Canadian junior football honors and Winnipeg upped Peterborough Orfums 16-12 to take the intermediate crown.

BOXING TITLE

Richard (Kid) Howard of Halifax captured the lightweight boxing crown AAU in a 12-each split decision over Armand Savoie of Montreal. Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., decisioned Doug Harper of Edmonton for the lightheavyweight title.

Toronto Maple Leafs won the International Baseball League pennant but were eliminated in the semi-finals of the Governor's Cup by Syracuse Chiefs. The Chiefs went on to defeat Montreal Royals for the cup.

Two fishermen made news. Gilmour Boe, 30, of Toronto won the world individual small-bore canoe title at Caracas, Venezuela. He hit 398 of 600 targets for a world record. Cdr. Norman A. Beckett of Hamilton, member of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, won the Governor-General's Gold Medal at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association shoot.

Collister, owned by the Bur-Fil Stable of Hamilton, Ont., won the $20,000-added Coaticook Plate classic at Toronto, beating the favored King Maple. Treberne, owned by the Whittier Park Farms of Wilmington, captured the $10,000-added Canadian Derby at Winnipeg.

Besides Marilyn Bell's feat, Toon Park of Hamilton crossed the 21-mile Catalina channel in September in 13 hours, 25 minutes, 35 seconds. That eclipsed Miss Chadwick's record by a few minutes.

Moore Suffers Sprained Ankle In Brief Scuffle

DETROIT (CP)—Forward Dick Moore of Montreal Canadiens suffered a badly sprained ankle and was engaged in a brief scuffle with Detroit Red Wing goalie Terry Sawchuk in Sunday night's National Hockey League game in which the Canadiens blanked the Wings 2-0.

Canadien coach Dick Irvin, who announced Moore's injury shortly before his club left for home Monday, did not indicate whether Moore will be kept out of the line-up.

Moore suffered his injury when he was checked by Detroit defenceman Marcel Pronovost.

Pronovost received a minor penalty for slashing.

Marshall Dann, a Detroit Free Press reporter who covered the game, says Sawchuk accused Moore of "taking a dive" or faking the injury. Dann says Moore threw a glove at the goalie.

No penalties were imposed for the Moore-Sawchuk incident.

Scalpers Asking and Getting $45 for Single Seat to Games

By WILL GRIMSLEY

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Scalpers are reported asking and getting — $45 for single-seat tickets today as excitement rose over the approaching Davis Cup challenge round pitting the home tennis forces against the United States.

Kaci Stephens, chairman of the organizing committee, said nothing could be done to prevent scalping legitimate tickets but warned fans against buying pasteboards that have been either stolen or counterfeited.

"They would be recognized immediately," Stephens said.

Stephens said a world record tennis crowd of 25,278 would see Australia defend the cup on each of the three days of the challenge round next week—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The round's gate will amount to an all-time high of $382,500. Top for the three-day series tickets is $33.75.

The seating capacity of White City Stadium has been more than doubled with the addition of 15,813 temporary seats.

Australia's Rex Hartwig is brimming with confidence after coming through a siege of mumps. But it was unlikely that he'll get into action unless Lew Hoad or Ken Rosewall completely folds.

"I have an athlete's build and I am not the least bit overweight," he said. "I have been taking exercises to keep in shape while convalescing and at the moment I feel strong and fit.

He added that he thought he'd be in top shape by Monday.

The U.S. line-up is set with Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas handling the assignment. Trabert seems to have come out of his slump and now all captain Bill Talbert has to do is keep his operatives razor sharp.

Antonelli Captures Earned Run And Winning Percentage Titles

By REN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—The important part lefthander Johnny Antonelli played in the pennant drive of the New York Giants last season was reflected today in the official release of National League pitching records.

The 24-year-old Antonelli, who was obtained in a trade with Milwaukee last February, captured both the earned run and winning percentage titles. He is the 12th National Leaguer in history to win the double crown. The last was Hoyt Wilhelm, also of the Giants, in 1952.

Antonelli gave up 66 earned runs in the 259 innings he worked for a sparkling 2.29 earned run mark. The talented southpaw won 21 games and lost only 7 for a winning percentage of .750.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press and released last October also showed Antonelli as the top man in ERA with 2.29.

BURDETTE SECOND

Behind the Giants' stalwart in the earned run listings came Lew Burdette of Milwaukee with 2.76, Curt Simmons of Philadelphia 2.81, Ruben Gomez of New York 2.89 and Robin Roberts of the Phillies 2.96.

As usual, Roberts, the circuit's perennial workhorse, paced the hurlers in several categories. He led in games won—23; games started—38; complete games—29; innings pitched—337; strikeouts—185 and home runs allowed—35.

Games gave up the most bases on balls, 199. Jim Hughes of Brooklyn appeared in the most games, 60, and John Hetki of Pittsburgh finished the most games, 46.

Murry Dickson of the Phillies lost the most games, 20.

Hundreds Jam Station Foyer To Greet Richard

MONTREAL (CP)—Hundreds of Montreal hockey fans jammed Central Station Monday night to welcome home Maurice (Rocket) Richard after his history-making 400th goal in Chicago Saturday night.

The crowd broke into cheers as the Montreal Canadiens' greatest sniper appeared. Fans surged forward to hoist Richard on their shoulders and parade him through the station.

The crowd, in a festival spirit and led by a man decked out as a huge replica of Montreal Canadiens and lined up to greet the Rocket.

Richard was to be honored by the city today at a reception in city hall.

Cohen Retains Title

PARIS (AP)—Robert Cohen of France, world bantamweight champion, Monday night scored a technical knockout over Ray Ankarah, British featherweight, when Ankarah gave up at the start of the fourth round of their scheduled non-title 10-round bout in the Palais des Sports.

Cohen weighed 121½ pounds. Ankarah weighed 120½.

Marciano Will Defend Title Twice Next Year

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Rocky Marciano will defend his heavyweight boxing title twice in 1955 and the first will be staged on the Pacific coast, manager Al Weill said Monday.

Exhibitions scheduled to tie Rocky's nose—injured in his second fight with Ezzard Charles—have been postponed until February, Weill told Jimmy Burns, sports editor of the Miami Herald.

"I didn't want to take the gamble of Rocky's nose being punched now," Weill said. "After all, it's a delicate thing and you don't find titles in the street."

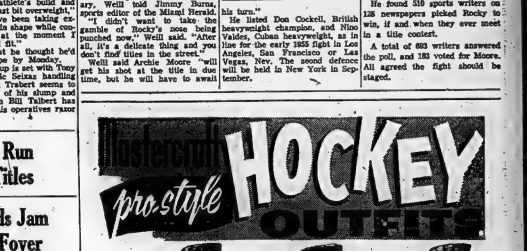
Weill said Archie Moore "will get his shot at the title in due time, but he will have to await his turn."

He listed Don Cockell, British heavyweight champion, and Nino Valdes, Cuban heavyweight, as in line for the early 1955 fight in Los Angeles, San Francisco or Las Vegas, Nev. The second defence would be held in New York in September.

Lockman Signs 1955 Contract

NEW YORK (AP)—Whitey Lockman, first baseman of New York Giants, signed his contract Monday, becoming the fifth member of the world champions to sign for 1955.

Lockman, 28, hit .251 last season in 146 games, slamming 16 home runs and driving in 60, runs.



Willie Mays, Ruben Gomez, Al Dark, Hank Thompson and Lockman now are in the fold.

Writers Pick Marciano Over Archie Moore

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Archie Moore, world light - heavyweight boxing champion who is confidently his own publicity campaign for a 1955 title bout with heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, totalled up early returns in his newspaper poll Sunday.

He found 510 sports writers on 128 newspapers picked Rocky to win, if and when they ever meet in a title contest.

A total of 693 writers answered the poll, and 183 voted for Moore. All agreed the fight should be staged.

Jan Clayton Likes Playing Supporting Role to Dog Star

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—You'd think a glamorous singing star of musical comedy might be hesitant about playing a supporting role to a dog star, but pretty Jan Clayton says "I love it."

It was a complete change of pace for Miss Clayton when she took the part of the widowed mother of a small boy in the filmed "Lassie" show on CBS television after a succession of film and stage musicals.

But slender, vivacious Jan is enthusiastic about the transition because "acting always was my first love."

"I know I'm a better actress than a singer, and besides, I've been singing since I was four, and I'm tired," she related on a trip here from Hollywood where the film is made.

Another reason she doesn't mind playing second fiddle to Lassie is "I love the darn dog so much," although "I know that with a dog and a darling boy like Tommy (Rettig) in the program, not even my mother would look at me."

Miss Clayton first got to Hollywood by singing a bear concert, but failed to win a contract with the studio that sponsored it. But after the week's singing engagement along with Maxie Rosenbloom in a supper club and had resisted a role in several "Hopalong Cassidy" movies.

During the war she did a tour of the Aleutians and on her return was signed for a lead role with Wallace Beery in "This Man's Navy." Following more overseas tours for servicemen, she was signed by the Theatre Guild for the part of Julie in "Carousel" on Broadway.

She played in "Carousel" for nine months. The night after it closed she opened in the revival of "Showboat," and had been cast in musicals since until "Lassie" came to TV.

Playing the role of a mother is no great change for Jan. She and her husband, Robert Lerner, have four children of their own.

"Lassie" has been unkindly referred to by some critics as "soap opera for the kids," but the program sent sitting down with the youngster to watch would find it harmless at worst and pleasantly entertaining at best.

It's a case of female impersonation by the dog, however, for Lassie is a mister. There's also a publicity angle to the canine-ine public that you always see Lassie Sr., now 14, the same dog that was famous in the movies, and not his offspring, Lassie Jr. and Lassie Sr. are so well trained that you would could go through the paces called for in the script, and it was believed it would be kind to make him do it. Besides, who cares whether Wh the original Lassie?

Spear and Tractor Symbols Of Actions in Belgian Congo

By CHARLES MERCER

FATAKI, Belgian Congo (AP)—The red clay road winds eastward up the mountains, leaving the bush behind, and soon you are on a high, rolling plateau. It is the heart of Africa, a couple of hundred miles north of the equator.

Africans line the road, waving and smiling, black skins shining in the sun. Here an African walks with spear in hand, his bare-breasted wife trailing behind him bowed low with a heavy load. Up the road a Belgian settler is plowing with a tractor.

Spear and tractor are symbols of what is happening in the Belgian Congo, this vast sweep-shaped land of jungles and high mountains athwart the equator. In this country about 92,000 white live in peace with 12,063,000 Africans.

The Congo has become one of the most prosperous areas of the world since 1939 when Belgium began operation. Its culture is a chaotic mixture of color, fast year, for example, its total gross national product was more than $1 billion. Its rich in cobalt, copper, gold, the rare metals. It may hold the world's largest deposits of uranium—though the extent of uranium operations today is a closely-guarded secret. Cotton, coffee and products of all are among its agricultural exports.

There is no current amount native labor. Europeans live in Congo French in North Africa and South Africans to the south.

The Belgians, last and most reluctant of the European powers to ditch a claim in Africa, have tried to learn from the colonial experiences of the British, French and Portuguese. A practical - minded people, they have a sharp eye for business and few illusions of imperial glory.

Fifty years ago cannibalism was widespread among the Bantus of the Congo. Today it is almost nonexistent.

You find missionaries seemingly everywhere, operating hospitals and conducting schools in the bush and on remote hilltops of the rolling uplands. The Belgian government, recently, has done the same thing, given them the fullest cooperation.

The missions, for example, are the backbone of the Congo's educational structure.

There now are about 1,500 white settlers in the Congo. They come time to come at the rate of only 50 a year, all carefully selected and trained. Some are white only now on this rich land around Coquilhatville, government capital. Sudden further white settlement above 2,000 feet elevation is also area, protection is said for the use of the Africans.

The government strictly realizes the basic conflict between white and native on this question, almost over land. Now the Belgians are going to great pains to teach the Africans how to grow agricultural methods.

Against the overwhelmingly major ity of Africans rains only a subsistance level. But many white settlers are now in the business of feudal lords in a land of no daily newspapers, no radio news, often retail stores. Some make as much as $200,073 a year, growing coffee, raising cattle, extraction oil from the oil palm trees they introduced here.

Truth deserves your deference when showing partner preference. To make a choice that lies may be a bit senseless.

When your partner bids two suits that is his main purpose. To find out which suit will make the best trump for your pair. The decision is made as soon as you assist one of them.

To insist on your telling him which you like best he reads one of them. This is a demand upon you to make a choice whether or not you have adequate support for it.

Collectors' sign: When one partner has bid two suits, the other partner must show which suit he prefers (assuming he is quite support); unless fonditions warrant playing in a different denomination.

Goren says: When his partner bids two suits the choice of the responder are more akin to those of a second. He should indicate which of the two suits is preferable (even without adequate support).

Accordin' to Gordon, responder has the option to decide in force should pass when he has no honest bid. If one of the two suits has not been raised by the opponents to the club suit, pass accordin' to Gordon. You lack the true qualities for partner takeout six suits or a bid of two no-trump.

Bridge Instruction and Gorcy rules indicate you should show preference by taking partner both of the suits bid and even without support. My future series will offer proof of which is best and why?

Found Guilty Of Assaulting Police Officer

LINDSAY (CP)—Andy McKaye and Theodore Gelick of Lindsay were remanded to Wednesday for sentence when found guilty Monday on charges of assaulting a police officer.

McKaye was also convicted on a charge of creating a disturbance and Gelick of an additional charge of obstructing a police officer.

The charges arose from an incident involving Const. William Moseley and Sgt. Gord Eberts of Lindsay police force.

Const. Moseley testified that McKaye took exception over a joke concerning a hunting licence. Later, he said, McKaye came to the police office and a heated discussion ensued.

Sgt. Eberts said McKaye raised his hand to strike the officer but Eberts hit first, knocking McKaye to the floor. McKaye let but later attempted to pick a fight with the sergeant, the officer said.

When told he was under arrest McKaye struck the sergeant, Sgt. Eberts testified. Const. Moseley came to the other officer's aid, but was forcibly restrained him.

Both were arrested with the aid of a passerby.

Successful Playwright In Hollywood to Oversee Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Tennessee Williams, the highly successful playwright, has been lingering in Hollywood to oversee his latest film investigation of southern culture. "The Rose Tattoo." He is watched on the set as Burt Lancaster, Anna Magnani and Marisa Pavan shouted through a frantic scene. Then he retired to a dressing room to chat.

Williams speaks quietly and articulately. He has had seen the past three weeks of filming in Key West and two weeks here.

He said he had learned much and could direct one of his stories. "But why should I, when I have such able men as Elia Kazan and Danny Mann?" he said. The latter is directing "Tattoo."

This is Williams' fourth screen play. I asked him about the two others already done at Warners.

"I wasn't happy with "The Glass Menagerie,'" he admitted. "After I left the project they made a lot of changes I didn't approve of. They were mostly concessions to popular tastes. But the mistake was that popular tastes have matured and are no longer what the studios think they are."

On the other hand, he was pleased with "A Streetcar Named Desire," which star Vivien Leigh an Oscar.

"They filmed it as I had written it," he remarked. "We had to make one change because of censorship. We couldn't mention the homosexuality of the woman's fiance. But we managed to get the idea across."

Williams was about to leave for New York, where Kazan is putting on the author's newest play, "Cat on the Roof."

The 40-year-old writer has three homes, in New York, Rome and Key West. He spends about equal time each year in the three places, but does most of his writing at Key West.

HEROIC RESCUER

Norman Ramsay, captain of the Canadian destroyer Athabaskan that crashed and burned in a farmer's field near Brampton, Ont., has been credited with pulling his first officer from the wreck minute before it exploded. Ramsay is a native of Beaconsfield, Que., near Montreal. Twenty-three passengers and crew members escaped before the plane exploded, streaking over Malton area for a wide area. (CP Photo).

Jackie Gleason Gets New Ticket To Fortune

NEW YORK (AP)—Jackie Gleason, the TV funnyman who plays a fat man, got a new ticket to fortune Monday, a fat contract for $6,000,000 during the next two years.

The hefty comedian, in one of the biggest deals in television history, will be taken over by Walton Berle's present sponsor, Buick, next fall.

"I'm flabbergasted," Gleason quipped to reporters. "I'm on a new diet and now here's all this money."

There was no comment from Berle.

The program will revolve principally around Gleason's familiar "honeymooners".

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for Wednesday, Dec. 22, 1954.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A friendly day for all competent and serviceable activities, work, useful interests. But caution is advised in money matters, investments, assuming added responsibilities. Care!

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Mild but favorable indications, going to very auspicious ones for tomorrow. As you work today, plan for most auspicious ones for tomorrow. As you work today, plan for most efficient action then. Results of efforts can be so satisfactory if handled well.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A substantial day, encouraging for wholesome and practical matters, for domestic and personal affairs if properly handled. Selfish motives won't succeed where lasting benefits are concerned. Industry, the professions honored.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Excellent indications for you, with your Moon and Sun in fine aspects. Mining, building, railroading, manufacturing essentials and delicate matters among these denoted. Maintain calm.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Most friendly and helpful Sun aspects now should inspire you to be up and doing, achieving in all worthy matters, improving schedule. You can also achieve in sidelines in which you are interested.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — This can be a full and productive period although some problems requiring mental dexterity and bright ideas may not work out as easily as they sometimes do. Don't be discouraged; do your best and be content.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Similar indications to Taurus. No need to overdo or to worry. Attend to necessary tasks without fuss or anxiety. Every day cannot be a "humdinger"; some are better for quiet efficiency.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Today can be a lesser for "quick action" Scorpio natives but if you use your fine brain ably you won't permit anyone or anything to deter you from accomplishing what you should.

November 24 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Go over your schedule quickly but carefully and select the immediately urgent, the most important tasks to tend to first; do them patiently, thoroughly; the others will be easier.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Sensible but progressive action urged; make wise plans for tomorrow (stars very favorably aspected then). Much can be figured out, preparations made to further later attainment.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Quiet influences now will become generous ones tomorrow. Don't take it easy though; no time should ever be wasted. Prepare for greater works as you go ahead with today.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Perseverance and a willingness to get to the bottom of things are needs today. Don't be indecisive where prompt decisions and action are important. Don't fear to try.

You born today are a Sagittarius-Capricorn native, born when the Sun was leaving Sagittarius, entering Capricorn. You have characteristics from both Signs and are capable of strong lasting achievement, gaining valuable friendships, and being a happy God-fearing and God-loving individual. Serious-seen and practically are tempered with good humor and appreciation of life's beautiful and valuable. You are resourceful, a hard worker, a dependable business man or woman, a staunch friend; can be appealed to through your spiritual and ambitious nature. You dislike the crude and sordid. Always pray for God's help.

Canadian Soldiers Charter Airliner To Fly Home

MONTREAL (CP) — A Trans-Canada Air Lines spokesman today reported a chartered flight of Canadian soldiers and a nurse due to arrive here this morning from Dusseldorf, Germany, has been delayed.

He did not say why the flight was delayed, but said it is now scheduled to arrive here at 6:15 p. m., EST. The re-scheduled time of arrival was received from Dusseldorf.

MOSTLY PRIVATES

Fifty-eight members of the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade and a nursing sister chartered the Trans-Ocean Airway DC-6 for the flight. They could spend Christmas at home.

The majority of the soldiers—32, to be exact—are privates and only five or six are officers. The others are non-commissioned officers. All are bound for points in eastern Canada except Gnr. G. O. Ogden of the 2nd Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, whose destination is Cranbrook, B. C. One nurse was aboard. The Christmas special is Nursing Sister M. I. Chisholm of Antigonish, N. S.

Lieut. R. E. Screaton of London, Ont., and Kingston, another passenger, will marry Elaine Zakos of Kingston at Christmas. Chisholm leave. He met her while attending Royal Military College.

The plane will return Jan. 3.

Loblaw Workers Enjoy Party

TRENTON. (Special.) — Loblaw employees from Trenton to Cornwall held their Christmas party in the Queenway hotel, Monday. They feasted on turkey and all the trimmings. Over 100 employees and their friends sat down to the invited tables.

Feature of the evening was the presentation of a cash radio to R. V. MacLean, area meat supervisor with the company. Alex Sole of Belleville made the presentation on behalf of the employees from Trenton, Belleville, Kingston, Brockville and Cornwall.

Hearty applause conveyed the appreciation of the employees to Carl Stir of Trenton, for making the dinner a success.

Arrangements for the party were made by a committee under the chairmanship of George Hay assisted by Alex Sole and Pat Morden.

STUDENTS USING ICE

High school students are using the ice on the river as a short cut to the school on the east side. Hundreds yards south the river is still open in spite of sub-zero temperatures last night. And on the Trent canal scene is shaping up with the first fish shanties into place and the fishermen walking back and forth from the shore to their huts.

CRACKED BY FROST

The large plate glass window in the entrance to the Dominion store on Front street was cracked by frost last night. Peoples think the window was saved by the heat inside the store.

TAMES KNIFE-WIELDER

BALTIMORE (AP)—Wielding a chair from the kitchen, James Cole Monday prodded a knife-brandishing intruder from underneath the door of his shoeshine parlor, down the street and all the way to a police station. Police said they were told the trouble started when Charles Carter, white operator of a large hunting knife and waved it around. Cole grabbed a chair and went to work, fending and weaving.

CHRISTMAS CARDS

The traditional predominates in Christmas cards this year but this sampling of cards Can adians are sending also shows a new treatment of religious themes and a touch of sophistication. Top row (left to right) shows an unusual treatment of Madonna and Child in a pastel-colored card from Belgium; a French-Canadian pastoral scene on grey parchment from Montreal's Imprimerie du Souhait; elves dance round a Christmas tree in another Belgian card. Second row, a card from Quebec City's Laeia studio uses modernistic angels to spell out "Noel"; Montreal's Fyshe Studio has a card with few brilliant colors; Andre Cabot's colored sugar-maple leaves scene has greeting in French. Bottom row, artist Andre Bernard adds a Canadian touch to the Yule log theme in this French-language card; Toronto's Bede House has the religious theme outlined in basic colors—blue, red and yellow; Pape and Mama grace their sidewalk cafe in this card by Panda Prints of New York which dealers say is for the "sophisticated class." (CP Photo).

Religious Themes Are Best Sellers in Christmas Cards

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Religious themes are best sellers . . . snow and mistletoe have taken their toopiights as the habitant still taps the maple trees.

Once again the traditional, the religious and the truly Canadian reign as the favorite subjects for what too often turns out to be a postmarked reminder of a friend forgotten—the Christmas card.

And none of this means the industry is hitched tight to tradition. A new look is apparent.

There is the distinctive work of artist Marilyn Paton of Guelph, Ont., a newcomer to the field whose modernistic religious cards in line drawings are produced by the city of Quebec.

The angels she parades across her cards march out of step with tradition. They are curly-haired, button-eyed and not in the least spiritual.

A striking simplicity in color and design features a series being produced by the Toronto firm of Bede House, operated by Clare Slater. The company's forte is religious scenes making use of just three basic colors—blue, red and yellow.

The cards of the Fyshe Studio of Montreal are distinguished by biblical lettering on the inside and the silk-screen process of printing. Brilliant colors are used. This firm, like Bede House, was started by a woman, Avis S. Fyshe.

Braille Christmas cards can be bought for the blind. Foreign language cards are available in Toronto in Polish, Russian, Ukrainian, German and Italian.

The trade reports under the heading of miscellaneous information that Ontario buyers choose their cards for what they look like on the outside rather than for the sentiment they express.

Westerners choose the longest greetings while easterners choose the most formal messages. Torontonians buy more sophisticated cards than Canadians elsewhere. Lumberjacks like flossy, satin cards.

Stokley Van Camp Party Is Staged

TRENTON—The Legion hall was the scene for the women employees of Stokley Van Camp who held their Christmas party in the form of a social evening and dance.

Prizes were welcomed by Mrs. Annie Anderson assisted by Mrs. Margaret Patterson. Later Mrs. Anderson was called to the stage where Mrs. Mary Dillon voiced words of appreciation on employees, Mrs. Helen Chestnut and Miss Norma Wall, joined to present their foreladdy with a gift on behalf of the members of her staff. All joined in singing "For she's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Mary Rose Burtt spoke briefly followed by Sgt. Major Almer describing some of the happenings at the factory.

Christmas Peak Reached One Week Ago

TRENTON (Special) — The deluge of Christmas mail taxes the regular staff and 20 extra helpers moving tons of mail and parcels in and out of Trenton these days. But a minimum of delays have been encountered as Postmaster Cecil McManus reports the daily volume hit its peak last week.

Last year the busiest day saw 23,000 pieces handled at the local office. Figures for this year reveal a decided increase in volume handled. For example a total of 56,000 pieces received attention on December 14. The volume tapered off since, indicating the public responded to the appeal for early mailing.

Christmas Trade Opinions Vary

TRENTON. (Special) — Opinions are varied among Trenton businessmen as to how Christmas trade compares with last year.

A Dundas street clothing merchant finds the picture rosy and bright, while an automobile and appliance dealer complains that buyers are difficult to interest in his merchandise. One department store claims that people have tightened their purse strings and there is a swing to buying necessities.

A hardware store owner indicates he is pleased with his December turnover. A photographer reported brisk trade.

Furniture dealers have a different story to tell. "So and so" and "Fair" are the ways they describe trading as only three more shopping days remain before December 25.

Merchants have no complaints about the weather. They have gone to considerable lengths in decorating their stores to attract customers. The situation seems to reflect general conditions across the country.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In case hemorrhoid case after case, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction, (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is the trade name for healing ointment in all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H.* The price is only $1.75 a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember — if not entirely satisfied — your money will be refunded promptly.

French Debaters Are Wary Of Paris Pacts Showdown

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS(AP)—The French National Assembly moved today into the third round of its debate on German rearmament, with both partisans and opponents of the move wary about forcing a premature showdown.

Opponents had a motion ready to postpone debate but they decided to withhold it until after Premier Pierre Mendes-France presents his government's statement on the interlocking agreements giving arms and virtual sovereignty to West Germany.

Mendes-France delayed his speech until late in the discussions, perhaps until all listed speakers have had their turn.

The end of the century, and subsequent vote on the treaties, is expected some time Thursday.

As the hour of decision approached, many deputies seemed more and more reluctant to take a firm stand either for or against the pact. Lobby conversations indicated the number abstaining from the vote would be large.

The legislators face this dilemma: They do not like to go on record as favoring the unpopular issue of German rearmament but they do not want to risk isolating France by turning down the treaties just six months after rejecting the European Defence Community plan.

Up for ratification by the assembly are four interrelated agreements which would: Admit West Germany to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization; transfer virtual sovereignty to the Bonn republic; admit West Germany into a projected seven-power Western European Union which would control the arms and armament production of its member states; put the disputed Saar region under control of the WEU but retain the area's present economic ties with France. The Saarlanders would be given the right to determine by a plebiscite their future status.

Despite months of discussion, party attitudes on the agreements still have not been definitely set. The Communists,who bitterly oppose the pacts, may be the only faction to impose discipline on their members in the balloting.

Fear European Governments May Copy U.S., Reduce Armies

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP) — High United States defence officials are reported concerned that western European governments eventually may follow the American example and cut the size of their armies.

Any big European manpower reductions, it is felt here, would upset North Atlantic treaty defence plans for smashing possible Russian invasion of the West "at the threshold," as State Secretary Dulles put it at his press conference Tuesday.

Dulles said the U.S. has no present intentions of pulling any of its divisions now in Europe even though Washington has plans to cut its armed manpower. And,added the U.S. diplomatic chief, it would be inconsistent and unfortunate if European countries should decide to emulate the U.S. in reducing their own armed forces.

Dulles said that western Europe, with its vast industries and skilled labor, is such a prize that an aggressor might gamble on a lightning grab of this area, risking a heavy retaliatory blow. Thus, large armed forces must be ready in Europe.

The secretary said the defence of the Orient against communism represents a different problem. There the chief peril was from Red subversion, and the military need was for fast-striking mobile units rather than big standing armies.

In a formal statement, Dulles said nuclear weapons will be introduced gradually in North Atlantic Treaty Organization defence preparations. He said the NATO decision to lean heavily on nuclear power "shows for the first time the means of developing a forward strategy which could be relied on to protect western Europe from invasion."

"As that capability is developed, it will surely constitute the strongest deterrent against military aggression."

Shortly after Dulles spoke out, informed officials told a reporter that defence and state department leaders do not believe there is much danger that'European allies will cut back their armies in 1955.

They noted that at the NATO meeting in Paris last weekend all European members agreed to maintain their present armed forces in the next 12 months and to concentrate on strengthening their combat effectiveness. But these officials said there is concern about whether the Europeans will take the same attitude about future years at the next defence strategy review.

Toronto Teachers Accept Offer Of $400 Increase

TORONTO (CP) — High school teachers in Toronto Tuesday announced conditional acceptance of board of education offer to them to give them a $400 annual increase, but lamented the raise "obviously unsatisfactory."

The teachers first asked for a $1,000 across-the-board raise, later asking a $600 increase next year and yearly increases to a maximum $1,000.

The announcement of acceptance was made after a closed meeting of District 7, Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, to be conditional on:

1. The board's willingness to review with secondary school representatives its system of procedure and salary negotiations; and

2. The board and teachers engage in a public relations campaign to persuade the public of the need for adequate salaries to attract teachers during the labor shortage.

Board of education turned down the teachers' first proposals, saying they were impossible to grant. It subsequently lowered the sum Toronto high school teachers the highest paid in Canada.

WINS FIGHT

TORONTO (C) Lam Fook Yeuk, 65-year-old Chinese-Canadian won a victory Tuesday over red tape in his long fight to have his son admitted to Canada. The department of immigration said it will recommend to the governor-general in council that the son, Lam Gook Wow, now in Hong Kong be admitted to Canada "if he otherwise complies with the immigration act and regulations."

Gas Heating Equipment Fails To Meet Tests

TORONTO (CP)—A. R. Crozier, chairman of the Ontario fuel board, on Tuesday placed a stop order on permits for one Toronto firm which has been installing natural gas burning equipment in city homes.

The action followed numerous complaints by Toronto householders concerning furnace conversions.

The fuel board said earlier that at least 60 persons have paid a "fly by night" firm money for gas heating equipment which the board could not approve.

Mr. Crozier warned prospective purchasers of conversion equipment to investigate both equipment and company before making payments.

He said Toronto needs a control system to regulate the type of equipment installed...to insure safety and efficiency.

700 Milk, Fox Furs Stolen

CENTREVILLE, Ont. (CP) — During thieves loaded almost 700 mink and fox furs valued at $60,000, on an O. W. Thompson Ltd. mink farms' truck and drove out of this village Tuesday night.

Theft of the pelts was discovered today by Jack Kunkel of Centreville, an employee of the farm.

They were taken from a processing building about 100 yards from the Waterloo township police headquarters. Centreville is a Kitchener suburb.

GEYSER OF FIRE SOARS 200 FEET AT LEDUC WELL

Four Workmen Escape As Oil Well Explodes

By PHIL ADLER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LEDUC, Alta. (CP)—A 200-foot geyser of flame, fed by oil and natural gas under high pressure, roared with a jet-like roar, ragged out of control today at an oil well in Alberta's famous Leduc field, 25 miles south of Edmonton.

Four workmen escaped serious injury when the well, owned by Imperial Oil Limited, exploded Tuesday night. Cause of the fire was not known.

The well had been producing crude oil for about a year and a half but production was halted to allow a new string to attempt to increase the production rate.

THIRD THIS YEAR

It was the third major oil well fire in Alberta this week.

Volume of natural gas and crude oil being burned was not estimated immediately but the fire was as large as the one in October at a well west of Edmonton, when 10,000,000 cubic feet of gas were eaten up daily for 10 days.

The Leduc fire was fed by a considerable amount of oil which spread a huge pall of black smoke over the farming district. Heat of the flame was estimated at 200 feet away but Imperial Oil officials said there was little danger of the fire spreading to four oil tanks 800 feet away.

MAY FLOOD WELL

The blazing well is about five miles south of Imperial's Atlantic No. 3 which blew out of control March 8, 1948, and was not doused until Sept. 9, but that time it was not sealed for another two months after that. One of the most spectacular and costly fires in Canadian history, it wasted up to 15,000 gallons of oil and 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

The blazing Leduc well, about four miles west of the town of Leduc and seen at night in Edmonton, 25 miles away, is to be put out by one of two methods: Using dynamite to set off the oxygen or drilling a relief well to sloce flooding of the wild well with water.

Cools off Firemen

LAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)— Electric blankets were credited out of all 27 city fire department stations here by chief George Conover.

He said firemen are supposed to be "robust, athletic and ready to jump out of bed" without the delay of turning off blankets or possibly tripping over wires.

KILLED IN CRASH

KINGSVILLE, Ont. (C)—James Louis Young, 32, was fatally injured Tuesday night when the truck he was driving collided with a Chesapeake and Ohio passenger train at a level crossing three miles east of here.

Western Europe Whipped By Year's Worst Storms

Waves Tear 30-Yard Hole In Dike on Dutch Coast

LONDON (AP)—Two ships with 39 men aboard were feared lost in the hurricane-whipped North sea today as 1954's worst storms smashed at much of western Europe.

Battering waves tore a 30-yard gap in a dike at Texel island, off the northwest Dutch coast—flooding a farm area reclaimed from the sea. Fearful of a repetition of last year's flood disaster, authorities began to evacuate inhabitants, cattle and supplies from low-lying areas of the island.

A minor break also was reported in a dike at Perzuis, near Rotterdam, but the damage was described as slight and the waters were receding.

VESSELS LOST

Scottish coast guardsmen said they "feared the worst" for the Dewsert, and her crew of 12. The ship radioed she was sinking off the Dutch island of Terschelling and could not launch lifeboats in mountainous seas.

The 1,270-ton Swedish steamer Petra, with 22 men aboard, radioed before dawn that she had broken down off Terschelling and was "taking in water." Swedish coast guard stations said they feared the ship had gone down.

Numerous other ships were in trouble, and the air ministry predicted high winds would continue.

Gales from 112 miles an hour were recorded off the Swedish coast and coastguardsmen along the North sea said the storm looked worse than the great blow in which 300 persons were lost at the end of November and the beginning of December.

TWO KNOWN DEAD

The winds cut a path of destruction through northern Britain, uprooting thousands of trees, shattering windows and tearing masonry and roofs from buildings.

Two persons were known dead in Scotland. Scores of others were treated at hospitals.

The gales picked up seven 16-ton trucks in Glencoe, north of Glasgow, and hurled them off a hill road inappropriately named "Road to the Thankful."Rescue men amputated one driver's foot to free him from the wreckage of his truck.

Two vessels, the 6,966-ton French motorship Indochinois and 4 dependent Dutch motorship Ootmarsum, were reported blown by the storm to look on Belgium's Scheldt river.

The 7,781-ton Panamanian freighter Katingo radioed that she had been forced aground near Egmond, Holland. Another Panamanian vessel, the 7,270-ton Gerontas, was torn from her anchorage and swept onto a sandbank in Scotland's Firth of Clyde.

WOMEN IN DANGER

Off England's northeast coast the 2,764-ton Danish freighter Cinebar radioed she was wallowing helplessly with a broken propeller. The 4,943-ton Greek freighter Marlannias messaged that she had lost her anchors in the storm off the Belgian coast.

The Scottish Channel boat carrying 31 tourists today was towed into Calais harbor, after gales had threatened her fate for a second in stormy waters outside the port.

Two lugboats from Dunkerque braved huge waves in the English channel to bring in the 'Cote d'Azur, whose passengers had spent two nights aboard.

The West German city of Delbruech, a factory fire probably caused by lightning was fanned in fierce high winds by the gale. Firemen fought through the night to keep the blaze from reaching the entire establishment was gutted.

In Sheffield, England, a near-hurricane caved in a nine-foot wall on Mrs. Rebecca Cuthbertson, crushing her to death. The gale also toppled a bus against a street-car, injuring five persons.

The owner, Louis Skowronek, 50, escaped from a second-story window after rousing his wife and daughter and three roomers.

Damage was estimated at about $7,000.

WHITBY MAN JAILED

ORILLIA (C)—A man who has spent almost half his life in prison Tuesday was sent to jail for another flog years. David James Conlier, 36, of Whitby, was sentenced to five years at hard labor when found guilty in police court Tuesday on charges of breaking into a place of worship, housebreaking and of illegal possession of explosives.

Jealous Suitor Holding Girl Captive With Gun, Waiting for His Rival

WAKE FOREST, N. C. (AP)—A jealous suitor who has held his woman friend at gunpoint in a textile mill here since noon Tuesday released her today just long enough for her to make a hurried trip to a restroom. He held a doctor as hostage meanwhile, and the woman rejoined them in a few minutes, still a prisoner.

Wake Forest police chief W. R. Wiggs said Jessie Elizabeth Davis, 20, agreed to return to the small room where Graham Timberlake, 31, held her through a terror-filled night.

Wiggs said Timberlake had offered to free the girl if a mental examination for him could be arranged. Doctors hurriedly began preparing commitment papers to bring to the mill. He said he would have to see them before giving up Miss Davis.

Timberlake has threatened to hold Miss Davis until a soldier he considers his rival for her affections appears at the mill. Timberlake said he planned to kill the soldier.

Earlier, a doctor had entered the room in an effort to free the woman. Timberlake had fired his pistol sick and would come out if he could see his doctor, Dr. George W. Graham Jr. who had treated the woman Tuesday night, was called to the room again when the hostage Timberlake asked for was unavailable.

The terrifying ordeal began for Miss Davis when Timberlake pulled her into the tiny room.

There he held her through the day and then through the long hours of the night, his 22-calibre automatic pistol alternately pressed into her side or against her head.

Outside the room, police officers, the girl's relatives, and friends of both, pleaded with Timberlake to release her.

But Timberlake's retort, Wake Forest police chief W. R. Wiggs said, is that he is going to kill her until he (Timberlake's rival) comes and then he's going to kill him."

Over 5,000 School Children Commence Christmas Holidays

More than 5,000 school children in the city, including staff at the Belleville Collegiate and Quinte Secondary School commenced holidays today and will be away from classes until the new year when classes resume on January 3rd.

At the two city high schools it was expected that the some 1,200 students would be discharged and on their way home well before four o'clock.

At the Collegiate a special Christmas assembly was planned for this morning and students were to be discharged shortly after 11 o'clock. The same schedule was to be carried out at the Quinte Secondary School, where general assembly was to be called this morning with buses readied to take the rural children home at noon.

In public and separate schools in the county schools were scheduled to close officially at 4.00 o'clock, although many were expected to close at noon.

In the city public schools the Christmas season has been highlighted by special auditorium programs. Classrooms from Kindergarten upwards have been decorated in a colorful manner, the children making most of the decorations under guidance of their teacher.

Christmas programs at the schools have been going on for the past week and have usually consisted some phases of classroom work. This was particularly true of the Kindergarten classes where mothers were invited to see the children in school.

Child Welfare Subject of Talk By CAS Supt.

A festive atmosphere predominated at the Christmas-week meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, held in the Glen centre yesterday.

Guest speaker was Bruce Kerr, superintendent of the local Children's Aid Society, who addressed the meeting on child welfare.

Backgrounding the organization to the members, Mr. Kerr pointed out while child welfare is a "big business" few people realize the role played by the 54 Children's Aid Societies in Ontario.

Fifty years ago when the organization came into being, its prime function was to prevent children being neglected by their parents. However, about twenty years ago it was realized that children were in almost every instance resentful of the attempts to orientate them and projected their resentment back into society.

A new approach was tried in placing the children in foster homes.

"Now, we are coming to realize that that is not going to work," he said.

"We realize all children will not accept substitute parents."

SHORTAGE OF WORKERS

A serious problem in the child welfare work is the shortage of trained social workers. In the Province of Ontario there are only 100 vacancies in the field of helping rehabilitate neglected children.

The Belleville society now looks after 350 children, with, in 1955, will cost the organization an estimated $125,000.

"We have just gone through what is called one of the greatest periods of prosperity in the country has ever known," Mr. Kerr said.

If child welfare maintenance can cost $125,000 in this period of prosperity, what is it going to cost if we have a little recession in this community?" he asked.

The answer, the speaker claimed is preventive work, through which a social worker should remove anyadverse situation in the home that would lead to the neglect and ensuing the subsequent placing of them in the hands of the society.

COULD SAVE WAGES

Providing a full-time social worker in preventive work would work out at an overall cost, including salary and expenses at about $5,000 a year. However, he pointed out, it costs $800 annually to maintain a child removed from its parents. If the preventive worker were successful results in ten cases a year it would equal his salary, but, even this, he declared when those ten children would still be under the caring of the society the expense of their maintenance would reach a total of $50,000. Thus, if one year's work by a preventive worker would save $45,000.

Mr. Kerr was introduced by Bev Quincey.

At yesterday's meeting Capt. Cyril Fisher, head of the local Salvation Army Corps was inducted into the club by Cliff Baragar.

Guest soloist was Jack Deacon, who led the members in Christmas carols.

Police Make Appeal To Householders

An appeal to city householders to refrain from giving deliverymen a drink as a gesture of Christmas goodwill, was made today by Police Chief Walter Proctor.

The chief pointed out that although such drink accepted by a deliveryman may be small, a number of drinks add up to an amount that could cause an accident and consequent trouble for the driver.

"No one would want their delivery man involved in an accident resulting from the good intention of handing out a drink," the chief pointed.

"Instead of giving the delivery- man a drink consider placing the price of a drink in an envelope and giving that to the driver. It would be much more appreciated."

Legless, Blind and Paralyzed But Walter Callow Still Happy

By GERRY FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—This will be the 25th Christmas Walter Callow has been flat on his back in bed, and it's a pretty specific season even for a man who keeps the Christmas spirit in a year.

Walter's business is "spreading happiness, and like any other business it jumps into high gear every December.

He is legless, blind and paralyzed from a First World War injury, but he doesn't let that interfere with his welfare work.

COACHES CARRY CRIPPLED

His big Callow wheelchair coaches, designed to take crippled and invalid places they wouldn't ordinarily get, have become a Canadian legend.

He has a staff of drivers, hostesses and secretaries, and gets his funds from donation to the Callow Welfare League from his bed he leases from the province, and his coaches on errands of goodwill.

On Dec. 17 his three coaches collected crippled children from all over the city and took them to parties in tig department stores.

The children had the run of the toy departments and Walter says they had a whale of a time. Each child took his favorite toy home with him.

During the last few nights before Christmas, inmates of old people's homes will tour the city in the buses "to see the Christmas trees and all the decorations." The buses will also tour the city on Christmas Day.

Walter says the "elderly sisters" of St. Mary's convent whose days of activeness have passed will be taken to see the Vincent Massey on Christmas. The sisters there are having a party for them.

"I'm busy back they'll tie drivers around so they can see the city," he says. It's a busy time for the drivers, who also have routine jobs to attend to.

ANNUAL HOCKEY GAMES

Every day they take crippled children, victims of palsy and polio, to hockey games in St. Thomas school. Two or three times a week they bring patients from the Nova Scotia Mental Hospital to hockey games in the Callow box at Halifax Forum. And Sundays they take shut-ins to church.

"This is our busiest season," says Walter, as he tried to dream up ways of bringing a little Christmas cheer to even more unfortunates.

And what of his own Christmas plans? "Why," he says in surprise, "I don't anticipate anything out of the ordinary for me."

Turkey Dinner For Residents Of County Home

Residents at Hastings County Home on Trent Road will be well remembered on Christmas Day when they will enjoy a special turkey dinner, fruit and candy and other gifts as well as a variety of entertainment.

In fact the Christmas season has been underway at the county home for some days, according to home matron, Mrs. Kenneth York.

Many city and district organizations have forwarded gifts to the home and special programs have been held for the enjoyment of the inmates.

Early on Christmas morning each person in the Home will receive a gift of fruit and candy with special gifts for the women, and tobacco, cigars, cigarettes and chocolates for the men.

Then at noon there will be a sumptuous turkey dinner with all the trimmings, including cranberry sauce, mince pie and plum pudding.

THIN MAN GETS DIVORCE

BALTIMORE (AP)—Edward R. Miller won a divorce here Tuesday after testifying that he lost 80 pounds during 13 months of married life. The 26-year-old warehouseman attributed the weight loss to his wife's failure to cook his meals and to his having to walk the streets at night while a girl friend of his wife occupied his half of the bed.

Woman First Person in Recorded History to Be Hit by Meteorite

SYLACAUGA, Ala. (AP) — Twenty-two days ago Mrs. Hulit Hodges, a plump, pleasant-faced mistress of 31, lay down to take a little nap.

She had a cold and needed rest. She dozed.

Then there was a thunderous crash. She felt a violent blow on her left arm and hip. Sunlight shone through a hole in the ceiling. A rounded black "rock" lay near her.

She had been struck by a fragment of a shooting star which had hurtled to the earth from outer space. Scientists said she was the first person in recorded history known to be hit by a meteorite.

LANDLADY SUES

She still has to spend part of each day in bed because of the severe bruises she suffered. She has nightmares in which "it seems like I hear the sound."

She and her husband moved out of their frame residence to a smaller house after her landlady, Mrs. Birdie Guy, filed suit for the meteorite.

The Hodges have received offers of more than $5,000 for the meteorite. Both the Smithsonian Institution and Alabama State Museum want the fragment, but the Smithsonian says the meteorite itself isn't worth $200.

WHO OWNS IT?

Mrs. Guy filed suit claiming the meteorite became it fell on her property. Her lawyer said the Supreme Court has held that a meteorite belongs to the owner of the property on which it falls.

"Sing is the only way she'll ever get it," said Mrs. Hodges. "I feel like the meteorite is mine. I think God blended it for me. After all, it hit me."

Great Mass Of Warm Air Moving East

WINNIPEG (CP)—A great mass of warm air moved toward northern Ontario overnight bringing soaring temperatures to Manitoba which today joined the rest of western Canada in a winter heat wave.

Forecast readings for the province were in the 40s as were those for Saskatchewan and Alberta which were due for a closing-off period after record-breaking temperatures.

Ontario shivered under cold north winds Tuesday while the Maritimes enjoyed mild-30 readings.

Three record high temperatures were felt in Alberta Tuesday, Calgary reported 61 degrees, Lethbridge 60 and Medicine Hat 56.

The warm air mass cleared away fog from Manitoba Tuesday, restoring normal air service here. More than 12,000 pounds of Christmas mail and supplies, held up during the last week at Lac du Bonnet, Man., began moving north to settlements along the east shore of Lake Winnipeg and other outports.

Steel Companies Pay Extra Wages To Boost Output

NEW YORK (AP)—Many steel companies in the United States are paying extra wages to keep furnaces going during the Christmas and New Year's holidays, Iron Age, a national metal-working weekly, says.

The production dip caused by the holidays will be much smaller than usual due to a growing backlog of orders and strong consumer demand for delivery, the magazine says.

After four consecutive weeks of decline, steel scrap prices bounced back this week. The Iron Age steel scrap composite price rose 83 cents to $32.83 a gross ton.

The weekly forecasts steel production in 1955 at about 100,000,000 to 105,000,000 net tons, which would place the average operating rate between 80 and 85 per cent in terms of 1954 capacity.

It estimates raw steel output this year at 88,300,000 net tons, equal to an average operating rate of 71 per cent of capacity. Last year production was a record 111,620,000 tons, 94.9 per cent of the capacity at that time.

TRENTON NEWS

Hennie Jong, 3, of Consecon Drowns in Creek Near Home

TRENTON (Special) — This tragic drowning of a small child saddened the residents of Consecon yesterday for the second time within the year. Consecon is a village on the Trenton to Picton highway 13 miles south of here.

At 3.20 p.m. yesterday afternoon Mrs. Peter Jong saw her three-year-old daughter Hennie for the last time. The grief stricken mother said she was getting the child's things ready so she could attend her first annual Christmas party last night with an older brother Billy. Hennie knocked on the kitchen window," she related, "and called goodbye mummy as she went off to play with another brother and sister."

The children apparently were playing a game of throwing stones from a bridge into the water when the little girl fell from the span head first into the water. Her brother Bobby, 5, and sister Jackie, 6, became excited and first ran to a neighbor's house. The child's body had been recovered before the mother learned the news.

Ice has formed on Consecon Creek 20 feet out from the bank on both sides. A hole in the ice moving channel down the centre of the stream leading to the mill pond above the falls in the centre of the village. Searchers Jack Steenburg and Phil Baldwin found the body floating up against the edge of the ice a short distance from the bridge.

RESUSCITATION FAILS

Dr. R. Thompson of Wellington with a resuscitator crew was first on the scene in the two-hour attempt to revive the child. Trenton firemen with the resuscitator simultaneously answered the call for help and spelled the gratifying Wellington crew. Dr. M. Bishop of Consecon joined the fight to rekindle the spark of life as hope waned. Reluctantly medical aid and firemen agreed that their efforts were in vain.

Hennie's father was working on a construction job in Belleville during the day and did not return home in time to hear the tragic story until nightfall. He brought his family out from Holland a year and a half ago, first settling in Manitoba and then moved to Consecon in October.

The funeral for the little girl will take place on Saturday.

Last February little Bobby Barrett of Consecon, lost his life in a drowning accident similar to the one that occurred yesterday.

PREDICT 370 FATALITIES

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council today said 370 persons are likely to be killed in traffic accidents throughout the United States during the Christmas weekend. The council's estimate is for immediate traffic deaths only, during the period from 6 p. m. (local time) Friday to midnight Sunday.

Orland Youth Found Guilty Of Break-in

TRENTON (Special) — Gordon Rightmyer of Orland, found guilty of breaking and entering with intent, was given a one-year suspended sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in weekly police court yesterday. The youth was picked up by police with a large assortment of keys in his possession.

A police constable became suspicious when he observed a man trying doors on Front Street late at night. Earlier a local office had been entered and some papers removed. Rightmyer confessed to this offence.

Carousing and drinking out Frank Woods $25, while constants Hubert Holland and William Green were each ordered to pay fines of $20 and $20.50 costs for fighting on the main street near the post office.

Rides His Bike To Save Auto Stuck on Tracks

SHARON, Mass. (AP)—William Kingsley, 15, glanced up from his homework Tuesday night to see an auto skid off an icy road and stall on the railroad tracks. Then he heard a New Haven train coming.

He sprinted to the garage, snatched a light from his bicycle and raced to the tracks.

The stalled driver, Dr. Vincent P. Ryan, leaped from his car but could not budge it.

William stood on the tracks waving the bicycle light back and forth.

The engineer halted the train and the doctor's car was pulled away.

William returned to his studies.

HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN

All other evidence to the contrary, yesterday was the first day of winter. It was also the shortest day of the year.

Astronomers may argue amongst themselves the exact hour when the sun on its southward journey reaches the Tropic of Capricorn and starts northward again, but for those of us who tell time by the calendar, December 21st is the first day of winter and the year's shortest day. From now until June 21st the sun will rise earlier and From now until June 21st the sun will rise earlier and set later each day than it did the day previous. So, while December 21st may be the shortest and therefore the darkest day of the year, it is a happy omen of brighter days to come.

It is perhaps only happy coincidence that after the darkest day of the year, we in the northern hemisphere face not only the prospect of brighter days but the year's most festive season. The world seems to skulk down the corridor of time from the brilliance of early autumn through the drab and leaden days of November and early December, but once December 21st is reached it seems that we turn a corner into a brighter, cleaner world of icy crystals and scrubbed blue skies.

The fiercest part of winter lies ahead but its ferocity is tamed somewhat by the certain knowledge after December 21st, that "if this be winter can spring be far behind?"

PARKING METERS

We have just run across two items of news regarding the operation of parking meters in Ontario cities.

At Brockville the use of the meters has been suspended for two weeks. The Brockville Recorder and Times says of the two weeks. The Brockville Recorder and Times says ed for two weeks. The Brockville Recorder and Times says that Santa Claus has come to Brockville and that "two that Santa Claus has come to Brockville and that "two weeks of 'free parking' in the downtown section is a generous gesture on the part of the old boy."

The only excuse for making motorists pay to park their vehicles on the public streets is the claim that parking meters help to solve the parking problem, that they prevent some motorists from "hogging" parking space and provide an easy and effective method of sharing up the available space amongst all motorists. If the meters do that, then they are important, but if they do not do that, then the motorist has every right to pay for fifty weeks should not be expected who has had to pay for fifty weeks should not be expected to give thanks for a "generous gesture" on the part of to give thanks for a "generous gesture" on the part of the meter owners for two weeks at Christmas. for purposes best known to themselves.

At London, Ont., the chief of police has instructed his constables to stop the practice of testing parking meters before issuing tickets for parking infractions. The law, he says, requires motorists to put the meters in operation. If the meter cannot be put in operation, then it is illegal to park a vehicle in the space over which the meter stands guard.

If London citizens accept this edict without a howl of protest they deserve the treatment they are getting.

IN THE ATOMIC NO MAN'S LAND

And every man's hand was against them!

That might well be how the Japanese view their situation in today's world in history, as the giants of East and West flex their atomic muscles.

If history's wheel, in its ceaseless revolutions, should one day spin Japan to the peak of world power, the white man had better pray that the Japanese have either forgiven or forgotten the events of the middle of the twentieth century.

These thoughts are prompted by an editorial in the Manchester Guardian, in which that famous British newspaper points out that atomic tests by both the United States and Russia affect the Japanese. Radioactive fish from the Bikini area, radioactive rain from Siberia, contaminated crops, tea leaves which make a geiger counter click furiously—all these are signs of the atomic age in Japan.

"The Japanese can complain that fate has singled them out so far as the principal victims of the atom," says the Guardian. "It was not against them that the atomic bomb was used against them. Now they are feeling the principal effects of the tests of the more powerful weapons."

REACTIONS VARY

It is amazing the amount of public indignation that follows in the wake of a bank robbery. In Vancouver a rash of armed robberies brought frenzied newspaper appeals to the police to cut down cruiser patrols and expand police beats.

This outcry contrasts sharply in volume, urgency and intensity with the routine appeals to eliminate automobile fatalities. Perhaps the reason for the difference is that among the public there are few bank robbers and many drivers. The chance of being involved in a fatal accident may have something to do with the general lack of enthusiasm in promoting and enforcing the strict measures necessary to curtail the number of fatal accidents involving automobiles.

TROUBLE IN A DIFFERENT GUISE

Trouble comes in a variety of packages.

Latest word from across the Atlantic is that the postwar boom in Europe, especially in Britain and West Germany, has hit a snag.

A labor shortage threatens to hamper the ability of those countries to produce as much as they can sell.

Trouble of that type would be one of the most welcome immigrants to land on these shores for several months.

King Winter is a tyrant cold.
Heartless and pitiless is he.
All things within his grasp he'll hold.

He and his troops will have to go.

Outsiders Baffled

(Christian Science Monitor)

Britons have long laughed at themselves for their inconsistency of their point of view as occurred long ago when a storm cut off communications between the continent of Europe and the island off its coast called Britain. In that situation a British headline stated "The Continent Is Isolated."

The distinctly editorial voiced has usually been thought to be Mr. Churchill's attitude toward all peoples and things non-British. It has been regarded as just another British eccentricity and inularity toward the rest of the world. But it is to be explained so easily, as we are warned by the following quotation which the New States-man and Nation has reprinted from a report of a British Labor leader's statement:

"Mr. Tom Williamson, the general secretary of the National Union of General and Municipal Workers, derided the charge that trade union leaders were out of touch with the rank and file; and said it was the rank and file which was out of touch with the leadership."

Evidently the British apply this sort of thinking to each other as well as to foreigners. But it's comfort. But it will leave most outsiders still somewhat by the unreasonable and unexplorable reaches of the British mind.

Joyous Prospect

(Ottawa Citizen)

The United States is reported to be planning an early start on construction of an artificial planet, which will circulate around the earth at a height of 300 miles or more. It would be equipped with automatic cameras. Transmitting them would never cease, and perhaps some day some one will invent a box that can be dropped without throwing half the passengers into the aisle.

Britain's Atomic Age

(By Ritchie Calder, scientist and author in the London Newspaper Chronicle.)

"Fissful" is the adjective one naturally applies to Sir John Cockcroft, director of Britain's atomic energy research establishment at Harwell. He is a gray philosopher, a modest manner, and a beatific smile. While he gets up to give a lecture, which will make headlines in the world's press, he does it like a reluctant schoolboy being coaxed to recite a party-piece.

Even when he is the "lion" of some occasion, like getting the Nobel Prize, or a new knighthood honor, or representing his country at some big conference, he makes an entry; he just vaguely materializes.

And how very deceptive the adjective and manner can be! My discovery of the real Cockcroft was made 23 years ago. It was a historic occasion, but he would not have thought so at the time.

Lord Rutherford, the "father" of nuclear physics, had taken me into a converted lecture hall at the Cavendish Laboratory, Cambridge. He pushied aside a Geiger counter, a sparking jam-jar, a tray of lead pieces and heisted himself, hat and all, on to a laboratory bench. "Cockcroft, Walton—croft," he said, "it's your show."

Rutherford Died

In that darkened hall, switches were thrown. The generators warmed up. There was the thump of the pumps as they sucked the air out of the vacuum tubes. Sparking coils flashed and the high-tension spheres sparked. A tail glass globe glowed with a ghostly blue-haze. Presently there was a clicking sound and a needle on a milliamp recorder of a motor car began to clock in the fragments of a nucleus.

Two quiet young men, Cockcroft, the Yorkshireman, and Walton, the Irishman, had been demonstrating the device they had built and for which they were to win them the Nobel Prize for physics, the highest award in the scientific world.

In the tradition of the "airing-and-seating wax" laboratory, they had used plasticine, biscuit tins and sugar-crystals as well as a minimum of expensive equipment, and had produced the high-voltage machine—the first instrument to smash atoms, artificially.

Cockcroft explained what was happening. The device was building up a high voltage which was producing a terrific kick to protons (hydrogen atoms, stripped of their electrons) in the tank-like affair at the top of a glass pillar. This turned them into projectiles, which were being shot down a glass cannon to hit a target of lithium. The bombardment of the lithium atom and released energy. But only one proton in ten million hit the target.

"So you see," said Lord Rutherford at the end of the demonstration, "why the atom will always be a source of energy and never a reservoir of energy."

What he meant was that you can get more energy out of the atom than you would release from it.

Then I discovered the real Cockcroft and have never been deceived by his manner since. He vigorously contradicted his chief. He argued with him and was not all perturbed by Rutherford's eminence or obstinacy.

Rutherford died before his pupil, Cockcroft, had developed uranium fission, which made possible the chain-reaction, which is the essential ingredient of energy, releases the forces which we have come to call atomic power, which Cockcroft today is harnessing as industrial power.

More than any other single individual Cockcroft has been responsible for the remarkable progress of Britain in the atomic-energy field. Like Britain, he had to "start from scratch" when the United States, with the McMahon Act, decided against the sharing of secrets.

He had had no part in the Manhattan Project, the gigantic U.S. achievement, by which Britain contributed its science and its scientists, but from which it got no knowledge. Yet today Britain's air defences while not those of his fellow-countrymen at Chalk River, Ontario, and it was there that the plans preliminary planning and training for what was to become the British Atomic Energy Establishment of which he is director.

From that small and the inadequate research and development that is, of anything in the U.S.—has grown the United Kingdom Atomic-factories, the Monte Bello and Woomera atomic tests and the industrial atomic energy plants now well advanced in construction.

Their Hants Are Tied!

(Montreal Gazette)

Maritimers have enriched Canada and the world with many welcome traits of character. One of these characteristics is their humanism. The story of the Hants constituencies, East and West, in the recent Nova Scotia election has to be seen in its natural habitat to be fully appreciated.

In 1949, the county of Hants, Nova Scotia, was split into two constituencies, Hants East and Hants West, in which the Conservatives were elected by Hants East with a majority of 28 votes, and Hants West with 29. In the West contest was a tie. The Liberal candidate was given the benefit of the doubt, as the electoral officer, a majority of one, and proceeded to declare the election, deciding the Conservative candidate by a majority of two. In fourth count proceedings, the election was voided. A by-election elected a Conservative.

Next was the general election of 1953, when each candidate was elected in Hants East with a majority of one. Count proceedings voided the result and the seat remained vacant.

Last June's by-election was held to fill the vacant seat. The result was a tie. Judge Ellis, the returning officer voted for the Liberal candidate and he was declared elected by a majority of one. A recount was held. The Liberal candidate lost three votes and Conservative, but the Conservative lost four. So the Liberal who wins Hants East with a majority of one.

The Conservative candidate, Ernest Ettinger, says he is "glad-ly" accepts the result of the recount, he will not contest the recount, he says, because he feels that "the people of Hants East have had enough excitement for a while."

No one will criticize Mr. Ettinger's decision. Not only do the people of Hants East have enough of it, but the federal voting is polls all the time, but Mr. Ettinger has his job cut out for him.

Between now and next election, Mr. Ettinger has to talk two determined Maritime Liberals into voting Conservative.

Could Cause Confusion

(Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph)

The New Brunswick Department of Lands and Mines has prepared an advertisement, inviting mining companies to undertake development of the mineral resources of that province. Central in the advertisement is the picture of a miner standing at the entrance to a mining tunnel, and it is topped with the question: "Is there a future in the mining movement in New Brunswick?" Everything looks ready, except the mouth of the tunnel: "Positively no admittance."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ARE WE IN AN ERA OF PROGRESS?

As we read the pages of history, we are struck by the fact that what people confidently believed to be a great blessing, has often turned out, in the light of later knowledge, to have been a curse. One of the strangest paradoxes of history is the attitude people took toward cotton. Before 1800 the mill owners of England in the 18th century declined to allow Negro children to work in their mills, them mill owners were convinced that it was a blessing to cotton factories. The children were wandering about the streets in cities and growing shiftless on the countryside. What a great blessing that factory could be given definite employment.

Every source what this child labor was to stunt the children's growth, it to turn them into slaves, to make their lives so incredibly miserable that we are horrified and that we look back on it as one of the conditions amid which these children then worked. Yet but 100 years ago, child labor was regarded as a blessing.

We need constantly to be warned that many of our present-day enthusiasms may be short-sighted. Read what the leading thinkers are generally setting forth as newly discovered and quite sound truth, and you will probably find fifty things that you have been taught for years will regard with ridicule or perhaps amusement.

We need to be humble. The modern world may not be half as progressive as we sometimes think it

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL A HEAVY TOLL

New England newspaper, October 23, 1954, told of the death of a boy 18 years old from a hemorrhage bleeding within the skull several hours following his injury in a football game.

Another boy in England boy aged 17 suffered fatal injury in a high school football game, earlier in the season.

Speaking of the death of the latter boy a city official who is chairman of the school committee said:

"It's a tragedy that strikes hard, and my deepest sympathy is with the members of the boy's family."

Now it was my intention to comment on this in my ironic fashion, but I find I haven't the heart to do so.

There it is. Let parents of growing boys do what they will or the local sporting gents—think it a healthful game.

Some coaches and some players ask why I deplore injuries and fatalities when only a few young boys in high school football but ignore the countless minor injuries that occur in other sports.

Prize fighting, for example?

Well, then, what other sport may a comparable mortality rate? What sport, I mean, that is sanctioned by school boards for growing boys? I know of no high school that engages interscholastic boxing contests, complete with majorettes, cheering squads, parades, victory meet or competition, for that matter. Why? Hysteria over the high school parody of varsity football?

Once in my youth I bet an enormous sum on a horse race being conducted by some of three other interns and $1 of my own money — it was always my custom to bet cautious. It was the only horse race I had ever been to judge. All I knew is what I read in the medical books and medical magazines, and in the newspapers of basketball and other sports than football involve; the accompaniment with the hazards of high school football it would seem that injuries are not dealt with or recorded in the news and discussed in medical books and journals. Orthopedic surgeons do report many cases of damage to the cartilaginous formations of small injuries in athletic contests, in which knee age basketball players, which injuries may be weeks or months in plaster cast and sometimes leave the youngster permanently crippled.

LOVE EARLY!

I once read that we changed physically every seven years. That is true. It applies to the mind as well as to the body. Interests, tastes, desires and even character that it has been a fortunate thing in many a man's life that a change has taken place. Personally, I would not like to remain the same entire individual.

Take the relation of the sexes. Early love is the most romantic and beautiful. And take the example of the man who accumulates wealth and fame struggling, devoting all his time and strength to it, only to realize later in life that he has missed out on many of the fundamental things that contribute to happiness.

In the autobiographical book by Ellen Glasgow, "The Woman Within," I came across this sentence: "A tragic irony of life is that we so often shield ourselves from the critical independence after the child-reason for which we sought it has passed away."

I recall the story of a mining man in the early days of Cobalt, a beautiful home in Denver, but before he had it finished, he called in a man who was famous for design one room to be devoted to the examples of art. This was done, but when he viewed that art, it meant little or nothing to him, for he had missed the time in his life when he might have cultivated this love rather than the love for mere money.

The child that is early educated in the appreciation of their magic, will not leave that love later in life, but will keep it and pursue it with ever-increasing interest. You can't buy appreciation, but if you have the flame within you, it will spring to life, and it will prove a great joy to you, and obvious of all the flowers in your garden of the mind!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Both our railroads have bought gimmicks. They pre-cook their food, and it is put aboard the diners at strategic points, and the cooks are simply heated in the diner kitchens. The new diners on the Canadian have no room for any cooking. The kitchens aren't big enough, aren't well laid out for way we eat, and the chefs are finding it a little difficult to cook a prime rib of beef in the ovens intended merely for the heating of food. How do you heat up roast beef? These are questions our American friends can answer with great satisfaction if not to ours.

Travelling on the United States trains in recent years, I have been impressed more than once with the splendid meals I've had on the American diners. On some the meals are cooked right on the Canadian fashion. But undoubtedly, some of them were meals put aboard and heated up. We can be grateful to American designers for the ingenuity that has put the Canadian tradition of cooking en route will not be sunk without trace.

Weddings

MOON—NOLAN

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, December 11, at 2:00 p.m., in Sidney United Church parsonage, by the Rev. W. R. Dorey, when Miss Lorraine Nolan, of Belleville, R.R. 8, daughter of Mrs. Leo Nolan, and the late Mr. Nolan, became the bride of Carl Frederick Moon of Belleville, R.R. 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moon.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother, and was attractive in a turquoise blue faille sheath dress, with white accessories, and corsage of red roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Melba Nolan, of Belleville, who wore pink faille with white and black accessories and corsage of pink Briarcliffe roses.

Mr. Orley Nolan, of Belleville, R.R. 8, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, the young couple left for Syracuse, New York, the bride travelling in her wedding ensemble with blue topcoat and red rose corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Moon are residing in Belleville.

Alliance Choir Presents Cantata

Sunday evening the congregation which filled the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle was thrilled by the rendition of the Christmas cantata, "Emmanuel Forever," by Rachel Green, under the direction of the Rev. Eric Strain, Mus. Bach., whose interpretation of the score in its various phases of chorusses, solos, duets, trios and male quartet, was both understanding and deeply reverent.

The cantata, rendered as part of the candlelight service, mid a setting of evergreens and a pictorial background of the town of Bethlehem, lighted by a glowing star, was most impressive as the singers unfolded the old, old, but ever new story of the Babe of Bethlehem in all of its wondrous charm, majesty and beauty.

The leading narrative portions were taken by the pastor, who also took the bass solo part. The male quartet, members of the Alliance choir, in their presentation of "The Quest of the Christ Child," were most effective.

This is the third Christmas cantata the Alliance choir has presented, and judging by the enthusiastic acclaim it received, more or less, duplicate music will be heard in the near future.

H-S Association Discusses Children's Accident Policy

The King George Home and School Association met on Monday evening.

The meeting opened with carol singing by the Glee Club with Mr. Boaks (Grade VIII) as leader. Carols included "Silent Night," "Sleep Infant Divine" and "Donna Nobis Pacem." It was a delightful rendition and greatly enjoyed.

A short business session followed. One important discussion had to do with the probability of Home and School Associations finding a means of having some form of insurance to cover accidents to school children, that aren't taken care of by the liability insurance which the school board provides.

The junior attendance banner was won by A. M. Kindergarten, Miss Malcolm. The senior attendance banner by Grade VI, Mr. Horwood.

At the close of the meeting the social committee had arranged for square dancing. Music was supplied by recordings and Mr. Fred Paige proved to be a capable "caller."

Refreshments were served.

Consultant Says Toys Should Suit Child

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Jean Maddin, child consultant, urged parents to give thought to toys purchased for their children and select something suitable to the child's interest, with age and ability in mind.

"Play is a child's business," she said. "It is his way of learning. The toys and materials we give him are the tools he will use for his job of play."

Last year Mrs. Maddin and two assistants in the university extension department got together and planned a simple course in toymaking. They had to limit the number of young students, mostly parents, to 20. "People really like these home-made toys, which are better and more sturdy than those you buy."

STUDIED AT COLUMBIA

As a mother, and as a nurse, Mrs. Maddin realized the importance of toys in the growth and development of the child. So she went to Columbia University and in 1951 was graduated with her M.A. in pre-school education.

"If only people would take time to think," said the slim blond young woman, "there wouldn't be so many parents trying to hide letdown feelings at Christmas and other gift-giving occasions.

"A good question to ask oneself when choosing a toy is: Can the child manage it without help of an adult, or with a minimum of help? If it is going require frustrating effort on the child's part don't buy it.

"A toy should be a challenge. It should encourage an enthusiastic, eager approach to new problems."

Women's Study Guild Hears Interesting Talk on Origin of Carols

The Women's Study Guild, which met at the home of Mrs. A. G. Smith, Ann Street, on Monday evening, had for its timely program "The History of Carols."

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Varcoe, the members voted to renew their sponsorship through the 'Save the Children Fund' and a letter of thanks was read from the Italian boy at present cared for. The $14 collection of the evening was sent to the Unitarian Service Committee for Overseas Relief.

The devotional service was taken by Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, who read the story of the trek to Bethlehem, by Joseph and Mary, as told by Vadeboncoeur. Though climaxing in the now unusual birth of a child in a crowded village, which only later drew special attention, some 600 million people now worship Him.

HISTORY OF CAROLS

The origin and early history of carols was dealt with by Mrs. George Wishart. Carol meant "to dance in a circle," that was something to be performed between verses of a Nativity play.

As early as 129 A.D., the "Song of the Shepherds," was being sung and throughout the early centuries the purpose of carol singing was to bring to the common people the story of Jesus' birth.

As the carols were passed on by word of mouth variations are many but their chief characteristics were simplicity and joy. There are carols from many parts of the world—Scotland, Portugal, France, Bohemia, Burgundy, Germany, Negro spirituals, and one composed in the Huron Indian language by Brebeouf. In more recent times a blending of nature worship and Christianity.

DEVELOPMENT OF CAROLS

The 15th century saw considerable development in the composition of carols, and with the advent of printing in the 16th century, sometimes three carols were printed on woodcut sheets and given out to the people. A precious collection of old carols found in a wall being demolished is now being safely kept in Balliol College, Oxford.

During the Puritan period under Cromwell carols went "underground", but emerged again under Charles II chiefly among the rustics.

In the present century carols are gaining in popularity and are helping to bring all Christendom together.

The Guild members joined in the singing of some secular and wassailing carols such as "Good King Wenceslaus," and "God Rest You Merry, Gentlemen." In connection with the latter it was pointed out that the punctuation is after the word "merry," thus meaning "May God keep you happy, gentlemen."

SACRED CAROLS

Sacred carols were next dealt with by Mrs. Fatirell, who told the stories of the composition and authorship of most of the best known and best loved carols. The members joined in singing each carol as it was told about.

Among these she mentioned "Silent Night, Holy Night", an 18th century carol written by a village priest, with music by his church organist.

"O Little Town of Bethlehem," 19th century, the best known American carol, written by Phillips Brooks, three years after his Christmas spent in the Holy Land.

"It Came Upon the Midnight Clear"—another of American origin in 1849.

"While Shepherds Watch Their Flocks"—or Irish origin: "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful"—one of the oldest, has been translated into 120 languages or dialects.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess committee of Mrs. Risto, Mrs. Stanton and Mrs. Frazer.

Women's Institute

UNIONDALE W.I.

The December meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Carman Frost, 5th concession of Sidney, with 28 members and five visitors.

A "thank-you" card from the Morrow family was read, also a short "In Memoriam Service", by Mrs. G. Burkitt and a one minute silence was observed by all for the departed member, Mrs. George Morrow, 4th concession of Sidney.

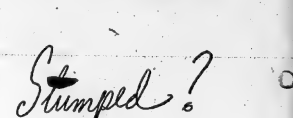
JUNIOR FARMER BANQUET

The Junior Farmer banquet was again considered by Uniondale Women's Institute. The sum of $10 will be sent to "The Canadian Save the Children Fund" by the Uniondale W.I.

"Silent Night" was sung with Mrs. Avery Martyn as song leader in the absence of Mrs. Milton Grills.

Household hints were given by Edna Faul, Pearl Frost, Marjorie Martyn gave a reading "Old Tools," Mrs. Joe Morris gave a reading "Revelation," Mrs. McCullough a reading "The Greatest Gift."

Miss Isobel Elliott, of Plainfield, a registered nurse, and who, for the past three years had served in an Eskimo hospital in the far north, showed a series of slides of the hospital, the wise men appearing, the younger children, who were her favorite patients. She spoke highly of their personality and the love of the little children. She also had models of Eskimo dress and doll for a display of the Eskimos' handicraft work. All proved most interesting to the members.



Mrs. R. Wannamaker thanked Miss Elliott and Mrs. Frost for entertainment and presented her with a pair of book-ends from the Uniondale W.I.

Christmas gifts from each member were sent to the Salvation Army to be distributed to underprivileged children.

GOOD MANNERS

INSCRIPTION IN THE BIBLE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son (I am a widow) has recently returned from his service years, and he and his wife are coming to spend Christmas here with me, then to start housekeeping in an apartment they have already bought several Christmas presents for each of them, and several electrical appliances for their new home. As a New Year's present I would like to give them the new translation of the Bible. Only one and his wife are very much interested in this). They are both very religious, and in the front of this leather-cover-ed Bible I have bought, I would like to write something about the Bible, something always to be remembered. Any suggestions, Mrs. Beeckman? Mother

My suggestion is those perfect words about the inspiration of the Bible! "Thy word is a lamp unto my path." Then sign it with a message from you of deep and abiding love and devotion. A wonderful present for the New Year.

GIFT FOR NEW HOUSE-OWNERS WHO "HAVE EVERYTHING"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have just received an invitation to a housewarming to be given by some intimate friends of ours in a distant city. We will not be able to attend. However, we are planning on going to that city about a month later, and will stop to visit these good friends of ours. Do you think we should send a gift to the housewarming, or should we take something when we go to visit them? Please suggest some appropriate gifts. They have just about everything you can imagine. — E.A.

Since, as is apparent in your last sentence, it is going to be quite a problem for you to give these good friends of yours something "just right," my suggestion is that it might be the wisest plan to wait to give them something after you have visited them in their new home and have had a chance to observe what might be particularly suitable and welcome. Or, as I think he inclined to do, send them a non-expensive but most-carefully-chosen something as a devoted gesture for the housewarming (perhaps a box of match-books with the new address stamped in gold), then give the more consequential gift later. Also, instead of giving them something that "would be classified as "useful," consider something artificial you might see just the place for a fine flower-picture, or perhaps an etching or a pair of wall brackets; or a pair of lovely vases to be used on a pair of walls in the room, or a mantelpiece shelf. Or an article for a desk. Or a lovely small mirror. Or a handsome leather waste-basket, with a removable, plastic inside-container.

POSITION OF SALAD PLATE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a salad is served on a separate plate with the main course, on which side of the plate should the salad plate be placed?

—Elizabeth B.

The salad plate is generally placed at the left of the main-course plate. This is usually the more convenient side, since on the right of the plate is the water glass and perhaps other glasses.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

PLAIN JANE NEED NOT DESPAIR

Pretty girls are a dime a dozen. Many of them seem to be cut off the same bolt. Same hairdo, lipstoo vivid, long finger nails of flashing red. Their dress, features and make-up are all standardized. Then along comes a young lady, not so perfect of face and figure, but who has flair and chic. She has grace of movement, nice manners, a pleasing voice. And she stands out in the crowd. She is somebody!

Let Plain Jane take heart. Blessed with health and vitality, animation and charm, she should worry! She just hasn't discovered her beauty potentialities. Possibilities for becoming attractive are everywhere. The only magic that cannot be accomplished is to turn a dumb girl into an intelligent one. Smart clothes will set a woman apart—smart clothes and a smart way of wearing them. Clothes sense is a gift, it would seem. It isn't money that does it, though that helps. It is good taste cultivated to the highest degree, plus an understanding of line and color and what is suitable for one's type and figure.

If the good looks budget permits, Plain Jane should go to a high class beauty shop and shoot the works. A new hairdo may achieve wonders in the way of improved appearance. A clever stylist will consider her features, profile—even her figure.

She should have a lesson in the art of make-up, if she is incapable on that subject. She may learn what can be done to play up good points, tone down those which not so good. The lipstick, applied cleverly, can improve mouth contour. A touch of mascara on eyelashes can bring out the coloring of the eyes. Powder, rouge and eyebrows also contribute to facial charm.

So dry your eyes, Plain Jane. Pick up your heels and join the great army of successful beauty seekers!

When making muffins by the new methods, sometimes all ingredients will mix in one stage at no specified length of time.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHOULD SHE GIVE HIM A CHRISTMAS GIFT?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have had several dates with a boy, and he comes to see me at work nearly every evening.

Since we are not going steady, would it be appropriate for me to give him a Christmas present? I'd hate to give him one if he didn't intend to give me one. — B.S.

Dear B.S.:

Why don't you buy something for him—something not too elaborate or expensive, but just a nice little remembrance—wrap it up in gay holiday style and have it ready? Then, if he comes along with a gift for you, thank him and say something like: "I have a little something for you, too. Just a minute while I get it!" That ought to take care of things nicely.

I'd like to add a word about something else, though, which is that I don't think it's very smart to let this boy come and see you at work. First thing you know, your employer may object. Keep your social life out of your job and you'll be playing it safe. Your employer is paying you to work for him. It's only fair to keep your mind on it.

LET YOUR GIRL FRIEND MAKE HER OWN DECISIONS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My best girl friend, with whom I grew up, was going with a young man named Jeff, who is 24. She is 19 and I am 18.

Often, when she was going out with Jeff, one of his friends named Jack would call and ask me to go out with him, and the four of us would go on a double date. Recently, however, my girl friend stopped going with Jeff, and after that Jack never called to ask me out.

Last week, my girl friend told me that she was the one who always asked Jeff to call Jack and ask him to invite me on the dates. She said the only reason she did it was because she felt bad about having to stay home some weekends when she was out with Jeff all the time. I like Jack so much that I'm sure I would have to go back with Jeff as a favor to my girl friend, so things would be as they were before, and I would have a chance with Jack. I know Jeff is really in love with my girl friend because he called me up after they broke off and told me he was heartbroken. But she will not go back with him because she is too proud to admit that she is wrong.

Do you think I am being unfair to expect her to do this for me, and do you think I should just let nature take its course and wait for Jack to call me? — M.

Dear M.:

You'd better let your girl friend alone to make her own decisions and her own plans. If you don't, there might eventually be hard feelings between you, and since she has been your friend so long, this would be too bad.

Moreover, if Jack had really become interested in you on these double dates of yours, he would hardly need inviting you out, just because his friend Jeff had broken off with your girl friend. That would be pretty silly. My advice to you is to do as you yourself suggest and wait for Jack to call you. He certainly will, if he is really anxious to see you again.

FIND CHILD IN VAULT

ATLANTA (AP)—A five-month-old baby girl was found crying in a storage room at the state capitol building Monday and police began a search for a Negro maid for questioning. The baby, identified as Pamela Coggins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Coggins, was discovered on the concrete floor of an old vault now being used as a storage room.

Last-Minute Details

By Mary Moore

How are you getting along? Do you think you are going to make it before the clock hath stricken twelve on Friday night?

I hope you are sure than I am. I certainly hope some enthusiastic energetic young people arrive home in time to be of some use to their harassed (though happy) mother. (The reason for my alleged harassment being that they young people of assorted sexes aged fourteen to seventeen, are to descend on me and my recreation room tonight for a Christmas party and square dancing. They are a new Sunday school group headed up by Mr. Brown and me. The girls are little angels, but I'm glad I'm not in Mr. Brown's shoes!)

There are quite a few details to cover, such as recipes for almond paste, giblet gravy, oyster stew etc. that I think you will expect to find in this column this week. As time is closing in rapidly it behooves me to get a hustle on.

ALMOND PASTE

Allow blanched almonds to dry out exposed to the air but do not toast them. Grind them through finest knife of food chopper—use it twice, if necessary. Put them through grinder twice more to make them very fine. Mix into them 1 1-2 cups sifted icing sugar. Then stir in 1-4 cup egg whites unbeaten and 2 teaspoons almond extract. Shape into balls between palms. Wrap in wax paper and put in tightly covered jar in refrigerator for a few days before warming up, then rolling out to exact shape of fruit cake you wish to cover. Frost with simple icing, also made of icing sugar and egg white, or boiled white icing.

GIBLET GRAVY

Cook together the turkey giblets, heart and neck (adding liver during last 20 minutes) in 3 cups water with 1 stalk celery, 1 slice onion and 2 slices of carrot until gizzard is tender. Remove and discard vegetables. When turkey is roasted transfer it to hot serving platter. Leave all of the 1-4 cup of drippings in turkey pan. Place roasting pan over low heat and scrape in all rich brown solids from sides of pan. Sprinkle 1-4 cup of flour into drippings and cook gently stirring, until the flour is golden brown in color and satiny smooth. Stir in 2 cups of the giblet stock until smooth and thick. Chop the giblets small and add them and 1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate. Salt and pepper to taste and heat through.

QUESTION:

At Christmas time, my husband, who is from Hungary, makes the pastry he used to have at home. Could you possibly give the recipes for Kalacs and Kiflik? —Mrs. Doris I.

ANSWER:

My little helper Annie, who is Hungarian, says Kalacs is what she knows as

KOLACKY

I sincerely hope this makes up into the pastry your husband is so familiar with. One cup butter, 4 egg yolks, 1 yeast cake, 1-4 cup warm milk, 4 egg whites, 2 cups light cream, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 1-2 teaspoons grated lemon rind, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 5 cups sifted flour, a beaten egg or cream. Cream the butter, add yolks one at a time. Add yeast dissolved in warm milk, egg whites beaten stiff, cream, sugar, lemon rind, salt and flour. Beat hard until dough does not stick to bowl. Let set in warm place, covered, until it rises double. Take out by tablespoonfuls and on floured board form into balls, then flatten like a cookie about 1-2 inch thick. In centre put jam or cottage cheese or ground poppy seed mixture. Pinch up sides to resemble tart (or bake hard tart tins). Let rise in pan. Brush edges with beaten egg or cream. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 10 to 15 minutes.

If I locate a recipe for KIFFI I will mail it to you.

CAMPBELLFORD

St. John's Y.A.C. Headed By Anne Palliser

CAMPBELLFORD — The Christmas party of the St. John's Young Adult Club maintained its record as the best attended meeting of the year on Thursday night in the church basement, when 65 gathered to sing Christmas carols, play games, and welcome Santa Claus.

President Wayne Gunter completed his term of office, a most successful one. In opening the meeting, he called upon Earl Nelson to lead in the singing of carols.

A brief period was taken for business. In this, the outstanding success of the Variety Show, presented some time ago, was noted. It was agreed to present the show again on January 18th, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church basement, and perhaps in Havelock, before the project is abandoned. President Wayne Gunter announced that during his term of office the club had met its objective of raising $500 for the financial support of the church auditorium now under construction.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

An enjoyable Christmas program followed which had been arranged by the executive, and then Santa Claus arrived to supervise the exchange of gifts.

Tables were set up to accommodate the large number present and ice cream and cake were served.

Before the group departed, Walter Elliott moved a vote of thanks to the retiring president, Wayne Gunter, who in turn paid tribute to his wife, Joyce, for her assistance in filling the responsible position.

The new president, Anne Palliser, made a brief speech, and expressed her confidence in the co-operation she would receive in her term of office, commencing in January.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

The slate of officers, chosen by the nominating committee to conduct the duties of the club in the coming year was announced as follows:

President, Anne Palliser; vice-president, Don Baldwin; treasurer, Henry Oliver; attendance secretary, Eleanor Nelson; group leaders, Bruce Serreant, Ruth Thompson, Betty Elliott and Clayton Robertson; pianist, Anne Nicholls; assistant pianist, Don Ferguson; song leader, Earle Nelson.

Parliament May Be Requested To Grant Canadian Railways More Freedom to Set Rates

By JOHN BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament may be asked at the 1955 session opening Jan. 7 to grant Canadian railways increased freedom to make agreed charge contracts with shippers.

The government is expected to propose amendments to the Transport Act to make this possible if the action is recommended by a one-man royal commission which has concluded a 39-day study of the agreed charge method of setting railway freight rates. Agreed charges are special low contract rates granted by the railways in return for a guaranteed percentage of a shipper's business.

The hearings concluded before Hon. W. F. A. Turgeon, commissioner, Tuesday and he is expected to submit a report to the government early next month. The government likely will act quickly to implement any recommendations favorable to the railways in view of their current financial plight.

REVENUES DOWN

Railway witnesses testified that revenues of the CNR and CPR in 1954 were expected to be down by about $110,000,000, compared with 1953. Revenues of the CPR were expected to be down $50,000,000 and of the CNR $60,000,00.

The railways requested the commission to recommend legislation which would make it easier for them to sign agreed charge contracts with shippers. They said they required this increased freedom to enable them to compete with motor transport and to stimulated freight traffic.

The railways proposed a formula under which agreed charges with shippers would become effective automatically 45 days after they are filed with the board of transport commissioners. At present a public hearing, when parties objecting can have their say, must take place 30 days after a contract is filed for board approval.

The Canadian trucking associations and Canada Packers Limited were the only major groups to demand repeal of legislation enabling the railways to make agreed charge contracts. They also said the increased freedom sought by the railways to make contracts could destroy the trucking industry.

The railways denied this and said the formula merely would enable them to recapture a portion of high-rated traffic lost to trucks in recent years. They said there would be large amounts of freight which still would be moved by truck.

Nearly all of the 34 groups which made representations supported the agreed charge method of setting railway freight rates. However, they built them believed the railways were asking for too much freedom.

the topic of Mr. Mazey and negotiating committee executives, won a point at the meeting here.

These workers had demanded a mass meeting of all Ford strikers from Oakville and Etobicoke, a Toronto suburb, and one of the group produced a petition to which he said 200 names had been signed.

The negotiating committee executive said it will take plans for a mass meeting under consideration.

Auto Union Asks Ford to Resume Talks on Strike

HAMILTON (CP)—The United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) announced on three fronts Tuesday that it has asked the Ford Motor Company of Canada to resume negotiations in an effort to settle the two-months-old Ford workers' strike.

Emil Mazey, UAW international secretary-treasurer, announced in Windsor and Hamilton that the Ford Oakville workers met, that the union is "making efforts" to reopen negotiations. Then 1,000 to 500 members of the Oakville Ford local meeting here:

"We are working to get negotiations under way in a couple of days."

However, on a more sobering note, another union official said later there is no chance of a settlement before the new year.

WAGES HAS BASE

Mr. Mazey's announcements at Windsor, where 3,700 workers have been on strike since early October, and Brantford said the union has written to Rhys M. Sale, president of Ford of Canada, asking that talks be resumed "as soon as possible."

But Mr. Mazey told the meeting here, the union will accept no piecemeal negotiations. It will hold out for agreement on a provincial basis, with a master contract covering workers at Windsor, Oakville and Etobicoke.

He added, however, that such a demand was not a precondition for bargaining.

Negotiations broke down twice previously when the union limited representatives from the three locals be present. The company has said it will negotiate with one local at a time.

NO COMMENT

Ford of Canada officials at Windsor acknowledged receipt of the letter, but declined comment.

The meetings at Brantford and Hamilton Tuesday—first two of four such gatherings of striking Ford workers who live in different areas and work at the Oakville plant, midway between Toronto and Hamilton, followed a split in the ranks of workers at Oakville. Two more such meetings are scheduled today at Oakville and Toronto.

Reactions at Tuesday's meetings pointed to the parent Ford company and the UAW international union in the U.S. as keys to the talks.

Strikers at both meetings asked whether pressure could be brought to bear on the U.S. Ford company and the international union to end the strike.

BETWEEN THE LINES

"I cannot categorically say yes or no to that," Mr. Mazey said. "You might want to read between the lines, however."

He said he did not wish to jeopardize the union's chances of success by saying anything more.

Some Oakville workers, who had criticized the UAW negotiating committee and thereby prompted

Vatican Sources Say Pope Pius Had Poor Night

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Reliable Vatican sources said Pope Pius passed a poor night, sleeping neither well nor much.

These sources said the ailing head of the Roman Catholic Church remains very weak. But they described his general condition as about the same as Tuesday, when for the fourth consecutive day he took a brief automobile ride and walk, aided by his doctors, in the Vatican gardens.

The doctors planned to give the 78-year-old Pope a transfusion of plasma and whole blood during the day as part of the treatment they hope will increase his strength. He has been receiving such transfusions every few days since his dangerous collapse Dec. 2 aroused fears for his life.

Vatican sources said the Pope still plans to give his Christmas greeting and blessing by radio on Christmas Eve, and to appear at the window of his study overlooking St. Peter's square at noon on Christmas Day.

NAVAL XMAS

OTTAWA (CP)—All but three of the 4,800 now in commission with the navy will spend Christmas in their home ports. The exceptions will be the destroyers Sioux, Huron and Iroquois, which will be at Sasebo, Japan, United Nations naval base.

Airliner Fired On After Leaving Taipeh, Formosa

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Northwest Orient Airlines headquarters here was notified early today that one of its planes on the Hong Kong-Okinawa route was fired on Tuesday 21 minutes after it left the airport at Taipeh, Formosa.

The DC-4 was flying at 9,000 feet when the pilot reported three shell bursts off the plane's right wing. The plane was not damaged and arrived safely in Okinawa, the report said.

The message did not give the name of the plane's pilot nor the number of passengers aboard. A spokesman for the line said the incident had been reported to the United States embassy in Tokyo.

Location of the plane at the time was not given.

HUGE ROBBERY

DETROIT (AP)—A $175,000 fur burglary caused police Tuesday to sound a national alert for authorities to be on the lookout for anyone attempting to dispose of costly furs or garments in volume. Border guards were asked to watch for furs being transported to Canada. The burglars took 23 mink jackets and 27 full length mink coats from the downtown E. C. Dittrich and Sons fur salon Monday night.

Federal Cabinet to Consider Proposal to End Quarrel With Quebec About Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet, to meeting today for the last time before Christmas, is to consider a proposal to end the long dispute between Ottawa and Quebec over income tax.

The proposal is believed to be one sent Prime Minister St. Laurent in a letter from Premier Duplessis after their Montreal meeting Oct. 5 to talk over the dispute. It is understood to be:

1. That the federal government let Quebecers deduct the full amount of the provincial income tax from the federal income returns.

2. That Quebec, in return, agree to abide by a ceiling on the amount a province can collect in the direct taxation field.

Another personal meeting between the premier and the prime minister or an exchange of correspondence outlining the cabinet's views on ending double taxation in Quebec will follow today's cabinet discussion of the proposal.

Another issue to be considered by the ministers is the federal policy, on extending the egg price support program into 1955, a ticklish issue since there has been a large surplus this year.

Mr. Duplessis has imposed a provincial income tax amounting to 15 per cent of the federal tax and has demanded that it be fully deductible from federal payments. Federal law, however, permits a deduction of only five per cent from the federal levy.

Under the five-per-cent deduction, the federal treasury stands to lose about $12,000,000 a year. The 15-per-cent deduction would cost Ottawa $25,000,000 annually, but some federal officials say the extra $13,000,000 would be a bargain price for peace with Quebec.

In his letter to Mr. St.-Laurent following their Montreal meeting, Mr. Duplessis is also reported to have agreed to remove a phrase in the Quebec tax law that declares Quebec has a prior right over the federal government in the direct taxation field, a phrase that has stuck in Ottawa's craw.

It appeared, as reached all around on the Duplessis proposal yesterday that consideration today the federal government then will submit the scheme to the other provinces for their views before it gets final approval.

The cabinet is expected to leave over until its next meeting, planned for a day or two before Parliament opens Friday, Jan. 7, such matters as continuation of federal subsidies to gold mines.

CHARGE ARSON

INGERSOLL, Ont. (CP) — Police Tuesday charged Joe Marsh, 23, with arson after an investigation here of two fires at a service station and a coal company Dec. 12.

The arrest came after a joint investigation by provincial police and Inspector Joseph Kendall of the Ontario fire marshal's office.

Farmers' Union Not in Favor Of Present Hog Sale Pact

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario farmers' union in a brief presented Tuesday to the Ontario Hog Producers Association marketing board said it is not in favor of continuing the present agreement with United Livestock Sales.

The union brief urged termination of the agreement at the earliest practical date.

United Livestock Sales, a private firm which pays dividends to shareholders, is under contract to sell hogs for producers.

A series of meetings of hog producers throughout the province to get their views on possible new methods of handling farmers' hogs and dealing with packers was suggested in the brief. Meetings would be held pending termination of the contract.

The brief suggested several alternative plans for consideration by producers.

One was that the board assume complete control and that competent sales personnel be obtained to supervise direct sales.

It also suggested that a deduction of an agreed amount be made from the proceeds of each sale to finance the program and to place the marketing board in the position that it might at time obtain cold storage facilities.

The union said many hog producers have lost faith in the Ontario Federation of Agriculture. Union spokesmen suggested that the marketing board break affiliation with the federation and operate as an independent marketing board.

"This would put the board in a position to recruit the moral support of all organizations which believe in the principle of organized marketing, and save the money deducted from the sale of hogs to be used exclusively for the marketing of hogs."

The brief asked for a different system of electing representatives to the board. It suggested that candidates be nominated at county meetings and be voted on by mail ballot.

The brief said farmers in many areas must pay exchange on cheques received for sale of hogs and suggested this expense be considered when new marketing rates were set.

"Another very controversial point causing much discontent among hog producers is the price differential between grades A and B1," the brief said. "While we agree some measure is needed to encourage producers to improve the quality of their hogs, we do not believe the present plan is satisfactory."

The union suggested the differential be decreased back to 40 cents from 81 and that the federal government be asked to place an additional $2 subsidy on grade A hogs.

The six-man delegation from the Farmers' Union was headed by Walter Miller of Tara, first vice-president of the organization.

OIL SANDS

Rising prices of crude oil soon may reach the level where they can be matched by petroleum from the vast Athabasca oil sands in northeastern Alberta. The world's richest oil store can be squeezed from the sand with the fingers, but finding an economical method of separation on a commercial basis has been a long process. Here, a mechanical shovel loads truck which delivers the sticky mass to a separation plant. This is an Alberta government photo. (CP Photo).

Story of Athabasca Oil Sands May Reach Climax in 25 Years

By JAMES SHRIMPTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — The old story of the Athabasca oil sands, the world's richest oil store, may reach its climax during the next quarter-century.

Rising prices of other oils soon may reach the level where they can be matched by produce from the vast black sands of northeastern Alberta. The province then may echo to a new oil boom.

The area, estimated at up to 30,000 square miles, is an ancient delta deposit washed into a shallow sea. It later was buried beneath hundreds of feet of sediment from the sea and in time consolidated into sandstone and shale.

ORIGIN UNCERTAIN

The sand of the delta deposit somehow became saturated with the vast black sands of northeastern Alberta. The province then may echo to a new oil boom.

The area, estimated at up to 30,000 square miles, is an ancient delta deposit washed into a shallow sea. It later was buried beneath hundreds of feet of sediment from the sea and in time consolidated into sandstone and shale.

ORIGIN UNCERTAIN

The sand of the delta deposit somehow became saturated with the vast black sands of northeastern Alberta. The province then may echo to a new oil boom.

may have originated in later cretaceous formations of which the sands form part.

The first white man known to have seen the sands was Peter Pond, a trader who in 1788 found Indians using the tar-like substance for medicine and to repair canoes.

By the 1880s a geological survey of the area was completed.

Not until 1913, however, was any systematic work done towards development. Then, Dr. S. C. Ells of the federal mines branch began a 20-year study. Nine years later Dr. K. A. Clark was appointed by the research council of Alberta to work on the problem of separating the oil from the sand.

MANY EXPERIMENTS

Governments and private industry since then have spent large sums in laboratory and field experiments.

It is estimated the sands contain between 100,000,000,000 and 300,000,000,000 barrels of oil. Other known world reserves total not not much more than 100,000,000,000 barrels.

The black sands are an aggregation of fine sand particles, each enveloped by a film of sticky bitumen. The oil as recovered is a thick, black, viscous semi-liquid only a step from pure asphalt.

The sands pose a triple problem for oil production — how to mine the area, how to separate the oil from the sand and how to market the oil.

HIRE TORONTO ENGINEER

In 1951, S. M. Blair, Toronto petroleum engineer, was appointed by the Alberta government to find out if the oil could be produced and sold at a profit. From a $700,000 pilot plant the province built in 1948 at Bitumount, 50 miles south of McMurray.

His answer—yes. As a distillate comprising about 60 per cent of the original oil, desulphurized, its value was estimated at $5.50 a barrel as No. 2 fuel at the Great Lakes pipe terminus. This would leave a marginal profit of 40 cents a barrel. The current Great Lakes price for other crudes is about 25 or 30 cents cheaper, but prices and demand are rising.

Mr. Blair suggested a $45,000,000 refinery in the sands area and a $3,000,000 pipe to Edmonton from where oil could be transported to the Great Lakes through the interprovincial pipe line.

That is no pipe dream. Twelve companies are exploring its possibilities.

SHEPPARD FACES

The prosecution asked two key questions during the trial:

1. If there was a maniacal killer standing by Marilyn Sheppard's bed when her husband ran into the bedroom, why didn't he strike down, and possibly murder Sheppard as well?

2. Who arranged the downstairs rooms to give the appearance that a burglary had been committed, although nothing of value was missing? If Sheppard didn't do this, who did?

In reply, the defence repeatedly challenged the prosecutor to show a motive. What reason, they asked, could Sheppard have had to murder his wife? Susan Hayes had testified that he told her he "loved his wife very dearly, but not as a wife."

101 HOURS

Last Thursday morning the jury of seven men and five women retired to weigh the evidence.

Tuesday afternoon, at 4:12 p.m. —101 hours and 30 minutes later— the buzzer sounded in the courtroom, signifying that they had at last reached a verdict.

Sheppard's two older brothers, Stephen and Richard, and their wives, were in court, as they had been every day through the long wait. Both brothers are osteopathic surgeons, like the accused man. Stephen is the one who had testified: "We always considered Sam very special."

He tried, but failed, to read James Thurber's humorous book, "My World—and Welcome to It," while the suddenly silent room was waiting for a policeman to bring Sam Sheppard into court.

COURT VERSION

It was 20 minutes before the accused man came into the courtroom. He sat down between two of his lawyers, William J. Corrigan and Arthur Petersilge.

Sheppard talked to them for a brief instant, then leaned back in his chair. His eyes were closed. He was clenching his hands so tightly together that his knuckles turned white.

In another moment, the jury filed into their seats. None of them as much as peeked at him.

Then Judge Edward Blythin took the bench. His first words were to caution against any demonstration. Then he asked the jurors if they had arrived at a verdict. The foreman said they had. A bailiff collected five sheets of paper, each containing a possible sentence—

BEHIND GASP

Blythin went through the slips until he found the one that was signed. It read:

"We, the members of the jury, find the defendant not guilty of first-degree murder."

A gasp, a rustle of sound, arose from spectators in the jam-packed back benches. The judge paused momentarily and shot a stern glance toward the back of the room. Then, he finished the sentence—"but guilty of second degree murder." Sheppard had opened his eyes. He closed them again.

The judge ordered him to rise and stand before the high bench. He asked if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced. Sheppard said: "I would like to say here that I, am not guilty and I feel there has been proof presented that has definitely proved I could not have performed this crime."

ALBURY — Mrs. Percy White, Muriel and Max spent the afternoon and tea hour, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Williamson.

HONOR BIRTHING RESIDENTS

The community gathered at the home of Mr. Joe Allison on Wednesday evening to honor him and his daughter Ann Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Snider and Anne, before their departure to their new home in Trenton. Mrs. Corke read the address and Mrs. Dulven and Mrs. Bestord Peck presented Mr. Allison with a beautiful wool sweater; Marion and Roy with a lovely table lamp and Anne with a charm bracelet. W.I's Receive Letter From London ACWW

RAWDON — The Associated Country Women of the World, located at 167 Kensington, London, England, has forwarded this message to all "the women in Canada, who are members of the Women's Institutes and the letter for the Belleville area arrived last Friday. It read in part: "All over the world women are spinning. They are spinning threads of love and understanding; threads of family affection that pull us all home at Christmas time; threads that link communities and organizations and countries, and go to make up the tapestry of human life."

The members of the A.C.W.W. are weaving a tapestry, such as the world has never yet seen. It is multi-colored, many patterned, and yet harmonious in design, since every one has the same pattern in mind—a better life for herself and her children, built on friendship and goodwill.

In some countries the snow lies thick on the ground, as this message is being written. In others it is midsummer. But to all this is the end of the year and plans must be made for the new year that is coming, and one must look forward with hope and faith to 1955. Here, at the office, it is hope that the threads that link the Institutes together, may grow stronger with every passing year.

Vast Expansion Of Wealth Seen Result of Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP) — The St. Lawrence seaway was pictured Tuesday as leading to "a vast expansion of wealth" in both the United States and Canada.

The optimistic forecast was in a report issued by a Senate foreign relations sub-committee headed by Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.), long a backer of the seaway.

The report said a great increase in wealth should result because "the areas served by the seaway are to become industrialized as the natural consequence of the provision of cheaper bulk transportation" and because "access to direct foreign trade should be greatly beneficial."

Consumers should benefit through lower prices, it said, declaring that "the saving in business will make in shipping via the seaway will be passed along" to buyers.

DISCOUNT ARGUMENT

As to the argument that the seaway will ruin east coast ports, the report said this was entirely without foundation.

"The gross national product of the United States (output of goods and services) doubled between 1929 and 1950 and is expected by economists to double again between 1950 and 1975," it said.

"The seaway will play its part in this expansion of wealth, and older ports will not be ruined. They can, in fact, look forward to a period of unparalleled prosperity.

"At the turn of the century, the same gloomy prophecies about the fate of east coast ports were made in arguments against the digging of the Panama canal."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

SAME OLD OSHAWA TRICKS

Maestro Wren Blair, ebullient voice, manager and ex-coach of the Whitby "Wrens," apparently is not satisfied with his lot in the Eastern Ontario Senior "B" loop. He wants, or wanted, sgad, to shake the shackles of the best dangled hockey loop to hit his village and take up residence with Metro Senior "B" League, a Horizon outfit at present composed of Orillia, Stouffville, etc. The Toronto Lyndhurst (remember, Russia, Bari?) folded and left a vacancy.

Mr. Blair wanted to jump this circuit and toss in his lot with the Toronto outfit. However, the OHA put an effective quietus on Mr. Blair's hopes and the "Wrens" will continue, it is hoped, status quo.

Mr. George "Soup" Campbell, sports editor of the Oshawa Times-Gazette, is the authority for the news item. He wrote:

"Whitby's application for admittance to the three-team Metro League as a replacement for Lyndhurst, was turned down by the OHA. This would have meant less travelling and fewer hockey games for the Whitby team—and less home games for their fans too—but it would have been a harsh blow to the Eastern circuit teams, Brockville, Kingston, Cornwall, etc. The Whitby team draws very well away from home and we suspect that the Eastern Ontario clubs—and sports writers, would have screamed 'murder' if the OHA had permitted Whitby to pull out."

Just whatinell is going on under the hat of Mr. Blair? What did he expect to gain by jumping this circuit and grabbing a spot in the Toronto loop? Is it because he cannot stand looking up at other clubs—a front-runner, so to speak—or what have you? Mr. Blair, it seems, did not take the rest of the team into his confidence and as friend Campbell points out, there would have been "murder" screamed by the scribes throughout the circuit.

The Whitby (nee Oshawa) mentor screamed holy hellsbells at a pre-season loop meeting when he figured his club, with Peterborough, were not getting enough of the quoted boxoffice loot. In fact, he started the movement that ended in a 15 per cent melon, five of it for transportation purposes, being cut at season's end and by the teams of the circuit.

We understand the clubs in the Toronto circuit are not drawing much than they generally do—so the only reason we can see for the proposed switch, since the Oshawa club is operating on a player's outlay basis, is the lack of ready cash for operational expenses.

Whitby has a strong, well-balanced club, one this department solicits to be in the top four when the schedule bugle blows the cease-fire. It is a good drawing card all around the loop, with the possible exception of Whitby, although Blair improved this matter a couple of weeks ago the team was playing to 900 fans at home.

It is just as well the OHA turned the official thumb down on Blair's suggestion, because had it given its consent, the Oshawa mentor would have been "out" as far as future grouping hereabouts is concerned. As matters stand, Blair will lose considerable prestige around the circuit. Future groupings will now look for an iron-clad guarantee from any potential Oshawa entry, regardless of what phase of sport it is.

(Aside to 'Soup' Campbell: We could go on with this and some Oshawa faces would be red. But now, you are in "Intercounty" baseball. It's a long lane, me lad.)

TRENT VALLEY

The southern section of the Trent Valley Hockey League has two games on tap for this evening at the Memorial Arena. The first fixture is between the Trenton Admirals and last year's champs, the pet'rial Pilot aggregation, Cementmen, getting under way at 7.30. The nightcap finds the Picton Gunners making their initial start in the league with the Belleville Juniors providing the opposition at 9.00.

* * *

There should be plenty of action with the Juniors and Cementmen looking for their second victories in as many starts. Point Anne won easily over RCAF Ical Wednesday by a 6-1 score while the Belleville squad edged the Admirals 4-3. Picton could be plenty tough with several of the now extinct Wellington Dukes in their lineup but the juniors are a speedy club and make up in ambition and enthusiasm for their lack of experience. Point Anne has most of last year's players along with plenty of added strength and are picked around the league as the team to beat.

* * *

The poor sportsmanship shown by several of the Peterborough players in last night's game here was certainly a disgrace to senior hockey players, in fact one might expect such actions from spoiled children only. True, they were taking a second beating at the hands of a much better club on the night's play but that was definitely no excuse for changing a hockey game into a wild free-for-all such as occurred in the last few minutes of the game.

After the Memos had opened up a 5-0 lead in the first period, the Petes came out looking for trouble in the middle stanza. They drew five minor sentences and in our opinion were lucky to get off with that. Bill McMaster and Keith Mononcey took every advantage to rough, slash or halt in any way the fast, all-out, but clean effort of Keith MacDonald and this at last came to a head at 19.14 of the final session with the game at 7-2 for Belleville.

MacDonald and McMaster went into the corner after the puck, Keith cleared the puck out of the corner and started to skate away when McMaster rammed him into the boards and started punching. MacDonald retaliated and when this was finally broken up the two went to the dressing room with major penalties. It started again just outside the dressing room doors and they were not playing. Fists flew against the refe and other players separated the two and pulled them to their dressing rooms.

If this type of action continues in Peterborough tonight both teams are likely to find themselves short some players, either by injuries or by the ruling hand of the OHA.

Referee Admits Goalie Only Acting as Peacemaker; Patrick Hopes Team Will Take Wings

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lorne (Gump) Worsley isn't sure there is a Santa Claus.

The diminutive New York Ranger goaltender was fined $50 this week by the National Hockey League for his part as a peacemaker in a fracas Sunday night at Madison Square Garden during a game between Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs.

"Why me?" screamed Worsley. "I should get fined because I went to the rescue of one of our players who was outnumbered?"

Worsley skated from his net during the game in an attempt to help break up fights which broke out between Leafs Ted Kennedy and Rangers' Harry Howell and Eric Nesterenko of Toronto and Jack Evans.

"Worsley was only acting as a peacemaker," referee Frank Udvari, who officiated at the game, said later.

NON-COMBATANTS

The NHL classes goalies as non-combatants and assesses automatic $50 fines on those who leave their nets during fights.

"I don't get it," Worsley said. "Two guys were on top of Chris Chrystal. I know I'm not supposed to mix in these things, but I'm not going to let any teammate of mine take a beating if I can help it."

Fine or no fine, Ranger coach Muzz Patrick is hoping this kind of spirit prevails tonight when Detroit Red Wings play at New York in the only game scheduled.

"We've been hitting hard in the last three games," Muzz says. "And if they keep it up, something has got to give. We'll take our chances that it won't be us."

NEVER BACKED

Patrick admits, however, that Detroit has never backed away from an argument.

In the rest of the league, players were having a pre-holiday rest. After tonight's game, no NHL action is on tap until Saturday when all six clubs play again.

At Montreal, the league-leading Canadiens took Tuesday off and most of the players turned up at the Forum to pay a testimonial in honor of Maurice Richard, who scored his 400th NHL goal last weekend.

In Toronto, the Leaf players took a day's rest but the management disposed of some excess talent left over when Ottawa Senators dropped out of the Quebec Hockey League.

Leafs sold two former Senators to Vancouver Canucks of the Western League—Eddie Litzenberger, veteran forward, and Phil Maloney—and loaned the same team Hugh Barlow on an immediate-recall basis.

TO AHL

Red Johnson and Bobby Robertson were sent to Providence of the American League, Johnson on an outright sale and Robertson on loan.

Leafs also announced that Gord Hannigan, recently returned from the injured reserve, is being sent down to Pittsburgh of the American League to play himself back into shape.

The Leaf shuffle could give Rangers a boost on the forward line in Ezinicki, a Leaf problem child and hardrock for years, who was making a comeback after a year off as a golf pro. Rangers have a working agreement with Cleveland.

Leafs have given up on Ezinicki. But they have up on Danny Lewicki, too, and he now tops the Ranger scorers with 18 goals.

Marty Marshall Gets Big Chance Against Johnson

DETROIT (AP) — Marty Marshall, newest member of the "knocked out Stan Rycabokski club" gets his big chance tonight.

The 29-year-old Detroiter, a struggling small club fighter for nine years, meets Harold Johnson of Philadelphia in a nationally televised 10-rounder in Olympia Stadium. Johnson ranks second among the light heavyweights.

Marshall earned his first TV shot by adding his name to the long list of those who have knocked out Satterfield. He chilled the glass-chinned Chicagoan in the second round last month.

However, in Johnson, he'll be meeting a charter member of the IKOES club. The Philadelphian kayoed Satterfield more than two years ago.

MANTLE FINED

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) — Mickey Mantle, New York Yankees centerfielder, and his cousin, Mac Mantle were fined $17.50 each Monday on speeding charges. Police said Mickey was arrested after being clocked at 80 miles an hour, and Mac, travelling in another car, was clocked at 70.

Talbert Predicts 5-0 Win For U.S. in Davis Cup Games

BY WILL GRIMSLEY

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Tennis captain Bill Talbert of the United States today predicted a 5-0 victory for his Davis Cup team in the challenge round against Australia, starting next Monday.

Australian captain Harry Hopman earlier predicted a 4-1 victory for his team.

"I think we will shut them out, 5-0," Talbert said.

He made his ambitious forecast after he watched Tony Trabert and Hamilton Richardson give impressive demonstrations at White City.

AT BEST

"Trabert is playing so well, I can't see how anyone can beat him," Talbert continued. "Vic Seixas also is at his keenest and his only problem will be to break his long-time jinx against Ken Rosewall."

The dark-haired little Aussie ace has beaten Seixas eight times in a row in the last couple of years.

"We know how many times Rosewall has beaten Seixas," Talbert said. "But we also think we have found a flaw in Ken's armor, I am sure that Vic has found the answer to the problem this week.

DOUBLES "SURE"

"Our surest point is in the doubles. We have the greatest doubles team in the world."

Hopman, in predicting a 4-1 victory for his team, gave Trabert a chance to win one singles and conceded Australia an equal chance in the doubles.

Talbert said his optimism was based on both the excellent showing of his own team in recent weeks and the apparent slump of Lewis Hoad, the Aussies' No. 1 player.

"But even if Hoad comes back to the form he displayed a year ago (when he was almost unbeatable), I still think our team can beat them twice," emphasized Billy.

PURSUE OLYMPICS

ROME (AP)—Italy is going all out to lure the Olympic Games to Rome in 1960. The sports-minded Italians are waging a campaign to stage the world's greatest amateur sports show with their pockets open bulging with money. Their hopes are so high they have even built a huge open air arena and named it Olympic Stadium.

The Italian Olympic Committee can tap almost at will a vast fund raised for sports in Italy through "Totocalcio," a national lottery which brings in about $800,000 every Sunday during the soccer season.

HOLD UP PURSE

PARIS (AP)—The purse of Roy Ankarah has been held up and an investigation opened on his losing performance against world bantam champion Robert Cohen here Monday night. Both have left by plane for London. The French Federation asked the British board of boxing control to help in the investigation before any decision is made or sanctions taken.

Memos In Second Place Tie With Cornwall With 8-4 Win Over Petes

Game Develops Into Brawl In Third Frame, 40 Minutes In Penalties Handed Out by Refs

(By GARRY ALEXANDER)

The Belleville Memos pulled into a second place tie with Cornwall here Tuesday night, when they handed the Peterborough Petes an 8-4 loss in an O.H.A. Senior "B" affair before only 412 fans, the poorest crowd in Belleville this year. The same two clubs hook up again tonight in Peterborough.

Pictures were passing by the locals in the first period gave them a 5-0 lead, while the teams split six goals down the centre in the middle session and the Petes tallied the lone marker in the final twenty minutes. The Memos came up with a good all-around effort, while the visitors could do nothing right and at times looked to be far below senior "B" calibre.

The game developed into a near-brawl in the third period with forty minutes in penalties handed out by referees Purtis and Flanigan of Kingston. Kennedy of Peterborough had a misconduct and minor, while Keith MacDonald and Bill McMaster drew five for fighting and later battled it out in the penalty boxes. Wade of Peterborough had majors for fighting, this one lasting about five minutes and both players leaving the ice cut, bruised and without sweaters. Four other minor sentences were also dished out in this period while the opening period had seen no penalties and the second seven minors.

Erwin Duncan was the big gun in the Belleville lineup, hitting the light three times, while brother Edwin picked up three assists. Red Doran and Ted DeGray added a goal and assist each, with Pete Jones getting one there. Wilson, Dave Jones and Keith MacDonald also scored. Keith Montgomery had one goal and an assist for the losers with Ted Collins getting two assists. Floyd, Bill McMaster and Bert Hill were the other marksmen.

SCORED IN 47 SECONDS

Jack Donlevy, tending the twine for Peterborough, was beaten after just 27 seconds of play with Erwin Duncan backhanding one home from his legs from 15 feet in front. Edwin Duncan added Belleville's second shot of the play and then at 7:04 Keith MacDonald scored a beauty, lugging the disc from his own blueline, beating one defenceman and firing by the other into the far corner of the net for a 3-0 score. Dave Jones added to the total ten seconds later, banging one in off a skate and then Ted DeGray rounded the Petes' net, pushed the puck out front and once more it hit a skate, deflecting into the mesh. The three-D line of Duncan-Duncan-Day tallied the final marker of the period at 17.47 on a neat passing play with Erwin pulling the trigger from close in. Gus Leonard put the puck into the Memos' net twice but once he was offside and another time batted it in with his stick above his head. Both were disallowed.

Collins saved the way to the visitor's initial goal at 1.02 of the second, blasting one towards the Belleville net with Hill tipping it by Purtis. Defenceman Bob Wilson, who played an outstanding game back of the blueline for Belleville, got that one back from the point at 10.30 with Armstrong off for interference and Red Doran made it 7-1 before the penalty was up on a pass play with Pete Jones and DeGray. Floyd kept the visitors in the game with a goal at 13.18, cutting across in front of the net and flipping it in, while Erwin Duncan closed the Belleville scoring at 15.49, golfing Edwin's goal mouth pass through Donlevy. A tripping penalty to Purtis led to the Petes' second goal with McMaster taking passes from Redmond and Fryia before driving it home.

PUT INTO CLEAR

The Memos pressed hard in the opening minutes of the final period with Donlevy turning back several labelled drives. Bub Macey put Dave Jones into the clear with a pass up centre ice at the six minute mark but the busy custodian outguessed him. Keith Montgomery notched the final goal of the game at 16.43, carrying from centre ice and rifling a bullet-like drive over Petsia's outstretched leg. Play became rougher with the fights coming at every bodycheck and Montgomery's goal came with Wilson serving a charging sentence. The Memos outshot Peterborough 32-29.

The teams:

Peterborough—Goal, Donlevy; defence, Redmond, McMaster, Armstrong, Leonard; forwards, Hill, Collins, Twist, Pelvin, Floyd, Hunesuit, Fryia, Kennedy.

PAGE RELEASED

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Joe Page, 37-year-old former relief pitcher for New York Yankees, was released from jail Tuesday on his own recognizance to await a hearing on charges of desertion and non-support. The charges were filed by Page's wife Monday. He declined to post $250 bond and spent the night in jail.

Kramer Clarifies Position With Davis Cup Team

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Jack Kramer clarified his position with the American Davis Cup team Tuesday and denied Australian newspaper reports that he had usurped some of the powers of captain Bill Talbert.

"I have no official capacity with the team," Kramer said. "I was invited to work with the boys and this I was happy to do. But to say I am the team's coach, that's ridiculous."

"As far as I am concerned, Bill Talbert is captain, manager and coach."

Some Australian newspapers this week published stories saying Kramer had been taken on as coach of the U.S. squad. One said this set up a battle of wits between two of the game's great tacticians—Kramer and Australian captain Harry Hopman.

Talbert said little but appeared embarrassed by the reports, which in effect relegated him to the role of equipment manager.

Talbert said: "We asked Jack to help us. We have a lot of respect for his tennis knowledge and we believe he can help the team, just as Frank Sedgman is helping the Australians.

"There is no friction. We are the best of friends and both of us have a mutual objective to get back the cup."

Capital, Once Pace-Setter In Spectator Sport, Now Also Ran

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The capital, once a pace-setter in spectator sport, now appears to be just an also-ran. The reason: No spectators.

Professional hockey disappeared Monday. Football's Rough Riders, still without a coach, have not quite recovered from a disastrous season but are planning to rebuild.

Horse racing has been in a shaky position and baseball, never a big attraction after Ottawa moved to the international League four years ago, may not last another season in triple-A company.

Nobody remembers offhand the last time there was a professional boxing card here, but wrestling shows averaging about 3,000 spectators—with a recent top of more than 7,000—probably are paying their way.

Other sports such as soccer, basketball and tennis are strictly on sandlot or private club basis.

The reasons why the local depression in sports attendance are as many as there are persons who will comment.

T. P. (Tommy) Gorman, who withdrew his Ottawa Senators from the Quebec Hockey League, blames television of National Hockey League games. NHL games in Toronto are televised in Ottawa Saturday nights since Senators have drawn fewer than 2,000 for Saturday night games.

J. P. (Jim) McCaffery, manager of the Rough Riders Football Club, said a weak club this year was the big reason for attendance figures dropping to an average of about 9,000 a game.

"Give the fans a competing football club and they'll come out to watch it," he said. Riders won only two of their 14 games this year.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton said recently that the fans didn't know half the players on the football club and said a district hockey league would rouse more interest than QHL.

As for the baseball situation, Miss Whitton said Ottawa isn't a "farm-club" city and Ottawans wouldn't pay to see second-rate players.

There are probably other reasons too. The Ottawa valley hasn't produced a top-notch NHL hockey player in years, one who could capture the public's imagination.

The capital's great athletes of recent years reached stardom in international competitions. There was Barbara Ann Scott who won a couple of world figure skating championships before becoming a professional skater.

More recently, Shirley Thomas shone in the riding rings of Europe and North America, but retired. Ann Hegtvedt and Harvey Clifford, both Olympics competitors, are the best-known to come out of the Ottawa valley.

The man who probably is most concerned with the local sports situation is Gorman, a 58-year-old Irishman who has taken some hard knocks in a long and colorful career spanning almost everything from horse racing in Mexico to figure skating in Canada.

Always armed with a bold front of optimism the sports promoter invariably has financed back from periods of depression, usually after a change of scenery.

Now, he has that same outlook of better - things - are - ahead, but whether he is looking for greener fields is anybody's guess.

"I still consider Ottawa a great sports town," he said. "In other centres his earlier by television the fans now are returning to rinks to enjoy the thrill of sitting in on the genuine hockey action, and I feel they will do the same here."

He said that will take perhaps a couple of years. Meanwhile, hockey brass of the Ottawa District Hockey Association are trying to act up a senior league, which would participate in the Allan Cup playoffs next spring.

Goal on Final Whistle Helps Mercs to Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A goal on the final whistle moved Owen Sound Mercurys to within five points of the league-leading Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game Tuesday night.

Teddy Reid, one of the league's smallest players, scored with just two seconds remaining to give Mercurys a 6-5 victory over Windsor Bulldogs before 3,000 Owen Sound fans. It was his second goal of the night.

In another game Stratford Indians lost 3-1 to Cataracts at Niagara Falls.

Reid's game-winning goal came just 51 seconds after Reg Abbott had the score for Bulldogs. Jack Taylor, Jerry Reid, Vern Gardiner and Tex Dennison accounted for the other Owen Sound goals. George Gee scored twice for Windsor, Jackie Gallagher and Jim Peters added singles.

The high-flying Cataracts rolled to their sixth victory in 12 games for their first win of the season over Indians. Imaple three regulars being out with injuries, Cataracts were never headed.

The win moved the last-place Cataracts within hailing distance of the fourth and final playoff spot of the halfway mark in the schedule with two games in hand on the fourth-place Indians and fifth-place Chatham Maroons.

Eddie Mulligan led the winners with two goals. Eric Unger, Lloyd Ferguson, Al Buchanan and Danny Nixon scored one each. Lou Bendo, Mickey Rota and Dinny Flanagan counted the Stratford goals.

Bannister-Landy Race at BE Games Voted Greatest Thrill of The Year

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—Whirling into the final 100 yards of the "Mile of the Century"—featuring the only two runners ever to break the four-minute mile—Australia's John Landy led Britain's Roger Bannister in the climax event of the British Empire Games at Vancouver.

Landy had been in front almost all the way and seemed headed for victory in the greatest mile ever before a packed crowd of 32,000 in sun drenched Empire Stadium. He peeked to the left to see where the Briton was and in a flash the long-striding Bannister passed him on his right.

"I looked back on the inside," said Landy afterwards, "and just then he passed me on the outside. I shifted into high gear but I couldn't catch him."

The 25-year-old Bannister—first man to crack the four-minute mile barrier—breasted the tape four yards in front of Landy as they each finished in less than four minutes. Another track first, Bannister was timed in 3:58.8 and Landy in 3:59.6.

This memorable race, which more than lived up to the wildest expectation of the most optimistic track bug, provided the sports "thrill of the year" in the opinion of sportswriters and sportscasters who participated in the 54th annual year-end Associated Press poll.

The race matched the studious Englishman who made headlines around the world when he ran the first four minutes or better mile—a 3:59.4 performance at Oxford, England, on May 7 and the Australian student-teacher who broke Bannister's record with an electrifying 3:58 run at Turku, Finland, June 21.

The Bannister-Landy mile was named the highspot or the year by 21 of 117 sports writers and sportscasters, while another 18 thought Bannister's pioneer sub-four minute performance in the quiet of Oxford was first. On a basis of three points for first, two for second, and one for third, the Bannister-Landy race got 52 points and the Bannister barrier-breaker 41.

The thrilling feats of the Giants in the pressure-cooked atmosphere of the world series ruled the next pinch-hit clouting of Dusty Rhodes in the first three games, fourth to the Giants' four game sweep of the Indians, and fifty to Willie Mays' incredible back-to-the-plate catch of Vic Wertz' 450-foot drive in the opening game of the series.

Babe Zaharias Wins Award For Sixth Time

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—"It really should go to God and my doctor."

Fast-talking Babe Zaharias slowed down when she came to those words after being told that for the sixth time she had won the female athlete of year award in the annual Associated Press poll.

The Babe was proud of her athletic achievements during 1954 but she's prouder still that she was able to win five major golf tournaments while still shaking off the effects of a serious operation for cancer 20 months ago.

"It sort of proves that if you have the desire to come back you can do it," and she meant this not for athletes but for fellow sufferers with cancer.

Then in typical Babe fashion she quipped:

"I'm real proud. I guess I really have a lot of friends among sports writers."

When she was reminded that sympathy played no part in selection of the top woman athlete, she added:

"This is a real honor—an honor not to be sneezed at. It's the biggest thrill since winning the Serbin Open at Miami Beach and will top the Serbin in my book.

"You know, it was in the Serbin that I proved to myself I could play golf again and win."

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

The mortality rate at the bridge table is not as high as you might expect. Less and less are homicides committed on the playera. But murdering the bidding is still scaling high.

When a player bids two suits and rebids one of them it is a demand on responder to show his preference. The same is true if a player bids three different suits without rebidding either.

Responder is then required to make a choice of which suit will be best as trumps. This he is ordered to do even if he lacks the true adequate support for the suit he selects as preference.

How does he determine his selection? Not by the strength he has in each suit. By the length; the one with the most cards. With equal length in each he shows preference for the first bid suit.

Culbertson and Goren and I agree without exception in this. But the other two apply the same preference without support even if one of the two suits is not rebid. And to this I do not subscribe.

Your south partner opens with a bid of one spade when you have the north hand shown here:

♠K 8 4
♥9 8 2
♦10 4 3 2
♣A Q 9 5

Your first response is two clubs. If partner then bids two in the heart suit, your second response is two spades. This is a show of adequate support (at least) in spades, according to Gordon.

In Culbertson and Goren rules, your second bid of two spades could have been made if the king of spades were a nine. It would show a preference without necessarily promising support.

There is purpose in my comparisons with these two great masters. Nothing I say here is intended to detract from my respect for their ability. Nor is my claim that their rules lack merit.

But where we disagree, somebody is wrong. My coming series for beginners will show proof of what bids are correct. Judge them.

Bud Svendsen Will Talk With Ottawa Club

OTTAWA (CP)—Bud Svendsen, assistant football coach at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., is expected here today to talk with officials of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Riders, of the Big Four Football Union, lined up Cliff Speegle, assistant coach of Edmonton Eskimos last week, but Speegle decided to stay in Edmonton.

A Rider official said the club will listen to what Svendsen has to say but no decision on a new coach will be made until after Christmas.

The club also has talked on the telephone with Herman Ball, former assistant coach of Washington Redskins, and Red Hickey, former assistant coach of Los Angeles Rams.

Neither has been invited for an interview but their names are being considered.

Montreal City Adds Tribute To Richard

MONTREAL (CP) — The city added its tribute to that of thousands of hockey fans Tuesday night at a reception to honor Maurice (Rocket) Richard's 400th National Hockey League goal.

Mayor Jean Drapeau gave Richard a wood carving of a hunter to commemorate the goal, scored in Chicago Saturday night. Guy Rousseau and Ken Mondell, who assisted on the counter, also received gifts from the city.

The reception, held in the mayor's office, was attended by a number of the Rocket's teammates and leaders in other branches of sport in Montreal.

"I would like to have you back here for another reception to honor your 500th goal," Mayor Drapeau told the presented Richard with the carving.

"I hope to be back before that," Richard replied in his brief speech. "We expect to win the Stanley Cup this year."

Richard said he never expected the publicity and receptions that greeted his 400th goal.

"It was just like any other goal to me," he said.

Wants Transfer Of 3 Junior Players Reviewed

EDMONTON (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will be asked at its annual meeting in Port Arthur, Ont., to review the transfer of three players from St. Boniface Canadiens of the Manitoba Junior Hockey League to leagues in eastern Canada.

Art Ahster, vice-president of the Alberta Amateur Hockey Association, said Monday night he has been told George Dudley, CAHA president, that the three players were illegally transferred through misunderstanding on the part of St. Boniface Canadiens."

CAHA regulations permit each team only one east-west transfer of a player, each year.

The contested players are Ab McDonald with St. Catharines, Gary Aldcorn with Toronto Marlboros and Eddie Dudych with Trois-Rivieres.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for Thursday, December 23, 1954.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Shift quickly to some other method or means if what you're doing isn't working out as it should. Don't hesitate to seek information, advice (from right sources). Stabilize.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Excellent outlook; helpful, in many unexpected ways, for home, personal and other matters. Reach out for advantages. Dealings with those in authority and high positions favored.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Be mindful of little things that can make or break a day. Matters can be easily upset if you do not act with proper foresight. Make haste slowly.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Don't feel disillusioned if others are unappreciative; you usually accomplish in a quiet, unnoticed way, so in time your efforts will be strongly felt. Hope, pray; keep fit.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Interest close to home, affairs of a personal nature hold top place today. Tact can prevent upsetting disturbances. Be the one to smooth things out when others fall short.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Vibrations are on the friendly side, and much of what you start and do now will have a vital bearing on tomorrow. Plan carefully; carry on with sensible confidence and you will achieve gains.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra) — Fine prospects for both personal and business activities. Ass...e influences around you, be sagacious choosing the course you intend following, and keep alert to opportunity.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Stellar influences stress a need for self-control, optimism, system in business and personal matters. Do not be careless about health and do not overburden yourself with excessive...is. Not an entirely easy day.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — A realistic attitude coupled with sagaciousness will pull you through any situation. Be your above-board self, and keep confidences. Don't neglect loved ones.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — There will be periods today that should encourage you to try harder than usual to put over ideas and overcome problems. Smart preparation will save much time.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Improved aspects for many sorts of business; charity and professional undertakings. Tackle propositions, chiefly you've been skeptical about or timid to approach. Benefits indicated for the seeking.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Stars advise that you curb a tendency toward extravagance lest you regret it later. Do not be too conservative in planning matters that could bring good returns if you extend yourself a bit. A happy medium should do the trick.

You born today are usually a leader, an organizer, and able co-worker. You are out always demonstrative but are deeply sincere, genuine; very capable, industrious, loyal to home and friends; will protect your own always. Do not indulge "moods" or lack faith. Keep your head high, rely upon God's aid and the many talents and capabilities He has bestowed upon you. You can hold a position of trust admirably. Avoid worry or taking undue chances with money, valuables. Don't be abrupt with others; we must often tolerate a lack of efficiency in others. Birthday of: Charles A. Saint-Beuve, French critic; Charles Stuart Calverley, Eng. poet.

Little Benny's Notebook

I've been saving up for Christmass and so has Puds Simkins, and we always give each other an equal present every year, and this morning we were walking to school and I said, I been thinking about the Chrismas present I'm going to buy you.

That's funny, I been thinking about the one I'm going to buy you, Puds said. I've pritty near made up my mind, but not quite, he said, and I said, Me too, I've almost decided, but not all the way. I'd tell you what I'm thinking of buying you, only then you'd know in advants, I said.

I dont want to spoil your surprise, either, he'd tell you too, Puds said, and I said, Yeah, that's the way I feel. The only thing is, the one you give me is liable to cost more than the one I give you, and then I'd be imbarsized, I said.

Well, I've got a list made out with prices on it, and you're 35 cents on it, Puds said, and I said, O, that's funny, I've got a list too, and that's exactly how much you are on my list.

The only thing is, you may not like what I give you as much as I like what you give me, and then I'll be imbarrissed, Puds said, and I said, Well hay, how about if we just give each other the money and we can each buy ourselves whatever we feel like, so then if we're not satisfied it'll be our own fault.

G, sure, and I can write from Benny on my present when I rapp it up, and you can write From Puds on yours, Puds said.

Sounding like a swell idea, and we exchanged G cruties, and we both felt better instead of werse.

Third Time in Modern History Army to Rise from Defeat

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

BONN, Germany (AP)—For the third time in modern history the German army is to rise from the ashes of defeat.

The thought is like an icy hand on the hearts of most Europeans —and many Germans.

Will the military forces again become the Dreinaxt power in the state? Or will new attempts to subordinate the military leaders to the control of a democratically elected parliament succeed?

The German army was born in Prussia—a stern wilderness land of poor soil, fit for little more than growing potatoes and breeding a dedicated caste of professional soldiers.

BORORN IN DEFEAT

The army will be reborn in the carly-going, wine-drinking Rhineland.

Frederick the Great, ruler of the state of the Kaiser and Bismarck—is gone, most of its territory lost to the invader from the East. Without it, Bonn leaders hope' has gone the Prussian spirit of the unalled fist.

For four years an embryo defence ministry under a former trade unio a leader, Theodor Blank, has been preparing for the day when recruiting can begin again—probably next March.

It is an open secret in Bonn that Blank has a list of about 50 former generals from which are to be picked the leaders of the new strektraefte (armed forces). There are to be about 40 jobs with general's rank in the new force.

Who will get the jobs? Only those who can pass a stiff screening by a parliamentary committee —a novel idea in Germany.

Informed sources believe only about a dozen will be former generals. The remainder will be promising young Second World War colonels and majors now regarded as capable of higher command and bright enough to catch up on 10 years of immense development in military weapons and techniques.

According to sources in the defence commission candidates will be rejected if they:

1. Were convicted of war crimes by Allied courts.

2. Were avowedly anti-democratic followers of Hitler.

3. Were unreconstructed "militarists."

4. Received unusually quick promotion because of services to the Nazi regime.

5. Took an active part in putting down the July 20, 1944, plot to assassinate Hitler.

Former S. S. (Nazi elite corps) officers will not even be considered, since the overall assertion of former field marshal Albert Kesrelring that the S. S. contained some of Germany's "best blood."

POWER BREAK

OTTAWA (CP) — The centre block of the Parliament Buildings was blacked out for nearly nine minutes Tuesday night when something interrupted the power flow in the main circuit, Jack Smith, chief engineer in the building that houses the Senate and the House of Commons, said he could not determine what the something was until an investigation is made, but he did say that a workman, Fred Cunningham, suffered burns to his face and hands.

CHARGE KIDNAPS

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two sailors were accused by the Federal Bureau of Investigation Tuesday of being the mystery hitchhikers responsible for 10 kidnap-robberies in Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey during the last three months. The FBI reported several of the victims, who stopped their cars in a friendly gesture to give a lift to a serviceman, were locked in the trunk of their automobiles, and then abandoned.

Fighter Refuses To Abandon Ring Career

NEW YORK (CP) — Boxing gloves hide Pete Adams' handicap.

About three years ago, a machine mangled the young fighter's right hand. The doctors found it necessary to amputate all the fingers, down to the first joint. Right hand thumb and the stubs remained.

"No more boxing" was the unanimous verdict. But Adams refused to abandon his ring career. He was not about to have been grafted and the wounds had healed, the Newark, N.J., fighter began working out in a makeshift gym.

Monday night Adams, now 23, fought his first New York main event. He was called in for a St. Nicholas Arena show as a substitute for the injured Gerry Dreyer. He made the most of his chance, winning the decision over Jimmy Martinez in a 10-rounder.

Eddie Lopat Signs

NEW YORK (AP)—Ed Lopat, 36-year-old New York Yankees lefthanded pitcher, signed his 1955 contract today. Salary terms reportedly were slightly below the $25,000 level.

Lopat, known for his ability to beat Cleveland, managed a 5-3 record against the Indians last summer with a 3.00 earned run ave over the Tribe. He finished the season with a 12-4 record.

Nineteen Ladies Aid Santa, Packing 2,200 Bags of Candy

Nineteen ladies volunteered to pack bags of fruit, candy and nuts, to lessen Santa's burden, at the RCAF Station, Trenton, children's Christmas party.

At two p.m., Monday, these ladies invaded the Army Supply Depot east of Trenton, to pack some two thousand bags full of a mixture of candy, fruit and peanuts for the children's party.

In a short time a complete assembly line was formed and each volunteer dropped her allotment of goodies into a bag and passed it on to the next lady. In two hours about 2,200 bags were packed and ready for Santa Claus to distribute among the children.

Marilyn Bell Named Canada's Outstanding Female Athlete

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Marilyn Bell, a pretty, laughing-eyed Toronto swimmer who stroked her way into the hearts of millions and to international fame three years ago, is Canada's outstanding female athlete of 1954. The honor is no surprise.

The freckle - faced 17-year-old blonde reached the heights of the aquatic world last Sept. 9 when she became the only human to conquer frigid Lake Ontario between New York state and Canada. They were asked to name the three outstanding female athletes, in order of preference, and they gave almost a solid vote for the slip of a girl—just five inches tall and weighing 118 pounds.

Many couldn't see anyone but Marilyn. When the votes were computed on a 3-2-1 basis, it showed Marilyn with a whopping 359-point total, 149 more than the second-place Marlene (Little Rena) Stewart of golfing fame, from Fonthill, Ont., who won the award in 1953.

Jackie MacDonald, shapely Toronto track and field star who placed second in the British Empire Games shot-put event at Vancouver last summer, was third with 20 points, five more than Shirley Thomas, 23-year-old horsewoman from Aylmer, Que., who was second in the 1953 poll.

The medalists for Marilyn was reminiscent of CP polls in 1946-48 when Barbara Ann Scott, O-Canada, was the first woman to finish the 26-mile Atlantic City Centennial Swim and was seventh in the field of 37. But Canadian Press Athletic Exhibition officials say Canada's only with world-famed Florence Chadwick to attempt the lake crossing.

Popular backing for Marilyn sprang up and led her to announce she would start. The rest is history.

Miss Chadwick, 34-year-old mermaid from San Diego, Calif., who had successfully swum nearly every large body of water she had attempted in her colorful career, gave up after 13 miles because of seasickness. Mrs. Winnie Roach Leuzler of St. Thomas, Ont., who had conquered the English channel,

Ground-Gaining Title to Perry For Second Time

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Perry of the San Francisco 49ers won the ground-gaining title for the second straight season and Norman Van Brocklin of the Los Angeles Rams took passing honors in the National Football League this year, final loop statistics disclosed today.

Perry gained 1,049 yards on 173 attempts for an average gain of 6.1 yards.

Van Brocklin took the passing laurels with 139 completions for 2,637 yards and 13 TDs. He completed 53.5 per cent of his passes and had 21 intercepted.

Dixie Walker Returns as Coach Of Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dixie Walker returns as a coach for the St. Louis Cardinals next spring in a swap of jobs with Mike Ryba who will replace him as manager of the Texas League Houston club.

Redbird manager Eddie Stanky who made the announcement Tuesday, said coaches John Riddle and Bill Posedel will be retained.

"The change gives us more balance in our staff," Stanky said. "Riddle was a catcher in his playing days, Posedel a pitcher, Dixie an outfielder, and I was an infielder."

JURY'S VERDICT

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—A coroner's jury Tuesday returned a verdict of accidental suicide in the case of a 34-year-old Sherbrooke woman and her three-year-old son whose skeletons were found Nov. 18. The woman, Mrs. Andre Vanier, and the son, Richard, were the object of periodical searches through the Eastern Townshipsfollowing their disappearance in August.

gave up because of the cold after swimming 22 miles.

Gerry Kerschner from Columbus, Ohio, previously was pulled out after 17 miles.

That left Marilyn alone in the freezing waters of the 40-mile lane between Youngstown, N.Y., and Toronto. A flotilla of 35 boats carrying officials, newspaper men, photographers and radio announcers, followed close behind to record her swim stroke by stroke, kick by kick.

Nearly 100,000 persons lined the Toronto waterfront and cheered into the darkness toward her. Newspapers put out special editions, radio stations kept the airways busy and Canadian Across Canada millions pulled for success of the fourth-born high school student.

When her white-capped head was visible to the waterfront thousands, embarrassed CNE officials announced she would be given $1,500. Offers of money and merchandise poured in—from a fifteen cent postcard to one dollar to thousands. She battled the elements for agonizing hours with her goal in sight and when she touched the breakwater at 8:13 p.m. Sept. 9, she was assured of at least $50,000 in prizes.

This was nearly doubled in the following days when the full impact of her feat hit Canadians. Big money and lucrative offers from Canada and the United States to return to the comparative privacy of school.

THE GORE — Despite unfavorable weather and roads, a capacity audience enjoyed the concert at Victoria Church on Friday evening. Much credit is due the school children, their teacher, Mrs. D. K. Redner, and the music teacher, Mrs. Reilly, for a fine evening's entertainment.

Mr. L. R. Brickman and Miss Ajadra were guests at the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Ball, Rednersville, on Tuesday evening.

Glad to report Mrs. Don Spencer home from the hospital and progressing favorably.

Trapped 12 Hours In Zero Weather On River Island

BOUCHERVILLE, Que. (CP)—A Swiss-immigrant storekeeper recovered comfortable today after being trapped for 12 hours in subzero weather on an island in the ice-choked St. Lawrence river.

Gaston Andre, 44, was rescued Wednesday night by three residents of this town 20 miles east of Montreal after his rowboat had aground on Ittle Grosbois island. He was unable to retreat it because of ice surrounding the island.

Andre's boat was hemmed in by the ice as he attempted to go from Charron island, where he has a farm, to Boucherville for supplies. He drifted helplessly until the ice pushed him to the island.

Boucherville residents started rescue plans in the afternoon when they noticed Andre waving for help. They tried to launch a larger boat but were stopped by the ice.

THREE LAUNCH BOAT

Three fishermen—Guy Morin, 17, Armand Hamelin, 34, and Jacques Meunier, 26—finally pushed their rowboat into the river and made their way to the island.

As they neared the island, Morin got out in the boat ashore but had to be pulled to safety by his companions when he sank in the cold water.

A mobile emergency unit rescued Andre on the island while the rescue was completed.

Andre was rushed by a doctor and treated for frostbite when he arrived ashore. The doctor pronounced him "in good shape" and said he did not need hospital attention.

Liberace Forced To Take Rest

John J. Jacobs, the pianist's lawyer, said:

"There is no cause whatsoever for concern on the part of Liberace's legion of friends for his physical health."

Jacobs said the pianist had followed an exhausting schedule for 10 years and that a vacation will resume full activity Feb. 1.

NO SPECIFIC SOLUTION FOR TAX DISPUTE

P. M. Makes Statement After Cabinet Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has nothing specific to put before Premier Duplessis as a solution to the Ottawa-Quebec income tax dispute, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday night after a cabinet meeting, but prospects have improved.

He said the government has been considering the matter ever since the Oct. 8 meeting between him and Mr. Duplessis in Montreal to discuss it and "more particularly" since a second meeting with Mr. Duplessis. But no arrangements had been made to meet the Quebec premier during the Christmas holidays.

Mr. St. Laurent said "we are certainly much further advanced than we were at the outset," but added that "we have not reached any point where we can announce a decision."

CONSIDERED LEGISLATION

Of the day-long cabinet meeting, he could say only that it considered legislation for the new session of Parliament opening Jan. 7. He said cabinet will meet again Jan. 3.

It was learned, however, that cabinet ministers conferred with Agriculture Minister Gardiner at the meeting on the question of price support program should be continued into 1955.

Mr. St. Laurent, who leaves today for his Quebec home to spend Christmas with his family, was pressed by reporters to clarify the government's stand on the Quebec income tax issue. He said Ottawa has "nothing specific" to propose to the Quebec premier.

TAX ISSUE

The issue arose after the province imposed an income tax amounting to 15 per cent of the federal tax and demanded that it be paid directly from federal assessments. Federal law, however, allows only a 10 per cent deduction.

Following his Montreal meeting with Mr. St. Laurent, Mr. Duplessis wrote the prime minister offering a possible solution to the impasse. The terms of this proposal have not been made public but it is understood Mr. Duplessis agreed to abide by a provincial court decision. The fate of the government will allow the full 15-per-cent deduction.

Nationalists Bomb Red Isles

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Chinese Nationalist planes bombed two communist-held islands north of the Tachens early today and ignited giant fires which shot up towering smoke columns, Nationalist defence ministry said.

The raids came on the heels of harassing flights Wednesday by Red Chinese jet and propeller aircraft over the Tachens and Communists north of this "Nationalist island.

LEGALIZES DIVORCE

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Juan D. Peron signed a bill Wednesday legalizing divorce for the first time in this predominantly Roman Catholic country. The church had appealed to him to veto the bill. Passage of the measure in both houses of Congress was regarded as a sign the growth of a controversy in which Peron has charged some leaders of the church with trying to undermine his government.

Winds 'Whoosh', West's Heat Wave Is Ended in Swirls of Frozen Dust

WINNIPEG (CP) — The wind went "whoosh" and western Canada's winter heat wave went with it.

Gusts of chilling northwesterly winds reaching 50 miles an hour sent swirls of dust Wednesday through Manitoba and sent the mercury skidded downwards from record-breaking 50 to 60-degree readings to forecast lows of 15 Wednesday night.

The wind continued into Saskatchewan which has also been hard hit by the heat wave, and temperatures were not expected to get above 35 today.

Forecast overnight rain and snow flurries with 20-mile-an-hour winds were expected to cool off Manitoba before dawn.

Unemployment Higher So Far This Year Than Last Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment is reported higher so far this winter than last, but there are indications that Ottawa feels it is making a healthy contribution toward easing the situation.

The bureau of statistics estimated Wednesday that 214,000 jobless persons were seeking work on Nov. 20, an increase of 35,000 for the month and 63,000 higher than a year earlier.

In a report issued jointly with the bureau's figures, the federal department's national employment service said there were 298,575 persons registered for jobs through its offices, 39,305 higher than a month earlier and 72,326 above November, 1953.

The reports brought renewed labor demands for government action.

In separate statements, Claude Jodoin, Trades and Labor Congress president, and Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said increases lend weight to co-ordinated labor's earlier predictions that unemployment this winter will be worse than last winter's postwar high. The peak was last March when 380,000 persons were reported 569,000 unplaced job applicants.

Prime Minister St. Laurent replied Wednesday to a request from British Columbia Premier Bennett that the federal government set near 40 per cent of its total relief payments to "unemployed employables" in B.C. Mr. Bennett's Dec. 16 telegram to the prime minister suggested that 40 per cent of the cost be borne by provincial government and 20 per cent by municipalities.

Mr. St. Laurent's telegraphed reply said B.C. is asking that the cost of relief for unemployed employables be shared by the federal, provincial and municipal governments in the same general way as 3.3 per cent.

Foes of West German Arms Make Move to Block Pacts

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP)—Opponents of West German rearmament today sought to launch an debate on the Paris and Bonn treaties. Premier Pierre Mendes-France immediately threatened to make his fate a vote of confidence in his cabinet.

Vincent Auriole, Radical-Socialist (moderate) opponent of the whole series of interlocking treaties to bring Germany again in uniform, filed a motion to adjourn debate until the French-German general agreement on the Saar has been clarified.

He made the move as deputies reconvened this afternoon to resume debate which had begun Monday.

Mendes-France, who wants deputies to make their decision this week, let it be known at once that he will fight any delay or amendment with a formal call for confidence.

Such a call would mean that debate must be suspended for at least a full calendar day before a ballot to determine the cabinet's fate.

In Rome, the Italian Chamber of Deputies opened debate this afternoon, closing 10 days of debate on the Paris agreements to end 500,000 American, British and Canadian troops in the Western defence plan. Rome's independent newspaper Il Messaggero predicted a big victory for Premier Mario Scelba's government.

Supporters and opponents of the Paris pacts in Mendes-France's own party have already lined up their big guns for the closing arguments. Former premiers Rene Mayer and Edgar Faure and Pleven, the two men who fathered the defunct European Defence Community plan, were among those scheduled to speak. Most EDC supporters to speak thus far have objected to the Paris pacts. Premier Mendes-France was stated to make his principal appeal for support at the close of the discussion. He has promised to answer all questions raised by deputies during the debate.

Transportation Costs for Royal Family Aired

LONDON (AP) — The cost of transportation for Britain's Royal Family this winter got an airing in the House of Commons Wednesday.

A four-engine Strato-Cruiser will be chartered to fly Princess Margaret to Trinidad Jan. 31. The flight "will be at enormous cost," said Emrys Hughes, Laborite member of Parliament.

Both the princess and the Duke of Edinburgh are due to make royal tourneys aboard the royal yacht Britannia in the early winter.

Princess Margaret will use the yacht for her Caribbean tour Feb. 9 to Feb. 24. The duke will become in another chartered plane.

He will join the Britannia at Gibraltar and use the yacht during an extended Mediterranean tour March 22 to April 20, Commons aires are conducted.

The first leg of the admiralty, J. P. L. Thomas, in response to questions, said the cost of operating the yacht is "topping the £ $1,000 for three months. He said he could not give a realistic estimate of the total cost of these two voyages."

Hughes said some members of parliament were not enthusiastic about expenditures on the Royal Family.

Colonial Secretary A. Lennox Boyd said the government is grateful to Princess Margaret for making the Caribbean tour.

CHILD IN CRIB BURNED TO DEATH AT WESTBROOK

Seven Persons Escape As House Levelled

KINGSTON (CP)—A child died and seven persons escaped into a cold December dawn when their six-room two-storey frame house in Westbrook burst into flames early today.

Delia Henderson, 20-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garret Henderson, died in her crib when fire and flames were unable to reach her through the flames and thick smoke. Westbrook is seven miles west of Kingston.

The fire is believed to have started in a two-storey partition between two stove pipes leading from the kitchen into the living room. The house was burned to the ground within three-quarters of an hour and the family lost all except an electric stove and refrigerator.

SEVEN ESCAPE

Those who escaped, some from the upstairs bedrooms, were Mr. and Mrs. G. Henderson, a son Sidney and his wife Brenda, a daughter Mrs. Evans, her husband Stanley Edna, and her husband Rogers Edna and four-year-old Phyllis.

Mr. Boyer was taken to Hotel Dieu hospital for treatment of a broken leg and minor cuts.

Sidney Henderson and Mr. Boyer tried unsuccessfully to enter the house to rescue the infant. In an interview afterwards, Sidney said, "It was terrible thing. I tried to get back in twice but the smoke and flames were too much for me."

The Kingston township fire department, headed by Deputy Chief Pierce found roaring flames had nearly reached the highway by their arrival. The firemen pulled the debris aside and found the body of Delia.

$250,000 Fire Loss at Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—A two-alarm fire hit a warehouse in the west end here early Wednesday night causing damage estimated at $250,000.

Firemen from six departments fought for more than two hours before the blaze, which spread through the 200-foot building, was brought under control.

The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Australia was battling gales outside the Mersey bar this morning in an effort to get into Liverpool. She was hours late on her voyage from Montreal.

Ships Flee to Safe Harbors But SOS Calls Fill Air

Mendes-France Will Get Milk From 48 States

LONDON (CP) — Furious winter storms lashed western Europe today for the third day, bringing death and anguish in the midst of planning for joyous Christmas festivities. At least 43 persons were dead or missing in the increased wind, sleet and snow which extended from Denmark to northern Italy, from Scotland to far inland in Germany and France.

More storms are predicted.

Telephone poles, trees, masonry and even some buildings crumpled before the onslaught of the hurricane force winds. Many others were in distress along the British, Belgian, Dutch and north German coasts. But there was hope that most of them would come safely through the battering.

The British army deferred the Christmas leave of about 3,000 soldiers and placed them on duty along Britain's low-lying east coast to guard against any breaks in sea defences.

DEATHS WIDESPREAD

Nine persons were killed in West Germany; two died in the Netherlands; one in Belgium and 11 in Britain. Deaths were due mostly to falling trees, crushing masonry, axle-whipped fires and road accidents.

Hurricane strength winds hit Frankfurt, Germany, shattering hundreds of windows, lifting roofs off dozens of houses and bringing down trees and high tension wires.

The sea plunged over dikes at Ostend, Belgium, and flooded the streets of the city, flooding cellars.

Heavy snowfalls, continuing after 30 hours in the northern Italian Alps, imprisoned 1,000 persons.

Police said hot plate was being used to boil a kettle to make medicated steam which was supposed to help break up bronchial congestion.

car.

Four women died in northwest Germany—three when a tree fell on their house, another when the roof blew off her home and the fourth when she was crushed by a car pursued by the winds.

Eight persons were reported in England.

Winds up to 68 miles an hour swept Britain. The havoc was worst in Scotland, where sleet and hail added to the chaos.

In The Netherlands, the Dutch ministry of waterworks ordered guards posted on the dikes along the north coast. Dikes broke in many areas but flooding was basically repaired.

High tides accompanying the storms brought fears of a repetition of the 1953 floods, which took a toll of more than 1,800 in The Netherlands, Britain and Belgium.

TAIPEH, Formosa (Reuters) — A former Chinese Communist naval officer today was quoted as saying the Chinese Reds believe Russia has promised submarines for "wipe out" the protecting United States 7th Fleet with the help of promised Russian submarines.

Nationalist newspaper Ying Hau Jih Pao said the Communists are sure they can capture the Nationalist islands before the United 7th Fleet. He said the promised Russian subs are capable of 30 to 40 knots.

Fibreglass Axe Handle Is Invented To Help Replace Article Invasion

OTTAWA (CP)—The army has tried and tried and finally built a better handle.

The army also is testing new magnesium axe handles lighter than the wooden types now used by troops at northern Manitoba camps to pull over all types of snow-and ice. It's all a part of Operation Muskox.

The axe handle, not nearly so exciting as, say, a jet plane unless the temperature's 50 below and you need some wood chopped for the axe head comes separately. It will replace wooden handles. Under Arctic conditions, they dry out and the axe head comes loose.

Five materials were tested before a fibreglass compound was picked as the best axe handle for troop operations.

The search for a better handle was prompted by the fact that in temperatures of 50 and 60 degrees several other alloys compound of rubber and plastic.

Solid and hollow magnesium handles were tested. The solid was too heavy, the hollow not strong enough. Then a handle with ribs on an aluminum core proved too light, but a solid fibreglass compound ash, there was an axe handle that's now being tested in the field.

Mimico Child Burned to Death

TORONTO (CP) — Fire which started during application of an old-fashioned remedy for croup killed a child Wednesday for the death of a four-month-old baby in suburban Mimico.

Police said Carolyn Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Evans, was severely burned when her bed clothes caught fire from a kerosene lamp in the crib. She died three hours later.

Police said the hot plate was being used to boil a kettle to make medicated steam which was supposed to help break up bronchial congestion.

Salvation Army Busy Assisting Needy Families

One of the busiest places in Belleville during the Christmas season is the local corps of the Salvation Army.

Headed up by Capt. Cyril Fisher, the corps always ready to extend a helping hand to those in need, at Christmas time they endeavor to extend their activities in assisting needy families, the aged, the sick and the imprisoned.

Already many requests for hampers of food, and bags of toys have been received. These are all being taken care of, mostly through the co-operation of the public.

The corps also has a busy program lined up for the Yuletide week-end.

Next Sunday morning Salvation Army bandsmen visit the Belleville General Hospital to play, bringing cheer from carols to their beds. Later those in the public wards will be recipients of gifts.

Jail inmates also will be entertained and presented with gifts.

On Christmas Day itself a special Christmas service will be held in the citadel on Pinnacle Street at 4 p.m. This will be a family gathering, where all families and their friends are invited to worship.

Capt. Cyril Fisher will be speaking on the subject "The Star in God's Window."

Hasty Pees' Picton 'Rookies' Guests at Big Hockey Game

The National Hockey League Maple Leafs and Canadiens had nothing on the Picton Hasty Pees' 39th for representatives of one of Canada's "lightinest" infantry divisions of World War II will be watching them.

The famous "Plowboy Fighters" of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be represented some 30 strong at the big game. Most of these are youngsters, "the cream of 39, scions of those gallant farmers, merchants and office workers" who made a blazing page in Canada's history.

These youngsters are part of "C" Company of the regiment, stationed at Picton. They are commanded by Major W. J. Graydon, of Belleville, former second-in-command of the regiment. Other companies are selected from far-flung districts of the area from which the regiment derived its name. It is commanded by Lieut.-Col. Everett S. Fairman, E.D.

ABSORBED REGIMENT

Reorganization of the Canadian Militia a few months ago resulted in the absorption of the 8th "Hasty Pees" Regiment, 100-year-old Belleville unit, by the "Hasty Pees."

Picton, the home of the original regiment which went overseas in 1939 to become part of the First Canadian Infantry Division, was left in the cold with no militia unit.

Citizens rose "in arms" in protest. Col. Fairman, then Mayor of a Picton canning factory that the famous Indian mascot "Little Chief," a huge bronze statue, was pilfered the day before the unit left for overseas. The "Chief" lies in an unknown grave somewhere near Brest, "France, where he was buried with the regiment in a quick retirement followed by a shelling raid by the regiment prior to "D" Day.

Major Graydon, assigned to a big recruiting job in the regiment's home town, appealed to the townspeople. Some of them answered the call. Some of others rallied to the colors with the result 71 were recruited in a few weeks.

PICTON CO-OPERATION

Now, as a Christmas "bonus," Major Graydon, through the co-operation of Mr. John Bassett, publisher of the Toronto Telegram, and Conn Smythe, of the Maple Leaf Gardens, is taking 42 members of his new company to the Leafs-Canadiens game on December 29th.

These "Fighting Plowboys" of 1954 will be keeping a watchful eye around.

"I have a soft spot in my heart for the Hasty Pees," said Mr. Smythe, "they were a great fighting unit." Smythe was hospitalized in Belleville with Hasty Pees officers.

Mr. Bassett and his mail clerk contact with officer members of the regiment.

Col. Fairman today expressed the appreciation of his officers and the regiment for the fine cooperation of the Telegram and Maple Leaf Gardens in arranging for the Picton rookies to see the game on December 29th.

Officers of the company besides Major Graydon are Captains D. G. Rowe and J. S. Graydon and Lieutenants Ted Baskin and Don Hobson.

Special Christmas Assemblies Held by Two City High Schools

Belleville's two public high schools bade goodbye to 1954 with special Christmas assemblies Wednesday morning.

At the Belleville Collegiate a two-hour program of songs, skits, carols and hymns was featured by the presentation of a 25-minute cantata of Christmas melodies by the 60-voice Glee Club under the direction of music teacher Mildred Templer.

At the Quinte Secondary School the Christmas program included carol singing, presentation of prizes, announcements and the presentation of gifts to the teaching Santa Claus.

BCI principal E. A. Orr and Quinte principal Leslie Reid spoke briefly to their respective assemblies thanking students for their enthusiasm in the programs and wishing them season's greetings.

Mr. Reid announced that the combination gymnasium-auditorium of the Quinte Secondary School would be opened for use at the start of the new term.

Glee featured Cantata, "Child Jesus," by American organist James Clokey, was composed of various carols and ancient Christmas hymns. The uninterrupted 25-minute work featured the entire Glee Club as well as soloists and ensembles.

Others participating in the BCI program were: June Bowerman, vocal solo; Cara and Greg Butler, piano duet; Darlene Dalrymple, vocal solo; Gail Hendricks, toe dance; Peter Smith, piano solo; Billy Rikley, violin solo; Suzanne Covers, vocal solo; Doug. Aselstine, pantomime; Kari Kappes, piano solo; Rochelle Quintet.

The program was punctuated by the singing of popular Christmas carols by the entire assembly.

Those taking part in the program of the Quinte Secondary School were: Rosetta Campbell, piano solo; Jack McLaughlin, humorous talk; R. Wright and Jim Phillips, trumpet duet.

Robert Wright, music teacher, directed assembly singing with Helen Burkett accompanying on the piano. Grade GIIA students, led by Mac Haig, sang the French song, "Bon Homme," and Miss S. Shantz led the singing of "Twelve Days of Christmas."

A quartet of teachers, Miss Edna O'Neal, Miss Sue Shantz, Miss Elizabeth Baird and Miss Smykaluk, sang several songs, accompanied on the piano by Pat Holmes.

Mr. Cameron Tanner presented prizes of the photography contest with prizes donated by local merchants.

Contest winners were: Portrait section: Judy Aselstine, Alta Craig, Elizabeth Baird; Landscape section: Patsy Vaughan, Paul Millard and Beth Fothwell.

IN MEMORIAM

McKENZIE. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Wilbert George McKenzie, who passed away December 22nd, 1952.

Time speeds on, one year is gone,
Since death its gloom did shadow cast
Upon our home, where all was bright
And took from us a shining light.
It miss that light, and ever will;
Its memory lingers with us still.
Here I mourn, but not in vain,
For in heaven, we will meet again.
—Sadly remembered by his wife Florence. 1223

McKENZIE. — In loving memory of a dear father, Wilbert, who passed away December 22nd, 1952.

With tears we watched you sinking,
We watched you pass away,
We tended you with loving care,
We could not make you stay.
We watched and kissed your brideie,
As your heart beats grew slower,
And how our hearts grew broken
When we saw you breathe your last.
You have left a beautiful memory
And a sorrow too great to be told,
But to us who have loved and lost you
Your memory will never grow old.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter-in-law and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Ross Andrews. 1223

Dad, you left us in silence,
No last words did you say,

A home you made happy while you were here,
And a love for dear ones, too.

Judge Rules Blind Do Not Move At Own Risk

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan of the Ontario Supreme Court Wednesday ruled in effect that blind persons do not move about at their own risk.

He awarded damages totalling almost $5,000 to a blind woman and her husband who sued the Chicken Palace, a restaurant in a central Toronto, after the woman was severely injured in a fall down an open stairway at the restaurant in November, 1953.

Mrs. Leo D. Carroll received $4,000 and her husband $833.

Evidence was that the stairway, leading to telephones and washrooms, was unprotected by door or guard rail. Mrs. Carroll was unconscious for 24 hours after her fall.

Mr. Justice McLennan said he could find no authority in law to suggest that a blind person moves about such premises at his own peril.

"To adopt that proposition would put altogether too heavy a burden on persons with an incapacity such as the plaintiff's."

He added that he thought Mrs. Carroll took reasonable care, considering the circumstances and her blindness.

The case was the second of its kind in this district in three weeks.

The Meaning of Chanukah

(By RABBI M. KUTZINER)

The story goes back as far as 2119 years ago.

The Graeco-Syrian empire conquered many lands and among them Judea or Palestine. The kingdom of Syria was formed of various nationalities and countries. All of them were Pagan.

The ruler's name of Syria and Palestine was Antiochus Epiphanes. He forced the Hellenistic or culture on all subjects of their kingdom. The Hebrews, however, did not want to give up their sacred religious practices and refused to worship the Greek idols. They suffered death as martyrs for their faith.

FALLS ON JERUSALEM

The Holy Temple in Jerusalem was turned into a Grecian Temple. King Antiochus fell upon Jerusalem suddenly, massacred men, women and children for three days and entered into the sanctuary and into the Holy of Holies. He removed everything of value and the golden vessels. A year later a famous general, Apollonius was sent to Jerusalem.

He came with a mission of peace but suddenly, on a sabbath day, when resistance was out of question, fell upon bloodthirsty Appollonius with his soldiers fell upon the inhabitants and killed thousands.

Antiochus wanted to destroy Judaism, for he wanted to overcome not only the Judean people, but also the Judean God, the God of Israel. He issued a decree which was promulgated by messengers in all cities of Judea, to the effect that all the Judeans must cease to follow the laws of their God and must offer sacrifice to Greek gods only.

Altars and statues of the idols were erected all over Judea. The statue of Zeus was placed in the Temple 168, B.C.E. Two psalms, 44 and 74, describe the deep grief of the faithful Hebrews. For circumcising a child the king ordered executed the family of the infant and his mother over the wall. All three bloody persecutions were to force the Judean people away from their God.

They forsook their covenant with their God and His laws with the blood of martyrdom. A mother circumcised her son 20 and killed because they refused to worship the idols. She encouraged them to martyrdom.

REVOLT BREAKS OUT

When the persecutions had reached their climax a revolt broke out, led by the Asmonean or Maccabean family. A priest named Mattathias with his five sons was living in Modin, a little town about 13 miles north of Jerusalem. They decided either to deliver the people or to die. When a Syrian official, Apelles, arrived at Modin and asked Mattathias to worship the idol he and his sons overpowered the Syrian officer and his band and destroyed the altar.

The old priest slew a Judean, who approached the altar to offer to Zeus. Mattathias called upon all Judeans, who were zealous of Law and the covenant to follow him. Many did so. They retreated in the mountains of Ephraim. After Mattathias' death, his son Judas Maccabeus took over.

He was endowed with the military genius to choose the right time for an attack, taking advantage of the enemy's weakness. Judas never relied on his sword, although strong as a lion in battle, but on the help of God.

JUDAS MACCABEUS IN THE OPEN

When the number of his followers kept increasing Judas dared to venture a battle with a Syrian force under the command of Appollonius in 166 B.C.E. The commander Appollonius was killed and his soldiers fell or fled. The Judeans regarded this victory as a sign that God had not forsaken His people, but had come to their rescue. Another commander was sent at the head of a large army to avenge the death of Appollonius. This was the famous general Heron. Near Beth Heron the two armies met. Again Judas won over a superior force. After a year of preparations another commander, Lysias, received the order to march with his army upon Judea.

MIGHTY ARMY

This was a mighty army of 40,000 with elephants. Lysias ordered one of his best generals, Gorgias, to attack the Judeans from one side, while Lysias had to attack from the other side.

With the battlecry, "Salvation is the Lord" the Judean Maccabees themselves upon the Syrians and won a new victory. The fleeing enemy furnished the Judeans with a large supply of weapons. Now they were ready for battle, realizing that Lysias would make an effort to avenge the defeat of his general, Gorgias.

THE BATTLE OF BETH-ZUR

Judas had an army of 10,000 men ready to die in this holy war. In the autumn 165 B.C.E. Lysias led a large force against Judea. He pitched his camp at Beth-Zur, 15 miles south of Jerusalem.

The violent attack of the Judeans surprised him. The skill of the Syrian soldiers. The road to Jerusalem was open. Judas entered the holy city and the holy temple. He destroyed the image of Zeus, restored a new altar and re-dedicated the temple which was the service of God.

This happened on the 25th day of the Hebrew month of Kislev, 165 B.C.E. This is the victory of the God of Israel over the Gods.

The feast of Chanukan (Rededication) continued for eight days and was solemnized by the Levitical choirs with psalms of thanksgiving and praise.

STARTED SUNDAY

This year Chanukah started Sunday night with the kindling of one candle. Each night we add a candle. The Sabbath, fourth Chanukah day.

In the Book of Maccabeaus and in Talmud we find an explanation for the reason of kindling of lights for eight days. When the perpetual lamp was about to be lit, there was found only one little jar of undefiled oil for the need of one day.

A miracle happened and it lasted for eight days. Since then, every year, all over the world celebrated the eight days of Chanukah.

Clinton Badgley Held on Charge Laid by Police

Clinton Badgley, 24, Pinnacle street, has been charged with possession of stolen goods following his arrest Wednesday in connection with theft of parcels from a parked auto earlier in the week.

Eyrler in the truck a local resident had complained that several parcels of new clothing had been stolen from his car and police were called to investigate. Yesterday the local department store called police informing them that a man was attempting to exchange a coat, which had been sold earlier to another party.

Police checked and arrested Badgley charging him with possession of stolen goods. They said most of the clothing stolen had been recovered.

JR. BARRYMORE ARRESTED

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—John Barrymore Jr., 22, was arrested Wednesday on a reckless driving charge and held in jail for about three hours until he posted $300 bail. Police said he was seen changing lanes dangerously in heavy traffic for several blocks before he was stopped.

Commissioner Asks Motorists To Drive Safely

An appeal for safe and sane driving over the Christmas holiday in an effort to cut the highway accident toll to a minimum, was made this week by A. C. McNeil, Commissioner of the Ontario Provincial Police.

"One of the major problems confronting us today is the tremendous traffic toll brought about by the ever-increasing progress of the mechanical age, he said. Everywhere people are talking road safety, and law enforcement agencies and other organizations interested in the resultant ramifications are extending every effort to cope with this ever-increasing situation, affecting as it does mostly everyone.

The spirit of goodwill is in full bloom during the Yuletide season, and when one considers it is a pity that such qualities and ideal conditions of mind do not prevail throughout the year. This attitude could well serve as a stimulus to safer driving, and we would all benefit considerably if we would adopt this feeling of goodwill toward all men each day of the year rather than exhibit it during the festive season, and afterwards relapse into the old, selfish ways again.

MASTER OF ANY DESTINY

There are many ways and means being employed to impress drivers to exercise greater care, the most important of which perhaps is the appeal to self-discipline, since the driver of an automobile or any other motorized vehicle is master of his own destiny, and also that of others for the majority of time while at the controls.

The enforcement phase of the traffic problem cannot be considered as the final solution. Extensive study of its many facets has been made by agencies and organizations specializing in traffic problems, and the results of its efforts, collision experience is increasing in violence, and your help is essential to combat this challenge is to be met.

DRIVING BEYOND LIMITS

It could be that in many instances we are driving beyond our own speed limits; the speed at which we can run on the ice and still be in control.

Traffic accidents cannot possibly make a Merry Christmas. The season could be much brighter for many people with the practice of selflessness and consideration, for other road users. These are days for living — good to let our time run on with the passing year.

Moderation in all things is commendable, and drivers are warned of the serious results which follow accidents where intoxicants are considered a contributing factor. If it is your intention to participate in celebrations over the Christmas and New Year holidays, and consumption of alcohol is part of the entertainment, please leave your car in the garage and utilize other methods of transportation. Don't put your life in the unsteady personal manipulation of the controls.

Without your help, the task of the various law enforcement agencies is extremely difficult but with your assistance I feel sure we can be holding a worthwhile effort to make Safe Driving, a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year holiday a complete realization.

You may be assured that all members of the Ontario Provincial Police will do their utmost to bring about this achievement.

Peg-Legged Cat Threatens Santa's Popularity

By ELMER BONTER
Phone 3138

TRENTON, — (Special.) — A young cat with its leg in a cast was second only in popularity to Santa Claus at a Christmas party held for the children of the employees of the Williams and Williams factory located here this year.

And the little people are going to enjoy a happier Christmas, knowing their new pet has its leg out of the cast and is walking normally again.

The kitten, a stray taken in by the factory workers, suffered a broken right leg a month ago, while playing with the belt of an aluminium cutting saw. A local veterinarian placed the shattered limb in a plaster cast to the shoulder prompting an employee to name the kitty Peg.

Another ingenious worker devised a metal tube for the bottom of the cast so Peg could drag its paw along without wearing it raw. With special attention the kitten recovered rapidly and despite the cumbersome cast catches mice harassing the plant canteen quarters.

The other day when the vet said Peg's leg was well enough for the cast to be removed for Christmas the news spread quickly through the factory. Everybody, more so the children, were glad to hear the report about Peg's first good luck since the accident.

Peg, a tiger striped species, has her quarters on both floors and apparently nine lives.

FETTY THIEVES OPERATING

Petty thieves were operating here again early this morning. At 12.30 a.m. Police Constable K. W. Carter found Brown's Drug Store on Dundas Street has been entered by forcing a rear door. A small quantity of cigarettes and $10 in cash were missing.

Det. Sgt. R. Rutherford has charge of the investigation.

The Eastern Ontario Teaching Committee of Bahais, met with Mr. and Mrs. Burt Curtis, formerly of Wooler, Ontario, and now residing in Trenton, Ontario.

Bahai's present at this meeting were: Miss Rina Millie Gordon, Miss Margaret Mann, both of Belleville; Miss Edna Halstead, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jardine, Mr. Wes. Huxtable, of Kingston, and Mrs. Melba Hall of Shannonville.

This was a pioneer activity for their guests. Supper was served by the host and hostess of the occasion, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, assisted by their family.

Apparently Man Was a 'Phony'

A loud door-knock echoed through a house in the northern outskirts of the city.

The owner, sleeping in the bathroom sang out "come in." It was probably some of the boys making a pre-Christmas call.

The outer door opened. They close to the kitchen opened and in walked a perfect stranger. He was garbed in a sweater and a woollen cap.

The owner looked at him questioningly. The stranger laid a card on the table. It read, "I am a deaf mute. I am selling Christmas cards."

Regretfully the owner told the visitor he had sufficient cards. The stranger left.

A few minutes later he scratched his head. "Now," he asked himself, "if that guy was a deaf mute, how could he hear me shout 'come in' through two thicknesses of doors?"

This may serve as a warning to householders to be on the alert for such "phonies".

Addison Lloyd Entertains Staff At Turkey Dinner

Addison Lloyd, genial proprietor of Lloyd's Cleaners, was host to members of his staff at a delightful turkey dinner held at the Queens Hotel on Wednesday evening. Most of the staff have been with Mr. Lloyd since he opened his new plant on Sidney St. a few years ago, and all expressed their appreciation to the "boss" for his kindness extended to them through the years.

The turkey dinner served by the efficient staff was thoroughly enjoyed and after the dinner the party enjoyed a social evening. Mr. Lloyd expressed the thanks of himself and Mrs. Lloyd for the kindness and co-operation shown by the staff through the years.

OPPORTUNITY FOR CO-OPERATION

One of the prettiest sights of the Christmas season is the manner in which many Belleville residents have decorated evergreen trees outside their homes with colored lights.

A thing of beauty, said Keats, is a joy forever and the loveliness of the dancing lights against the snowy background will increase in the memory of many a beholder during the sometimes dreary months ahead, before Nature once again paints the landscape in her own brilliant dress.

Besides their beauty, however, these lights may prove to have an utilitarian value, if they convince many residents of the outlying suburbs of the practical nature of a suggestion contained in a letter from a resident on North James St.

Commenting on a recent editorial in the Ontario Intelligencer on the growth of the College Hill district, just to the north of Belleville, this letter called attention to the fact that, while enjoying many city facilities, the area lacks one of the most important. There are no street lights.

"One could name Rossmore, Hillcrest, Avondale and other new housing districts just outside the city that are in a like predicament," the writer continues. Petitions have been signed by a sufficient number of ratepayers, the letter says, but lights are still lacking.

Then the letter proceeds to offer a possible solution. If during the winter months every resident in these districts would leave just one porch light burning, from 5 p.m. until they retire, the cost to each homeowner would be less than 50 cents and in any system of street lighting, but the illumination provided would be many times more effective, leaving no dark stretch, the letter writer argues.

"Many of these districts mentioned have no sidewalks, or poor ones at the best, and when neighborly visits are made or community euchres, dances and church and school meetings held, it is very dangerous, walking the dark roads," the letter continues. "Delivery men, too, would appreciate being able to see house numbers."

We think the suggestion contained in this letter worthwhile and practical. The man responsible deserves recognition, but he wishes to remain anonymous.

A REASONABLE REQUEST

Mayor B. Harper Bull of Brampton wants the Federal Department of Transport to change immediately the radio beam in which planes aircraft to landings at Malton.

The town lies in the path of the existing beam. Mayor Bull wants the beam to by-pass the town.

It is a reasonable request, if the change can be made. The deputy reeve of Brampton says it can. Since Deputy Reeve Fred F. Beckett is also Capt. Fred F. Beckett, senior TCA pilot, he probably knows what he is talking about. Cost of the change, he says, would be $15,000 to $20,000. That is a small price to pay.

It is a fact, of course, that no plane coming in on the present beam has crashed into homes in Brampton. It was, however, more good fortune than anything else that the Super Constellation which cracked up last Friday landed in a field, rather than within the town limits. Even if another similar crash never occurs, the expenditure of $20,000 would be cheap insurance against the possibility of such a mishap. It represents only a fraction of the property damage which a plane might do, if it crashed into a group of homes, and the lives which might be lost, we shall not try to place a dollar value on them.

We have said it before and we say it again—no aircraft should fly over a city, town or village at a low altitude if it is possible to avoid it. The chance of a mishap is small, but why take even the smallest chance with the lives of others, with the lives of children and of cripples, of babes and of mothers, as well as of men?

ALAS, WE ARE UNDONE!

There is always something that is taking the zip out of life.

This is no new phenomenon.

Alas and alack are words that date many years back. You may meet them in almost any foray into the literature or history of times past.

In olden days, though, when knights and fair damsels in distress roamed the land, when they were undone, nobody took their complaints literally.

Today, thanks to the marvels of science, it is oftimes true that when we lose our zip it is because of a stubborn flipper on a zipper.

Nothing can compare with the solid sense of satisfaction that we derive from a zipper that zips—nothing, that is, except the furnace that keeps us consistently throughout the long months of frost and snow.

And nothing leaves one quite as hot under the collar as a zipper which has lost its grip on life. Nothing, absolutely nothing, raises the temperature like that unfastened fastener—certainly not the oil furnace that expires without so much as a sigh right in the middle of the winter's worst cold spell, or on a Saturday night.

Sometimes adding a little oil will revive the furnace, but no oil ever repaired a zipper and if the owner is unwise enough to get oiled himself the remedy leaves much to be desired. He may be tight but the slipper is not. Rare is repair. Science has hooked another sucker and left him unhooked.

JUST FOLKS

REMINISCENCE

The youngsters always wonder why
The oldsters talk of days gone by.
They're more concerned with now than when
Were joys that will not be again.

Youth's memories still lie ahead.
The oldsters' happier days have fled.
So joys remembered now they chat
About.

And young folks haven't come to that.

But when their hair is silver grey
They'll happily recall today
And tell about the fun they had
When they were growing girl and lad.

They may not be aware just how
They're fashioning their memories now.
But time they'll discover this:
It's good with friends to reminisce.

A Young Town

(Fort William Times-Journal)

Eight years is a brief span in the life of a town. Even though the pace of expansion is swift now in Canada, there are scores of municipalities which to all outward appearances are no different today than they were eight years ago.

By way of contrast to such places Terrace Bay stands out in startling fashion. Eight years ago there was no slightest evidence a town was coming into being. When it now stands the Canadian Pacific Railway trains rushed through another tract of forest on the shore of Lake Superior.

Recently, Ontario's minister of lands and forests formally dedicated a half million dollar community that is clustered with buildings. The most modern type is served by a handsome station, a sumptuous hotel where guests enjoy the comforts, cuisine and service afforded in only a handful of other Canadian hotels, a beautiful theatre, a smart shopping centre, up-to-date hospital, diagnostic and clinic building, schools, the most modern of public accommodation, continuation schools, new churches, playgrounds, sports fields.

In short, a new community entire, housing a restaurant, a cafe, a library, meeting rooms, a billiard room, a bowling alley, four sheets of artificial curling ice, and likely the finest artificial skating arenas with an artificial ice plant, hundreds of Terrace Bay residents and their neighbors sampled the facilities after the formal opening.

Here, where in early 1948 only bear, deer, wolves and other wild life had their habitat, these hundreds, with a few thousands of motor cars parked outside, watched a hockey game between stars of the new golf course, scheduled to be in play next year. The residents of the community are shouldering practically the entire cost.

Thus Terrace Bay presents a "complete picture of a modern town." By a two-way plan of action, the people of the community have literally "spoon-fed nor is the company an overbearing paternal organization.

Happy in their environment, possessing all the material advantages which modern man can attainable only to large city residents, Terrace Bay residents are also able to enjoy fishing, hunting which is being made available to all through the erection of a small aerial by a local organization and able to enjoy fishing, hunting, golf, winter outdoor sport and handy in large centres, for residents of Terrace Bay cannot see the city lights from their homes.

As for the company, it profits in a substantial way from the new attitude of employees. With a staff that runs into the high hundreds, it has a stable force and will save, large sums thru' the extremely low labor turnover.

Here we have a key community which undoubtedly will have a large bearing on the overall development of Northwestern Ontario.

Kowtowing To Diplomas

(Moncton Transcript)

It's a very healthy thing that so many young people have such an idea of having a college education. Regard for learning, for the disciplines of learning, and a mark of a people's maturity. Yet this regard can be allowed to go too far—or at least can be somewhat distorted. For this quality, although it has material reserves among the many thousands not fortunate enough ever to gain a higher education.

A good many commercial and industrial executives have reached the point where they are insisting on a college diploma as necessary equipment, for advancement, to key - executive responsibilities. The theory seems to be that only college graduates could possibly have the knowledge and the resourcefulness for creative thinking and problem solving at the higher levels.

But an industrial psychologist, Dr. Joseph Tiffin of the B. F. Goodrich Company, comes forward now to dispute that notion. He declares that the ability among the population is capable of carrying a college degree even though but a small percentage of these actually get the opportunity. Dr. Stroessner says: "This waste of brain power is a detriment from which all mankind suffers. Governments need to free themselves by recognizing that maturity, experience and training may develop exit in every man, not alone in college graduates."

'Dead' Man's Evidence

(London Times)

A man who was legally dead was given evidence in a Court of Session action held in Edinburgh at the instance of his wife. He had sought to rescind a decree granted to her in the same court last year presuming him to be dead. He had disappeared during the war. The petition was granted.

Fish Lured By Pink Nets

(Answers, London)

A discovery has been made in the Antarctic that the pigeon-breasted colors appear to have for fish, with the result, it is said, that the entire fishing industry may be revolutionized if the idea is universally adopted.

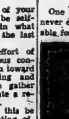
Japanese zoologists claim, after a series of experiments, that fish are most strongly attracted to objects of a pink color. It was found that the silvery fish would also co-operate with the scientists by swimming in a pink, and increased catches were made.

Previously it was thought that fish were color blind, but this is almost invisible, but the success of the experiments has proved.

Recent statistics show that Japanese fishermen catch 60 per cent in catches over the period since the new nets have been used.

Britishers, Now with the radio and television sets in almost every home, the phone system, and the best automobiles made in the world, the hardships of the farms have been greatly eliminated. Still a great deal of work to be done, even with the farmer, for he has no control over the weather. He must therefore turn out and run his farm as he needs. But supper on the farm remains an everlasting institution.

What Sort of Town?



(Hamilton Spectator)

By one definition, a small town is one where everybody is interested in what the Jonesses will name their latest baby, whereas a big town is one in which everybody wonders what the zoo will name its latest baby. But what sort of town is one in which everybody argues, in perpetuity, about the site of a new city hall?

Personal Health Talks

HOME VERSUS HOSPITAL

Dr. Brady

One reason why there are never enough hospital beds available for the size it is that so many hospital beds are occupied by infirm people, such as individuals who prefer the hospital just for a rest or maybe to have what trick specialists call a "check-up" or for "observation"—you see, it is so much more impressive when the doctor studies or examines the patient in hospital with interneys, nurses and other characters in the act than the study or examination would be in the patient's home or in the doctor's office.

And if there is anything that impresses the Yankee Dollar-Yen it is just that kind of show. It is more or less standard in the movies, notably in the imposing scenes televised by Medic.

A large group of interlopers in hospital beds are normal, healthy young women who, under the influence of obstetrician drama imagine it is safer to go to the hospital to have a baby. It isn't. Home is the best place to have a baby. There are no statistics of present day childbirth to prove otherwise. Home or hospital delivery is the safer, but from what I have seen or both, as intern, as private practitioner and as coroner in a city, and as attending physician on a hospital staff, I am convinced that home is the safest place to have a baby.

Indeed, I could make a good case for home delivery by quoting reports of experiences of unfortunate women who have been delivered in hospital.

Hospital delivery is not so bad if the institution is out of the nineteenth century, that is, if nasty childbirth or parenting-in bag been adopted.

Mrs. C. B. W. writes:

I have three children, two born at home, that I nursed; one, born in hospital, that I could not nurse. I began nursing the first two within two or three hours after they were born. But in the hospital they kept your baby in only 4 hours after delivery, which is too late. My feeling is that it is instinctive for mammals to nurse the young as soon as it is born, but I may be wrong.

The holly-leily 'people who have the rules usually discover, governing the behavior of poor geeks who haven't homey fit to fluence, of obstetrician drama imagine it is safer to go to the hospital to have a baby. It isn't. Home is the best place to have a baby. There are no statistics of present day childbirth to prove otherwise. Home or hospital delivery is the safer, but from what I have seen or

Answer: I have written lots of times about the nursing mother from even trying to nurse her baby, and about how she'd rather sentence the unhappy infant to bottle feeding anyway, so she can be free to gad about and show her figure.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

BAND OF DESTINY

There are some strange coincidences in America's history and one of the strangest has to do with the Liberty Bell in Independence Hall, Philadelphia.

When the building was in process of erection, a committee of Quakers was appointed to purchase a suitable bell. The bell was cast in London, and when asked to suggest a verse or sentiment for the inscription, the committee chose from the Book of Leviticus the following words: "Proclaim liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof."

At the time the committee chose this inscription, the colonies were happily living under British king. This inscription was selected thirty-six years before the Declaration of Independence was signed. Yet by a strange prescience, the committee chose this apt inscription for the Liberty Bell—the bell that was to ring triumphantly when the Declaration was proclaimed.

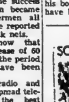
Was this a coincidence or not? The more we see of life the more does it appear that there is a mysterious hand behind the working of it things. We believe that we are free and free we certainly are to a large degree under God's will. Yet there is a way in which our lives are constantly being guided. There is indeed a destiny that shapes our ends, roughhew them how we may.

Something happens to us, and we look back and see that the happening occurred not just now but years ago in a little incident that started it all. We have a hope, a dream—we are amazed when it comes true. But why should it not? There is a destiny.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When you see a feeble old man who, obviously, has been a more or less fine specimen of manhood and a feeble young man, there is a sort of warm, tender feeling towards him. His old age becomes him.



But when you see someone who you know as a young man was a famous athlete of bygone days, or a good and successful man of affairs, industrialist, politician, with old age making a ruin of him, then you feel a little hard and cold into your feelings at all. Old age certainly does not become him. To you feel as if he had let you down.

It is always a shock to see a valuable personality destroyed by age. And many of the best of them grow old before their time. In my youth, there was an outstanding man who not only starred in several fields of sport but was an excellent reputation as a soldier in the old war. I saw him on the street a few days ago, aged, withered, shrunken, and walking with the caution of a man who fears for his bones and muscles. He should have been a pitiable sight. But I er found myself gritting my teeth in the effort to conceal the feeling that he was a disagreeable sight. You might suppose, from the way I speak, that I am a very old man.

It is worse with men of affairs. If there was one man who caught my admiration and respect twenty years ago it was a certain lawyer whose performances at the bar in court and in political and political performances on the platform were a joy to behold and a delight to hear. Now, after a few passing years, he dwindled out of sight, and I remembered him, of course, in his prime. In a downtown bank the other day, I saw, sitting on a bench in the lobby, a feeble old man who was trying to provide in the handsome lobby, a bent and tottering figure. Lingering through his bank book with tremulous hands. He had dropped a glove on the floor, and I went and picked it up for him. When he looked up to thank me, vaguely, I realized that I was in the presence of my forensic hero of long ago. His voice was feeble. There was a queer, malicious expression in his aged eyes.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

William H. Doran, 45 Years With C.N.R., Retires

A two-generation team of railway workers was broken here this week when William H. Doran, C.N.R. employee for the past 45 years, stepped down from the cab of his locomotive Sunday evening for the last time.

For the past 42 years Mr. Doran had been driving locomotives in and out of Belleville and it was his claim that he has driven every type of engine in use with the C.N.R.

Sunday he was retired and a big crowd of family, members, friends and other well wishers was on hand at the north station as he brought No. 8 passenger train in from Toronto right on time. Mr. Doran's active association with the railway is now over but he has four railway employee sons to carry on the Doran name.

In fact the Dorans have been railway workers for three generations, with Mr. Doran's father, the late Arthur Doran, being a section foreman at Campbellford. A brother, Charles Doran, also an engineer, retired last year.

STARTED AS FIREMAN

Mr. Doran started with the old G.T.R. at Belleville as a fireman and three years later was classed as an engineer. Since that time it is his boast that he never missed a trip because of illness and now is going to settle down "for a good long holiday, in fact, the first holiday I have ever had."

It was a family team that brought No. 8 in Sunday evening. Mr. Doran was at the throttle, while his son Ford acted as fireman. Another son, Ted, rode the engine, as did Leo Gallaway, superintendent of motive power.

Members of the family and friends tendered Mr. Doran a big retirement banquet at Maple Haven with divisional railway officials being in attendance. Present at the banquet were A. G. White, superintendent; Wm. Easton, assistant superintendent; Mr. Payne, divisional master mechanic and Mr. Gray, supervisor of the car department, and others.

There were presentations to Mr. Doran from family and friends, while prior to the start of his final trip from Toronto, employees at the Spadina shops presented him with a set of pipes, cigars and tobacco.

Mr. Doran has no particular hobby, but he expects to find plenty to do and will spend much of his time with his sons. He has little interest in travel and turned down an invitation from a sister, Mrs. H. A. Sharpe, to return home with her to Hayward, California.

"I was down there once and have no desire to go back again," he says.

Since Mrs. Doran's death three years ago, Mr. Doran has lived with one of his sons, F. W. Doran, at 21 Grove St. His four sons include Gerald, a freight conductor; Charles Edward "Ted" a machinist at Toronto; Vincent Ford, fireman, and Jack W., a brakeman, both of Belleville. There is one daughter, Sister Mary Clare, of Brockville. A son, Arthur, was killed during the last war while serving with the RCAF.

Yuletide Greeting Calls Expected To Reach 4,000

Christmas greetings which will be much appreciated, although they'll have no gay wrapping, are going to and from residents of Belleville in unprecedented volume this year.

While people here are busy wrapping scores of those paper arounds presents, and sending an avalanche of cards through the mails, the long distance telephone operators are getting ready to handle more Yuletide greeting calls than ever before.

The Bell Telephone company estimates that 4,000 calls for out-of-town points will originate here on Christmas Day as local residents greet loved ones far away. The huge tide of messages which Belleville people will receive is also expected to set a new record. Last Christmas Day 3,550 calls were placed here, an increase of ten per cent over the daily average for last December.

SHOULD PLACE CALLS EARLY

Wherever possible telephone users should place calls before or after Christmas Day, G. W. Proctor, Bell manager here, said. That will help to avoid delays and incompleted calls when circuits are most heavily loaded. This will apply especially to calls to the Maritimes, Western Canada, the United States and overseas points.

Because Christmas Day falls on a Saturday, the holiday period will be more compressed than usual, and the peak volume of holiday long distance calls is likely to be higher than in other years.

There will be 105 persons handling long distance traffic here this Christmas, working in shifts to deal with the Yuletide traffic which begins to increase sharply during Christmas Eve.

To help telephone users avoid delays and get greater satisfaction from Christmas greeting calls, Mr. Proctor offered this suggestion: "If you know the telephone number of the person you are calling, give it to the operator. This eliminates a call to 'information' at the distant centre and speeds up the completion of the call."

For weeks the Bell company has been making plans to cope with the expected flood of calls just before and during the holiday week-end. Every regular operator will be on duty and reserve operators will be called upon to help. Wherever possible extra equipment will be brought into service, and circuits will be temporarily arranged to handle the unusual pattern of Christmas calling.

3 DIE IN CLOSET

AUSTIN, Minn. (CP)—A nine-year-old girl and her two brothers, twelve aged 5, died Wednesday night in a closet fire apparently set while they were using matches to get an advance peek at their Christmas presents. Bodies of Janice, Donald and Harold Bottelson were found huddled at the rear of the upstairs closet. Mrs. Donald Bottelson, the mother, carried another son, 18-month-old Chris to safety.

St. Thomas' Choir Honors Retiring Organist

St. Thomas' choir held a banquet on Wednesday evening to honor Professor Wheatley upon his retirement as organist and choirmaster, a position which he has held for most of his 41 years in Belleville.

Following the banquet, a social hour was held when members of the choir recited and sang.

Mr. Gordon Poste paid tribute to Professor and Mrs. Wheatley for their long years of service at St. Thomas.

PRESENTS PORTRAIT

Mrs. R. Lancaster and Mrs. S. T. Legoli presented them with a portrait of the professor painted by Mrs. Phillips Faulkner. The choir also presented them with luggage.

After the choir presentation, Mr. Hosang, church warden, on behalf of the congregation, presented the professor with a cheque as a token of their esteem.

The Rev. William J. Robinson also spoke highly of the professor's work which began when he came from England to head the music department at St. Agnes school and to be organist at St. Thomas' Church.

Mr. Robinson pronounced the benediction.

Cash's Social Club Holds Christmas Party

On Monday afternoon the Social Club held its annual children's Christmas tree, with upwards to fifty boys and girls enjoying the gifts that Santa Claus brought them.

Tuesday evening approximately 100 members and friends of the Social Club enjoyed their tenth annual Christmas banquet and dance, at the Army, Navy and Air Force Memorial Hall. Music was provided by Hugo Diggins and his orchestra.

The first part of the evening was spent in enjoying a turkey dinner, catered by the Women's Auxiliary. Following supper, Mr. G. S. Kerr, president of the club, welcomed those present and expressed appreciation to the committee for all their help during the year. A letter from Mr. and Mrs. T. Riley of Bobcaygeon, Conn., director of the Canadian Company, expressing their regrets at not being able to attend was read. Mr. J. M. Porritt and Mr. E. H. Hall also spoke briefly.

The door prizes were won, by Miss M. Reid and Mrs. P. Wesley. Several gifts of appreciation were presented to Mr. E. Storey by Mrs. J. Kingston, to Mrs. A. Wessels by Mr. E. H. Hall, to Mr. B. Browning by Mr. D. Lee, to Mr. G. S. Kerr by Mr. E. H. Hall and to Mrs. A. Wessels by Mr. G. S. Kerr.

The draw for the grand draw prize was won by Mrs. H. Kyle, Jr., it being a quilt length of cloth. Santa also supplied gifts to everyone.

Round and square dancing rounded out the evening with spot dances being won by Mr. J. Kingston and Mrs. E. Peterson, Mr. H. Kessler and Miss P. Whitmore, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Royle. A feature of the evening was an exhibition dance by "Slim" Armstrong and Marilyn Wood.

THE SHOW GOES ON

NEW YORK (AP) — Radio's "Aunt Jenny," actress Agnes Young, slipped on an icy sidewalk outside CBS headquarters and fractured a hip Tuesday, but made her daily broadcast from a wheel chair. SMUGGLING COSTLY

BONN (Reuters) — The West German government said in a report today that it lost 230,000,000 marks (about $53,000,000) in revenue as a result of smuggling during this year, and blamed the members of the occupation forces for 80 per cent of it.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hall, Rednersville, Wed 50 Years

Association of more than half a century with the cheese industry was recalled last week by Mr. and Mrs. John Hall of Rednersville, on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

It was back in 1909 as a young lad of 16 that Mr. Hall began his apprenticeship as a cheese maker and through two wars when help was scarce, Mrs. Hall was her husband's right hand "man" as she assisted in the factory.

Last week on the occasion of the anniversary members of the couple's immediate family visited Mr. and Mrs. Hall at their home and presented them with many lovely gifts. The following evening friends of the Rednersville community presented the couple with a handsome coffee table.

CAME FROM ENGLAND

Mr. Hall came to Canada from England as a young boy of 12 and for four years resided on a farm in the Rednersville area. It was during this period that he made the acquaintance of Gertrude Alina Rose, who later was to become Mrs. Hall.

After four years on the farm Mr. Hall decided that cheese making held more attraction than farming and he apprenticed with the late Jim Robinson at the old Stirling factory. He then assisted in several other cheese plants to gain as wide an experience as possible; Mountain View factory was his first plant as cheese maker.

"Some boys in my time actually paid to learn cheese making" Mr. Hall noted. "I was one of the luckier ones, I received $2.50 per month during my first summer."

"But then a dollar went a lot farther than it does now," he admitted.

Mr. Hall became cheese maker at the Mountain View plant in 1909 and was there for over two years. He then went to Highland Factory at Roblin's, a few miles away and was later at the Quinte plant for 12 years.

In 1934 he became maker at Foxboro, where he remained until 1945.

"I stuck it out until the end of the war, despite the difficulty in getting help but, when the war was over I felt I had done my part," Mr. Hall said. He is now retired but feels if present day machinery had been available ten years ago, he would still be making cheese.

REGRETS DECLINE OF INDUSTRY

He deeply regrets the decline of the cheese industry and the constant reduction in the number of factories and feels that if patrons had presented a united front to the encroachments of creameries many factories now closed would still have been in operation.

But he favors the amalgamation of smaller cheese factories to make larger more efficient plants. "It will mean better cheese and better cheese makers," he assures.

Mr. Hall is a modest man but is proud of his record as a cheese maker and a large silver trophy won permanently for making 20 pet. cent first grade cheese three years, in a row is one of his greatest possessions.

WORKS AS FIELDMAN

Since his "retirement" as a cheese maker, Mr. Hall worked for six years, as fieldman for Black Diamond Cheese Ltd., organizing plants for the manufacture of small cheese and more recently has been on the road visiting plants in connection with sediment test work.

He recalls that the Qûinte plant which is now closed was one of the largest plants in the district at the time he was maker there. Twenty-six cheese were made each day with 30,000 pounds of milk handled each morning.

That was before the days of Sunday cheese making.

An intensely religious man Mr. Hall did not think it just right, when Sunday making was introduced. Prior to the swing to seven days per week production factories operated Saturday nights.

Throughout his later years as a maker Mr. Hall's only son, Harold, acted as his helper but at Mountain View factory he made up to 16 cheese a day with the assistance of only Mrs. Hall.

LIVE IN SAME HOUSE

It was like going home for Mrs. Hall when they retired from cheese making just nine years ago. Today they live in the home of Mrs. Hall's parents and where she was married half a century ago.

They are regular attendants at Rednersville United church and both have been active in church work. For many years Mr. Hall sang in church choirs, while Mrs. Hall is still a member of the Women's Institute and of the W.A. of her church.

The couple's son, Harold, now lives in Belleville. There are three grandchildren, Fay, Seldon and Barbara.

Hospital Interne Married By Proxy to Spanish Girl

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Vincents Comet, 26-year-old Peterborough Civic Hospital interne went to mass last week in St. Peter's cathedral here and came away a married man.

At the same moment in Zaragoza, Spain, 3,000 miles away, the beautiful daughter of a Spanish lawyer, Maria del Carmen Lozano, knelt before her parish priest and became Vincente's wife.

They were married Tuesday by proxy because the young interne intends to spend the next four years in Canada and the United States studying orthopedics. Neither wanted to wait four more years to be married.

The Spanish have strict social etiquette and it was unthinkable that dark-eyed, 25-year-old Maria should sail from Spain as a single girl.

WIFE A NURSE

They were betrothed two weeks before the marriage and to seal the agreement Senor Comet's parents visited the girl's parents with gifts. After reams of correspondence between Peterborough and Zaragoza, the marriage was arranged. Maria's father represented Vincente at the altar rail.

Now Vincente is waiting for his wife to get a visa and catch the first ship for the new world. His wife will probably come nursing when she arrives in Canada.

Vincent came to Canada from Zaragoza last July. He hopes to return to practise in Spain when his studies are over. He graduated from Zaragoza University 18 months ago with his MD and bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees.

Miss Mary Black Directs Nova Scotia Handcrafts

By AUDREY REED
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — Mary Black has combined administrative skill, a sense of humor and lifelong association with weaving to bring continuing prosperity to the native handcrafts of Nova Scotia.

The pleasant-faced, smartly groomed woman looks a lot younger than her age, 59, which puts her within a year of retirement.

As director of the handcrafts division for the department of trade and industry of Nova Scotia, Miss Black strives to have craftsmen throughout the province follow Nova Scotia designs so that their work is truly representative. Sales of these handcrafts now yield an estimated $90,000 a year.

FROM PIONEER FAMILY

Herself a fifth generation Nova Scotian with a lineage including sea captains, an early circuit judge and the first Methodist bishop in Canada, Mary Black's feeling for her home province is deep and sincere.

"However, I have to confess I wasn't born in this province," she says with a twinkle. "My mother was an American and I was born in Nanuckct. Our family moved back to Nova Scotia when I was a child and I grew up in Wolfville." There Miss Black got her courses at Acadia University, later going to Montreal where she trained as an occupational therapist.

Her career as a therapist covered 25 years, from her first job at the Kentville Sanatorium and in Nova Scotia Hospital in Dartmouth, taking her eventually to Michigan where she organized several occupational therapy departments.

Miss Black applied for the new position of handcrafts director in 1943 because "I had always felt something could be done in the field of handcrafts in Nova Scotia; and too, even though I enjoyed my years in other places, I knew I would never be quite happy until I was back home."

EXPERT ON WEAVING

Today, there are from 500 to 600 looms in the province in almost constant production and nearly 100 pottery and silver workers regularly turning out articles for craft shops. In addition, hundreds of part-time craftsmen in Nova Scotia add to their incomes through the efforts of Mary Black and her six handcrafts experts.

Miss Black's particular field is weaving. She has written several manuals on weaving as well as editing the quarterly Handcrafts Bulletin. She recalls with amusement that one of the bulletins was returned from China with an inscription that it was not approved for distribution in Communist China.

Native craft work is prominently displayed at all tourist entry centres in Nova Scotia.

"I feel that all over this continent handcrafts are enjoying a big upsurge; certainly they are in this province," she says. "Two groups are showing particular interest—young married couples and older couples who want a hobby for sustaining interest and at the same time to supplement income."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HOW CAN SHE MAKE FRIENDS WITH HER MOTHER?

It's always sad when a mother and her daughter are not the close friends they should be.

Sometimes this happens because the daughter hasn't the right attitude toward her mother. And sometimes, unfortunately, it is the other way around.

Which is the case in one 15-year-old girl's home, it's hard to tell from her letter, in which she says:

"My mother and I have never been very close to each other the way most mothers and daughters are. She never seems to have time to treat me like a daughter or to take me any place. I am 15, and a freshman in high school, and now at the time I have a lot of problems I would like to talk to my mother about, but I can't. She never seems to care. If I do one thing wrong, she makes a big issue out of it, and she never gives me the benefit of the doubt. I have two brothers and she treats them like angels.

"I never go to dances or movies or ball games. In fact, I have fun like other teen-agers. In fact, I never really go any place except to the store or to see a few home, nice clothes, and my father and mother get along well, but I don't get enough affection and care from them.

"What do you suggest?"

Because I have no way of knowing what is in this mother's mind, I can only look at the problem from the point of view of how the daughter herself might try, on her side, to solve it.

For example, I wonder if she has ever made a real effort to cultivate her mother's friendship by being especially thoughtful and loving to her. I can understand that if her mother doesn't seem to take an interest in her and her t e e n - a g e problems and doesn't treat her the way she sees the mothers of her friends treating them, this is pretty hard for her to do. However, it might well be that if she could make a big effort, for a while, to watch out for ways in which she could help her mother, and try to understand her, she might eventually get good results.

One thing she might do is to take over certain chores around the house that she sees need doing, without waiting to be asked. Again, when she and her mother disagree about anything, she should avoid getting into a quarrel or an argument with her, but, instead, take every opportunity she can find to say something pleasant and loving to her. When some event comes up at school to which she could invite her mother, she should make a point of doing this, saying how much it would mean to her to have her mother there. She should tell her, too, that she wants her to meet the mothers of some of her friends. If her mother was willing to do this, she might become friendly with some of these other mothers, which, in itself, could lead to better things for the daughter.

Now and then, if this girl has some pocket money, or can earn a little, she might buy her mother a few flowers, or a box of candy, on her way home from school, or something Saturday so that her mother could enjoy them over the weekend.

It may be that this teen-ager has a tendency to quarrel with her brothers because she feels resentful that her mother seems to give them more attention than she gives her. It would be only natural if she felt that way, but she should try to control the feeling enough to avoid quarrels, anyhow, in fact, it would be greatly to her advantage to try and see if she couldn't become good friends with her brothers, because if she did, they might very likely get interested in having her go places with them and ask their mother to let her. This might be a big step toward her getting more freedom to go to dances, parties, and other places.

After all, being friends with people, whether in one's family or outside of it, is pretty much a matter of how we act toward them. So I suggest that this 15-year-old give some serious thought to what I have said, and if she thinks her attitude toward her mother and her brothers might be improved, she might try the suggestions I have made, then let me know if her relationships with them don't get better.

Christmas Concerts

UNION PUBLIC SCHOOL

RAWDON — On Friday evening Carmel Jubilee Hall was the scene of a delightful Christmas concert given by Mrs. Joan Bush, teacher, and the pupils of S.S., No. 22, Sidney and Rawdon Union School.

The hall was nicely decorated with Christmas bells and streamers, Santa figures, birch bark logs with candles and a lighted and decorated evergreen tree.

Mr. Harry Bruyn led the singing of Christmas carols and Dr. A. Packman was master of ceremonies.

The massed pupils sang "Merry Christmas to You" and Shirley Visser gave a "Welcome" recitation. Miss Dorothy Johnston was the accompanist on the piano for all of the program. Imi Visser and Beverly Fraser sang "A Christmas Cake Song"; Kenneth Wood recited "Curiosity Killed the Cat"; a 2-act play followed, entitled, "A Visit of Inspection."

Douglas Keating was heard in a recitation, "What Santa Calls Me."

The senior girls sang "Silver Bells"; Linda Visser, Dianne Loshaw and Doreen Loshaw, all of Grade II, gave a recitation in unison, after which the senior boys contributed "A Fireman's Song." Carol Badgley gave a Christmas recitation.

PANTOMIME

A pantomime of Christmas carols was the next item with Sheila Wood as narrator.

The junior girls delighted with which Donnie Arm GaS eanels a "Hush-a-Bye" song, after which Donnie Armstrong rendered a cornet solo.

A three-act play, full of humorous episodes, entitled "Christmas with the Mulligans," was given with Dawn Hubel taking the part of Mrs. Mulligan and Margaret Brooks as Mrs. O'Toole and the pupils taking minor roles.

Brian Sayers recited "Scared," while Wayne Brooks gave the closing recitation, "Good Night."

The pupils sang "Santa Claus Is Coming", followed by "The Queen."

Santa arrived in all his familiar garb and distributed the gifts and all the children enjoyed a treat of confectionery.

The concert was a financial success. The heavy snow storm made it a bit difficult for motorists to return homeward, but fortunately the snow did not arrive until after the concert was scheduled to begin.

UNION SCHOOL

RYLSTONE — The pupils of Union School and their teacher, Mrs. Cora Reid, held a successful Christmas concert in their school on Friday night. The school was filled to capacity for the splendid program, which was as follows:

Opening chorus, "O Canada," "There'll Always be a Christmas" and "Merry, Merry Christmas"; welcome recitation, by Barbara Milne; chairman's address, Ray. H. Beare; "Candle Exercise," by five little girls; chorus, "I Was Born Long Ago"; musical play, "Christmas Bells."

Play, "The Child of Promise"; Christmas carols led by Mr. F. W. Barnum; dialogue, "Santa's Off"; quartet, "Polly Put the Kettle On"; recitation, "Laverne's Darning" by Laverne Finch; song by juniors, "Happy as a Christmas Bell"; play, "Here Comes the Bride."

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

FANCY FOOTWORK

Are your feet leading a double life? Do they march though the day's activities in practical shoes that are amply wide and with heels of moderate height and do they fare forth on gala evenings in cute little trifles with spiked heels and just a couple of straps? If so, they are carrying on in a normal fashion. But if your feet, as they may not promote foot health, they do little harm if worn only occasionally.

The walking shoe is no longer the flat-soled ugly horror of the past, but a thing of beauty. Which accounts for the fact that the lady of fashion does not wear fragile slippers on the street.

It is good economy to invest in a shoe wardrobe. Then there can be frequent changes. The same shoes should not be worn two days in succession. As soon as they lose shape and fail to give support they should be discarded. Hosiery should be changed daily, and must be long enough to insure that toes are not cramped.

The human foot is a marvelous mechanism. It cushions your step, carries your weight, gives grace to the dance and will carry on without discomfort if it is not abused or packed into ill-fitting shoes.

If, when bedtime comes, you are practically dead on your feet you should realize that something is wrong with them. Elevate them for ten minutes before going to bed. That practice will improve circulation. Then wiggle your toes to limber up the muscles and ease strain on tendons.

A CHRISTMAS FRESENT . . . TO A CHILD

"He who gives a child a treat
Makes joy-bells sing in Heaven's street."

TO ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT OF HIGH SCHOOL SENIOR

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is a senior in High School, has just become engaged, and is planning on having a June wedding. We would like to announce her engagement very soon. To announce it, should I invite a few friends of her group, or should I have just a get-together of the families? — W.G.S.

There is no "must" about giving a party to announce an engagement. The "must" about announcing the engagement is that, when the date of the public announcement is decided on, the engaged girl and the engaged man each tell (verbally or by notes) their relatives and intimate friends. Then, usually, the parents of the bride-to-be send a formal announcement to the newspapers. After that you may, if you and your daughter wish, announce the engagement at a buffet dinner or tea for the two families.

The engagement having been been announced, any kind of party may be given by anyone to "celebrate" the engagement. You may invite a group of your daughter's most intimate friends to come to "celebrate" the engagement . . . or this group might like to give a party in honor of your daughter.

WHO PAYS FOR POST-PROM REFRESHMENTS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our school is to give a Senior Prom, which will be held on Dec. 9 o'clock to 12. After the Prom refreshments are to be served by the class to attend a certain night-club together, and sandwiches and soft drinks are to be served there. Do you know whether the boy or the girl should pay for this expense after the dance. —M.

You don't give me enough information to give you a specific answer. Is this a coeducational school, and are the boys attending their girl classmates? Or is it a girls' school which each girl inviting her escort? When a girl invites a boy to escort her to a dance, she pays for both tickets, and also he is expected to furnish transportation and to pay for refreshments after the dance. If some special plan, such as you mention, is being made, the boys should be informed so that they will be "prepared" for this expense. Or, if each member of the class is paying for her own ticket, the plan for post-dance refreshments might be "Dutch Treat."

ON WHICH SIDE TO SERVE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When waiting on table at a dinner or luncheon, which one is the one should serve the guest at the right or left. — R.L.

All food is offered at the left of the guest. Water and other beverages are, of course, poured at the right of the guest. Used plates are removed from the left of the guest.!

Readers' Column

By Mary Moore

LETTER:

As an avid reader of your columns, I was interested in your praise of the automatic oven for working wives. It certainly is a wonderful feeling to open the kitchen door and be greeted with the smell of an oven dinner! I feel many of your working wives would be interested in some of my oven dinners that I have acquired and found delicious—dishes that can sit unrefrigerated in the oven until it turns itself on for my oven dinners include "Ham Scallop", another a chicken casserole, another good old "Swiss Steak", spareribs with barbecue sauce, and country-style sausage with the same barbecue sauce . . . in each case I brown the meat and/or chicken as the case may be the evening before and assemble the oven dinner the next morning before leaving for the office. My recipes require no turning or basting . . . I usually put small potatoes in to bake and carrots, if I come home to taste only a short time to cook a vegetable and fix a salad. We don't find them inexpert. I do not like to presume to give you my recipes and inasmuch as I know you would have them all, I cannot claim to have originated them, but have worked them out to suit myself. However I shall be only too pleased to explain in detail if it would help readers . . . many thanks for help given the writer.—Jane R.

ANSWER:

Please Jane don't be modest and send along as soon as possible as many menus as you have "some" that work. I am "small". There are far too few doing just what you have done. I would be ever so welcome to dozens of working wives who write to me.

QUESTION:

I have often thought of writing and saying "many thanks" . . . but being human I didn't find time to send my thanks until I needed help . . . what is your opinion of roasting poultry completely wrapped in foil? What about gravy? Do the juices find their way into the pan? . . . do you have a recipe for poppy seed roll? . . . would appreciate a recipe that you have used over Christmas cake.—Mrs. M.C.M.

ANSWER:

Foil wrapping is advisable for fowl that are old, but not necessary for roasting chickens or hen turkeys or small turkeys or high grade young turkeys. The fat collects in the foil-wrapping. You carefully pour it into a pan after transferring the bird to hot platter, then make your gravy.

POPPY SEED ROLL

No 1 Two unsifted milk add 2 tablespoons soft shortening, 1 tablespoon sugar, and 2 teaspoons salt. When this has cooled to lukewarm add 1 yeast cake which has been dissolved in 1-4 cup lukewarm water, then add enough flour to knead—about 3 or 3 1-2 cups sifted flour. Knead the dough on floured board until smooth and elastic. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Cut down, knead for 1 minute, cover and let rise again. Roll to 1-2 inch thickness. Brush with warm butter. . Spread with

POPPY SEED FILLING:

Soak 3-4 to 1 cup poppy seed in 1 cup water for 2 hours. Drain off excess water. To soaked seeds add 1-2 cup sugar and enough milk to make a spreading consistency and if desired, chopped nuts, vanilla and raisins. Some folks add eggs to this filling and cook in top of double boiler for 10 minutes. Spread on rolled out dough. Roll up like jelly roll and let rise again. Brush over top with 1 egg yolk to which has been added 1 tablespoon icing sugar and 1-2 teaspoon water. Sprinkle top with a few dry poppy seeds. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes.

RUM SAUCE

Beat 1 egg yolk with 2 tablespoons icing sugar until thick, then add 1 tablespoon of rum, and beat until thick and fluffy. Fold in stiffly beaten egg white, 1-2 cup heavy cream beaten until stiff, and at the very last the finely grated rind of 1 small lemon.

They had been to the mill with a load of grist, and purchased a Christmas tree on their way home. Just as they came over a sharp little hill in their lane, he waved at his little sister in the window and lost his balance, falling to the ground, where the trailer, loaded with grain, passed over his leg, breaking it in three places. He was rushed to Campbellford Memorial Hospital where the bones were set, and he returned home on Sunday afternoon. Glen had several parts in the coming school concert at the 9th line school, but will not be able to take part. All wish him an early recovery. He is lucky not to have been hurt more seriously.

Pt. Anne Defeats Trenton 6-4, Jrs. Whip Picton 9-3, in TVL Games

Two games were played in the southern section of the Trent Valley Hockey League at Belleville Memorial Arena last night with the Point Anne Cementmen nosing out Trenton Admirals 6-4 while the Belleville Juniors trounced Picton 9-3.

Point Anne jumped into the lead at 3.02 of the first period in their game and were never headed although the Admirals knotted the score twice before the period ended at 3-2. The Cementmen outscored the visitors 3-1 in each of the last two periods. The Juniors were in complete command of their game leading 2-1, 4-2 and finally 9-3 by periods.

FIRST GAME

Gerry Goyer teamed with brother Lee to net the winner's initial goal at 2.03 on a ganging play but Trenton came right back three minutes later with Austin Scott feeding a pass to Bob Hatfield who beat Bates with a close in drive. Semark drew a slashing penalty at 8.50 and Gord Graham followed a minute later but the Cementmen had little trouble in holding off the visitors. Jackie Warshaugh made it 3-1 for the Oxpointers at 12.32 as he cut in sharply from left wing and rifled a bullet by Hill. Bill Strahan picked up an assist on the play. P. Scott tied the score at 13.15 on passes from Istead and Campey.

Jud Semark put the Cementmen out front to stay at 1.40 of the second period with Gerry Goyer setting up the play. The Goyer-Williams-Goyer line upped the score to 4-3 at 10.30 with Leo banging home Gerry's goalmouth pass after Williams started the play. Beal kept Trenton within striking distance by tipping P. Scott's pass over Bates' leg at 13.40 to end the scoring for that period.

Billy Strahan took Warshaugh's passout from the corner at 11.36 of the third period to blast one by Hill but Joe Scott got that one back at 14.54 on a solo effort, carrying the centre ice and catching the corner on a screened drive from fifteen feet out. Pat Gilmour banged home the insurance marker from Strahan at 19.21, giving the Cementmen their second win in as many starts while it was Trenton's second loss.

THE TEAMS

Trenton — Hill, York, Campney, Beal, Jones, A. Scott, J. Scott, Hatfield, Cousins, Istead, F. Scott, Leavey, Schmil, G. Graham, Gould.

Pt. Anne — Bates, Hunter, Semark, L. Goyer, Williams, G. Goyer, Hurst, Stewart, Gilmour, Warshaugh, Strahan, G. Graham, Lesman.

Referees—McFaul and Aquino.

SECOND GAME

"Shaker" Baker shot the winners into a 1-0 lead at 5.32 on a play with Briant and Harvey Stollker made it 2-0 at 10.50, circling the Picton net and pushing the disc in the corner. Greer tallied one for Picton at 14.20 with murray sitting out a clipping penalty for the Juniors.

Stollker and Casey worked together on the winner's third goal at 3.35 of the second period with Casey driving home a blueline blast. Bob Brooks punched home a rebound at 13.20 with assists from Brant and Garrison to make it 4-1. Ackerman of Picton and Casey, St. Louis, Atkins, McBriant clashed at 19.05 and were handed majors for fighting and Pettingill from Mowat cut the juniors' lead at 19.55.

Sherman Brant led the way for Belleville in the final period, scoring on a screened drive at 5.55 with Garrison assisting. Brant added his second goal at 13.23, unassisted. Bob Brooks from Murray and Garrison made it 7-3 at 13.56 and Atkins from McKenna at 14.48 sewed up the verdict.

Johnny Mowat scored for Picton at 16.34 with the winners shorthanded and Briant added the final goal for Belleville with a Picton man in the sin bin at 18.34, with Vandusen and Bovay drawing helpers.

Fire Started By Blow Torch At Ingersoll

INGERSOLL, Ont. (CP)—Fire, started by a blow-torch, caused thousands of dollars damage in the business section here Wednesday.

Burned out were a confectionery store, an order office of a Toronto department store, and two apartments above the stores. An auto specialty store next to the order office was damaged by smoke and water.

Fire chief Fred Zills said "the fire was started by a blow-torch which was being used to thaw out frozen pipes in the basement of the Morello confectionery store."

Miss Jenny Morello, who has operated the confectionery store for a number of years, was treated for severe shock.

Guy Jones, an employee of the auto store, ran in to help Miss Morello who he found trying to open the back door. "She fainted just as I arrived," he said.

Mrs. Glen Millson, manageress of the order office, said a large shipment of Christmas articles ordered by customers had just arrived from Toronto. Value of the shipment was not disclosed.

Firemen fought the blaze for four hours using four lines of hose.

WHERE THE N.H.L. PLAYERS HAIL FROM

Half of the players performing in the National Hockey League right now come from the province of Ontario. Out of the 105 players currently campaigning in the circuit, 53 were born in Canada's most populated province, says Ken McKenzie, NHL statistician.

Quebec, second most populated Canadian province, is the birthplace of 13 National Leaguers. The prairie provinces of Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta come next in that order. Fourteen players were born in Saskatchewan, 12 in Manitoba and five in Alberta.

One player was born in the Maritime province of Nova Scotia. The other provinces along the Eastern seaboard, New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island do not have a single representative in the National Hockey League. The same thing applies to British Columbia, most westerly of the provinces.

One player in the loop this season was born in South Wales and another was born in Chicago, Illinois. Both play defence for the New York Rangers. Jack Evans hails originally from Garnant, South Wales, and Ivan Irwin comes from Chicago. These are the only players in the NHL today who were born outside Canada.

Montreal is the birthplace of more NHL players this season than any other city. Eleven players were born in the Canadian metropolis. Winnipeg, Man., ranks second with nine. For years Winnipeg has always topped the list as the birthplace of more National Hockey Leaguers than any other city. The Head of Lakes comes next with eight proud sons playing in the NHL. Seven of the eight were born in Fort William, Ont., while one hails from Port Arthur, the other half of the twin cities. Toronto is the city where seven players first saw the light of day.

A section of Canada which is rapidly becoming a fertile field for National Hockey League players is Northern Ontario. There are 13 players in the league who were born in such Northern Ontario towns as Schumacher, Timmins, Kirkland Lake, New Liskeard, Cochrane, Haileybury, South Porcupine and Capreol.

WHERE THE TOP GOAL-GETTERS SCORE THEIR GOALS

On the morning of December 17, there were nine players in the National Hockey League with 10 or more goals. It is interesting to see against just what clubs these goals were scored.

Boom-Boom Geoffrion of Canadiens, top goal-getter with 21 on December 17, has scored less against Toronto than any other team. Only twice has he dented the twine of the Maple Leaf nets. He has enjoyed his greatest success against Chicago and Boston, scoring six times against each team. He has tallied four times against New York three times against Detroit.

Danny Lewicki, New York Rangers' scoring sensation, has had his greatest difficulty scoring against Toronto and Montreal. Out of his 17 goals, Danny had scored twice against Canadiens and once against Toronto. He tallied six goals against Chicago, five against Boston and three against Detroit. Like Geoffrion, Lewicki had his best nights playing against Chicago and Boston.

Toronto's Ed Smith scored only one of his 15 markers against Canadiens. He scored four times against Chicago, four against New York, three against Boston and three against Detroit.

The greatest goal-getter in the history of the National Hockey League, Maurice Richard, scored 7 of his 15-goal output against the Chicago Black Hawks. The fiery Montreal winger tallied a trio against Detroit, two against Toronto, two against New York and a singleton against Boston. His teammate, Ken Mosdell, with 14 goals, scored four each against Detroit and Chicago, three against New York, two against Boston and once against Toronto.

Ron Stewart of the Leafs is a player who believes in getting his goals against the toughest opposition. Stewart scored five of his 12 goals against the Canadiens. Four times against four times against Boston, twice against the Rangers and once against Toronto. Chicago, the club that most of the leading scorers fatten up on, haven't figured in his goal-getting feats at all.

Montreal's Jean Beliveau tallied five times against New York, trio against Detroit and Chicago, and once against Boston and Toronto. Jack McIntyre of Chicago, had scored more goals against Toronto this season than any of the top NHL marksmen. He notched three against the strong defence of the Leafs. He also scored three against New York, two against Detroit and singletons against Boston and Canadiens. Boston's peppery Lee Labine has scored once against Toronto. Out of Lee's 10 goals, three were potted against Canadiens and the same number against Detroit, two of the strongest clubs in the circuit. He scored twice against Chicago and New York.

The Memos got a bad game out of their systems in Peterborough last night while the Petes proved they're still a team to be watched, especially on their own ice as they took advantage of every opportunity and slapped the locals down 7-2.

The loss prevented the Memos from taking over second place while it was the fourth win of the year for the Petes, all coming at home. The winners led 3-1 after one period with Bellville netting the only goal of the middle stanza. Don Barclay, who had held the Memos in the game during the first two periods was overpowered in the third, Eddie Redmond's crew ripping in four unanswered goals to salt away the victory.

Stamped As One of All-Time Greats of Loop; Will Become Coach of Boston Bruins

By BUD WEEKS

BOSTON (AP) — Milt Schmidt, whose fiery play during 16 seasons in the rough and swift action of the National Hockey League stamped him as one of the game's all-time greats, has clung up his skates to become coach of the Boston Bruins.

The 36-year-old Bruins captain and center announced his retirement from active play Wednesday. He succeeds Lynn Patrick, who will confine himself to the general manager job. Winger Ed Sandford takes over as captain.

Milt came to Boston from his Kitchener, Ont., home as a gangling 17-year-old in the 1936-37 season and stayed to become a fixture in the Bruin lineup, except for three years as a member of the Royal Canadian Air Force during the Second World War. He centred the famous Kraut line of "Kilos," "Bullet" Joe with Bobby Bauer and Porky Dumart on the wings. All are now retired.

BETTERED CLAPPER

Schmidt's hockey honors were many, but one of his brightest thrills came this season when his 229th goal bettered Dit Clapper's all time Bruin scoring record.

Frequently named all-star centre in the NHL, Schmidt won the Hart Trophy as the league's most valuable player in 1950-51, the season after they said he was all through.

His enthusiastic and sometimes reckless style of play resulted in at least a dozen fractures, including a broken jaw, cracked ribs, nose and hands. He has incurred shoulder separations in all three groin injuries and has two chronically balky knees. It took a total of some 200 stitches to sew cuts he suffered over the years.

"WILL PLAY"

As for Thomas Kelley, the Bruins' team physician once put it:

"Schmidt's knees are in bad shape, his side is sore, he should be in bed, Schmidt will play."

Schmidty said "It's hard to realize I won't be putting on that uniform this fall again, but I came to the conclusion that I no longer could do things the way I wanted to. I felt it was time to make room for a younger player."

Schmidt said that as a coach he'll expect "these guys to give me everything they've got. I think I can say I always did that."

Generations of Bruin hockey fans will loudly bear witness to that.

NEVER FORGET

Hockey fans, those of the Bruins particularly, probably never will forget the picture made by Schmidty standing down the ice, the puck well controlled by his stick and a chip on his shoulder.

Milt never backed away from anyone. There are few players who challenged the redoubtable skater more than once. Schmidt has been stitched often but his opponents have been stitched more.

That Schmidt usually was defending himself in these set-ups is borne out by the penalty statistics. He never was the top man among the league's ranking bad men. But, neither was he at the bottom. His top year for penalties was the 1951-52 season when Schmidt went to the penalty box for 37 minutes as he played all but three games in the 70-game schedule. That was about one-third the time spent in the jug by the most penalized skaters.

Bauer and Dumart were the ones who recommended the gangling 17-year-old kid named Schmidt to Art Ross, the man who built the Bruins from scratch.

Ross brought him here and after farming him out for a year for seasoning brought him back again.

Schmidt is married, has two children and lives in suburban Needham.

He probably will make more frequent line changes than any other coach in the league because he thinks it will expect every player to go at top speed and expend 100 per cent at all times—something he always did himself.

Canadiens Will Give Mosdell Night Feb. 19

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — With the hurrah and excitement over Maurice (Rocket) Richard's 400th goal scarcely abating, managing director Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens came out Wednesday with an announcement that there will be a Ken Mosdell night Feb. 19.

In the last few years there have been "nights" for the more colorful players, past and present, on Montreal's National Hockey League club. Some were Aurel Joliat, Butch Bouchard and Richard.

Now comes the tribute to the 33-year-old veteran, who attributes his success this season and last to summertime jobs of building freight cars and hauling heavy bags of cement.

Almost unheralded last season, Mosdell began to blossom at centre like a score-happy rookie. He was the surprise for the season. the highest he has ever made since he broke into the NHL in the 1941-42 season. So far this season he has counted 16, the same as the famous Rocket.

"One sure reason I've been doing better is because I haven't been injured as much," said Mosdell. "And the jobs I've had, instead of hurting me, have helped rather than injuries, must have put me in shape. So stand the grind better. A year ago last summer I worked on an assembly line, building freight cars. This summer I took on a more rugged job. I drove a truck, loaded bags of cement and unloaded them. I'm convinced that type of job not only helped to keep me free of injuries but has me in top physical shape for the start of the season."

Asked what he thought of his rejuvenated centre, coach Dick Irvin said:

"Mosdell gets lots of work. We use him on everything from being as well as having him take his turn at least as much as any other player on the club."

Mosdell has been used on various lines. He was working with Richard when the Rocket got goal No. 400 in Chicago last Saturday. Mosdell and Guy Rousseau, a junior on the leadership, supplied the assists in the history-making counter.

Mosdell, originally of Montreal, is one of the two players still in the NHL who broke in with the old Brooklyn Americans. The other is Harry Watson, now with Chicago Black Hawks.

Tried to Sell 4,300 Bogus Tickets for Game

CALGARY (CP)—Irvine Switzer of Edmonton was fined $100 Wednesday for attempting to sell 4,300 bogus tickets to the Nov. 27 Grey Cup football game in Toronto.

Magistrate Lucien Dubuc, in charge of attempting to commit an indictable offence.

Switzer's lawyer said the scheme was "fantastic" and could not possibly have worked. He said Switzer tried unsuccessfully to advertise the plan in Calgary newspapers. A ticket was to cost $5 with another $1 for an unnamed charity.

Calgary police testified that although gambling customers lined up outside a Calgary hotel room on the day of the proposed sale, no tickets were exchanged hands. Police were in the queue.

British Doctors Urge Boxing Authorities to Take Safeguards

LONDON (AP)—British doctors urged boxing authorities today to take new and stiffer safeguards against brain injuries suffered by fighters. The alternative, said the physicians, is to see boxing drop in public favor.

The warning came in an editorial in the British Medical Journal, official organ of the British Medical Association.

"It is essential," the Journal said, "that the authorities who control both amateur and professional boxing should act on the recommendations given by their medical advisers in order to minimize the risk of brain injury."

One British professional, Bobby Callaghan, 22, died recently after collapsing following a fight. His death was attributed to a blow to the head.

Two American fighters also died recently after bouts.

In the last seven years there have been eight boxing deaths among amateurs in Britain.

To prevent such deaths, one London physician suggested a fighter be kept in bed for at least two weeks following a knockout. "Every medical officer," he recommended, "should be familiar with the early signs of cerebral damage and should insist on adequate time (during a fight) for full examination."

An amateur boxer with a fractured jaw should be permanently suspended, Dr. J. L. Blonstein, honorary medical officer to the Amateur Boxing Association, said in an accompanying article on amateurs.

Dr. Blonstein and Dr. Edwin Clarke both wrote they favor amateur boxing and that it helps combat juvenile delinquency and may even be suitable as an outlet for psychopathic traits.

The main editorial dealt, in general, with the "punch-drunk" state. The article said there is no doubt that deterioration of personality and intellect could occur as a result of a career in boxing. A punch-drunk condition likely is due to repeated head injury, the article said.

Claims that this-shalled men are more easily knocked out was partially proven by a survey. Of the six amateur victims, two were found to have had "exceptionally thin" skull vaults. The Journal said further study "of this interesting aspect" is needed.

Cellar-Dwelling Petes Flash Brilliant Form in Defeating Memos 7-2 in Lift Lock City

PETERBOROUGH — Flashing fine form here throughout their O.H.A. Senior "B" fixture, the cellar-dwelling Petes stunned the Belleville Memos, who are tied with Cornwall for second place in the standing, by a 7-2 count before a few hundred fans. Petes had 2-1 in the first frame, were only in front 3-2 in the second but then pitched four unanswered goals in the third heat of a clean tilt. Memos drew seven of the 12 minor penalties.

Toodie Greenlaw, Bert Hill and Bob Kennedy, the latter newly acquired from the defunct Toronto Lyndhursts, notched two markers each for Peterborough, Roy Armstrong got the other one. Two assists each went to Kennedy and Chum Fryia, with slugger married to Leonard, Ed Redmond, Bill Twist, Bill Collins and Bill McMaster. For Belleville, Davy Jones and Erwin Duncan scored one apiece, while Doug Day and Edwin Duncan had as an assist each.

The Petes earned their victory by digging in hard from start to finish and only good goaltending by Don Barclay kept the count down. Petes outshot their rivals about two to one, and checked closely, with the defence and Jack Donlevy shining also.

Greenlaw scored early in the second period when Chum Fryia on a breakaway. Day was off for high sticking when Hill backhanded home an assist by Kennedy. Armstrong was gated for slashing at the 10 mins cashed in to score on a fine lone rush and finish-up by Dave Jones. Twist was back when Goyer got the finger for holding. Wilson Lodge was penalized and he was still away when Greenlaw made it 3-1 on a rebound after a three-way crash with Fryia and Leonard. Kennedy drew a tripping penalty near the finish of the period.

DAY GATED

Day was gated to start the second for high sticking and McMaster later got the nod for interference. He was back when Erwin Duncan scored in close from Ed's Duncan and Day on a passout and slap shot. Pete Jones went away for cross checking and Redmond followed for holding late in the frame.

All set back in the third when Bill lengthened the Petes' lead as he lashed a Redmond shot at the crease, Kennedy starting the play. Armstrong added one shortly on a passout from Twist. Fryia and Wilson were cheered together for slashing and Kennedy struck for two goals, scoring first on pile-on situation with Hill and Collins, and following a two-man thrust with McMaster, both being handled at close range. Goyer drew the finger for boarding in the last few minutes of play.

The teams:

Belleville — Goal, Barclay; defence, Wilson and Macey; centre, Erwin Duncan; wings, Ed. Duncan and Day; alternates, Goyer, Wade, Dorah, P. Jones, Dave Gray, G. Gray, MacDonald, Muckler and Hull.

Year's Comeback Awarded To New York Giants

NEW YORK (AP)—The rise of New York Giants from fifth place in 1953 to the National Baseball League championship and a four-game sweep over Cleveland in the world series was rated the "comeback of the year" of 1954 in the 7th annual year-end Associated Press poll.

Thirty-nine U.S. sports writers and sportscasters gave the Giants 58 of the Giants the No. 1 comeback with the return of fabulous Babe Didrikson Zaharias to golf's top heights rated second.

On a ballot of three points for first, two for second and one for third, the Giants received 116 points. The amazing Babe, who made a successful battle against cancer in '53 and was cited for the "comeback of 1953," collected 58 points and 12 first-place votes.

The resurgence of Arkansas' football team, winner of the Southwest Conference pennant, was ranked third, with 49 points, followed by Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, for their recovery from a dismal start this season, 47.

K-W Dutchmen Lose to Maroons By Shutout

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The leaders of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League came down with a bang Wednesday night.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, on top of the league with 37 points dropped 3-0 to Chatham Maroons at Chatham for the home team's first shutout of the season.

At Stratford, Indians knocked up a 6-3 victory over Owen Sound Mercurys, runner-up behind Dutchmen in the league.

The Jim Wilson-Eddie Bush-Ken Schultz line was a standout for Maroons. Ken Schultz scored the first goal at 6:00 of the first period off passes by Wilson and Bush. Albert Pirsztuk scored the second goal for Maroons and Wilson sent in the third at the :18 mark of the final period, his linemates assisting.

Chatham goalie Al Bennett blocked 27 shots against 36 for Denis Brodeur in the Dutchmen's nets.

For two periods it was pretty much a Stratford story as Mercurys' goalie Bobby Dalton made 33 stops to 24 by Bruce Dale at the Stratford net. But in the third period Gilson handled only seven shots, against 18 by Dale.

Harry Pritika scored two of the Stratford goals, Lou Benolo, Art Laird, Johnny Murdoch and Gord Keer counted the others. Jack Taylor, Ted Reid and Buck Fortunato scored for Owen Sound.

Canucks Suffer Third Defeat In Quebec Games

MONTREAL (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks Wednesday night suffered their third defeat in as many games in Quebec when they bowed 3-0 to Montreal Junior Canadiens in a Laurier Trophy hockey encounter.

The Canucks lost by a 4-3 count Sunday in Quebec and dropped a 3-0 decision Tuesday night to Trois-Rivieres.

Montreal got a single goal in each period, with Reg Fleming, Andre Proovost and Claude Vinet doing the honors. Ron Atwell assisted on two of the goals.

There were 12 penalties handed out in the contest, six to each team. These included majors to Montreal's Longarini in the second period and to Stan Ballak of Kitchener - Waterloo and Henri Richard in the last for fighting.

The game does not count in the Ontario Junior Hockey Association standings, but Montreal's win moved them closer to second-place Trois-Rivieres in the Quebec junior loop.

Ottawa Still Being Considered For International

OTTAWA (CP)—The Citizen says in a Montreal City dispatch that Ottawa still is being considered as an entry next year in the International Baseball League.

The Ottawa club is a farm of the parent Montreal City Athletics and last year was operated by Philadelphia Athletics.

The newspaper says Parke Carroll, general manager of Kansas City Athletics, said Ottawa is among four cities being studied as a site for the league. The others are Columbus, Tampa-St. Petersburg and another city Carroll declined to name.

The American League club has said in the past it wants to transfer the Ottawa franchise elsewhere or sell it.

Quebec Hockey League Will Continue Season With 5 Teams

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Hockey League decided Wednesday to operate with five clubs, revamped point accumulations with virtually no change in team positions, and settled player disposition for all but a few of the decisions Ottawa Senators.

Following the Senators' demise as of last Monday night, the representatives of the five remaining clubs held a four-hour special meeting.

They agreed to give each club eight extra games, debated Sunday and double-header Sunday dates and tossed the final re-scheduling into the hands of league president George Slater as a Christmas headache.

A tentative bid from Sherbrooke to take over the Ottawa schedule, with modifications in view of no Sunday games in Ottawa, was nipped out largely because the fourth-place Senators' team could not be moved in into Sherbrooke's Garsebaldi Arena until after last season because of dwindling attendance. The Saints still hold their franchise.

The Ottawa schedule and all of the players owned by Ottawa were surrendered Monday to the league when Ottawa president Tommy Gorman declared he was no longer able to continue. Gorman had also been of National Hockey League games in Toronto on Saturdays had cut Ottawa's gate into his gate and he was operating at a heavy financial loss.

Toronto of the NHL stepped in and announced that decisions had been made of their five Ottawa farmhands. They are Bill Eaton, Bill Sutherland, Carl Mahoney, Bill Johnson and Hugh Barlow.

The QHL now has advised three other clubs that their owned chattel are being returned to them. They are John Bobeen, returned to Springfield of the American Hockey League; Gordie Hudson, returned to Providence of the AHL, and Bob Rawlyk, returned to Detroit of the NHL.

The league has released Alan Kuntz, Bob Hanson, Emile Dagenais and Hugh Riopelle. At least a couple of them are expected to return to the hockey. Bobby Copp and Leo Gravelle have been assigned by the league to the lowly Chicoutmi Saguenenes, the price to be determined. Jean Arundel has been sold to Frederick are on the for-sale list by the league.

The new schedule, original a 65-game chore for each team, will work out with Valleyfield, Montreal Jr. Canadiens and Shawinigan Falls each having 62 games; Quebec will have 61 and Chicoutimi 60.

The total for each club varies because of the number of games already played against Ottawa.

Revised standings approved at the league meeting, including a game first with 41 points, Montreal second with 33, Quebec third with 31, Shawinigan ending in a fourth-place tie with Chicoutimi at 30 and Valleyfield last with 13.

Three Junior Players Illegally Transferred East

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta Amateur Hockey Association has been assured that it is correct in its contention that three St. Catharines Canadian juniors were illegally transferred to Canada junior leagues. The three include Ab Rochon, transferred to St. Catharines TeePees of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

The Ottawa club is a farm of the parent Montreal City Athletics and last year was operated by Philadelphia Athletics.

The newspaper says Parke Carroll, general manager of Kansas City Athletics, said Ottawa is among four cities being studied as a site for the league. The others are Columbus, Tampa-St. Petersburg and another city Carroll declined to name.

The American League club has said in the past it wants to transfer the Ottawa franchise elsewhere or sell it.

At Midland, Ont., Dudley said Wednesday that the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association is not allowing the transfers believing that it was acting under the terms of the regulations governing West-East transfers and "it was a reasonable misunderstanding."

Ottawa Team Officials Talk With Svenson

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders have talked it over with Earl Svenson, Queen's college candidate for the coaching job with the Big Four football team.

There was no indication from Rider officials what impressions were gained from their interview Wednesday night with the 39-year-old assistant coach at Northwestern University, but Svenson after the meeting said:

"I've come to Ottawa as coach, but naturally there are a lot of ifs and bets to be settled before the thing could come to pass."

Suspended 1,000 Years

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (CP) — For all Canadian football and hockey players bemoaning suspensions: consider the case of Selwyn Baptiste.

Selwyn will have to live another 1,000 years to play soccer again.

Trinidad's Southern Amateur Football Association imposed a 1,000-year suspension — believed, with good reason, the longest in soccer history—because Baptiste kicked a referee in a game Nov. 27, after he got a two-year suspension for violence.

He was captain and inside left for the Sheffield Football Club.

Marty Marshal Punched Backed Into Obscurity

DETROIT (AP)—Philadelphia's Harold Johnson, in a lack-lustre display of jabbing and clinching, punched Marty Marshall of Detroit back to obscurity Wednesday night in their 10-round nationally-televised fight.

Marshall, weighing 179, made his short-lived debut to "big time" boxing in the first major Detroit fight in over six months. He had been fighting in obscurity for eight years and appears prone to return to the "small time" ranks.

Johnson, 174½, made a poor showing in his effort to obtain another title bout with light heavyweight champion Archie Moore. Moore has beaten Johnson four of five times—once for the title.

Referee Lou Handler scored the bout 96-92 for Johnson. Judge Joe Lenahan had it 96-82 and Judge Bill Recchia scored it 95-82. The Associated Press card scored it 96-92.

While Handler prodded the two on for eight rounds, both seemed confused by each other's odd style and hugged countless times. Johnson had little trouble dodging Marshall's erratic swinging while Marshall received only slight taps from Johnson during the two minute embrace.

Previous to the fight, promoter Nick Londes of the International Boxing Club, said if the fighters looked good he would attempt to get a title fight with Moore for the winner. After the fight there was no such talk.

Ted Kluszewski And Stan Musial Best Fielders

NEW YORK (AP)—Cincinnati's Ted Kluszewski and Stan Musial of St. Louis Cardinals, both of whom are better known for their heavy hitting, distinguished themselves as fielders during the 1954 baseball season.

Official fielding averages released by the National League Wednesday disclosed that Kluszewski led the first basemen with an effective figure of .996, the fourth consecutive season he's finished on top while equals the major league mark held by four others.

Musial compiled a fielding average of .980 to head the outfielders. He made only three errors in 297 chances. Musial played for Pittsburgh was next with .989 and Gus Bell of Cincinnati was third with .986.

Edgar Laprade Now Grand-daddy Of Players in National Hockey Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edgar Laprade now can be acclaimed the grand-daddy player in the National Hockey League.

At 35, the old New York Ranger smoothie took over as the oldest active player in the big league Wednesday when 36-year-old centre Milt Schmidt officially put away his skates and jersey to become coach of Boston Bruins.

No sooner had the word of Schmidt's appointment got around when Laprade, five-foot-eight centre from Port Arthur, started acting like anything but a hockey crock. He was bouncing around like a yearling Wednesday night as he led New York Rangers to a 2-2 tie against the slightly ferocious Detroit Red Wings in New York's Madison Square Garden.

ONLY GAME

It was the only game of the night and Edgar, who joined Rangers in the 1945-46 campaign and was talked out of retirement a couple of times, was sensational although the Blueshirts managed only a tie. He scored one goal and assisted on the other.

The Rangers have gone 12 games without a victory. The tie moved the Detroiters into sole possession of second place with 41 points, four behind the leading Montreal Canadiens and one up on the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

The other New York goal was scored by Bob Chrystal. Glen Skov and Marty Pavelich tallied for the Wings. Rangers appeared headed to their ninth victory in 34 games this season until Pavelich fired a four-footer past goaltender Gump Worsley at 4:15 of the third period. From then on, neither team could click on a combination.

HOW TO SPOT THE JUDO CHOP!
THE JUDO CHOP is a short, chopping blow with the side of the hand, delivered with enough power to split a wood slab and 1 wooden plank, if it is chinned.
Originally a secret weapon of Oriental wrestlers, the swift, paralyzing "Judo Chop" has floored many of the toughest grapplers in the modern ground.
Using this hard, numbing blow on any part of an opponent's body, a strong, fast wrestler finds it a handy weapon in breaking holds.

Irving Berlin's "White Christmas" is sensational new VistaVision and color

"White Christmas," Irving Berlin's musical extravaganza for Paramount not only stars such showbusiness luminaries as Bing Crosby, Danny Kaye, Rosemary Clooney and Vera-Ellen, but also introduces to the movie public the studio's new, widely-hailed system of screen presentation, VistaVision.

When "White Christmas," which will open on Saturday evening at the Belle Theatre, was shown for the first time in its full length VistaVision version for a studio audience of industry and press experts, the consensus of opinion about VistaVision was "that this is truly the ultimate in screen enjoyment." Both VistaVision and "White Christmas" represented two years of hard work by Paramount technicians and members of the creative staff to achieve the proper screen height, length and width and to provide the finest possible quality picture on the largest possible screen at the lowest possible cost to theatre owners and in the final analysis to the movie-going public.

Demonstrating of VistaVision throughout the world point up Paramount's success in achieving these goals.

"White Christmas" was regarded as the ideal vehicle for introducing VistaVision. It was produced on a lavish scale by Robert Emmett Dolan, one of Hollywood's most experienced exponents of movie musicals, and directed by Michael Curtiz, whose versatility as a director has been recognized by the Academy Award. Curtiz worked from a screenplay by Norman Krasna, Norman Panama and Melvin Frank, three top flight scripters, and successful movie-makers in their own right.

To top it all, Irving Berlin, America's foremost composer of popular music, whipped up a batch of new songs to go with the title song, his all-time best-selling classic, "White Christmas," which inspired this brand new musical screen excursion. The score was his first original movie music in more than a decade. In addition, several old Berlin favorites also are included, such as "Abraham," "Blue Skies" and "Mandy."

"White Christmas" spins the romantically humorous tale of two Army buddies, played by Crosby and Kaye, who become a top-notch musical comedy team after the war and eventually produce their own Broadway hits. They become involved with a sister act—the Misses Clooney and Vera-Ellen—and the quartet proceed to Vermont to spend a white Christmas.

Crosby and Kaye are quartered in an at which they are quartered is owned by General Waverly (Dean Jagger), their former commanding officer who is now retired. Waverly's investment is in danger due to the unseasonably warm weather and no snow. Winter sports enthusiasts are staying away in droves.

To promote business over the Yule holidays the boys bring their new show to the inn for a pre-Broadway warm-up and advantage is also taken of the occasion to stage a reunion of the general's wartime division. Romantic complications ensue, but all ends happily on Christmas Eve.

Irving Berlin, who had ample scope for his talents with the cast and story stands unchallenged as America's greatest composer of popular melodies. Since before the first World War his songs by the thousands have filled the throats and kilocycles of the world. His works are too numerous even to summarize, but they include "Marie From Sunny Italy," which has sold Berlin a total of 6c cents in royalties, "Alexander's Ragtime Band" (which did considerably better), "A Pretty Girl is Like a Melody," "All Alone" and hundreds more

CAPITOL THEATRE — Bud Abbott and Lou Costello make merry in the comedy riot "Mexican Hayride" opening tonight at the Capitol theatre. On the same program the added big comedy hit stars Red Skelton and Arlene Dahl in "Watch The Birdie." These two comedy hits will be shown Friday and Saturday at 2.00 p.m. Friday Matinee and Christmas Night starting at 7.00 p.m.

AT THE McCARTHY — Ludmilla Tcherina, as the notorious Princess Pulcheria, and Jeff Chandler, as the Roman centurion Marcian, are the center of romantic interest in Universal-International's Technicolor CinemaScope "Sign of The Pagan," which also stars Jack Palance, as Attila the Hun, and Rita Gam, as his daughter, Kubra. Douglas Sirk directed and Albert J. Cohen produced "Sign of The Pagan." Opening Monday (Boxing Day) at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

In addition to the scores of such stage hits as "Call Me Adam," "Annie Get Your Gun," "This Is the Army," and movie films as "Top Hat," "Blue Skies" and "Louisiana Purchase," Some of these were hits on both stage and screen. Berlin turned out a dozen new songs for "White Christmas."

For Bing Crosby's "White Christmas" spells a happy reunion with Berlin. Bing's recordings of the title song have sold in excess of 8,400,000 and they still bring in an average annual record royalty of over $5,000. The picture come on the heels of Bing's triumph in "Little Boy Lost." "White Christmas" demonstrates once again his amazing versatility, for he sings and dances with his customary charm, aplomb and gusto. This is the first time Bing has been teamed with Danny Kaye.

The world's first VistaVision film "White Christmas", opens Christmas Night at the Belle Theatre, with a Sunday after midnight "2.05 showing, continuing on Monday from 1.00 p.m. continuous showings.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop was watching me reeding my new Atomic Comics magazine, and he said to ma, High bo, the age of innocence has gone forever, at least around here. Do you remember when I use to put on my Santa Claws coat every Christmas, for Benny's benefit? Ah well, time changes as it marches on. That's life, he said.

No it aint, pop, I said. I can show you lots of littl kids that still bleeve in Santa Claws, I said, and pop said, None of them belong to me.

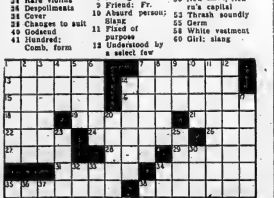
Meening I do, and I said, Well G, pop, why dont you put on your Santa Claws suit again this year! I bet ma knows where it is, dont you, ma? I said.

Yes I do, ma said, and pop said, It wouldn't be the same.

Aw G, pop, why not? I said. All you did was pretend. You didn't actually bleeve you were Santa Claws, I said, and pop said, No, but you did.

Not the very last time, I didn't, pop, I said. I just pretended, too. So we were both pretending, I said, and pop said, Why, you little dubble crosser, was that a nice trick to play on your poor innocent father?

Sure, pop, you were playing the same trick on me, so we were playing it on each other, and both having a swell time, I said. So why can't we do it again? I said, and ma said, How cute, it would be very amusing to watch. Shall I get the costume out, William? she said.



I'm afraid the sycological value would be lost, pop said, and I said, What's that mean, pop?

It means what's sauce for the goost is not sauce for the gosling, pop said.

Being all the ferther he would explain it.
